On Monday evening the Past Noble Grands Club of Quintepa Rebekah Lodge met at the home of Mrs. Florence Pollett for their Christmas meeting.

The new officers elected for 1952 are as follows: president, Mrs. Annie Rose; vice president, Mrs. Georgina Charlton; secretary treasurer, Janet Twiddy.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Leatha Cornish read an address and presented Mrs. Eva Turvey with a gift as she is leaving the city to make her home in North Bay. Mrs. Turvy graciously thanked the club for their kindness to her, stating also that she would miss the fellowship of the members, and that some day she might be returning.

Mrs. Rhea Mitchell won the prize for cards. Members exchanged gifts which were placed in a basket resembling a large Christmas pudding from which strings, which were attached to the gifts, extended.

Mrs. Dorothy Harwood conducted a riddle contest which was much enjoyed by all.

The highlight of the evening was the pot-luck supper. The tables were set in the upper hall with 18 members and three visitors present. The supper consisted of roast chicken and all the trimmings that go to make up a most delectable meal.

A vote of appreciation was tendered Mrs. Pollett and her group, as well as to every one who had helped to make this evening one of the best the club has had. It is hoped that the members will be spared to meet again next year at another Christmas party.

United Church W. A. Elects 1952 Officers

The general meeting of Foxboro United Church Women's Association was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School rooms with 16 women present.

Mrs. Harold Stewart was in charge of the worship service and opened with a reading "How Far is it to Bethlehem?", followed by singing "O Little Town of Bethlehem".

Mrs. C. Bamber read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. H. Stewart read a Christmas story and Mrs. Tupper gave the story of "The Little Match Girl". Mrs. Chambers rendered a solo "The Christmas Baby"; Mrs. C. Arthurs read the story of the "Star". The worship service closed with the hymn "Silent Night, Holy Night".

Mrs. C. Bamber conducted the business and Mrs. G. Priest presented the new slate of officers for 1952 as follows:

Honorary president, Mrs. C. Bamber; president, Mrs. Simmons; 1st vice-president, Mrs. B. Hollinger; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. C. Arthurs; card secretary, Mrs. W. Hodgens; treasurer, Mrs. G. Hicks.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Bamber and other officers by Mrs. E. Tummon and Mrs. P. Kilpatrick.

Rev. M. Giffin spoke to the women on the needs of the church for the coming year.

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

On Tuesday afternoon, Christ Church Parish Guild held a delightful luncheon party in the church hall. There was a large attendance.

Delicious food prepared and served by the members was greatly enjoyed.

Previous to the business meeting the rector, Canon J. B. Creeggan, gave an inspiring address, the theme "Three Verses From the Scripture", and in closing thanked the Guild for the work of the past year.

The president, Mrs. E. Hickey, read the correspondence and received reports from the various committees. Mrs. M. Button read the financial report.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Monday instead of Tuesday.

Mr. Creeggan closed the meeting.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(Article 12)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Continuing on our tiyul-hike through the Jerusalem Corridor we stopped at the settlement of Zorah.

The settlement of Zorah is situated near the ruins of the ancient city of Zorah which is mentioned in the Bible in the 13th chapter of Judges. It was around Zorah that the Hebrew tribe of Danites lived. The city of Zorah was of special importance because it was there that the Biblical hero Samson was born, and also carried out many of his acts against the Philistines.

Near Zorah is a settlement called Hartoov, and at Hartoov a huge cement plant is being built. It will be called the "Samson Cement Company factory." It appears to be much larger than most of the factories that I have seen in Canada. Building began on it in 1939 but had to be suspended because of the shortage of materials during the war years. Rebuilding began in 1948 but when Hartoov was captured by the Egyptian army, all work was destroyed. Consequently when work commenced in 1951, it had to be started from the bottom up. Barring unforeseen circumstances, the factory will be completed during the summer of 1952 at a cost of approximately five million pounds. It is expected to produce 25 per cent of the total cement used in the country.

Many of the workers employed to build the plant come from Hartoov which was settled mostly by Asiatics who had never seen a factory before in their lives.

After leaving Hartoov we visited the settlement of Nativ L.H. The letters L.H. in Hebrew stand for the number 35. The settlement is thusly named in honor of 35 Israeli army members who were killed there in May, 1940. It is located near the Arab village of Beth Nativ in the valley of Elah. The valley of Elah is spoken of in Samuel I, chapter 17, and it was in this valley that David killed Goliath.

The final place that we visited in the Jerusalem Corridor was the site where the ancient city of Beth Shemesh once stood. The hill on which the ruins now stand is not a natural hill. Excavations have proven that the hill was caused by five cities which were built and destroyed on that spot.

The original city was built by the Philistines about 3,500 years ago in the time of the Judges. Beth Shemesh means "Place in the sun" and was called that by the Philistines to honor their sun god. Beth Shemesh is mentioned in Samuel I, chapter 17.

Today old stone walls, bits of pottery and many pieces of bone may be found on the site where Beth Shemesh once stood. These ruins are examples of the ancient land of Israel.

Christmas Treats Ample But Costly Britons Discover

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Britain's government leaders may be bandying words on a proposed "austerity" Christmas in rationed food, but there is no shortage in the special delicacies that are favored items on most festive tables.

A walk through any of the big, down-town food stores sets housewives calculating how many goodies their bank balances can afford.

As yet the threatened cut in canned food supplies has not reached the counter, and delectable displays include tins of cooked ham weighing anything from around 15 pounds to as little as six ounces, and a choice of varied sizes in tinned chickens, cooked and prepared.

There are tinned turkey, whole or sliced, chicken and pork livers, cocktail sausages, frankfurters, lobster, crayfish, prawns and a wide variety of fat French, Italian and German sausage, sold by the pound.

The price of these goods may be somewhat higher than that of rationed fare, the cost of which is kept low by government subsidy, but most housewives spend that "little extra" on Christmas fare and supplies of non-rationed goods are large and succulent.

Best selling point about the canned varieties is the ease with which they can be handled in kitchens and rooms with inadequate cooking facilities.

Many would-be hostesses breathe a sigh of relief at the ease with which they can obtain tins of prepared chicken and turkey savories that help make an interesting buffet luncheon or dinner.

And for those who don't mind the cost, most big stores have a variety of poultry and game, expertly cooked and prepared, trussed and garnished with imagination. Not only that, but a complete dinner can easily be built up on prepared foods alone.

Favorites still notable by their absence — they have been almost unobtainable since the end of the Second World War — are North American canned pears, peaches and pineapple.

Housewives need not be dismayed, however, for there is a wide variety of bottled fruits, including all three, and varied types of fruit salads. Bottled pineapple pieces, for instance, cost as little as 2s 6d.

An expensive item on most banqueting tables will be the Christmas crackers. Most "decent" crackers are priced around two guineas a box, and decorative cracker table novelties cost around £5.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W.I.

The Chatterton Women's Institute branch held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. Berson Mitts with an attendance of ten and one visitor.

This was the Christmas meeting and the W.I. was fortunate to have Mrs. M. Giffin, of Foxboro United Church charge, to give a flannelgraph picture story of the birth of Jesus with readings from Matthew and Luke, explaining the picture. This was exceptionally good and the great attention told of the deep interest in the subject.

Ten dollars was voted to aid the Salvation Army, also $10 to help buy the tractor for Greece.

Readings by Mrs. Harry Reid and Mrs. E. B. Finkle were given, and Mrs. Don Rose, of Halloway, favored with a solo, "O Holy Night".

Mrs. L. VanOsten Heads Holloway W.A.

The regular monthly meeting and Christmas tree of the Woman's Association of Holloway Street United Church was held yesterday in the church parlors.

After a delicious luncheon, prepared by Mrs. Murphy and her group, Mrs. B. Moorman, the president, opened the meeting with a worship service after which Mrs. Fred Wilson conducted the devotional, and in place of the Scripture reading, a hymn was read in unison.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes brought to the meeting many thoughts on "The true meaning of Christmas". Mrs. J. Scriven sang a solo, "O Holy Night". Mrs. Wilson closed the devotional meeting.

Various reports were given, followed by business.

Mrs. Charles Walters presented the slate of officers for 1952 as follows: past president, Mrs. B. Moorman; president, Mrs. L. Van Osten; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Garn Dobbs; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. T. A. Tucker; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. M. Hick; recording secretary, Mrs. W. Simmons; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. Holmes; treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Campbell; flower committee, Mrs. F. Scott and Mrs. O. Denyes; property, Mrs. W. Olliphant and Mrs. F. Rayfield; parsonage, Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. S. P. Hagerman and Mrs. Quincey; visiting, Mrs. Wagg and Mrs. G. Dobbs; V.O.N. representative, Mrs. Quincey; "Church Observer", Mrs. R. Andrews; press, Mrs. H. Townsend. Auditors: Mrs. A. Lennox and Mrs. Lowther.

A skit was presented "White Christmas", with Mrs. A. Greatrix, Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. E. Leeming, Mrs. G. Atkins and Mrs. H. Grills taking part.

Mrs. Westerhoff, of Holland, sang the solo part in her native tongue and also in English, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. M. Mitchell.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

Down in Kingston the stores have run out of toy lead soldiers early this Christmas season. This could be because there are so many hundreds of army men stationed at the old Garrison city and they all want to buy their young sons lead soldiers . . . Or it could be that with so much talk of war children everywhere want to know more about battle. Or it could be that lead is scarce again and there are only so many lead soldiers to go around . . . Whatever the reason, if you had in mind getting soldiers for your youngsters, it would be well to get them bought right away.

Stamp Tip

Fund raising campaign tip from the experienced comes with the idea that if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed with the pledge card, as well as a counter cheque, people respond in far greater numbers to a public appeal.

These days, life is confused and complicated. Just to get hold of a pen, a cheque, a stamp and an envelope is too much effort for the average man no matter how great the cause. John Doe wants to help, but will put off helping for lack of tools . . . Besides, that charity stamp will worry his conscience. He won't use it for something else or toss it into the waste basket.

Presentations

How refreshing it is to be at a presentation party when a beautiful oil painting done by one of our own Canadian artists is given. Presentations are nearly always made in the traditional form of useless silver trophy cups which pile up in a tarnished heap on cupboard shelves, cigarette boxes, cuff links, bouquets of roses, silver trays, beer tankards and the like.

An oil painting, well done, no matter what the size, is one of the most appreciated presentation gifts. It is a lasting and constant reminder of the givers and sheds beauty wherever it is hung. It was good to know that Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh went home with two Canadian landscapes.

These paintings will remind the royal couple of their trip and will on occasion remind the British people of Canada's wild, natural beauty wherever the paintings are loaned for public display.

Most Canadian homes, even the wealthiest of them, can do with a good deal more art. Business and industrial buildings need more art in their interiors. Many a store window would attract spectators if it displayed one beautiful piece of art occasionally.

Glass Gifts

There is a kind of good quality glassware which you can have personally monogrammed with three initials that makes a useful present for Christmas, weddings and anniversaries. It is inexpensive for its quality. Not only does this glass come in every kind of tumbler and wine glass, but in water and cream jugs, ice tubs, cocktail shakers and ice trays.

MURDERER SET FREE

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Too young to date?

Why, I wonder, is it so difficult for some adults to remember how they felt when they were in their teens? If this type of memory lapse could be avoided, I believe, there would be far more understanding, and consequently a far happier relationship, between many parents and their adolescent sons and daughters.

It would naturally follow, also that far fewer letters would reach my desk that start off in much the same manner as this:

"I never thought I would have to write to anyone for advice until lately, when the subject of dates came up between my mother and me."

The writer of that particular sentence "soon will be 15," she says, and adds, "I could pass for 17." Then she goes into detail about the problems which troubles her:

"I go around with a crowd of girls all of whom are anywhere from a year and a half to two years older than myself, so naturally I matured quicker than most other girls my age. Since I was twelve, I have been going to parties and dances and have had plenty of fun, but when boys ask me for dates, I always have to make up excuses.

"Why? Well, it's like this. When I ask my mother why I can't go to the movies or to a teen-age dance with a boy, she says that it's because I'm too young and that it doesn't look nice for young girls to be going out with boys until they're 17. That seems very funny to me when she does let me go to movies or to dances without an escort.

"So I have decided to ask you to give me direct answers to two questions. The first is, do you think I'm too young to go places with boys? And the second is, do you think my mother's reasoning about this is right?"

Too Young?

Now to help this teen-ager see clearly exactly what it is about, which she is trying to make up her mind, let's begin by explaining to her that what she has here is, actually, not two, but one single question. The point she keeps mulling over boils down simply to this: Is her mother right in thinking that she is too young to go out with boys?

As she herself evidently sees it, if she's considered old enough to go to the movies and to dances at all, why isn't she old enough to have a boy take her to such places? And my opinion is that logic is on her side. It's likely that the basis for her mother's objections is that while she has reached an age where she can be expected to conduct herself properly in a group, she is not yet mature enough so that her mother has full confidence that she will handle herself with equal propriety on a date alone with a boy. Where this viewpoint falls down, I think, is in what seems to be this mother's idea that knowledge of how to behave with boys will automatically come to her daughter as she reaches the specified age of 17.

Quite obviously, of course, nothing could be farther wrong.

For standards of conduct, good taste in behavior and the ability to make wise choices are not qualities which boys and girls receive from life as gifts on certain birthdays. They are qualities which youngsters gradually acquire in two ways as they grow from year to year until those characteristics have become an ingrained part of their personality. The two ways in which they learn those things are from listening to what their parents tell them, and from watching their parents' own manners, reactions and behavior. If there parents, by both precept and example, instill the right and proper attitude in their children, they should be able to have entire confidence that their sons and daughters will not go far astray when they reach their teens.

Of course, teen-agers will make some mistakes. That is only to be expected. But if they have been wisely led by their parents, the mistakes will not be serious ones, and they will be capable of learning from them so that they will not be repeated.

GOOD MANNERS

Hope chest a Christmas present from her fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our engagement was announced two months ago, and although we are not to be married for quite a few months, I would like to start a hope chest. My fiance would like to give me this chest for one of his Christmas presents to me. Would this be correct?

M. R.

Yes.

How child's mother signs letter to teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I write a note to my daughter's teacher, should I sign it "Mrs. Henry Brown", or "Mrs. Dorothy Brown", or "Dorothy Brown"? She, of course, calls me "Mrs. Brown", so one of the first two names I mentioned, (with "Mrs.") seems correct to me. And should I sign notes to her "Sincerely yours", or "Very truly yours"?.

Mother

The important rule to remember: When you sign a letter never sign the title before your name. Your direct signature is your informal name: Dorothy Brown, or Dorothy Hall Brown. Then, when necessary, write your formal name in parentheses underneath your signature. And close your letter with "Sincerely yours", rather than the too-business-like form "Very truly yours".

Sincerely yours,
Dorothy Hall Brown
(Or Dorothy Brown)
(Mrs. Henry Brown)

Should mother visiting school shake hands with teacher?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

An invitation was sent to us mothers to visit the school. We three mothers went together, and we were all meeting the teachers for the first time. One mother extended her hand when she was introduced to the teachers. Was this proper?

M. R.

Yes, entirely proper, even though, of course, not necessary. For this special occasion of parent-meeting-teacher, it would seem to me most natural, warmly gracious, for a mother to add a friendly handshake to her "How do you do, Miss Hill". In other words, the offering to shake hands is the expression of "I have heard of you so much, Miss Hill, that it is a special pleasure to meet you on this occasion."

However, in any discussion of when should one offer to shake hands, it just must be said that some people feel the friendly impulse to shake hand, and quite often, while others just don't feel this impulse. And it does depend on personal preference.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the best man proposes the toast to the bride and groom should all the guests rise? The bride's parents too, the hosts? And the bride and groom should not rise. . . .correct?

Editha B.

Yes. . .all guests, and the bride's parents also, rise to drink the toast proposed to the bride and groom. And no. . .the bride and groom, to whom the toast is proposed, do not rise. (When the toast is drunk and all are seated, the groom rises and expresses thanks on behalf of his bride and himself.)

Correct for woman to use maiden name in business

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please 'solve' a discussion my husband and I are having: Is it proper for a girl to use her maiden name? I know several women who do this, but my husband insists that it isn't correct.

R. A.

Today a woman in business or profession very often prefers to use her maiden name in her business or professional life. . .Miss Anne Graham . . and reserves her formal name for her social life. . . Mrs. Robert Thompson. It is entirely proper, and very sensible, too, for her to continue to use the name that has become important in her business activities. And many women wish to make a definite distinction between their business and social life, and do this by the different form of name.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have read some of your nice recipes and would like you to let me have them. . . we have tried some of your candy and enjoy it very much. Would you kindly reprint Mrs. Duddy's jelly roll as I have lost the corner of it. Please send sponge candy, Turkish delight, fondant and fudge.—Mrs. Grace A.

ANSWER:

I am so glad you enjoyed the candies. Column for December 6, gave you Turkish delight, fondant and fudge plus some others. In it I promised to give you Sponge candy so here it is:

SPONGE CANDY

Butter a deep tin pan.

Mix together 3 lbs. granulated sugar and 1 lb, glucose (buy this at the drug store), in granite kettle with 1 cup water. Stir to mix then place over heat and heat to 300 deg. Fahr. A candy thermometer is absolutely essential. While batch is cooking mix together in a bowl 6 level teaspoons baking soda and 5 teaspoons water. When batch is cooked remove from heat and stir in the soda-water mix. Stir well and quickly. This should be in a vessel too large for it to allow for the foaming. Pour into greased pan at once to desired thickness. Do not touch after pouring. Let stand until cold. Break into pieces when cold.

NOTE: Measurements must be very accurate. Be sure to use measuring teaspoon for the soda and water. You may have to make this two or three times before you turn out a professional product but it is amazing how easy it is to produce a very presentable one.

MRS. DUDDY'S JELLY ROLL

Three-quarters cup sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 teaspoon single action baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, 3-4 cup sifted sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Jelly for filling.

Sift flour and measure. Mix together in a bowl the eggs, baking powder and salt. Stand this over smaller bowl containing hot water and beat with rotary beater, gradually adding the sugar as you beat, until the mixture becomes thick and light-colored. Remove bowl from hot water. Fold in the sifted flour and stir in vanilla. The size of pan for a jelly roll is 15 x 10 inches. Grease it, line with paper to within 1-2-inch of edge, and grease again. Turn in batter. Bake at exactly 400 deg. Fahr. for 13 minutes. Turn from pan at once onto cloth sprinkled with icing sugar and immediately cut off crisp edges of cake. Quickly spread with jelly and roll up. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack.

QUESTION:

Enclosed find a pickle of all things! I would like to know why they have that funny "sweety" taste, and if there is anything I could do about it. They were always delicious until last year. I used the same recipe. This is it: Four quarts cucumbers put in brine in proportion of 4 parts water to 1 part salt. Let stand 3 days. Drain off brine and cover with fresh soft water. Change the fresh water 2 days more. Put the cucumbers on stove with a liquid of 1 cup water to 1 cup vinegar to cover. Add alum (about 2 walnuts or more). Do not let them boil, but keep hot for 2 hours. Drain and put in crook. Cover with the following syrup which must be boiling: 3 oz. mixed pickling spice, 3 lbs. white sugar, 3 pints vinegar. Each day for two days drain off syrup and heat to boiling point. Leave in crock or seal in jars. Is there any way to fix them up? . . .I enjoy your column.— Mrs. Gladys M.

ANSWER:

It was a surprise to find a pickle in your letter! Tasted good though, to me. While you may have used exactly the same recipe each year there are other factors that enter into the picture that change the result. Cucumbers could have been old. Vinegar I believe was too strong—you may have used a 60 grain vinegar without knowing it. Use the best quality of bottled vinegar on the market—preferably spirit vinegar for this recipe. "Two walnuts" of alum are too much—1 "hickory nut" is much better.

The only thing I can suggest is to drain off the syrup on the pickles. Soak them in very weak brine—2 tablespoons salt to 1 quart water—overnight; then cover them with the same syrup you describe but add twice as much water, to it.

I should add that your original brine is 4 times too strong with salt. Sixteen parts water to 1 part salt is nearer to correct. Write to me when pickling season rolls round again and I will send you my sweet cucumber pickle recipe—other readers are very enthusiastic about it.

BEAUTY

Care of white hair

Many individuals consider white hair the most beautiful of all. Yet nine among ten women whose halos have become silvered think longingly of the day when they flaunted locks of pristine color. It isn't the snowy hair that annoys them as much as the feeling that they are classed among the ancient-and-honorables, which isn't true at all. If the complexion retains youthful freshness, and the lines of the figure are svelte, what matters the white top?

Women react differently to the appearance of the first white threads. Some refuse to endure them, take to dyeing treatments, the results of which may or may not be satisfactory. Often the grey top knot is more becoming than the original shade. Some accept white hair as they accept relatives they don't like or visitors who overstay their welcome.

Premaiurely white hair may be a family inheritance.

As there is a tendency now to indulge in home permanents, so is there a frenzy for self-administered hair-coloring agents. It is our opinion that it is wise to have the work done at a beauty shop. It is bound to be a bit messy, and, no matter how smart a woman may be, she cannot see the back of her head.

Beauticians report that more women than usual are prematurely grey. Perhaps this delirious life of ours may have something to do with it. Just why the change takes place nobody knows precisely. A shaft goes white when the tiny pigment cells within it have disappeared. The shaft is like a glass tube, the cells determining whether one is a brunette, a blonde or a redhead. What becomes of these cells, and why they suddenly give up the ghost, is one of the mysteries.

Prematurely white hair may be a family inheritance. It may happen in the twenties or early thirties. At that age, it is not easy to bear.

Silvered locks require fastidious attention. The blandest soaps — melted, of course— should be used for shampooing. Not all toilet soaps are suitable for the purpose, for some are difficult to rinse away. Cosmetic chemists have produced some excellent offerings in the form of liquids and creams.

The shampoo should begin with a brushing to remove surface dust. Before soap or cream is applied, the hair should be rinsed with a strong current of warm water from a bath spray. There should be two latherings with plenty of friction.

Yellow streaks are a common trouble, but for this condition there are rinses that work satisfactorily. Metal curlers may produce a dingy look, should be avoided.

New York, Dec. 14. (AP)—United States newspaper women have chosen one of their own as "Woman of the Year" for 1951.

More recently the pert, blond Maggie has travelled around the world writing a series, "Around Russia's Curtain", authored a book, "War in Korea" and covered the U.S. on a lecture tour.

In the poll of women's editors of Associated Press Member Newspapers, runner-up for the title of outstanding woman of the year was Princess Elizabeth, whose recent American tour made miles of headlines.

On a visit to Washington with Prince Philip during her recent Canadian tour, Princess Elizabeth captured the love and admiration of America's capital with her grace and charm.

Miss Higgins, the only newspaper woman on the Korean battlefront, won international attention when, ordered to the rear for safety, she stood her ground with the announcement, "I'm here as a reporter, not as a woman."

In literature, the vote goes to Rachel Carson, author of the best-selling "The Sea Around Us".

In the field of science, the editors chose Dr. Florence Sabin, of three women doctors who were winners of the American Public Health Association's 1951 Lasker awards.

FOXBORO

Santa Visits Anglican Willing Workers

Foxboro — On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Lorne Ash, of Foxboro, was hostess for the Christmas entertainment on behalf of the Anglican Willing Workers and their families. Nine adults and fourteen children were present.

The first part of the evening was spent in the singing of Christmas carols after which Sant Claus arrived and distributed the gifts making glad the hearts of the little ones.

A social time was spent by the adults while refreshments were being served. Later each one returned home more imbued with the spirit of Christmas than upon arrival.

Docks Barber Is Expert In Bizarre Haircuts

Southampton, England. (CP)—If British males want up-to-date North American haircuts, the place to get them is Southampton docks.

Robert Massey, owner of a barber shop inside No. 2 dock gates, knows most of them. Every day style-conscious sailors in drape suits, velvet jackets and jazzy ties stroll ashore and demand such cuts as the "rhumba-ba", the "curly top", or a Canadian number, "silver dollar".

"They're that particular you'd be amazed," says 39-year-old Massey, who clutched his first pair of clippers at 14 when the most complicated cut was "short back and sides".

Today Robert can name 50 different styles. Among the first post-war crazes was the "Boston"—extremely thick with shaved line straight across the nape of the neck. That was started by sailors on convoy duty who didn't want their hair spoilt by an amateur.

Latest number is "the chit". The object seems to be to leave the hair looking as if it needed cutting.

Massey laments the fact that most British men are conservative about haircuts. It takes about a year for new styles to be accepted in most towns. For instance, British men are just getting used to the "D.A."—hair wrapped around at back like a duck's tail.

MARMORA

Marmora—With a good attendance of members and two visitors present, the December meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Wells on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. H. P. Nayler was in the chair. The meeting opened in the customary manner. The motto for the month was announced as "It is better to give than receive."

In lieu of a roll call for the evening, those present handed in gifts for food parcels for needy families. Following confirmation of minutes, it was reported that two boxes had been sent to boys who had proceeded overseas and that four more were being prepared to dispatch as soon as addresses were obtainable.

Letters Read.

The secretary read excerpts from a speech given by Miss Anna P. Lewis. Two letters were discussed at some length. The first suggested that members have letter friends in women's institutes in other countries, while the other drew attention to the Lady Tweedsmuir Competition. Mrs. F. Sweet reported the sending of cards to two sick members.

A member recently undergoing an operation and hospitalization is to be remembered also in the way of cheer. Attention was drawn to the forthcoming bake-sale and a committee to operate same was appointed.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell gave a short talk on the "Holy Thorn of Glastonbury" which flowers at Christmas as well as in the regular season. He exhibited some leaves from the thorn as well as a picture of it in bloom and scenes of Glastonbury. He also sang "Like Silver Lamps in a Distant Shrine" written by William Chatterton Dix, who is buried at Cheddar, 14 miles north of Glastenbury, and whose funeral he attended in 1897 as a choir boy. Mrs. F. R. Wells accompanied on the piano.

All joined in singing two Christmas hymns and two Christmas carols with Mrs. E. Belanger as pianist. Two readings of a Christmas nature were given by Miss Grace Warren. Mrs. Ethel Nobes staged a Christmas contest which was won by Mrs. F. N. Marett.

Mrs. L. McGinniss thanked the branch on behalf of the newly instituted Marmora Eastern Star Chapter for valued assistance given at the supper which was a feature of the program, as the institution was held last Saturday.

Mrs. Ted Bedore is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. H. C. Shelton of Peterborough is visiting her sister, Miss Laura O'Sullivan and brother, James O'Sullivan.

Mrs. J. Harnden of 38 Greenshaw Crescent, Toronto was the winner of the car in the drawing held under the auspices of Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion.

GUARDS ON LOOKOUT

Mexico City, Dec. 14 (AP)—Mexico's border guards are on the lookout for clandestine Santa Clauses. Federal police and customs inspectors have been put on the alert to sharpen their eyes for smugglers for whom the gift season offers an especially profitable market. Nylons, cheap jewelry, toys, perfume and luxury articles fill the sacks of these gift bearers whose chimney leads through the international border.

Sullivan Gets Seven Points In Caps' Victory

Indianapolis, Dec. 15 (CP)—Indianapolis Caps defeated Providence Reds 11-8 last night in a wild-scoring American Hockey League game before 1,748 fans.

The Caps broke an 8-8 tie at 14:33 of the third period when Eddie Bruneteau scored. He added another at 16:02 and Earl Reibel clinched the contest with his 3rd goal of the game at 19:36.

Barry Sullivan scored four goals for Providence and assisted on three others. Three of his goals came in succession within a period of 73 seconds in the middle period.

Bobby Perreault, rookie Providence goalie, was hit in the eye in the first round. He was treated and released by an Indianapolis hospital after x-rays showed no serious injury. Providence was forced to use reserve centre Chuck Scherza as goalie.

Player Trade Rests Upon Stanky Decision

Boston, Dec. 15 (AP) —President Lou Perini and general manager John Quinn of the Boston Braves today were pressing their former star, Eddie Stanky, new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, for his decision on an important four-player swap.

"We won't mention any name now," Quinn said, "but we probably have offered the Cardinals more than we should. Saigh knows our offer and he wants Stanky's approval."

In dire need of a second baseman, it was understood that the Braves offered Vern Bickford, the 14-9 righthanded pitcher, and first baseman Earl Torgeson for infielder Red Schoendienst and catcher Del Rice.

Volcanic Wasteland in Philippines

A lone native and tall straight palms that stand like ghosts amid the fiery eruption from Mount Hibok-Hibok, in background, are the only signs of life as the volcano belches flames and smoke for the eighth consecutive day. Twenty thousand refugees fled this fiery scene in Camiguin Island, Southern Philippines, using every means available from Japanese freighter to an outrigger canoe to cross the strait to Mindanao Island. The eruptions have killed 266 people and another 500 are estimated buried under lava and ashes. —Central Press Canadian.

Britain Will Raise 30,000 Quid To Cover Olympic Teams' Expenses

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 14—(CP)— Britain needs £30,000 to send a team of 200 athletes to the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki and sportsmen are determined the funds will be raised, one way or another.

Among suggestions advanced in what has become a burning debate are a special sale of stamps, an appeal for sixpences, a private underwriting by promoters, one or two "Olympic Days", and a government grant.

This question of "funds" and games" came to the front when Elaine Burton, Labor member of parliament for Coventry South, wrote a letter to The Times suggesting a sale of special stamps at post offices and where weekly soccer games are played.

Should Be Easy

She noted that more than 500,000 fans go to soccer matches every Saturday in the first two divisions of the English league. If spectators at all sports were counted, raising £30,000 would present no particular difficulties.

Miss Burton has a special interest in the Olympics, as she said in her letter, because her father was a finalist in the Olympics in 1908. Modestly, she did not say that she herself was world sprint champion in 1920.

Financing of the British team also proved a lively topic at the annual Sportsmen's Association dinner in London.

Francis Gentle, chairman of the Greyhound Racing Association and one of Britain's most influen- [illegible] said the British team should be underwritten, [illegible]rprise might do. He pledged he would put up £1,000 if 29 other persons would do the same.

Gentle entertained the guests with a racy account of the recent fights between Sugar Ray Robinson and Britain's Randolph Turpin. Turpin later bashfully thanked Gentle in a speech acknowledging his selection by the association as the country's No. 1 Sportman of the Year.

Jack Crump, team manager of the Amateur Athletic Association and one of the world's experts on track and field, said he thought the problem of financing the British Olympic team could be solved by contributions from sporting folk of two shillings or half a crown. He spoke optimistically of Britain's athletic talent and said he will be sorely disappointed if the country comes back from Helsinki empty-handed.

Cycling champion Reg Harris, runner-up to Turpin for the sportsman-of-the-year title, said he thinks the government definitely should do something about paying the team's way to Helsinki.

FRANKFORD

Bowling League Completes First Half Schedule

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League wound up the first half of its schedule in David's Bowlodrome in Trenton, Thursday night, in a fairly tight race. Ed Tomecek's Rockets won their third straight seven, and to show that they played no favorites, this time it was at the expense of Jack Farley's league-leading Fireballs. Ross Huffman's Crackpots climbed into a first place tie with the Fireballs, by taking five from Ray Scott's Skeeters. Gene Lohnes' Pinpoppers held on doggedly, as they took five from Bob Morgian's Bobsmob. The Hotshots, under the leadership of Harry Hearns, broke out of their current slump, by walloping Russ Hogg's Inkspots three times.

Thursday night was the annual turkey roll for the Frankford League, and the winners were Shirley Fox and Jack Hanna. A special consolation prize of a chicken went to the low score. Orval Berry was the lucky, or unlucky bowler, whichever the case may be.

The standings—

Fireballs 57; Crackpots 57; Pinpoppers 57; Bobsmob 50; Skeeters 47; Hotshots 44; Inkspots 42; Rockets 39.

Lindsay Jrs. Defeat Peterborough 6-3

Lindsay Kinsmen took over first place in the junior "B" race last night when they defeated the Peterborough Triple Links 6-3 on the latter's ice.

College Prexies Move to Abolish Bowl Games in Athletics Probe

New York, Dec. 15 (AP) — The 12-member Southeastern Conference and two rebellious members of the Southern-Maryland and Clemson—formed a militant core of opposition today to move to outlaw football bowl games.

Ten college presidents, making up a special investigative committee, included abolition of bowl games in a list of recommendations this week to stabilize college athletics.

The Southeastern Conference, which is furnishing talent to three of the major fixtures Jan. 1, took a firm stand in New Orleans yesterday in favor of the lucrative post-season games.

Eastern Conference Against

Maryland and Clemson, defying an anti-bowl attitude of the neighboring Southern Conference were slapped with virtual schedule boycotts by the parent body in a meeting at Richmond, Va.

Meanwhile, the sprawling Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, encompassing 89 colleges, went on record as opposing all bowl games and any other contest or tournament not run by a bona fide collegiate organization.

This matched previous action taken by the Big Seven Conference and persaged a knock-down, drag-out battle on the subject when the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets in Cincinnati Jan. 6.

The Southwest Conference, which works hand-in-glove with Dallas' Cotton Bowl, is known to lean in favor of the post-season contests while the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten, which have a Rose Bowl Pact, haven't come right out and said.

But there is a definite de-emphasis movement sweeping the United States, with also all the big conferences taking steps to ban the use of freshmen, curtail recruiting tactics and return the conduct of athletics to the colleges themselves.

Blind Men Become Fine Lawn Bowlers

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 15—(CP) — Blind men are learning lawn bowling in New Zealand and showing such ability that they hope soon to play matches in open competition.

E. C. Jones, blind Australian bowler who is showing them how, declares: "It's all done by trickery, but we can't use mirrors."

Jones works with a friend who acts as director for him. The bowler listens to the sound of a whistle blown by the director standing over the jack at the other end. When the bowl stops, the director, who can see, calls its position compared with the jack such as "three feet out at 11 o'clock."

Then the director tells the next blind bowler where to send the bowl and gives the line by whistle in the same way.

The game has proved a fine sport for blind men in Sydney and men at the blind institute in Auckland are now taking it up enthusiastically with the aid of sighted men, mostly retired businessmen willing to give some time to a good cause. It is hoped to begin blind international contests with Australia within the next year or two.

Large Field Eligible For King's Plate

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP) — The Ontario Jockey Club disclosed today that 75 thoroughbreds were still eligible for the 1952 King's Plate on payment of their owners of a $15 nomination fee Dec. 1.

Among the outstanding two-year-olds in 1951 nominated for the 93rd running of Canada's top turf classic were J. E. Frowde Seagram's Flareday, winner of the Coronation Stakes, and Imperial Stable's Caractacus, winner of the Clarendon Plate.

Among the 53 owners with horses still eligible, E. P. Taylor of Toronto heads the list in the number of nominations with six —Dress Circle, Code of Honor, Fire and Steel, Red Martlet, Acadian and Salatimus.

Yankee Tennis Stars Complete Sweden Rout

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 15 (AP)—America's Davis Cuppers put the finishing touches on their one-sided walloping of Sweden in the interzone final today as Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert repeated their singles victories of opening day.

Trabert racked up the U.S.A.'s fourth straight triumph at the expense of Lennart Bergelin, 6-1, 10-8, 6-4, after which Schroeder polished off Sven Davidsson, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1 to complete a whitewash job.

Bergelin, after dogging it for the first two days, finally produced some real tennis against Trabert, but it was too little and much too late. The second set of his encounter with Tony was the high point of the matches which supplied ardent Australian fans with all too few thrills.

Another surprising crowd of approximately 7,000 braved a chilling wind to watch today's matches which meant nothing except to fix the final score officially at 5-0.

"I'll help you get well..."

"Yes, I play a part every day in helping folks get well at our hospital. Of course, I'm not a doctor — I'm Jim of the maintenance department.

"Most people think that doctors and nurses are the only ones that enter into the care of our patients — and they are the most important. But I'm one of a lot of people around our hospital who help the doctors and nurses by providing comfort and service from behind the scenes. There are chefs, X-ray and laboratory technicians, laundry workers, stationary engineers, medical records people, office workers, nurses aides, orderlies and many others. Patients seldom see any of us but we are all part of the hospital team.

"On an average, there are three of us employees on hospital payrolls for every two patients. Today, we work only eight hours a day the same as our friends in industry, which means that, in providing the necessary round-the-clock patient service at today's higher wages, hospitals are under greater expense than ever before."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A NEAT WIN!

The senior Hawks came through with the type of hockey they are capable of playing last night and sent the Peterborough Eagles home with a 7-3 defeat tacked to their feathers. It was a fast hard-checking game with the Hawks in high gear going both ways and potent in front of the nets when they beat Nicholls.

The lads settled down to play serious hockey and although eleven penalties were handed out by Referee Bill Gleason all were of a minor nature with the exception of D. Mortimer whose temper flared a bit with four seconds to go when he tried to feud with Jackie Wardhaugh.

Blizzardy weather kept the attendance down to 892 fans but it was worth the trouble for they saw one of the best senior "B" tilts played here this season. The Hawks furious backchecking stifled many an Eagle foray and the homesters had a definite edge in play throughout the game. Two quick goals in the first two minutes of the third period seemed to take the sting out of the Eagles attack, as they are noted for being a driving third-period squad. Nicholls and LeFort both earned plenty of kudos with some sensational stops.

Coach "Red" Doran sparked his squad with his best performance on local ice todate. The "redhead" played an outstanding game and his golf-goal from 20 feet out had the Eagle goalie beaten all the way. Peter Jones came up with another fine performance and was outlucked several times. Vern Goyer, Keith MacDonald, and Jackie Wardhaugh also came through handsomely while Doug Bastedo turned in another fine effort with a goal and an assist. In fact the entire Hawks team played heads-up hockey to grab a well-deserved victory.

The Eagles were dangerous throughout and they swept in time and again in stride-matching efforts with the Hawks. They missed several chances inside the Hawks blueline when their passes went astray.

The Hawks share first place in the league standing since the Peterborough Petes edged the Kingston Essanays 4-3 in a senior "B" game in Kingston last night. The Hawks are sitting on the top rung with the Petes, with Kingston and Eagles tied for second place two points behind. The Hawks entertain the Petes here next Wednesday night in what should be another hockey classic.

IT'S DIFFERENT NOW!

In answer to a boxing fan's query, a championship fight that ends in a draw, does not create a change of title. The champion must be defeated in order to lose the title. He has to lose and the challenger has to win for a title to change hands.

Which recalls the fact that one of John L. Sullivan's greatest battles ended in a draw. That was his fight with Charley Mitchell of England on the estate of the Baron Rothschild at Chantilly, France. The bout was witnessed by 41 people including newspaper reporters.

In his book, "John L. Sullivan," Nat Fleischer, publisher of The Ring Magazine, writes: The battle grew progressively slower . . . Mitchell had no intention of fighting. Skillful wrestler though he was he never came close. His plan was to let Sullivan wear himself out, and then if everything went well to finish him with a single blow.

Both fighters were thoroughly chilled . . . Slowly the men came to scratch for the 39th time. Shivering in the lashing rain, their teeth chattering in the numbing dusk, they went through the motions . . . They were no longer fighters, merely helpless figures.

"The referee, seeing there would be no serious objection from anybody, stepped between Sullivan and Mitchell and declared the fight a draw . . . Under London Prize Ring rules, it was the only way, apart from a knockout or a disqualification, that the battle could have ended. Sullivan had knocked down his opponent 38 times. Three hours, ten minutes and fifty-five seconds he had carried the fight to Mitchell . . . Yet his reward was a draw!

JOE'S DOING ALL RIGHT

Some months ago Joe Louis was asked whether he had enough income from his investments and annuities to get along if he retired. At the time a party close to him estimated the Brown Bomber could count on a minimum of $15,000 per annum, if he didn't do another thing. "I'll get along" said Louis. "It's the people around me won't be able to get along."

UNEDUCATION!

Ohio State President Bevis' defence of physical education courses, in which footballers specialize, is a reminder that snap courses vary according to the college. Georgia coach Wally Butts told of a scout looking up a grid star — Halfback X — at an agricultural school. "You'll find him in the laboratory", a man said, pointing to a vast field. The scout went out, stopped the first man on a tractor and asked where he could find Halfback X. "That's me", said the tractor jockey. "I'm taking my mid - year exam. I have to get this danged thing to make a right - angle turn".

Play Best Hockey of Season To Chalk Up Fifth Victory In Fast 'Battle of The Birds'

Having a wide edge in play in all three periods, the Belleville Hawks swept through to a 7-3 victory over the Peterborough Eagles in a senior "B" game here last night before 892 fans.

One of the best games played here this season, the pastime developed into a hard-checking battle with the Hawks grabbing the verdict with their fast two-way skating and at times had the Eagles checked almost to a standstill.

It was clean hard-fought hockey all the way through with Referee Bill Reason of Kingston handing out eleven penalties, one a misconduct to D. Mortimer with the clock lacking three seconds of game time.

Draws Misconduct

The only rhubarb of the game came at that time when Mortimer and Wardhaugh started a pushing match with the Eagle drawing a minor and the misconduct. Wardhaugh drew a minor. The feud continued after the whistle blew game end and players and fans milled around the dressing room entrance in what might have developed into a free-for-all. The Hawks drew four of the total sentences.

The Eagles led but once during the game when they scored the first goal after six minutes of play in the first period. Hawks tied it up ten minutes later and took the lead early in the second heat. Eagles roared back a minute later to tie it up and then the Hawks took over. They scored three goals to the Eagles one to take a 5-3 period lead. They rapped home 2 goals in the first 2 minutes of the third period and that ended the scoring.

Goalies Stand Out

Both rival goalies Nicholls and Lefort stood out with fine performances as the game developed into one of the fastest seen here this season. Rink-length rushes and narrow goal escapes had the fans in an uproar although Nicholls had more work to do than the Hawks' goalie.

It was nip and tuck hockey until six minutes of the first period when Greenlaw slung home the first goal on assists from F. Mortimer and Stewart. Two minutes later Vern Goyer broke into the clear with only Nicholls to beat. Montgomery dumped him with a sliding trip and he got the gate. That player drew his second penalty with Goyer for roughing and the Hawks surged in with Bastedo bashing home a rebound to tie the score.

Hawks grabbed the lead on the first play of the second period with Vern Goyer banging home Semark's pass. Eagles raced back with Crowley leading the attack and scoring on assists from Hill and Fennell. The game flashed at top speed and Barrett combined with Bastedo to put the Hawks one up. Crowley drew a penalty and he had no sooner got back than Greenlaw got the gate. Doran gave the Hawks a two-goal lead when he golfed an ankle-high shot behind Nichols. Payne cut the margin to 4-3 with four minutes to go on a ganging attack with Parnall and Brabin but the Hawks got that one back seconds later on Wardhaugh's pretty goal unassisted.

Insurance Goals

MacDonald duplicated Goyer's second period goal in the opening seconds of the third period taking the big Hawk centre's pass to score at 32 seconds. Goyer fashioned the insurance marker seconds later combining with Carey for the Hawks seventh counter and the final score of the pastime.

Hawks did not let up and had the better of the play in what was a fast and furious period. Mortimer and Doran drew the only sentences of the heat until the dying seconds of the game when the Eagle player and Wardhaugh tangled.

Goyer, Wardhaugh, Dorn, MacDonald and Jones looked the best for the Hawks with Bastedo and Lefort coming through with fine performance. Goyer got two goals and an assist with Barrett, Doran, MacDonald, Bastedo with an asist and Wardhaugh getting the rest. Crowley, Greenlaw, Parnall, Nicholls were the best for Eagles.

Marlies Defeat Biltmores 7-5, Indians Win

(By The Canadian Press)

The two top teams in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A circuit met last night and settled —temporarily—the leadership in the 10-team league. The game took top billing in a busy night of seven contests in the OHA junior and senior A loops.

Toronto Marlboros, helped mightily by four goals from Danny Poland, came from behind to down Guelph Biltmores 7-5 in Guelph and break the first place tie between them. Poland scored three of his quartet in the final period when Dukes outscored Biltmores 4-1.

In the other junior games, Barrie Flyers lengthened their winning streak to four games when they downed Oshawa Generals 6-4 at Barrie. Kitchener Greenshirts strengthened their fifth-place stand with a 6-4 decision against Toronto St. Michael's while St. Catharines Teepees upset Galt Black Hawks 5-2 in St. Catharines.

Lengthen Lead

Senior play saw Stratford Indians lengthen their first place lead with a 7-4 win over Owen Sound Mercurys. Brantford Redmen earned a 2-0 shutout at home against Hamilton Tigers while Sarnia Sailors edged Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3 in Sarnia.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League Sudbury Wolves climbed to within four points of first-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds as they dropped North Bay Black Hawks 9-4 in Sudbury.

Johnny Martan struck twice for Barrie's 6-4 win over Oshawa while Fred Pletsch, Don McKenney, Fred Etcher and Chuck Wood added singletons. Herve Dejordy led the Generals with two while Bob Attersley and Larry Thibeault scored once each.

These Unpredictable Rangers Meet Top Teams Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The unpredictable New York Rangers, currently showing signs of stir in their last-place deadlock with Chicago Black Hawks, take on the National Hockey League's two top teams over the weekend.

Hardly boasting over only eight wins in 26 outings, even though two of them have been in the last three games, the Broadway Blues roll into Toronto tonight to do battle with the second-place Maple Leafs. Tomorrow night they entertain the league-leading Detroit Red Wings back in New York.

A week ago, the men from Manhattan were about as unconvincing a club as any in the six-team league. Then their coach, Neil Colville, announced his retirement and Bill Cook, one of the greatest forwards in N. H. L. history, took over.

Rangers New Crew

Cook's return to the Blues last Sunday did something. His club came through with a 7-2 win over Toronto. Tuesday night they bowed 4-2 in Boston, but Wednesday trounced the Bruins 6-3 back in New York. They roll into the weekend's play a determined bunch.

One of the most notable facts of the Ranger uprising has been Gaye Stewart's surge. Scoreless in 24 games, he was shifted from Paul Ronty's line over to Don Raleigh's threesome. In four games he has popped in no less than six goals.

Raleigh too has been scoring. The Blue's top point getter, the lightweight centre has picked up eight points in three games. He now is tied for third place in the N. H. L. point parade.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, playing host to the New Yorkers tonight and making the long trip to Chicago Sunday, are hard-hit by injuries.

Howie Meeker will be missing with his injured knee while Bill Juzda is recovering from an operation on his foot. Yesterday Joe Klukay slammed into a goal post during practice and hurt a knee. It is doubtful whether he will start tonight.

Leafs are using Tim Horton, called up from Pittsburgh, to fill in along the blue line and will have Danny Lewicki up forward. However the fast-skating winger is still moving slowly with an injured knee.

Montreal Canadiens, holding down fourth place by only one point over New York and Chicago, entertain Boston Bruins tonight and skate into Beantown for a return engagement Sunday. Tonight's other game will see Chicago playing in Detroit.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Winnipeg's Billy Marquard was removed as a contender for the world's lightweight boxing crown 12 years ago tonight when he was knocked out by Lew Jenkins in New York. Jenkins went on to beat Lou Ambers for the world title in 1940.

World's Coldest Football Game Set for Dec. 31

Fairbanks, Alaska, Dec. 15 — (AP)—They chipped the ice off the calendar here today, squinted closely and decided it was mighty nigh time to schedule the world's coldest football bowl game came for Dec. 31 again—weather permitting.

The ice bowl contestants will be the same ones that survived two previous jousts with the weather — the University of Alaska and Ladd Air Force base. Both are the farthest north of their respective types on the north American continent.

The rules drawn up for this year's joust provide, however, that "there must be at least four inches of snow on the gridiron and the temperature cannot be lower than 20 below zero." (There's 15 inches of snow now and it doesn't melt very rapidly here in the wintertime. But it sometimes gets as low as 60-below and that may stop the tilt).

Neither team has scored from a ground play during the three year history of the contest, but the college boys outsmarted the Flyers last year—they kicked a field goal for the only score ever made.

Yes, there are spectators. They suffer as much as the players.

What is the Miracle of Canada?
The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.
When the pattern breaks
But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

New York, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Cuban Kid Gavilan plans to follow up last night's stunning technical knockout win over Walter Cartier with a Miami defence of his welter title against Bobby Dykes.

The tentative date of the Miami match is late January or the first week in February.

As for Charles Humez of France, the European champ, Gavilan said, "I will fight him. I will fight anybody."

Angel Lopez, Gavilan's manager, claimed he had no word from the National Boxing Association about forcing the keed to sign for a defence within 10 days. Humez might come next, if anything goes wrong with the Dykes match.

Turpin in Line

Also in line for Gavilan is a non-title date with Randy Turpin, the former middleweight champ from England. Turpin is coming to New York in February.

The busy Gavilan also wants to fight Rocky Graziano, another ex-middleweight king.

Some 6,253 fans braved snow and rain, paying $23,637 to see the non-title match between Gavilan and Cartier, a heavy-punching middleweight from New York's Greenwich Village.

Trailing on the cards of two officials, Gavilan staged a blazing rally to win on a technical knockout over blood-spattered Cartier in 1:31 of the 10th round at Madison Square Garden.

Referee Ruby Goldstein had it 6-2-1 and Judge Billy Healy 5-3-1, both for Cartier, and Judge Charley Shortell scored it 5-4 for Gavilan going into the tenth. The Associated Press card had it even 4-4-1.

Stunned and badly hurt from three smashing rights and two uppercuts, Cartier sprawled in mid-ring when Referee Goldstein stopped it without bothering to count.

The third, eighth, ninth and tenth were the best rounds of the interesting match. Cartier concentrated on the body, Gavilan on the head. This time the head punches paid off.

U. of M. Pucksters Defeat McGill

Montreal, Dec. 15 (CP)—University of Montreal move into undisputed possession of first place in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey Union last night by defeating McGill Redmen 5-3 before 3,000 fans.

The Carabins moved out in front of the other three teams by two points as the result of the victory, the second over McGill in as many games this season. Laval is second with four points, while Toronto and McGill are tied with two each.

The Carabins kid line paced the French collegians to their victory. Each scored a goal. Andre Charest and Albert Day counted the other markers for the winners.

Bruins, Wings Peewee Winners

The Bruins, and Wings were victorious in the Peewee Hockey League games played at Memorial Arena this morning, defeating Rangers and Canadiens respectively while Leafs and Hawks played to a two-all tie.

Bruins took the measure of the Rangers by a 3-0 score with Wings defeating Canadiens by a 4-0 count.

R. Pointer paced the Wings victory with two goals while Duggan and Doyle scored the remaining pair.

Dr. George Faulkner and Alderman Harry Rollins are doing a fine job of coaching in this league. Maurice Lefort and Walter Bent looked after the refereeing chores.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Floyd Allsby, after 15 years in the New York Ranger organization, is finally getting his chance to break in with the Blues tonight in Toronto.

Allsby, who started with New York Rovers and now is their playing coach, has played in both the American Hockey League and the United States Hockey League, which folded last year.

Allsby, a hefty defenceman, will replace Jim Ross, who suffered a knee injury Wednesday. Allsby played last season for St. Paul and was named on the U.S.H.L. all-star team.

John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Matty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., were tied for first place yesterday at the half-way mark of Havanas 72-hole Invitation golf tournament.

Barnum shot a seven-under-par 65 yesterday to give him 135 strokes for the first 36 holes. Furgol went six-under par for a 66 but his 69 Thursday gave him 135 to tie with Barnum for the lead.

At Kansas City, James J. Carroll, St. Louis gambler was indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury which charged he failed to file income tax returns on betting payments of nearly $2,000,000. Carroll was named in two indictments listing 104 counts. One true bill of 101 counts listed individuals from all parts of the country who had won horse race and election wagers totalling $1,813,160. The other charged that Carroll failed to make returns reflecting these payments for 1948, 1949, and 1950.

ECKSTINE SUED FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Dec. 15 (AP) — Billy Eckstine, night club singer and recording artist, was sued for divorce yesterday by June Eckstine, herself a former singer. She alleged cruelty.

Durham Gets 3 In Caps' Win Over Mohawks

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 15 (CP)—Indianapolis Capitals, last place dwellers in the Western Division of the American Hockey League, pinned a 7-1 defeat on the slump-ridden Cincinnati Mohawks last night, as only 758 fans showed up to watch the game because of snow and slush-covered streets. Defenceman Lloyd Durham scored three goals for the Caps on long shots. The defeat was the sixth in a row for Cincinnati and the Mohawks never were in the running after the Caps got three first period tallies. Two of them were by Bert Hirschfeld, a former Mohawk.

Enio Sclisizzi and Lou Jankowski also scored for Indianapolis. Jackie McLeod notched Cincinnati's lone tally.

Detroit Lions Can Take Crown With Win Today

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—The National Football League winds up its 32nd season tomorrow with a chance for Detroit Lions to win their first division crown since 1936 and also a possibility of a tie which would require a playoff.

Detroit, topping the National Conference with a 7-3-1 record, meets the 49ers in San Francisco, and a Lion victory would assure them the right to meet the Cleveland Browns in the title game Dec. 23.

Cleveland, the 1950 league champions, clinched the American Conference title last Sunday by defeating Pittsburgh. If the Lions can beat San Francisco, they'll meet Cleveland for the championship next Sunday at Detroit.

This might take some doing, for San Francisco defeated the Lions in Detroit two weeks ago 20-10. Detroit defeated Los Angles last Sunday in a 24-22 thriller, dropping the Rams into a second place tie with the Chicago Bears. The Rams and Bears are 7-4.

The Bears meet the Chicago Cardinals at Wrigley Field tomorrow, and the Green Bay Packers are at Los Angeles. A victory by Los Angeles and the Bears, plus a defeat for Detroit, would put the Rams and Bears in a tie and force a conference play-off Dec. 23.

Water St. Trims Sheet Metals 8-1

Water Street scored a thumping 8-1 victory over Sheet Metal in a Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League game nast night.

The Streeters scored two in the first heat, went scoreless in the second and fired home six goals in the third to clinch the verdict. Sheet Metal got their lone marker late in the third period when Rosetta scored from Totten's pass.

Hurst, Locke and O'Brien each scored a pair for the winners with J. Barrett and McCabe accounting for the remaining pair. E. Barrett was credited with three assists.

The game was cleanly played with three penalties being handed out by Referees Hatfield and Rorne.

The teams:

Duck Decoys and An Old Argument

VS

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Some years ago a friend and I went on a barnstorming trip through eastern Maryland. We started from Baltimore, our car loaded with duck-shooting and quail-shooting gear, the rear seat being occupied by three setter dogs.

Our first objective was a duck blind on Kent Island which my companion had "borrowed" for the day. We set out the decoys and, the hour being early, we decided to do some quail hunting. By three that afternoon we had found three covies.

Back in the duck blind, we managed to collect an even dozen birds (the legal limit was ten per day in those days.) Then, and not until then, did we look about for lodging for the night.

Chance led us to a boarding house on Love Point. The nice old lady who ran the place said she could put us up, so she led us into the living room-dining room combination. There before the stove sat a man whittling out the head of a duck decoy.

Shells were scarce during the war years, but we had saved ours especially for this trip. The decoy maker eyed our shell boxes with envious eyes. It soon developed that he was reduced to No. 9 skeet loads, so we made a deal.

A Good Deal

He had a duck blind, a good one, which he shot every other day. If we would supply the shells, he would supply the blind, boat, and decoys. Then we would split the bag three ways. We had a grand four days of it, alternating duck shooting and quail shooting.

In his work shop the evening of our arrival I noticed a large box filled with decoys, dusty and evidently not used. To my untutored eye they looked all right and I spoke about them.

"Use that trash?" he replied. "Not me. I'm fussy about the decoys in my rig. I'll show you tomorrow."

And show me he did. I have shot ducks for a great many years, all the way from Massachusetts to south Florida, and I have seen many sets of decoys. This one came closer to perfection than any I had seen, each decoy was a masterpiece.

There were approximately ninety decoys in all and each one was freshly painted. Let any of them become scuffed, chipped or damaged and it was taken home at once for refurbishing. He really was proud of his decoy set and he should have been. They were beautiful.

I asked him why he insisted on such perfection. He replied that he enjoyed making them and that he took pride in an artistic job. Moreover he insisted that a rig like his would bring in far more ducks than the average set. He may have been right as we surely had good shooting over his rig.

Contrast in Decoys

Contrasting this, I could not help but compare his set with a rig over which I once shot on Long Island. This was on private water, under lease by a club. The decoys were old, battered and badly in need of paint.

The guide tossed them out carelessly, with no evident attempt at formation. There they floated, some on their sides and some with the anchor cord looped over the neck — a miserable rig if I ever saw one. Regardless of that, we killed our limits of mallard and black duck over them in about two hours.

Down in Florida we used to manufacture our own decoys on the spot. We used mud, sticks, marsh grass and rushes, tying them together with twine. Any birds we killed were added to the set, the heads being held erect with sticks and twine. We killed all the birds we wanted over these, too.

Recently the students of University of Wisconsin, wishing to restore some order out of the chaos of arguments and varying opinions, conducted an experiment in the matter of duck decoys.

An Experiment

Henry P. Davis, of Remington Arms Company, reports this experiment as follows:

"Three different rigs of decoys, each consisting of ten 'blocks,' were used. Rig Number 1 consisted of decoys made by Ted Schroeder of Detroit, one of the top decoy makers of the country, whose winning entries attracted much attention at the New York Sportsmen's Show contest. Number 2 rig was made up of battered and almost paintless imitations of bluebills. Number 3 rig consisted of oil cans, of two quart capacity, painted black. The rigs were rotated periodically as to position.

"A number of factors entered the picture, but when the figures were totalled, it was found that 386 ducks (various species) were attracted by Schroeder's excellent decoys, 189 came to the battered bluebill blocks and 209 visited the oil can lures. The not-so-particular ruddy duck, however, played an important part in the oil cans' total.

"When it came to 'lightin' 'em' 273 settled down with the better blocks, 49 with the bluebill rig and 89 were content with the oil cans. For 'offered shots,' however, there was little to choose between the three rigs. So the argument still has life."

Well, that is as it should be. One of the nice things about the outdoor sports is the uncertainty that seems to be part and parcel of all of them. Should it come to pass that these same variables could be reduced to mathematical certainties, then, most assuredly, shooting and fishing would lose much charm.

King's Broadcast Top Radio Feature on Christmas Day

By HARRY ECCLES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The voice of King George is the outstanding feature of all the great programs arranged for Christmas Day, the one day of the year when radio has its maximum audience as families gather across the country.

Canadian listeners, with fresh memories of the tour by Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, will more than ever be keen to hear His Majesty's regular Christmas Day message this year in view of the serious lung operation he underwent Sept. 23.

The Christmas Day message by the king to his people around the world will be broadcast from the royal study at Sandringham in Norfolk at 10 a.m. EST. This will be his 14th Christmas broadcast as king. While the message is traditionally personal and non-political, he felt it necessary a year ago to point to the spectre of war and warn against any trend to appeasement. He said each individual should adopt the motto, "Whatever comes or does not come, I will not be afraid."

Preceding the king's speech the British Broadcasting Corporation is putting on a world-wide exchange program. The theme this year is the Gift of Christmas. As it moves from Britain to Europe, to the Americas, to Australia and the Far East, to the African continent and over to the frozen rocks and valleys of Korea, speakers will bear witness to the vitality of the values enshrined in the meaning of Christmas.

With the help of the United Nations, for whom Canadians and men of many other nationalities are battling in Korea, the BBC will bring the voice of Korean children singing at a Christmas party behind the lines.

Canadian Features

Christmas programs of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation are spread over several days, starting Dec. 22 with an account of Christmas in the Yukon, where folk started in November to parcel up gifts for relatives "on the outside."

The Trans-Canada network on Sunday night, Dec. 23, presents an adaption of several episodes from the Pickwickians' Christmas holiday at Dingley Dell, the rollicking warm-hearted story by Dickens. On Christmas Eve will be broadcast carols from historic King's College Chapel at Cambridge.

On Christmas Day itself, the CBC opens with the BBC's world - wide program at 9 a.m., EST., followed by the King's message. Afterwards well-kown Christmas tunes will be heard played on the carillon of the Peace Tower at Ottawa by Robert Donell, the federal carilloneur.

The traditional Christmas Day religious service at 11 a.m. this year is being broadcast from the chapel of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Regina. Special Christmas features fill the rest of the day until at 7 p.m. The CBC microphone tours the world to visit Canadians obliged to spend the day away from home—notably the men of the 25th Brigade in Korea and the 27th Brigade in Germany.

Music on Christmas night includes a performance of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Ballet" by a CBC orchestra conducted by Paul Scherman, followed by Arthur Honegger's symphonic psalm "King David," performed by the CBC's Montreal orchestra and chorus of 45 voices with solo singers.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 15— (AP) — Here's one picture that should be getting expert technical advice—from a three-star general.

He is Lt.-Gen. Robert Eichelberger, veteran of both world wars and commander of the Eighth Army in the Pacific during the Second World War. The general is in Hollywood to act as technical advisor on "Francis Goes to West Point."

On the movie set, he seemed to be enjoying his duties and was full of admiration for the talented mule. "This is kind of a lark," he smiled, "but the pentagon wanted to be sure West Point would be portrayed with dignity."

Gen. Eichelberger is well qualified for the post, having been a commandant of West Point.

Well I Swear

The party's getting rough. If you listen closely in "Death of a Salesman," you'll hear Kevin McCarthy utter a "dammit." This is the first time the epithet has been heard on the screen since "Gone With The Wind."

The town is talking about McCarthy's performance in the film. Little is known about him. He played the role in London. He is a pal of Marlon Brando and Montgomery Clift, and like them, resisted Hollywood offers until he could write his own ticket.

River Valley W. M. S. Holds Record Christmas Meeting

Sidney—On Tuesday afternoon a large number of women gathered at the home of Mrs. Gerald Brooks for the Christmas meeting of River Valley Woman's Missionary Society. It was a record attendance as six members are in business and cannot attend afternoon meetings.

There were 21 members and associate members, five visitors and seven children gathered at the spacious home for their Christmas meeting.

The president, Mrs. Ralph Utman, opened the service.

Mrs. G. Brooks gave her report. During the month the ladies sent two cards and made 16 calls. Several items of business were discussed. Mrs. Utman graciously thanked the ladies for their co-operation during her year of service.

Christmas Program

Mrs. Ernest Carr arranged the program and opened with a Christmas poem entitled "Far Away in Bethlehem," and all sang "Away in a Manger."

Recitations were given by two children, Nancy Finkle and Donnie Carr and at this juncture the Baby Band children marched around the room with their mite boxes while the group sang "Hear the Pennies Dropping." The boxes were then given to the Baby Band leader.

Union Members Meet Sunday To Take Vote

Toronto, Dec. 15. (CP)—The possibility of a street-car and bus strike in the near future worried many of the 1,300,000 residents of the Toronto metropolitan area today.

Union members will meet Sunday to consider the commission's proposals. It is expected they may take a strike vote at the meeting or will set a date for a referendum.

H. C. Patten, T.T.C. general manager, said the commission is prepared to accept the recommendations of a majority report of a conciliation board and grant an immediate increase of five cents an hour.

The union seeks 15 cents more, plus fringe benefits the T.T.C. estimates at 26 cents an hour.

The present union agreement, covering 4,700 employees including those of the subsidiary Gray Coach lines, provides for a basic rate of $1.24 an hour plus a cost-of-living bonus of 16 cents an hour. The T.T.C. says the average weekly earnings of its operators are $68.50 a week, including overtime and time allowances for certain types of runs, and that granting of the union demands would bring average earnings to $80 a week.

Mr. Patten said the increases sought by the union would require a boost in the fares, now three for 25 cents, to a straight 10-cent rate.

Mrs. Ernest Carr arranged the program and opened with a Christmas poem entitled "Far Away in Bethlehem," and all sang "Away in a Manger."

Recitations were given by two children, Nancy Finkle and Donnie Carr and at this juncture the Baby Band children marched around the room with their mite boxes while the group sang "Hear the Pennies Dropping." The boxes were then given to the Baby Band leader.

Union Members Meet Sunday To Take Vote

Toronto, Dec. 15. (CP)—The possibility of a street-car and bus strike in the near future worried many of the 1,300,000 residents of the Toronto metropolitan area today.

Union members will meet Sunday to consider the commission's proposals. It is expected they may take a strike vote at the meeting or will set a date for a referendum.

H. C. Patten, T.T.C. general manager, said the commission is prepared to accept the recommendations of a majority report of a conciliation board and grant an immediate increase of five cents an hour.

The union seeks 15 cents more, plus fringe benefits the T.T.C. estimates at 26 cents an hour.

The present union agreement, covering 4,700 employees including those of the subsidiary Gray Coach lines, provides for a basic rate of $1.24 an hour plus a cost-of-living bonus of 16 cents an hour. The T.T.C. says the average weekly earnings of its operators are $68.50 a week, including overtime and time allowances for certain types of runs, and that granting of the union demands would bring average earnings to $80 a week.

Mr. Patten said the increases sought by the union would require a boost in the fares, now three for 25 cents, to a straight 10-cent rate.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

A more gentle reception of an emotional outburst was never given a love story than was given mine by Crazy Horse, that very Indian who shall probably go down through white legend as the bloodiest red wretch of them all.

"My brother," he answered, soberly, when my tale of the morning's events had spilled out, "I am my people's leader. What I say now is thus spoken. You cannot have this woman so long as she will not have you. But in our eyes, holiness is a personal thing. That of Star's being hers to keep or abandon as she sees fit. So long as she wills to remain pure, so long will the price of her holiness be held at the last drop of Sioux blood on these prairies."

It is fair to set down here the fact I respected the Sioux beliefs and taboos so long as I was among them without, at the same time, sharing them. At no time was Star anything to me but a woman, the most desirable in the world, true, but always and simply a woman. Could I take her in compliance with Dacotah custom, I would. If not, I meant to have her anyway.

Crazy Horse signified the council was over. Casting about for some means of strengthening my contact with him, hence increasing any chance I might come upon to win Star honorably, I resolved to tell him of the plan which caused me to quit the army at Fort Phil Kearney; the plan on which Carrington had turned thumbs down. Briefly I did so.

He listened gravely. When I had done, his answer was clear and succinct. "The Little White Chief was right. Whiskey has done the Indian harm as have all white customs, but it is in my heart to know when he comes the white man brings death for the Indian, whether he comes with whiskey or with hands empty. They will have the land."

Slatemeyer, to Tashunka Witko, constituted, with all his kind but a delaying action in the white man's determination to extirpate the red. The main action would be the destruction of the Indian's commissary, the buffalo. Without this free-roving food supply the Indian was done. The war chief could see it. He knew it. His people were doomed.

• • •

But whiskey was still big business. To protect it, the whiskey trader not only supplied the Indian with liquor but in case after documented case, incited him to attack white settlements and wagon trains. To keep the country free of whites and full of Indians added up to profits for the whiskey runner. Men like Slatemeyer never neglected looking to their profits.

Where the reactions of certain of the Sioux to my plan brought all these old suspicions to mind, the enthusiasm of the other confused me. The young braves and sub-chiefs were full of interest.

Upshot of the session was that I should have my way, with the added recommendation that I start "when the short grass was up and the first fat showing on the ponies." This suited my impatience well enough. Winter was already far gone; spring not more than three moons away.

Crazy Horse was away much of the time travelling the winter circle of war camps, laying out the spring campaign for coming wagon-train season along the Bozeman Trail. When he travelled I went with him, meeting most of the famous Sioux chiefs and warriors.

Because of these wide rangings up and down and across the Sioux homeland, my name and new tribal status became familiar throughout the Indian nation.

But somewhere in the red hierarchy was a warrior who loved his wiskey better than his native land. The whiskey runners had a full report of my intentions before I moved a moccasin in their direction. So efficient was Slatemeyer's intelligence he not only had my plans but my complete history since joining the Sioux, my capture, convalescence and subsequent journey to Star.

My scouts had located the barges of the whiskey runner frozen in on the Missouri, just south of Fort Kiowa. Slatemeyer, it appeared, had tried to squeeze in a last trip the season before being caught by early ice. I had no idea he would be so close, assuming that this time of year would see him in Kansas City outfitting for the spring trip up the Big Muddy. I made another wrong assumption; that he had been caught by the ice on his way out, with empty barges.

So I started south for Fort Kiowa six weeks ahead of the expected spring breakup on the Missouri, having changed my mind about waiting for spring, figuring now to find his barges still frozen-in, sitting ducks for the shooting. With me went my first Indian command, 10 young Oglala men, hand-picked by Crazy Horse. My plan was simple find the barges and fire them.

There were three of these, all small ones without living quarters abroad. This meant the crews would be winter-camped ashore, possibly at Fort Kiowa, but more likely in the vicinity of the boats. Even with the army's sub rosa compliance, the runners usually observed surface precautions. These would hardly dare in this case, I thought, to winter in an army post where their presence would need some explanation.

I found the barges lying in a blind slough a quarter of a mile off the main stream. The camp was ashore in a dense copse of poplar and willow. A fresh fall of snow showed no tracks between barges and shore. So far, so good.

Scouting the camp, we discovered it consisted of about 15 white men plus an old Pawnee camp cook and two Arikaree, apparently either meat hunters for the camp or guides for the coming trading season. I saw nothing of Slatemeyer but discounted the fact.

With nightfall I went aboard the barges, having instructed my companions to wait, giving me 100 breaths before following.

The barges were crammed with squat, nine-gallon kegs, certainly well over 100 of them to the barge, each painstakingly stencilled with the innocuous legend "caution: Kerosene: Keep Away From Fires."

From stem to stern and beam to beam the three barges reeked of alcohol. I had caught my friend Slatemeyer with nearly 3,000 gallons of trade whiskey.

I searched for what I had hoped to find aboard—and found it: three 50-gallon hogsheads of real kerosene one to each barge.

It was simple enough, if an army inspector insisted on boarding the barges, to throw a few buckets of coal oil hurriedly around the cargo holds, cutting the whiskey fumes and lending olfactory support to the innocent illusion of the kerosene labels. Kerosene lamp oil was a very legitimate trade article.

Thus, a few moments later, when my fur-clad crew came slithering up through the snowfall then beginning, I gave them their orders promptly.

My cohorts went about the business of smashing the big oil barrels and dousing kerosene all over the barge holds, each grinning as happily as a schoolboy pulling wings off a horsefly.

In minutes the night air was redolent with coal-oil fumes and Yellow Bird, my lieutenant, brought me the smoldering buckskin bag of live coals lovingly prepared ashore in a smokeless hardwood fire no bigger than a man's two hands.

"Go now and wait where the trail leads from the camp," I told him, accepting the fire "when you see the fire burst forth, all shall follow as we have planned it. Am I understood?"

He nodded assent, a sibilant chorus of grunts from the others backing him up.

• • •

One moment there were 10 Sioux within five feet of me, the next, nothing but invisible yards of swirling snow.

Swiftly I dumped the living coals among the pile of oil-soaked shavings we had prepared.

I had scarcely hit the wooded shore before the barges went up with a boom that lit the snow-smothered night for hundreds of feet.

As anticipated, Slatemeyer's men came bucketing out of their huts and off down the trail to the burning barges.

Yellow Bird played them perfectly letting the first go by, falling on the smaller following group with the customary enthusiasm of his kind when the prospect is fair for a wedding of Sioux steel and Caucasiun cranium.

Half an hour later when we rendezvoused he brought with him eight Sioux, the required "live" white man, five warm scalps and an innocent looking burden carelessly tied in a hunting shirt.

"The-One-That-Limps," he answered. "He took the enemy with him."

"It is well," I said, grimacing as I counted the grisly trophies dangling from the braves' scalpbelts. "I see where wailing will be held in five tipis of our enemies."

"Six," he corrected me, unfurling the knotted hunting shirt to roll therefrom a heavy, round object which thumped to a stop against my right moccasin, remaining there to look up at me with wide-open blue eyes.

Yellow Bird regretfully, meanwhile gave the trophy a disgusted turn with the toe of his moccasin. The human head at my feet was bald as a buzzard.

"It was a mistake," he stated, simply. "But our time was short and we wanted Cetan Mani to know the true count. Ordinarily," he added, humbly, "I would not take a scalp in such poor condition."

• • •

I had forgotten the prisoner! All this time the poor brute had not said a word, standing graysick with terror. I thought it queer he had made no plea to me, his fellow white man.

I asked him bluntly, using English for the first time. "Why haven't you spoken to me? Why don't you ask for mercy? Aren't you interested in breathing?" He looked at me a second oddly, I thought, then dropped his eyes.

"A good question," I agreed. "But how about me? I'm a white man."

He stared at me the way a man stares at an idiot. His short laugh had the rasp of desperation in it. "Sure and I'm Sittin' Bull, or mebbeso Red Cloud."

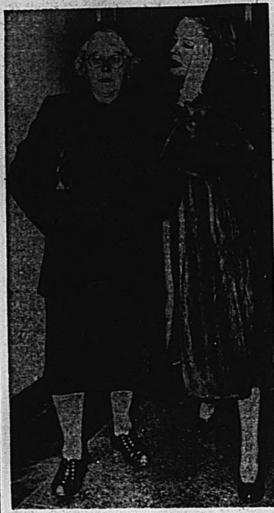
They Didn't Even Say Hello



What could have developed into another publicized episode in the career of actress Tallulah Bankhead became a mere incident when she hurried past her former maid, Mrs. Evelyn Cronin, in the hall of the courthouse in New York, where charges and countercharges are being made. The actress accuses her maid of robbing her of over $4,000 by "stepping up" cheques made out to her. The maid accuses Miss Bankhead of being a marijuana addict and denies the theft charges. The actress was not allowed in court during Miss Cronin's testimony when the defence attorney protested about "groans, voices and remarks" amanating from where Miss Bankhead sat. — Central Press Canadian.

'Plane' Evidence of Increased U.S. Air Activity

Indicative of stepped-up air activity in U.S. is this line of sleek U.S. air force Scorpion F-89 all-weather interceptors, being readied for flight at Ontario, California. In rapidly increasing numbers the Scorpions are rolling off the production lines as air defence takes on a high priority. The twin-jet Scorpion operates at altitudes in excess of 40,000 feet. It carries its "Sunday Punch" six 20 m.m. cannon — in its nose and has provisions for additional armament. The F-89 carries a radar operator in addition to the pilot. — Central Press Canadian.

Flaming Airliner Crashes Into Riverbank, 56 Perish

Elizabeth, N.J., Dec. 17. (AP)— A flaming Florida-bound airliner —its pilot battling to the end— missed a midtown crash by yards yesterday, then smashed into a riverbank fringed with buildings. All 56 persons aboard perished.

It was the second-worst United States commercial airline disaster, topped only by the death of 58 persons June 24, 1950, in the Lake Michigan crash of a New York-to-Minneapolis plane.

Onlookers called it a miracle that hundreds didn't die as the two-engined plane rattled windows in its death plunge. Terrified, screaming children fled its path.

It crashed in the only fairly-open space for a mile around. Even then it clipped a vacant home and smashed an unused water pumping station, slightly injuring one man.

"I kind of think he hit the spot intentionally to save us," a resident said of the pilot, Albert C. Lyons of Miami.

Another spectator parking lot operator J. P. Ward, added: "the pilot ought to have a place in heaven for trying to save it."

The non-scheduled C-46 plane took off from nearby Newark airport at 3.02 p.m. E.S.T. headed for Tampa and Miami, with 48 adult passengers, four children, a three-man crew and a stewardess. It crashed seven minutes later, three miles away.

In Trouble on Ground

It was the first crash in 22 months of a non-scheduled airliner—one that takes off on an irregular schedule. The plane was operated by Miami Airline, Inc., in operation since March, 1946. Its five planes have flown more than 100,000,000 passengers miles.

hTe ill-fated plane seemed to be in trouble even before it cleared the ground. Its right engine was smoking badly.

State and federal officials began an immediate probe.

A few weeks ago, residents of Elizabeth threatened to block Newark airport runways with their bodies to end take-offs over their homes. As a result, the Port of New York authority— which operates Newark airport—undertook to build a new runway pointing to the sea instead of Newark and Elizabeth.

Besides Lyons, the plane carried two co-pilots, J. R. Mason and Edward Lily, and stewardess Doris Helms all of Miami.

No Canadians Listed

Most of the passengers were from New Jersey and New York. No Canadians were listed.

Robert Collin watched the plane take off carrying his mother, Bertha, 55, his sister, Mrs. Ann Connors, 21. And his two nephews, one two years old and one seven months. He said afterwards:

"The right engine was smoking badly on the take-off and it took the whole length of the field before it rose about 50 feet.

The pilot seemed to realize his trouble and turned the plane around to go back to Newark. But its plume of black smoke mushroomed into ghastly vivid orange flames above the crowded business heart of Elizabeth.

Severe 20-degree cold froze hoses as firemen played water on the wreckage.

Only the tail of the plane remained partially intact.

Corpses were laboriously edged up the icy, slippery sides of the ravine as daylight gave way to darkness.

Ambulances and a bus moved them to an Elizabeth morgue.

Greeting Pleased Marshal Tito

Hamilton, Dec. 17—(CP)— Archie Pollock, vice-president of the Canadian Pensioners' Association, made Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia laugh last month.

Archie was in Belgrade attending a meeting of world veteran's organizations when the delegates were presented to Marshal Tito. Grasping the Marshal's hand, Archie asked: "How the devil are you?"

When this was translated, Tito laughed and said: "Only a Canadian would say that to me."

A palace official later told Archie, who returned today, that Tito rarely laughs. "You've made history," the official said.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP) —Synopsis: The worst of the current cold spell is now over in southern Ontario where the temperatures will be milder on Tuesday. Subzero weather continued over most of Ontario Sunday night. Only those places where the air was moving inland from the lakes reported above zero temperatures and snow. In southern sections of the province winds have remained strong to add to the discomfort.

A small disturbance east of the Rockies is moving rapidly eastward and will bring light snow to southwestern Ontario late Tuesday.

GOVT. FACES POLITICAL STORM OVER LEGISLATION

Resale Price Act In For a Rough Ride

Ottawa, Dec. 17 (CP) — The government, running into a series of political storms in this lingering fall session of parliament, will face another big blow in the Commons today as it proceeds with its plans to ban resale price maintenance.

The Progressive Conservative opposition, through its tactics in committee hearing of the legislation, has made it clear the measure is in for a rough legislative ride.

Saturday night, the House rose from its first weekend sitting of the session, the government announced its plans to proceed today with the legislation, which prohibits the practice of manufacturers in setting the retail price at which their products can be sold.

The Progressive Conservatives say they will accept the bill only with an accompanying prohibition or "loss leader" selling.

The government ran into another Commons uprising over its proposal to dispense with the calling of tenders for the construction of public works in times of emergency.

The three opposition parties united in a drive against the legislation, contending it would throw the protection of the tender system "out the window" and Works Minister Fournier indicated he may be willing to compromise on the bill.

"I have been thinking over what was said by the opposition and perhaps we may amend it to meet their wishes in part anyway," he told the chamber.

Four Bills Adopted

The chamber adopted four other bills dealing with guarantees for loans to needy prairie farmers; the purchase of equipment by Canadian National Railways; the streamlining of the financial administration of the government and the salaries of the civil service commission.

The three opposition leaders joined in hammering the government proposal on public works' tenders.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, contended the legislation would "tear away completely" the protection afforded by the tender system. It already had moved in that direction by setting up the St. Lawrence seaway authority, empowered to spend millions, without providing that tenders need be called for construction of the project.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, warned there will be regrets later if the House approves the legislation.

John Diefenbaker, (PC-Lake Centre) said the government's move was a "retrograde, dangerous step" that would place the public administration of the country "at the mercy of the friends of the government."

Want 24th as Holiday

Toronto, Dec. 17 — (CP) — Because many Toronto firms have decided to close Monday, Dec. 24, as part of their Christmas holiday, the Board of Trade during the weekend petitioned Mayor Hiram McCallum not to declare Dec. 26, Boxing Day, a holiday. It said only a few firms, mostly retail and wholesale ones, want to observe Boxing Day.

Believes Sweetheart Kept Promise And Returned Reincarnated in Dog

London, Dec. 17 (Reuters) — Before Bob Smiths' fiancee died of a sudden illness, she vowed that someday she'd come back to him, "in a different form—but you will know me."

That was 15 years ago. Now Smith, happily married man in his middle 30s, said he believes that his dead sweetheart, Doris, has kept her promise and returned to him—reincarnated in his handsome Alsatian bitch, Rita.

"I have been reluctant to come to this conclusion," Smith explained. "But I have thought about it for a long time and can come to no other conclusion."

Smith had been going with Doris three weeks when she was suddenly stricken with a mysterious illness. As he sat by her bedside, she promised:

"I will come back to you Bob. It will be in 15 or 20 years time. I will be in a different form, but you will know me."

After she died, Bob married. Several years ago, a friend showed him a litter of Alsation pups. One black female ran toward him.

"Something told me I should buy it," recalled Smith, "So I did."

Even when she was a few weeks old, Rita showed an exclusive affection for him. She insisted on a "kiss," when Smith arrived home.

But what really convinced Smith that Rita was the reincarnation of his lost love was this:

Just recently the dog began leading him to the secluded walks and quiet corners of a London park where he had once courted Doris.

"There's evidence," said Smith. "What else can I believe?"

Damage in Series of Fires At Scattered Points Across Canada May Cost $1,000,000

(By The Canadian Press)

Four persons died, several injured and many were left homeless in fires across Canada during the weekend that coincided with an early-winter cold snap. Monetary losses totalled close to $1,000,000.

Ten families were left homeless near Moncton, N. B., when a converted air force barracks wese destroyed at East Dieppe. The fire was one of three in the village in the early - morning hours as temperatures dipped well below zero. A school and a theatre were the other buildings destroyed. Loss in the three fires was placed at $100,000.

Fire early today in the northern Ontario town of Thessalon destroyed three buildings in the business section of the town of 1,500 population and for a time threatened to wipe out an entire block. Loss was estimated at $60,000. Four dogs were the only casuties.

Heaviest damage was the $500,000 loss in a blaze that gutted the Halifax processing, packaging and storage plant of Burns Fisheries Limited.

Loss was estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000 to stocks in the wholesale storage warehouse of Northern Distributing and Warehousing Company in Saskatoon. In addition, owners placed damage to the building at between $10,000 and $20,000.

About as stubborn was an $80,000 Toronto fire that was battled for eight hours in a near-zero temperature in a three-storey brick building occupied by four firms.

About 20 miles northwest of Toronto, Wilfred Amos, 30, and his 28-year-old wife, Rita, died in their blazing apartment at Streetsville. Eleven other occupants of the building escaped.

B. Leslie, a British Columbia logger, was burned to death in a fire in a west-end apartment in Vancouver.

Also in Vancouver, Gordon Robinson, nine months, was fatally burned when a hot-plate set fire to his crib cover.

Driven From Quarters

Fires in Montreal gutted a waterfront storage shed owned by Canada Steamship Lines, drove a score of lodgers from living quarters over a restaurant and made two other families, in a building housing six flats, homeless.

A tobacco barn fire near Tillsonburg, Ont., caused damage placed at between $25,000 and $30,000. A $15,000 blaze destroyed a hockey stick factory 10 miles east of Cornwall.

At Trenton, Bobby Lucas, 7, saw smoke pouring from a downstairs window of the home of a neighbor, Mrs. H. Foshay. He called his mother, Mrs. Harry Lucas, who ignored smoke and flames to rescue three Foshay children aged 14 months to six years.

A small child was overcome by smoke Sunday when fire destroyed the farm home of John Rodgers, near Warkworth in eastern Ontario. The baby suffered minor burns before being rescued by Mr. Rodgers.

Gordon McCubbin, also of the Warkworth district, was burned about the face, head and hands in a fire and explosion that occurred as he worked on a plugged gas line in an automobile at his service station.

Store Burns at Odessa

A Sunday morning blaze in a frame store owned by John Lemmon, machine agent at Odessa, destroyed the store and threatened to spread to other buildings in the village. Firemen worked in 25-below-zero temperature .

Thirty-five cattle, 27 pigs and three horses were killed in a fire that levelled the large barn of Douglas McEachern in the Lindsay area. Also lost were the season's grain and mows of hay and straw.

Overheated stovepipes were blamed for a blaze that swept the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. George Jardine near Goderich. The couple and daughter Irene escaped in night clothes.

Fire in a popcorn machine that spread to cardboard boxes sent smoke billowing into Toronto's Esquire Theatre Saturday while some 200 were watching a matinee. No one was injured.

At New Waterford, N.S., fire early today destroyed the two-storey Army and Navy Veterans building and a four-room bungalow. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

'Continuous' Snow Predicted For Tues. Afternoon

Toronto, Dec. 17 —(CP)— The weatherman today predicted warmer weather Tuesday—well, five degrees warmer anyway—for most parts of Southern and Central Ontario.

But he said there will be "continuous" snow beginning sometime Tuesday afternoon. He declined to guess how many inches — or feet — would fall before the day was out.

Owen Sound reported three feet of snow during the weekend. Kingston credited itself with being the coldest spot in Southern Ontario with a temperature of 21 degrees below zero early Sunday.

Snow beginning Tuesday afternoon around Windsor will spread eastward, the weatherman said, bringing with it warmer temperatures. Around Toronto, residents may look forward to a low of 10 degrees and a high of 20 above.

The weekend cold, following an 11.3-inch snowfall, crippled motor and street-car traffic in Toronto. It was largely responsible for 26 accidents which injured 23 persons.

Two Discovered Near Death In Old Model Car

Kingston, Dec. 17 (CP)—Lena Peters, 17, of Gibson's Hill, and Merrill Hamilton, 20, of Verona, were in "very serious condition" in hospital today after they were discovered early Sunday in a carbon monoxide - filled car parked near Verona, about 20 miles northwest of here.

They were found by Rev. Thomas Richardson of Verona, who took them to hospital after he failed to revive them.

It is believed they had been parked on the side of the highway for at least 12 hours. Neighbors reported seeing the old model car about 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Eleven Killed In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

During the weekend that saw this winter's worst storm so far, 11 persons were killed in eastern Canada, seven in traffic accidents.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed seven persons were killed in Ontario three in Quebec and one in New Brunswick. Besides the traffic accidents, fire killed two persons; gas fumes, one; and drowning, one.

In Ontario, two persons died in a fire that swept through an apartment building at Streetsville. Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Amos, 30 and 28, who came to Canada from England three years ago.

Rene Lapierre, 19, and Kay Elizabeth Ray, 18, both of Mille Roches, were killed near Cornwall when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the rear of another vehicle. Near Toronto, James Furlott, 26, driving a snow clearance truck was killed when it was struck by a train.

James Earley, 59, a hydro worker at Niagara Falls was killed when gas fumes filled his apartment. George Alexander Bayne, 76, died at Orillia as a result of injuries suffered in a car accident Dec. 13.

In Quebec province, policeman Raoul Giroux was killed when struck by a bus while investigating an automobile accident near Montreal. Mrs. Arthur Vinet, 45, mother of 15 children, was killed by a station wagon at St. Benoit Labre, 25 miles south of Montreal.

Close Escape for Plane

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 17 — (AP) — A zig airliner loaded with 56 passengers made an emergency landing safely here last night but narrowly avoided a collision with a speeding train. The TWA Constellation landed in a field less than half a mile north of Amarillo air terminal. The nose of the big ship stopped a scant 50 feet from a railroad track. About two minutes later a speeding freight train whizzed by.

ANOTHER DOSE OF BAD NEWS BEING PREPARED

$700,000,000 Decline In Gold, Dollar Reserve

London, Dec. 17 (AP) — Another dose of bad news is being prepared for the British public— a near-record decline of more than $700,000,000, in the nation's gold and dollar reserve.

But economic signs suggest this may be a matter of things getting worse before they get better; that Prime Minister Churchill's drive to win solvency for Britain actually may be showing results.

Government sources said reserves will show a $700,000,000 decline at the close of the current three-month period ending Dec. 31. This would be $200,000,000 more than the staggering drop recorded in the previous three month period.

It would leave Britain's reserves at about $2,500,000,000— only about $500,000,000 above the minimum needed to conduct the sterling area's trade with the rest of the world.

The decline was attributed mainly to Britain's same old trade-gap difficulties — buying more aboard than she can sell to foreign countries spending more than it was earning—at the rate of $1,500,000,000 a year.

But there also is an additional difficulty of loan repayments this time.

Britain will have to dip into depleted coffers for $76,000,000 to pay the first instalment due the end of this month on its multi million dollar post war loans from Canada and the United States.

One of Two Moves

It was one of two moves by British leaders during the weekend aimed at restoring world confidence in sterling. The other was to ease control over the buying and selling of foreign monies —a possible step towards freeing the pound from controls and letting it find its real value on world markets.

The immediate reaction to Britain's decision to ease its controls over the pound sterling was one of approval. There was general agreement in most world capitals that it was a step in the right direction.

But most commentators abroad agreed that its effect was mainly one of restoring confidence and probably would have little direct effect in international trade at this point.

British officials reported that R. A. Butler, chancellor of the Exchequer, claims British overseas credit is slowly strengthening despite the fall in the reserves.

Butler thinks more steel from the U.S., greater production and fair and stable prices for empire raw materials are the ingredients of a recovery which can be achieved side by side with the fulfilment of the three-year $13,160,000,000 rearmament program.

Chrysler Offer Accepted

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP)— At a mass membership meeting Sunday, Chrysler of Canada production workers voted to accept a 15-cent-an-hour increase.

Observers who attended the meeting said that 1,600 of an approximately 3,500 Chrysler production workers voted "almost unanimously" to accept the company offer. There was no strike vote taken. The increase, effective immediately, is not retroactive.

A company announcement today confirmed acceptance of the increase by both sides.

Western Shoppers Pass Up Doodads In Favor of Articles of Lasting Value

Winnipeg, Dec. 17 (CP) —Merchants here report Christmas shoppers this year are demanding their money's worth, passing up doodads in favor of articles of lasting value.

A tire dealer reported a trim, middle-aged woman made a down payment on a set of automobile tires for her husband.

A farm woman ordered 100 baby chicks—when they hatch —for her husband's gift. "I may as well give him something useful for a change," she said.

Both men's and women's clothiers say they are dealing with a different type of customer this year and the usual fancy pajamas and gaudy ties don't sell. Merchants claim there just isn't any use suggestnig gifts that won't last a long time.

One department store executive said he believed business this year is down—possibly 20 to 25 percent—from last year's.

"Customers are keeping a closer watch on their purse strings and clerks this season really have to sell," he said.

Another store executive said male customers instead of buying radios and other costly items now settle for several pairs of nylon stockings. Most furniture and appliance dealers said credit restrictions have seriously affected their volume of trade, and price reductions and more sales are the only answer to the problem.

Possibly hardest hit are dealers in men's and women's clothing and woollen goods. A wool shortage was expected several months ago and stores stocked to the hilt. The expected shortage did not materialize and now dealers are trying to unload.

Separate Control For Private Radio Asked by Senator

Criticism of CBC Policy, Programs Voiced in Senate

Ottawa, Dec. 17—(CP)—A British Columbia senator said today regulation of private radio in Canada should be taken out of the hands of the CBC Board of Governors and placed under an "independent" authority.

Senator J. G. Turgeon (L—British Columbia) told the senate he planned to formally move such a recommendation at the next session of parliament. He felt that the chairman of the board of governors should be a member of the independent body, which should consist of three to five members.

Senator Turgeon made his suggestion after several senators voiced criticism of the policy which allows the CBC to regulate private radio which was its competitor. There also was criticism of the type of programs allowed on the CBC.

Some Programs "Immoral"

Senator Cyrville Vaillancourt (L—Quebec) said some programs on the CBC and other stations in Canada were "absolutely immoral."

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said he had heard some "rotten opinion" broadcast over the CBC without "any answer at all." He was not accusing the CBC of political bias, but "it could be used by government that wanted to use it."

The debate arose on senate consideration of amendments to the CBC Act, providing for a statutory grant of $6,250,000 a year to the CBC for five years.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader explained the bill and said it provides the right of appeal to the Exchequer Court of Canada on cases when the CBC board of governors cancelled the licence of a private station.

Senator Haig said he could not understand how the CBC was allowed to control others in the same business. Not even the newspapers were as powerful as radio, yet there was no answering argument when it came into the home.

Superior Attitude Resented

It seemed the people who ran the CBC thought they were a "super-parliament" which should choose what was to be given to the people of Canada. He protested "certain professors" being allowed to broadcast their pet theories.

Senator J. J. Kinley (L—Nova Scotia) said he believed newspapers still had more influence than radio which did not stick in the mind like the printed word.

Government agencies such as the CBC were not subject to the stresses of private business. If they went in the hole, they came to parliament to make up the deficit. Parliament should be careful to see that administration of such agencies was efficient.

Accident Kills 40

Rio De Janeiro, Dec. 17 (Reuters)—Forty persons were reported killed and many injured today when five cars of a passenger train were derailed and overturned near Fortaleza.

Thirty-four bodies were removed from the wreckage by early afternoon.

Cause of the accident was not immediately known.

New Orleans, Dec. 17—(AP)— Dorothy Dix, known to millions of newspapers readers as a conductor of a heartbalm column, died yesterday.

Miss Dix, in private life Mrs. Elizabeth Meriwether Gilmer, had suffered a stroke about 2½ years ago.

Reference books list her age as 81, but associates said she was actually 90 when she died. She was a native of Montgomery County, Tenn.

Funeral services are planned tomorrow.

During the half century that her syndicated column was published, her humor and understanding drew the confidence of men and women from all corners of the globe.

"People tell me things," she once said, "that you would think they wouldn't even tell to God."

Behind the cheerful exterior was a career torn by misfortune. She married at 18. Her husband, George O. Gilmer, was incurably stricken two years after their marriage and for 35 years, until his death, she nursed him and carried on her writing. There were no children.

She entered newspaper work through a coincidence. Shortly after her husband became ill she suffered a breakdown and was taken by her family to Bay St. Louis, Miss. Her next-door neighbor was to be Mrs. Eliza Jane Nicholson, owner and editor of the old New Orleans Picayune.

One day Mrs. Gilmer showed Mrs. Nicholson a story she had written about an incident on the family plantation. Mrs. Nicholson bought the story and launched Mrs. Gilmer on a journalistic career, which included coverage of sensational murder stories. Meanwhile the column, Dorothy Dix Talks," was started.

Married Couple Burned to Death At Streetsville

Streetsville, Ont., Dec. 17—CP —Wilfred Amos, 30, and his wife, Rita, 28, were burned to death early yesterday, minutes after they had saved their five-year-old son, Peter, from their blazing apartment home.

Eleven other residents escaped in night wear into five-below-zero weather after being awakened by two youths who noticed flames shooting from the top windows of their three-storey apartment building in the community about 20 miles northwest of Toronto. The building was gutted and damage was estimated at $60,000.

Mrs. Amos handed her son to her mother, Mrs. Danile Thomas, who lived in the same building. Mrs. Thomas went outside, thinking the Amos's were following. It was not until an hour later that it was realized they were still inside.

Profit-Sharing Plan Inaugurated by Store

At the fourth annual Christmas banquet of turkey and all the trimmings, held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield Enos David proprietor of David's Electric Shop, announced the inauguration of a profit-sharing plan for employees of the store.

Cheques representing an interim payment for the year were distributed and all the women were recipients of favors. Jack Moring, service manager and senior staff member, expressed appreciation on behalf of all present.

Rev. Duncan McTavish, a guest stated that profit-sharing in business was an extension of the true spirit of Christmas throughout the year.

These Kiddies Won't Miss Christmas If More Fortunate Folk Lend a Hand

Little more than a week to go till Christmas Day.

The shortest week in the year for shoppers, and the longest for the youngsters.

This week sees the inevitable last-minute shopper hurriedly compile his or her shopping list and conduct a fast sortie on the stores.

There won't be much time for anything else. It's a job that has to be done. One that can't be "remanded" till next week.

Quick thinking will pull many a matron, teen-ager, junior or head of the house out of the Christmas shopping mental vortex. It has to be that way — or else.

But while the mental machinery is whirring, why not remember a kiddie or two who has no one to remember him or her. There are lots of them in the city. Little "fellas and gals" to whom Christmas won't be anything but another day, and one of disappointment.

A few cents will buy a toy. The price of a package of "fags" will bring joy to the heart of some youngster. Or if you haven't time to buy a gift or two, telephone the Salvation Army at the Citadel. The good army folk will be only too glad to assist you. Or send them the money and they will solve your "what-to-get" problem.

But do something about it. A kiddie who otherwise will go giftless will never forget it. And you'll feel a lot better if you toss a few pennies or toys in their direction.

There is no greater exemplification of the Christmas spirit than helping those less fortunate than yourself.

Be a Christmas "Good Samaritan."

Splendid Yule Program Given By N.E. Club

A record number of employees and their families were present on Saturday afternoon for the 4th annual Christmas party held by the Northern Electric Club (Belleville branch) at the Sydney Street plant.

Entertainment was provided in several forms for a three-hour period beginning at 2 p.m. The Formulaires Barber Shop Quartet sang a group of humorous songs; Barbara Diment and her dancing class of children, ages three to sixteen years, were out in full force; Ethel Smith sang a number of solos accompanied by Dean Whalen at the Hammond organ.

Other entertainment was supplied by five clowns who circulated among the 1,000 guests and members performing comical antics and tricks. The clowns were Hans Amyott "Tiny" Johns, George Garrow, Jerry Mahoney and Doug Day.

Christmas Films

All of the children were presented with presents and candy and everyone helped themselves freely to the ice cream. Three films entitled "The Littlest Angel", "A Pup's Christmas" and "The Story of St. Nick" were provided for the children and Santa Claus himself topped off an exciting afternoon.

Miss Gloria High was the winner of the door prize which was her choice of any radio of the Panda design.

The arrangements and entertainment committee included Frank Grandame, club president, Pat Devine, chairman of entertainment, Jim O'Bryan, Charles Marriott and Edna Lalonde. They were assisted by a group of 35 girls and 45 men.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP) — Irregular support today held early afternoon stock market prices mixed and trendless.

Industrials made little headway. Refining oils drew moderate support to form the market's strongest section. Retail stores weakened. Steels dipped sharply.

Falconbridge and Hudson Bay slipped fractions among leaders while International Nickel edged upward. Pend Oreille, Labrador and Steep Rock dipped sharply. East Sullivan, Golden Manitou, Sherritt-Gordon and United Asbestos posted advances ranging Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Trade was dull at the Ontario stockyards today with prices barely steady. There were no choice cattle offered. Receipts: Cattle 1,050, calves 190, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 400. The leftover from last week was 550 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers sold $31.50-$33.50. Common to medium light steers and heifers brought $25-$32 with a few good heifers bringing $32.25. Medium to good cows were selling mostly $20-$25 with a few top weighty cows at $26. Good heavy bulls sold for $27-$27.50 while good light bulls brought $24-$26. Medium to good fed yearlings made $30-$35.

Y's Men Enjoy Christmas Party

The annual Christmas party of the Y's Men's Club featured the club's activities last week when wives and children joined with husbands and fathers in a festive atmosphere at the Y.M.C.A. The auditorium was crowded to capacity when members and guests sat down to a dinner of turkey and trimmings served amidst dainty decorations arranged by the Y's Menettes.

The chairman for the occasion was Ed. Littlejohn, who had prepared a splendid program of entertainment. The carol singing led by Scott Denton and Bryson Leslie gave the atmosphere which was aided later by the excellent Christmas films shown by Jack Wilson and reached a climax with arrival of Santa Claus who tumbled in through a window much to everyone's delight.

The Y's Men are continuing this week on their Christmas tree sale which is in the hands of Willis Hutchinson assisted by all members of the club.

Fifty Colorful Floats, Bands Highlight Wellington Parade

Wellington, Ont., (Staff) — Fiddlers and fire engines, hunters and housewives, farmers and fishermen, pedagogues and preachers, they're all brothers and sisters under the skin in this lakeside village.

The spirit that moved "Ole Smoke Reynolds" to enlist the services of his Mohawks to build the oldest house in Ontario, and those of their squaws to nurse Lady Simcoe back to health in the late eighteenth century, still lives in this lake-bordered community.

They forgot their politics and pride, their personal grievances, if any, and prejudices when the call is issued for community cooperation.

Tangibly Exemplified

That has been tangibly exemplified in the village's fine school, arena, library and later fire-fighting equipment, and the fine new Canadian Legion Memorial Hall.

Nor does this spirit lack when the effort calls for fun and frolic, celebration, or a helping hand to another community.

Take the Santa Claus parade staged on Saturday under the sponsorship of the village Board of Trade and the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

The word got around that the parade would be staged, and "git on your horses, men." That was sufficient.

A Colorful Event

The result was one of the most colorful events of its nature ever staged in the history of the village, and one, according to outside observers, that was far superior to any staged thus far in any community of its size in eastern Central Ontario.

Friendly rivalry helped a lot. Business men endeavored to outdo the industry boys. Merchants vied with students in original ideas. The old ones dressed in modern garb and vice versa nearly stole the show. Not to be outdone by the village slickers, the lads from the outlying rural districts came up with floats that drew gasps of admiration and amusement from the crowd-packed streets that greeted the fifty-three float-and-band parade that crunched along snow-blanketed village streets shortly after two o'clock.

The weather? Phooey! True, the weatherman had blizzarded the village and countryside the night before with driving snow and near-zero temperatures. But who cared?

Everybody Was There

Everybody from "Doc" Thompson to four-year-old Donny Ogilvy, the best pint-sized baseball player in town, defied the weather and went out to enjoy the fun. They were not disappointed.

Proud Dobbins, arch-necked, pawed and strutted alongside snorting "Model T's". Gleaming in its scarlet and black, the new $17,000 fire engine purred quietly ahead of a 1770 edition of fire-fighting equipment that drew roars of applause. At the head of the parade rode Marshal Bob Cunningham astride a proud nag.

To the stirring music of the Royal Canadian Air Force Band, Trenton, and the Royal Canadian Artillery Band, Picton, the gaily colored decorated parade moved from the Lipson Canning Company plant on the "Town Line" to where it intersects Highway 33 at the "Brick Plant" corner.

Crowds Pack Streets

Crowds and cars packed the pavements and streets. Farms in the district were deserted. From Trenton, Picton, Belleville, and other nearby centres came a Christmas-spirited throng to enjoy the fun.

Centre of attraction for the kiddies, of course, was the huge Santa Claus float with "Old St. Nick" himself dispensing smiles and greetings. He came from Toronto, with his retinue and colorful reindeer.

Originality and detail were the outstanding features of the parade. Comic strip figures, and fairy tale characters were there. Old Mother Hubbard was actually represented by an empty cupboard on a float with "Mother" and a hungry dog sitting disconsolately nearby.

Live Actors

The Camel Shoot Club, local organization of hunters, did a grand job. On a typical hunters' float were live deer, and a bear or two. "Old Mother Goose" shed her feathers gaily. On another truck depicting the life of years ago and modern life, too, was an old-time fiddler whose "Turkey in the Straw" rendition, accompanying the shouts of a "caller" drew rounds of applause. An old-fashioned quilting party was portrayed on a float carrying "dear old ladies" actually "quilting."

"Cinderella" was in reverse with the two "ugly sisters" doing the family "chores" with old-fashioned wash tubs and scrubbing boards.

Students at work at a desk with teachers hovering in the offing featured the float of the Consolidated School. Nothing was left to the imagination. The busiest individual in the parade was a step-dancer who "tapped" during the entire length of the parade.

Then there were the clowns and other mirth-provoking individuals garbed in grotesque costumes.

Every merchant and business man in the village was represented in the parade. Horse-drawn wagons colorfully-decorated from nearby farms exemplified rural interest in the winter pageant. One of the outstanding attractions of the parade was the large Christmas float which depicted the spirit and meaning of the season.

Following the parade the hundreds of children gathered at the school where they were greeted by Santa Claus and presented with gifts. Later the Trenton R.C. A.F. band entertained with a concert in the school.—G. H. C.

19 Motor Crashes In City, District During Weekend

No less than 19 motor accidents, the majority causing only minor damage, kept city and provincial police officers busy over the weekend. Ten of the accidents were reported on highways outside the city.

Slippery street and highway conditions almost in every case were responsible for the accidents, it was stated.

Of the nine motor accidents occurring within the city limits only two caused extensive damage.

Russell Meike of Toronto was driving on Dundas Street, East, when his car skidded and slid into the rear of a parked car owned by Bonn Motors. About $200 damage was caused to his car as well as minor damage to the parked vehicle.

Lower Stretches Of Moira River Sheathed in Ice

Sub-zero temperatures which fettered the bay proper with ice shackles last Thursday reached frosty fingers up the Moira over the weekend sheathing the lower stretches of the river to a point well past the lower city bridge.

A dipping mercury following in the wake of the Friday night blizzard with Saturday being cold and snowy, and a new seasonal low of 15.8 degrees below zero being established at eight o'clock Sunday morning.

The weatherman, however, had a slight change of heart later yesterday and sent the thermometer reading upward although a cold wind swept the city and district.

At midnight Sunday the mercury had risen to five above zero and the low last night, according to filtration plant readings was nine above.

Cold weather will continue, according to the weatherman's predictions today. He calls for further low temperatures tomorrow with some snow in the afternoon.

Mrs. H. Lucas Rescues Tots In Trenton Fire

Trenton, Dec. 17—The cries of a seven-year-old boy and the courage of his mother Saturday saved three children from possible death in the smoke-filled living room of a burning house on Front Street here.

Bobby Lucas, who lives at 35 John Street, saw smoke pouring from a downstairs window of the home of Mrs. H. Foshay, just around the corner, and summoned his mother. Mrs. Harry Lucas ran to the blazing house, entered the living room and found the Foshay children almost overcome by smoke.

She rushed Bill, 6, and Bernard, 4, on to the street, and returned to grab Jenny, 14 months, from a burning couch where she had been lying. Mrs. Lucas had not noticed the infant at first, and when she reached her flames had begun to singe her hair. As a result of Mrs. Lucas' quick action, none of the children was seriously hurt.

Of unknown origin, the fire is believed to have started near the sofa and spread to the curtains in the Foshay's living room. It was first noticed by Edgar Mould, who has an office nearby, and he called for the fire department.

The reels were delayed by traffic, however, and firemen believed the children would have been trapped in a matter of minutes if Mrs. Lucas had not acted so quickly. Mrs. Foshay was out of the house at the time.

Although no estimate of damage has yet been set, the interior of the house and much of its contents were badly burned.

After the fire was brought under control, a small kitten, badly scorched, ran out from under the couch.

Ladies' Night Greatly Enjoyed

Saturday night was a gala occasion at the Kiwanis Centre as the Belleville Chapter of the SPEBSQSA (Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.) held their first annual combination Ladies' Night and Christmas Party.

It was an extremely successful party with everyone joining in the dancing, games and singing, although many of the guests had never met before.

President "Brad" Bradford welcomed the guests with a few appropriate words and turned the party over to the emcee of the evening Dick Brettingham.

Dance music was provided by chorus director Alf Evans and later by some of the most famous orchestras on the continent through the medium of John Grant's record playing public address unit.

To add variety to the evening's entertainment, several "People Are Funny" style contests were held with the winners receiving very practical gifts from the Christmas tree, such as a combination coat hanger and cigaret lighter (a nail and a match) presented by President Bradford.

Entertainment for the floor show was easily obtained owing to the character of the organization. Two local quartets, the Formulaires and Quintones, and the Napanee River Boys, each sang several numbers with a grand finale provided by the chapter chorus.

After an excellent buffet supper the members and guests departed with the only regret being that the evening was not longer.

Drive With Care Police Chief Asks

"Drive with care and with consideration for the condition of the roadway," was the appeal of Police Chief Walter Probert today following a series of motor accidents over the weekend.

"Motorists must learn that additional care is required in driving a car on slippery and icy streets," Chief Probert warned.

The approach of the Christmas season and the presence of parcel laden pedestrians also calls for additional care on the part of the motorists. At the same time pedestrians should use special care and make sure that they cross streets only at intersections.

With Christmas holidays approaching numbers of school children will soon be on the streets and the police chief warned motorists to take extra precaution.

"A little extra care may save some family heartbreak during the Christmas season," he said.

Jolly Christmas Party Staged By Shriners

By FRED HART

A blinding snowstorm did not deter the Shriners and their many friends from attending a party at the Shrine Club on Highland Avenue on Friday evening, staged to provide monetary help for the Crippled Children's Fund.

In 1843 Henry Dickens wrote his immortal story "A Christmas Carol." The Shriners and their jolly guests enacted — quite innocently—this age-old story. It seemed to use that the protatype of Mr. Pickwick, in the person of Jack Mather, sat at the reception desk with a beaming smile for all. Then there was that fresh-complexioned, Fat Boy who won a turkey. He paid no small amount for the bird, but he was happy in the knowledge that some Tiny Tim would benefit.

And big, benign President D. L. Storey saw to it that his guests were made to feel quite at home on this festive occasion. He gave special credit to Shriner "Boiler" Lloyd for staging the show, and "Boiler" certainly did himself proud on this unforgettable occasion. He was here, there and everywhere, bubbling over with good humor, seeing to it that every guest participated in the grand work.

40 Turkeys "Given Away"

Forty turkeys were "given away" at a price, and several hundred dollars was the result for this magnificent kindly effort. We were informed that 20 patients have been sent to the Montreal Hospital for Crippled Children and over a thousand dollars have been raised for invalid chairs and nursing.

And that is not all, for another worthwhile project is their Hastings T. B. Association. Thirty-three chest clinics have been held this year. Five T.B. cases were found and all medical expenses have been paid out of the Christmas Seals Fund of which Shriner President D. L. Storey is chairman.

Yes, it was a jolly evening. Art Young saw to it that TV was an added attraction. The refreshments were many and varied, coffee and sandwiches were served by a jolly matron who could have been Mrs. Cratchit, assisted by a very pretty Miss who could have been Mr. Scrooge's lovely niece. And of all this wonderful cross section of Belleville's best which included doctors and lawyers, bank managers, plant executives and civil servants, there was nary a "Scrooge" among 'em.

Flash Fire Burns Home to Ground, Girl Suffers Burns

Bancroft, Dec. 17.—In a few minutes a flash fire burned to the ground the frame house of Hugh MacMillan, Dungannon township, near Detlor as a result of one of the children lighting the family stove with an unknown liquid late Friday afternoon.

The parents were shopping in Bancroft and when the daughter returned from high school she decided to warm up the house.

Firemen who arrived too late to save anything said the unknown liquid probably was gasoline.

Civic Government Theme of Talk

"Civic Government" was the subject of a talk given by Alderman Wilbur J. Countryman to a combined meeting of the Girls' Hi-Y Club and Boys' Hi-Y Club at the YMCA Friday night.

The speaker was exacting and informative in an endeavor to explain the various functions performed through the municipal council and gave in detail the qualifications required by aspirants to office and the procedure towards nomination and election. He also gave a description of the requirements and procedures of citizens in participating in an election and the actual voting.

Mr. Countryman described some of the interesting and humorous experiences which he had encountered during his term of office. He explained the operation of committee, and the responsibilities which a members of council accepts when elected. The calls of citizens who were within their rights, made heavy demands on elected members whose services to the community could not be measured by attendance at council meetings. Their responsibilities in the operation of various departments which function in the interests of citizens at times were much more strenuous than the ordinary duties attached to routine business of council.

The speaker outlined also the procedures toward assessment and taxation and pursued the monetary aspects of municipal government until the money was actually spent in various ways in the interests of the city as a whole.

Steve Kane, president of the Boys' Hi-Y Club introduced the speaker and Shirley Alyea expressed the thanks of the members.

127 New Members Have Joined Church

Holloway Street United Church increased its membership by 127 new members during the year, it was announced Sunday morning by the minister, Rev. Sidney E. Larman. Of the total 67 became members by profession of faith and 61 by certificate.

During the morning service 18 new members were admitted. Becoming members of the church by profession of faith, were, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Singleton; Mr. and Mrs. John Cole, Mrs. Royden Long, Mrs. Gordon Detlor, Mrs. Paul Jones, Mr. Victor Haire, Mrs. Jack Pickard and Mr. Leslie Digby.

Received by certificate from other churches were, Miss Bertha Lovelace, Miss Greta Nicholson, Mrs. Max Maguire, Mrs. Norman Francis, Miss Donna Edmundson, Mr. Paul Jones, Mr. Royden Long and Mr. Gordon Detlor.

It was announced that the Women's Association, under the presidency of Mrs. Bert Moorman, donated $1,000 to new organ fund and $100 to the missionary and maintenance fund. Mr. Elgin Moynes and Mr. Victor Haire assisted the minister during the evening service and other members of the Young People's Union, under the presidency of Mr. Cam Hitchon, augmented the senior choir and assisted with the ushering. Members of the union have planned to decorate the church for the Christmas and New Years Sundays. In the morning the minister preached on the subject, "The Quest of the Wise Men", and in the evening "The Three Roads to Bethlehem". After the evening service the young people held a Christmas fireside service in the home of Miss Jean Campbell, Charlotte Street.

A WORD OF THANKS!

We wish to express our appreciation to the following merchants who donated towards "The Nativity" in our window. May we also pass on the many favorable comments we have received.

JUDGE CURREY TELLS THEM

A deputation from London, headed by Mayor Allan Rush of that city, appeared before the Ontario Milk Control Board on Tuesday last to "protest" against the board's giving permission to London milk distributors to raise prices. The distributors had previously told the board that they had to increase their prices so that they could pay the producers more.

Judge A. B. Currey, chairman of the Milk Control Board, told Mayor Rush and his friends that, if prices paid the farmers for their milk did not increase, there was going to be a milk famine in Ontario.

Judge Currey patiently explained to the London deputation that the farmers of Ontario were refusing to continue supplying milk at present prices. Large numbers of them, he explained, had already transferred their activities to beef production or some other kind of farming which involved less labor and expense than dairying.

When Mayor Rush and his associates suggested that the government (presumably the Ontario government) should help to keep milk prices down by paying a subsidy to the producers, Judge Currey declared, with commendable emphasis, that he was "flatly opposed to any such scheme, which merely meant taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another."

Judge Currey concluded the hearing by informing the deputation that the milk famine which he foresaw had already struck in some areas. In one locality, he said, the milk scarcity was so bad that a rationing system was under consideration.

Judge Currey's position as chairman of the Milk Control Board has apparently brought him into close enough contact with the farmers so that he understands their point of view, something which a large number of urban dwellers seemingly do not understand.

The farmer's viewpoint was vigorously expressed only a short time ago by Hon. Thomas Kennedy, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, who is himself a farmer. Mr. Kennedy told a deputation of Ontario mayors who also wanted cheaper milk that they were at liberty to go into the dairy business themselves and try their hand at bringing the price down.

Whatever was the purpose for which the Ontario Milk Control Board was created, it has discovered one important fact — the farmers of Ontario are not going to be pushed around or bamboozled into producing milk at cost or less than cost. Mayor Allan Rush of London and any other individuals who think as he does may just as well get that fact through their heads.

WANTS FEWER TAX EXEMPTIONS

Assessment Commissioner A. J. B. Gray declared the other day that there is far too much tax-exempt property in Toronto, and added that steps should be taken to halt the increase in the amount of such property.

Toronto, he said, had tax-exempt property which was assessed for $96,000,000. If this property were re-assessed today, he stated, its new assessment, in keeping with present day values, would be more like $160,000,000.

Properties owned by the provincial and federal governments alone was presently assessed for $35,000,000. If taxes were paid on these properties, as both Mr. Gray and Toronto civic authorities maintain they should be, Toronto would have additionad revenues of about $1,500,000. Under a new assessment, Mr. Gray said, the revenue to Toronto would be considerably higher than $1,500,000.

Mr. Gray has been urging the Toronto city council and board of control to start a campaign for the purpose of inducing both senior governments to pay municipal taxes on their properties, as well as for legislative changes which would enable the municipalities to levy taxes on various other properties now exempt.

Mr. Gray's contention is that it is unfair to expect the small home owner to pay for fire and police protection, for example, on large and expensive properties which do not contribute anything toward the cost of such protection.

A good many of those small home owners, in Toronto and elsewhere, will agree with Mr. Gray.

DEFENCE COSTS

According to Max W. Mackenzie, deputy minister of defence production, Canada has let defence production contracts having an estimated value of $1,996,500,000 during the last nine months.

This figure, Mr. Mackenzie said, did not include contracts for construction work, fuel, food, clothing and other military requirements.

Aircraft accounted for the biggest figure on Mr. Mackenzie's list, being $788,585,000. Next largest item was ships, $167,653,000. Cost of ammunition was $103,039,000. On tanks, self-propelled weapons and other military vehicles, $93,265,000 is being spent.

Total number of women employed in Canadian industries in 1951 was more than 1,100,000.

JUST FOLKS

"JUST WHAT I WANT"

If at the door with joy they shout
And all are well and gay,
I'll have, without the slightest doubt,
A Merry Christmas Day.

If smiles on every face I see,
Then I can truly boast
Old Santa Claus has brought to me
Just what I needed most.

If arms about my neck entwine
(Though some may think this strange),
That hug will be one gift of mine
I shall not have to change.

As they come in with gloves or ties
To prove their love for me,
If there are twinkles in their eyes,
My day will happy be.

New York Times Praises Decision Of Canadian Govt.

New York, Dec. 17—(CP)—The New York Times today hails Canada's abolition of foreign exchange controls as "a remarkable and justified, indication of (Canada's) confidence in its economy and money."

The Times says editorially that the steadiness of the Canadian dollar during the last year "had earlier given similar testimony of that country's economic strength."

"Canada is now in the throes of major idustrialization; its enormous wealth of diverse materials is steadily becoming more apparent and attracting ever-greater investment, both domestic and foreign, for development," the editorial says.

"Though Canada still imports more than she exports in terms of goods, the capital inflow during the past year has more than offset the trade deficit . . .

". . . Foreigners will be able to freely exchange Canadian holdings for dollars or other currencies. This greater freedom will not be lost on potential foreign investors, and should quickly rebound to that courageous country's benefit," the Times says.

Canada last Friday abruptly ended 12 years of controls over foreign exchange, joining the United States and Switzerland in complete freedom of money exchange.

A LITTLE FEAR

Scott Young, Esq.
Omemee, Ontario.
Dear Scott:

A mutual friend has sent me along a copy of your recent piece in Saturday Night titled "Should I Keep My Commie Friend?" in which you sever a life-long friendship because, you say, you're afraid of being smeared and ruined by witchhunters as a friend of communism.

I am deeply shocked by the article. The witch-hunt as you call it has not really begun in Canada. It may in fact, never begin. Yet you have voluntarily given in already to a condition of fear and hysteria. You have, as you put it, your "peace of mind". But Scott, you have it only because you have turned away from freedom.

How could you have written this? How can you give in like some frightened old woman to the enemies of free thought? In a day when every young Canadian writer should be crying out against the American kind of witch-hunt and its weakening effect on individual rights, how could you dignify that kind of viscious persecution by going on your knees before it?

Condemn communism by all means! Tear aside its false front! Expose its rottenness! But don't condemn freedom by saying it isn't good enough to work. Don't start making your own personal rules and restrictions to blunt the right to think as you please. When you do that you drain a little of the red blood away from freedom.

* * *

I can find no light of logic in your article. Do you give up an alcoholic friend because people will think you are a drunk?

I might understand your ending of this friendship if your friend had been one of those unbearable communists whose politics come first, last and always. I have given up one of my communist friends because he became a bore and a bigoted man and we could no longer trade ideas and philosophies.

But, Scott, you admit that you don't know that your friend is a communist, that you only suspect he is because he works for a "red-tinged" union and takes the "communist line in civil rights disputes." Yet you say he's never once talked politics with you except that "years ago he used to take any opportunity to revile George Drew."

Could be you're doing a little unwitting witch-hunting yourself, Scott? You ended this friendship without giving him the right of defence. You've smeared him, anonymously but with a close description, in a national magazine, all on circumstantial evidence.

Hasn't your own fear of contamination thus led you to the kind of tactics you abhor?

* * *

Indeed, it does seem to me you have a kind of cockeyed fear complex on this whole subject. You write, for example, that when you were asked to sign the Stockholm Peace Petition, and refused with a letter you "made sure that some influential friends of mine saw the reply in case I ever needed their support for my character."

I can't understand this. I know a half dozen newspapermen who refused to sign the petition and never felt they were tainted by being asked. Surely if this country ever gets to the point where it will brand a man a traitor on that kind of nonsensical evidence we can kiss every freedom we know goodbye.

Again, you say you are "tarred with the red brush" because you're on the Communist mailing list. That's ridiculous, Scott. There's not a newspaperman I know who isn't on those lists. My own mail is clogged with communist propaganda. It is also clogged with anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic propaganda. Calm your fears, boy. If the witch-hunters denounce you for that you'll have a lot of company.

I'm particularly disturbed by your strange suggestion that the government should advise the people of Canada that as of a certain date, associating with communists "might some time in the future require an explanation."

Scott, I never saw a fellow so anxious to give away his rights. What right has a government to tell citizens that they cannot associate freely with other citizens who are operating within the laws of the land, who, in fact, are entitled to sit in parliament? Why, the government has no more right to such a directive than it has the right to stop association with CCF members or Masons of Kiwanians.

What you are suggesting is almost exactly what the Nazi government did in warning Germans that they must not associate with Jews.

For myself, Scott, I want the freedom to be friends with men and women of all political complexions, which is surely what the democratic ideal is really all about. As for the witch-hunters, it seems to me we ought to fight them whenever they crawl out from under their stones, not give in to them.

Your Pal, Jack.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DOES THE WORLD GET BETTER?

Is the world getting better or worse? He would indeed be a wise man who could answer that question with any degree of either certainty or accuracy.

The world probably is slightly better than it was some centuries ago and considerably better than it was 2000 years ago. If this were not true, then the influence of Christianity would have to be marked at a pretty low figure. But let no one be deceived into thinking that the world grows better and better every day in every way. If it gets better in one area, it gets worse in another. Humanity today has a much more acute conscience on social problems and on the problem of war than it has ever had in human history. But never before has human ingenuity been employed as it is now in the atom bomb project which may destroy cities and nations by the mere expedient of pressing a button.

On the whole, evil seems just to be redistributed with the passing of time. Slowly and painfully the world gets a little better—a change discernible in terms of centuries but never in terms of years or decades. On the whole, inspite of the atom bomb, this is the finest period of world history in which to live. But there is still plenty of evil in the world and there probably will be until the end of time. We have to fight daily to keep the little areas about us habitable and wholesome.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Slowly but surely, Canadians are developing an accent peculiar to themselves. It is apparent mostly in place-names at the present time. Montreal is Muntry-awl to millions of us. Ottawa is slowly becoming Oddawuh. Toronto has been Tronna or Terawnta for a couple of generations.

Hamilton, a very beautiful name, has been Hamilt'n for as long as I can recall. The last syllable is not pronounced as a syllable, but merely as a sort of small sneeze or snort, back up in the nose.

Some cities defy all tampering. Winnipeg comes forth complete, even in the mouths of brand newcomers. Vancouver, Regina, Calgary do not lend themselves to the slur. But beautiful Niagara has been Nagra Falls for fifty years.

In the country, villages and townships come in for some remarkable localization of pronunciation. There is a village named Terra Nova in one of the finest trout fishing areas in Ontario which I knew as Turnover for years and years and visited countless times before I discovered, on looking at a map, that it was Terra Nova.

There is nothing odd or unusual about Canadian developing a characteristic style of speech. The English and Americans, both of whom use the same language we do, pronounce their words as they see fit, especially their place-names. And the Scots are terrific. A few miles apart on the River Dee are the villages of Peterculter and Cults. The former is pronounced Petercooter; the later Cults, just as it looks. When you suggest to a local Scot that Cults should be Coots, he is amused. He can show you far stranger things than that: Loch Muick, near Balmoral is nothing more or less than Loch Mick. Not a trace of that protuberant U. Plain Mick. So what's the matter with Nagara?

SMOKING AND CARBON MONOXIDE ANOXIA

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless gas produced by burning carbon (coal, wood, oil, gasoline, trash, leaves, gas, paper) with a restrict supply of air (oxygen).

Anoxia is a state of oxygen deficiency in the tissues, cells and organs of the body; oxygen deficiency in the blood is called anoxemia.

Any fuel burner may give off more or less carbon monoxide and therefore requires a flue connection with the chimney or a stovepipe to carry the products of combustion to the outer air, as a measure of safety for occupants or workers and reasonable protection of their health.

The presence of more than a small portion of carbon monoxide in the air of an occupied room is a menace to the health of the occupants if not to their life.

Fuel burning heaters without proper stovepipe connection with chimney or the outer air are especially dangerous in small living rooms, bedrooms or bathrooms where there is generally little ventilation to remove carbon monoxide from the room.

Notwithstanding the false assurances salesmen sometimes give customers of limited intelligence, no fuel-burning device destroys or burns all the fumes, gases or poisons the burner gives off.

Most people today are aware of the grave danger of sudden asphyxia (anoxia) from breathing air polluted with carbon monoxide given off in the exhaust of an automobile engine which runs for a short time in a closed garage—say on a cold morning to warm up the engine. The exhaust of an automobile engine always contains considerable carbon monoxide, especially when the engine idles.

Few are aware that carbon monoxide may be present in tobacco smoke.

In tests of fifty smokers in Belfast, Dr. J. T. Shepherd found that smokers who inhaled about once in a minute showed little measurable effect, smokers who inhaled every twenty seconds showed steady decrease of blood flow, and smokers who inhaled every fifteen seconds become dizzy, nauseated and faint. These are the effects commonly ascribed to nicotine. But there is some doubt whether nicotine is present in tobacco smoke—it may be destroyed by combustion.

There is no doubt that carbon monoxide is present in tobacco smoke and in sufficient concentration to account for just such symptoms, plus headache. In fact chemical analyses of tobacco smoke showed that a smoker inhales a 0.2 per cent concentration of carbon monoxide —two parts in a thousand parts of air—at each puff. If a man breathes air containing 2 parts of CO per thousand he will become powerless and unconscious; if there is only one part CO per thousand, the person breathing it will at least get a throbbing headache, flushing of the skin, a sense of tightness across the forehead. The smoker however, takes a few inhalations of comparatively pure air between each puff or inhalation of polluted air.

The symptoms and signs of so-called nicotine poisoning are strikingly like those of carbon monoxide anoxia.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Doctor Guess

Son troubled with piles. One doctor told him to sit in tub of hot water to relieve itching. It doesn't. What would you suggest? (Mrs. F. C. M.)

Answer—I suggest that if the doctor hasn't looked at the trouble through a speculum he doesn't know what ails your son. It is sheer hokum and malpractice to prescribe any kind of treatment or remedy for "piles" without such examination. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (do not send a clipping) for the pamphlet It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles. No reputable physician can tell without examination whether a patient has piles or something else. No reputable physician will disput this statement.

Brown Spots

I have numerous little brown spots on my arms and a few on my face. What can I do for this? Have been told it is a sign of cancer. . . . (Mrs. S. A.)

Answer—It is not a sign of anything. Means of removing the spots are described in booklet Cosmetic Blemishes, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

SPIRIT HUNTING

There is a saying that "hope springs eternal in the human breast." This hope is akin to the spirit that a person usually carries around with him as extra and essential equipment. If an athlete, or even an ordinary worker, has spirit he makes a fine contact for any of us. We catch that spirit—and it's gain in our heart-bank.

Every once in a while I get low in spirit. So I leave my work place, or whatever I may be engaged in at the time, and wander to some spot where I feel sure there will be food and enrichment for my lagging spirit. That fountain head may be no more than a walk out into the open where multitudes flow, or it may be a book-shop, or a brief visit to some congenial person whose spirit is always a warm flame of hope and encouragement.

There is a book-shop in my town where I often go for a new supply of spirit. It is lorded over by two brothers, whose father before them always gave me a spiritual lift and a mental meal, whenever I strayed into their domain. I always leave that place reinforced in spirit and happier for my spirit hunt. That long room of thousands of great books eyeing me in their silent manner give me ozone for my soul!

Every sort of hunter dotes upon surprises, and that is what you are always quite sure of experiencing when you go out on a spirit hunt. You go back to your work in high fettle and with courage and confidence polished to the utmost. And it is all so simple. You lose yourself so quickly you are amazed that happiness is so easy to gain.

We are never so easily bored by someone else as we are by our own self! But the very moment we decide to go an a spirit hunt we miss our own boredom the moment that new contacts are made. I am certain my friend Edwin Way Teale experienced no boredom as he followed the Springtime from lower Florida north to the eastern Canadian border. Every mile was a revelation and a surprise, and he wrote it all down in his remarkable book "North with the Spring." Try this spirit hunt and note how new it will make you.

Closing Latest In Ten Years

(By The Canadian Press)

The lake ship Hagarty, commanded by Captain R. Belcher, had the cold distinction of being the last ship to slip through the Sault Ste. Marie canal before winter closed down navigation.

Saturday the Hagarty was also the last ship out of Port Arthur before the port closed at midnight for the season. The Canadian side of the Sault canals closed down at the same time and the Hagarty went through the United States locks.

The last of Owen Sound's winter fleet of 12 ships were safely berthed Saturday afternoon. At Port Colborne the largest winter fleet in years was expected, many of the ships acting as winter grain storage.

Toronto harbor still was open and expected to handle some shipping until Christmas. Yesterday's closing at the lakehead was the latest in 10 years.

Fifth Session of Parliament, Called for Old Age Pensions, Deals With Numerous Topics

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 17. (CP)—The fifth session of Canada's 21st parliament, called primarily to provide pensions of $40 a month to Canadians 70 and over, dealt with a wide variety of other topics.

Almost from the time the special fall session opened October 9 priority was given to government business. No time was devoted to the study of bills sponsored by private members, but they were given full opportunity to express their grievances during a long-drawn out debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The pension legislation, completing a revision of the old-age security program, provided for federal pensions to all 70 and over, regardless of means, if they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. Payment will start in January and are expected to go to some 700,000 Canadians.

Taxes Increased

Three tax changes were made to finance the $400,000,000 program.

Finance Minister Abbott announced a two-per-cent increase in both the tax on personal incomes and on corporate profits. But a ceiling of $60 a year was placed on the amount a person will contribute to the pension fund through personal income tax. Two per cent of the 10-per-cent sales tax was earmarked for the pension fund.

At the five-month spring session, the government was authorized to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of $40-a-month pensions to the needy between 65 and 69. The payments will start as soon as agreements are concluded with the provinces. An estimated 145,000 Canadians will qualify for the pensions, to be financed out of general revenues.

Replaces Old Law

The new acts will replace legislation under which pensions of $40 a month were paid to persons 70 and over who had lived in Canada for at least 20 years and who could prove their need for a pension. The federal government paid 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

High on the list of important measures at the fall sessions was one authorizing establishment of a crown agency to construct the St. Lawrence seaway with or without United States co-operation. An agreement was concluded with Ontario for the development of power resources of the International Rapids section of the river.

No one expressed outright opposition to construction of the seaway, but several opposition members urged that simultaneously with the projects steps to be taken to develop the resources of the Maritime and Prairie provinces.

Three bills providing for equalization of freight rates across Canada were endorsed. The legislation was recommended by a royal commission on transportation.

Money Given CBC

A recommendation by the Massey commission on arts and science that the publicly-owned CBC be partly financed by parliamentary grants was adopted. The legislation provided for grants of $6,250,000 a year for five years.

In the military field, the Commons approved the dispatch of an army brigade to serve under Gen. Eisenhower in Europe and the maintenance of a brigade with the United States forces in Korea.

Several motions of non-confidence in the government were moved by opposition parties during the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The main Progressive Conservative motion called for "adequate steps" to combat inflation and deal effectively with the high cost of living. It was defeated by a vote of 102 to 39.

In another motion, the C.C.F. called for price controls and subsidies to equalize the sacrifices which the people are asked to make at this time. It was defeated 180 to 18.

The Social Credit party criticized the government in another motion for failing to increase war veterans allowances, paid to burnt-out veterans prematurely aged by war service. It was defeated 145 to 55.

RENOUNCES SOCIALISM

London, Dec. 17—(Reuters)—A. J. B. Priestley, 51-year-old British playwright and author, today was reported to have renounced socialism. The London Daily Telegraph quotes Priestley as saying it would be "fair to say" that he is no longer a socialist. Priestley spoke for the labor party during the 1950 general election but was never a member of the party.

DAUGHTER MARRIED

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 17—(AP)—Actress Gloria Swanson's 19-year-old daughter, Michelle Bridget Farmer, was married last night to Robert Ammon of Paris.

Ontario C of C Requests Priority be Given Four-Lane Highway East to Montreal

The Ontario Chamber of Commerce will wait on the Deputy Minister of Highways with a request that priority be given to the continuance of the four-lane highway from Oshawa to Montreal.

For the past two years the Belleville Chamber of Commerce has taken an active part by resolution and presentation of brief, in bringing to the attention of the Ontario Department of Highways the necessity of the continuation of the four-lane road.

Now the matter will be taken up by the Ontario Chamber as result of their annual meeting held in Hamilton early this month. The policy committee endorsed the resolution placed before the meeting on the above subject and it was agreed the committee would again wait on the Highways Department.

The committee is requested to urge that the completion of this highway be given the highest priority its importance demands with respect to safety, defence and the tourist.

It was pointed out that the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity had carried out an extensive campaign to attract tourists to Ontario. This has brought beneficial results to business firms and tourist resorts. Therefore, it would seem appropriate that the Department of Highways support this program in the construction of straight roads for safety and wider roads for ease of travel.

The local Chamber of Commerce expresses the hope that the citizens of Belleville and others on this part of No. 2 Highway see an early start on the completion of this important part of a great highway system so they may say with pride "Come to Ontario for your holiday."

Two Injured By Fires At Warkworth

Campbellford, Dec. 17 —Two persons, one of them a baby, were injured in fires in the Warkworth district, 10 miles south of here.

On Saturday night Gordon McCubbin was badly burned about the face, head and hands in an explosion which occurred as he worked on a plugged gas line on a car in his service station. The service station, an apartment above and two cars were destroyed before Warkworth firemen brought the blaze under control. Mrs. McCubbin and her daughter Ruth were not at home at the time of the explosion.

Sunday morning a small child was overcome by smoke when fire destroyed the farm home of John Rodgers, three miles west of Warkworth. Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers were in the barn doing morning chores when one of their three children ran out to tell them that the house was on fire.

Mr. Rodgers rescued the baby from a crib upstairs, but not before the child had been overcome by smoke and received minor burns.

United States will assist in financing the gathering.

Much Relief Given

WEDDINGS

BRADSHAW—HENDERSON

A very pretty double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized recently in Cannifton United Church, when Rev. W. R. Merrick united in marriage Helen Irene Henderson, daughter of Mrs. Charles Henderson, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Henderson, formerly of Marlbank, Ont., to Charles Vivian Bradshaw, son of Mrs. Vivian Bradshaw, R.R. 6 Belleville, and the late Mr. Bradshaw.

Given in marriage by her brother, Clare Henderson, the bride was radiant in her floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over bridal satin fashioned with a molded bodice featuring a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves pointed over the hands. A halo headdress held her three-quarter length veil of nylon net and she carried a beautiful bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Arnold Carmichael, of Bancroft, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing floor-length gown of mauve taffeta with lace trim and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Miss Freda Switzer, of Roblin, as bridesmaid, was gowned in yellow taffeta with lace trim. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Little Ann Sévigny, as flower girl, was frocked in a floor-length gown of rose taffeta. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Mr. John Bent, of Oshawa, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as groomsman. George Henderson, brother of the bride, and Stanley Bradshaw, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Mrs. Clarence Jarmine, of Marlbank, was soloist, and Mrs Murney Marlin, of Enterprise, aunt of the bride, was organist.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who received wearing a wine crepe gown, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing navy blue crepe.

Christmas Meeting Held by Quinte W.I.

Last Tuesday, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian was hostess for the Christmas meeting of Quinte Women's Institute. The rooms were decorated and gayly lighted which gave a distinctive seasonal air to the meeting. There were 50 members and several visitors in attendance. The president, Mrs. Grills, opened the meeting with Mrs. Jack Parrott presiding at the piano. The secretary read the 'thank-you' cards and several letters. Mrs. Farnsworth, of Belleville, donated a lovely large coffee percolator. It was decided to send $10 each to Barbara Greatrix and Arlington Bell, who are patients in Kingston Hospital, also a shower of Christmas cards to other shut-ins.

The Christmas program was in charge of Mrs. Jack Parrott and several Christmas carols, led by Mrs. Currie playing the violin; Mrs. Jack Parrott at the piano. A Christmas play, "White Christmas", was well given. Those taking part were: Mrs. Archie Greatrix, Mrs. Douglas Atkins, Mrs. Harry Grills, Mrs. Eric Leeming and Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, followed with a solo by Mrs. Westerhoff, "Pass on the Sunshine".

Mrs. A. Maguire played a selection on the record player, "Why the Chimes Rang", as told by Ted Malone with Dick Leibert at the organ of the Radio City Music Hall.

Mrs. Farnsworth gave a splendid talk on "The Beauty of Christmas", pointing out that Christmas never fails those who believe in it.

All joined in singing the ever lovely, "Silent Night". Mrs. Westerhoff sang in Dutch "How We Were Looking for Christ". Mrs. Currie played more lovely carols on the violin with Mrs. J. Parrott at the piano.

The rendition of "Jingle Bells", ushered in a well-filled basket of gifts. As the names were called little Linda Johnson, of Shannonville, passed the gifts.

Mrs. Grills tendered thanks for the kind hospitality.

Albert College Women's Guild Addressed by Mrs. E. Farnsworth

The December meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the ladies' parlors of Bridge Street Church, on Friday last, with the president, Mrs. Northcott, presiding.

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. S. J. Hibbard. Then Mrs. T. K. Franklin read the report of the nominating committee, which had been appointed to choose the new executive for 1952.

Officers Elected

The officers chosen were as follows: past president, Mrs. W. S. Northcott; president, Mrs. A. May; vice-president, Mrs. L. G. Hudgins; secretary, Miss Erma Panter; treasurer, Mrs. S. J. Hibbard; assistant treasurer, Mrs. A. H. Fisher; ocial convener, Mrs J. C. McMullen; program convener, Mrs. T. K. Franklin; maintenance committee, Mrs. B. Howard; pianist, Mrs. M. Duff; assistant pianist, Mrs. T. K. Franklin.

Miss Helen Sulman made a short address to Mrs Northcott, the retiring president, remarking on her untiring devotion to the work of the Guild, during her four year tenure of office; of her unfailing energy, optimism and ready wit. In closing, she presented her with a beautiful purse, the gift of the members.

In reply, Mrs. Northcott modestly disclaimed Miss Sulman's eulogies, but sincerely thanked her and all the members for their handsome gift. She then spoke of her long association with Albert College, which began when she herself had attended school in the old building on College Hill.

She said that the new Albert College buildings were much more comfortable and beautiful than the old buildings, but in spite of that, the students at the old school had had their share of fun and good times. She also mentioned Miss Gardiner, for many years the dean of women at the old college, and spoke of the respect and affection she had received from the girls attending school there. Finally, Mrs. Northcott said that she would always be interested in, and would continue to take part in the work of the Guild.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. E. Farnsworth, and as this was the Christmas meeting, she chose as her subject, "The Beauty of Christmas". She said that, "at this time our thoughts are not on ourselves, but on others, and in thinking of others we renew our devotion to our Christian religion.

"In the Gospel of St. Luke, we read of the shepherds' journeys to Bethlehem. At this season, the thoughts of all Christians also, turn to Bethlehem. The shepherds were humble men, and their hearts were open to receive Jesus. The wise men came also to seek Jesus and worship Him.

"The story of the birth of Christ has inspired artists, musicians, and writers throughout the centuries. Shakespeare often quoted from the Bible. The inspiration of the Bible breathes through the writings of Milton, Wordsworth, Browning and Tennyson. Many of our most beautiful hymns have been inspired by the story of Jesus' birth. God sent His Son to earth to teach the people that God is love. The angels sang "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men". When good will to men becomes universal, there will be no need for armaments and peace will be permanently established on earth. All the hope of the ages is embodied in the birth of Christ."

Fine Impersonations

Bobby and Carol Franklin delighted the audience with an impersonation "That is How the Trouble Began". The young artists were clever and played their parts perfectly.

Mrs. Ralph Morden gave a reading "The Drum Goes Dead", a Christmas story by Beth Streeter Aldridge, which was much enjoyed.

Mr. Don La France, accompanied by Mr. Templer at the piano, played two violin solos. The first was "In a Monastery Garden", the second, "Adoration". Both solos were much appreciated. Miss Doris Daniels accompanied by Mr. Templer sang beautifully "Life Forever More".

After the meeting closed, tea was served.

Christmas Concerts

ALLIANCE TABERNACLE

Once again, on Friday evening, at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, the children of the Sunday School honored by carol, song and recitation the Nativity of Jesus, the Saviour of the world, in their annual Christmas exercises. Mr. Gordon Brown, superintendent, presided as chairman, and cordially welcomed the many present.

Backgrounding those taking part was a life-size scene, in colors of the stable at Bethlehem with Mary and Joseph, the Christ child, the adoring wisemen, while in front were the tall Christmas trees, topped with angel-faced stars, and glowing with colored lights and ornaments, and above all, the great "Star" shedding its crimson and purple glow, emblematic of the King of Kings.

The program consisted of two parts, the first that of the children, from the tiniest tots up through the various departments of the Sunday School, all of which were well done, with acclaim hovering around the little toddlers, who voiced what they had to say with conviction and clarity.

The second part consisted of the showing of slides, depicting the birth of Jesus, His childhood life, and ending with His sacrificial death upon the cross of Calvary. There were shown by Miss Muriel Craig, who also was her own narrator. Mr. James McKay, guest soloist, favored with "Birthday of a King".

Following the program, the prizes for perfect attendance were presented to the deserving scholars: Eleanor Millard, Lenore Dixon, Ray Ketcheson, Joyce Ketcheson, Catharine Millard, Carolyn Potts, Jimmie Potts, Murray Dixon, Randal Wickett, Janette Potts and Raymond Masse by Sunday School secretary, Mrs. Mary Baragar, who thanked them for their faithfulness, and expressing the hope that this fine record might be repeated in the coming year.

Treats of candy, nuts and fruit in Christmas containers were presented to each Sunday School scholar and as long as they lasted also to those little ones who were present as guests.

Those taking part in the program included: Heather Hawley, "Welcome"; Murray Dixon, "Welcome"; Eleanor Millard, a solo, "Ring Bells of Christmas, Ring" and "Happy Birthday"; Sharon Kirkpatrick, recitation, "Proving Her Point"; recitation, Ferne Millard, Luke 2:8-16, which preceded the beginners class song, "Once Unto the Shepherds"; Bobby Landry, a recitation, "A Shy Little Boy"; Eleanor Millard and Bruce Christopher, recitation, "We Are Little Children"; Billy Irwin, recitation, "The Christmas Tree".

Dennis Baragar and Billy Irwin gave a recitation, "What Can I Bring Him?"; Ernie Gray, recitation, "The Way to be Happy"; primary department girls' class song, (Mrs. Embury's class) "Come and Adore"; and a skit, "What Can Little Children Bring?"; Lenore Dixon, recitation, "He is Here"; primary boys' song, "The Little Lord Jesus" (Mrs. C. Beattie's and Mr. W. Wright's classes); a skit by David Benn; Jimmy Potts, Randall Wickett and Billy Whiley, "We Are Pilgrims"; Carol and Paul Brown, a duet, "Dear Little Stranger"; a skit, Miss E. Hawley's class, "A Christmas Review," and song, "Have a Blessing Ready"; Catharine Millard, solo, "Christmas Hymn"; Barbara Wickett, reading, "Away in a Manger" and song by Carol Brown; Janette Potts, a reading, "Ready for Christmas"; Wayne Gray, recitation, "Our Program is Over."

Appreciative thanks are tendered to the pastor, the Reverend Robert Gray; to the superintendent, Mr. Gordon Brown; to Miss Muriel Craig; to the soloist, to Mr. James McKay; to the pianist, Miss Marion Sills; to the secretary, Mrs. M. Baragar; to the various teachers; to the scholars of the Sunday School; to the decorating committee, and to all those who assisted in making the program so pleasingly worthwhile.

GOOD MANNERS

How to introduce stepfather

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was married last June. Last week my mother, who was a widow, was married. During the coming holidays my mother and her new husband are coming to visit us. How should I introduce my stepfather- Should I say "stepfather" in the introduction? —Miriam B.

Yes, in the introduction say "my stepfather", and since his name differs from yours, be sure to add his name. Like this: "Mrs. Martin. . .this is my stepfather, Mr. Graham," or, for a more formal introduction, "Mrs. Davis, may I present my stepfather, Mr. Graham".

The plans for cutting and serving the wedding cake

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mother and I are puzzled about this question: when I, the bride, have cut the first piece of the wedding cake and have shared it with the groom, who finishes cutting the cake? Is it necessary to have a definite plan about this? —Fran.

Yes, it is indeed important that you and your mother make a definite plan about this. At a large reception, after the bride has cut the first piece of cake and shared it with the groom, the caterer's assistant, or anyone else assisting with the serving, generally takes over the cutting and serving of the rest of the cake. Or often, when the service is buffet, the guests may cut the cake for themselves. And sometimes the bride or her mother asks a relative or intimate friend of the family to take over the delightful responsibility of cutting and serving the cake. The plan depends on the circumstances. . . and so there must be a plan.

A difference in custom. . .as to who speaks first

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have not been in this country long, and I am trying to learn how to do things here, often different from where I come from. For example, in the country where I come from, it is the rule and custom that a man greets a woman first when they meet on the street. I have been told that here it is the reverse, that it is the woman who is the first to bow and to greet. Do I understand correctly?—O. S.

Yes. . .although in some countries, as you say, it is the man who greets a woman first, here it is the woman who is given this privilege of being the first to acknowledge acquaintanceship with a man. However, as a matter of fact, it quite naturally happens that generally those who know each other bow, greet each other, simultaneously.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be best man at a friend's wedding soon. (1) Is it the best man who is expected to propose the toast to the bride and groom? (2) And if, as may be the case at this wedding, no liquor is served, what is used for the toast? —Ed.

(1) Yes. . . and usually this is the first toast.

(2) A non-alcoholic drink will be provided for the toasts. . . generally it is a fruit punch.

Don't use "congratulate" or "congratulations" to the bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are going to a wedding and reception soon, our cousin's wedding, and she tells me when I go down the receiving line, I must not "congratulate" the bride. She says the words "congratulate" and "congratulations" are used only for the groom. Is this true? If it is, what should I say to the bride, my cousin?—Marie.

Your sister is right. . .you do not 'congratulate" the bride, or offer "congratulations" to her. . . these words only for the groom. To your cousin say, for instance, "Dearest love to you, Elaine, and every good wish for your happiness, always."

GIVEN LONG PROBATION

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—A young $75-a-week textile salesman accused of lavishing $36,000 in stolen money on a Broadway showgirl who later called him a "creep" will not have to go to jail. "Thank you," sighed Sidney M. Levy, 27, when the judge today suspended an indeterminate sentence on a grand larceny charge on Levy's promise to do his best to make restitution. He placed Levy on probation for 10 years.

Study Beauty Lessons Early

Learn early to keep skin clean and birthdays won't leave nasty tell-tale traces. This Miss uses beauty grains.

By HELEN FOLLETT

It isn't vanity that leads a woman to take every possible means of making herself good-looking and attractive. It is just common sense. The better she looks the better she feels and the happier she is. No woman whose mental motors click is going to let herself go to seed, get the settled look as if she were ready for the shelf. There are old girls who are easy on the eyes, a treat to observe. They learn their beauty lesson early.

They realized that the facial tissues must be kept in a firm, healthy condition if wrinkles are to be avoided. Also that they must not indulge in facial gymnastics, lifting the eyebrows, drawing them together or letting the lip ends droop. The poised woman with a sweet disposition is the one who wins out in the 100 year war against that old warrior Time.

Keep Skin Clean

The skin must be kept scrupulously clean by the free use of a bland soap and cosmetics that are recommended for nipping the dust from the pores. There are delightful, fragrant lotions or tonics that can be bought for this purpose. If tissues start to soften, creams must be used lavishly with light massage. Cold water hardens the skin. Astringents tighten the outer skin structure to a certain extent.

Some women are afraid of massage, the home kind and professional methods, fearing it will stretch the skin, cause wrinkles to form. Certainly no strong-arm methods are desirable, but light tapping and slapping with creamed fingers will do a great deal to retain youthful freshness of the complexion and to keep the flesh firm.

When buying cosmetics, get the best you can afford. While all are safe these days, some special items may be better for your skin than others. You can benefit by the advice of attendants at cosmetic counters. They go through a course of training at beauty schools to qualify for the job of directing women along the beauty road, a pleasant path.

Food for Thought

How to Roast a Turkey

By Mary Moore

Lee S.'s question was: "How to cook half a 30-lb. turkey? I would like to wrap it in aluminum foil, but don't know whether that's possible or whether the stuffing can be put in at the beginning. How many minutes per pound cooking time do you allow?"

This is such a timely question I want Lee S. to know I am grateful to her for reminding me of this half-a-turkey trick.

The big bugbear is danger of drying out the bird—the half-bird. From experience I have decided that a half turkey must be covered for roasting and your aluminum foil idea, Lee, is splendid.

TO ROAST A HALF TURKEY

Pile the stuffing in a neat mound in centre of large sheet of aluminum foil, the shape of the mound of dressing being roughly that of the hollow in the half turkey.

Stuffing—

One quart toasted 1/2-inch bread dice (toast them quickly under hot broiler or in hot oven or toast bread in slices in the toaster and cut into dice after toasting), chopped giblets cooked and chopped if any, 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1-2 cup finely chopped celery and 1/2 cup any of the following: blanched almonds, cooked French chestnuts, oysters chopped, or sauteed mushrooms. Add also 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning, about 3/4 cup broth or milk, plus what butter you care to spare but not more than 1/2 cup. Saute all of the vegetables in butter until they are transparent but not one bit brown. Add to all remaining ingredients. No egg is necessary unless you want to add one beaten one to bind this together better.

Lower the washed and dried and salted half turkey over the stuffing. Now cover the entire skin surface with a moistened cloth dipped in cooking oil or melted shortening, but pretty well wrung out. Roast until three-quarters done at 300 deg Fahr. for about 3 1/2 hours. Test for tenderness at end of 3 1/4 hours, by pressing thigh between thumb and forefinger. If it is soft and the joint moves easily and doesn't spring back to position the turkey is tender. If not give it at least another half hour, then test it again. It does not require basting or turning if it is on a large sheet of foil and skin surface is completely covered with oiled cloth. Lift the turkey to the platter on the foil to keep the dressing intact.

UNSIGNED QUESTION:

"I make a cherry and nut layer cake and the cherries and nuts seem to sink to the bottom. I've creamed them with the shortening and sugar but still they sink. Any suggestions?"

ANSWER:

Fruits sink because batter is not dense enough. You will notice that fruit cake such as Christmas cakes have very little batter, and almost no liquid and fruits stay in suspension.

The following recipe combines my answer to your request with my hankering to give you a simple fruit cake. I call it our

COMPANY POUND CAKE

One and three-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup shortening preferably butter, 3/4 cup sugar, 5 unbeaten egg whites, 1/2 cup finely cut glace cherries, 1 cup blanched almonds (or 1/4 cup cherries, 1/2 cup almonds, 1/2 cup each citron peel and light seedless raisins), 3/4 cup shredded cocoanut (optional), 1/2 teaspoon almond extract, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour, measure, sift with baking powder and salt and sift 3 times. Cream butter adding sugar gradually while creaming; beat in egg whites 1 at a time. Add fruits, and nuts and flavorings. Sprinkle dry ingredients over and mix in well. Bake in loaf pan, greased and paper-lined, and greased again. Slow oven of 275 deg. or 300, 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours. Keeps well.

BEAUTY

Reactions of cleansing mediums on the skin

Perhaps, when you were a little girl, you played "This is the way we wash our face." Or, if you did not your mama did. Two little light pats on the cheeks. Many of the young fry are still following that casual method and it is just too bad, since thorough cleaning is especially necessary in childhood. On the kind of care the skin receives then depends its appearance later on—especially in the early teens, when glandular changes take place and the sebaceous glands are extra active.

Soap is the queen of cosmetics. It should be used freely on the oily skin, perhaps twice a day if the pores have picked up atmospheric dust. Some dry skins are sensitive; they redden, feel starched when soap is applied. This trouble can be avoided if a thin cream is used first, then a soaped cloth applied lightly, and a cream frictioned into the skin afterward.

There are cleansing meals to be found at cosmetic counters. They are not as popular as they should be. They are sprinkled on a moist cloth and used the same as soap. They not only clean thoroughly, but the starchy content has a soothing effect upon the cutaneous surface. The main ingredient is finely powdered oatmeal.

A method used in some beauty shops can be used at home. A rich cream is applied to face and neck, then hot, moist applications are held close to the flesh. The heat acts upon the cream, forcing it into the pores and producing quick and effective results. This idea may be of service to women who complain that creams don't achieve a thorough job of removing atmospheric dust, dead skin scales and make-up.

In the days when women believed that the complexion should be protected with chiffon veils and parasols, there was a prejudice against soap. As cosmetics were seldom used, the facial areas were laved with clear water. In those days women were subject to premature wrinkles. A lot of water has run under the good-looks bridge since then. Complexions have improved, women stay more youthful in appearance, and it isn't just because of resorting to the items of the make-up box.

Young people not only should use soap and water, but also should use a complexion brush, so that the skin surface will be completely cleared of the excessive exudations of the sebaceous glands. There are special brushes made for this purpose. One must be fussy when making a selection. The bristles must be firm enough so that they will not mat down when moistened.

British Women Learn to Save On Clothing

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—With Christmas just around the corner, British fashion writers are full of bright advice on how to get the most out of last year's dance frock.

Under these auspices, a wide-skirted crinoline style with strapless top can be made to look new by choice of accessories.

A strapless dark-colored taffeta or velvet gown, for instance, can be worn one day with a frothy tulle or lace stole and muff, suitably pom-pommed or sequined. A more regal look would be given another time by a jewelled halter neckline, a matching bandeau lending a Grecian look to a back-swept hairstyle.

Contrast Provided

For those with a tulle or lace gown in dark shades, an interesting contrast would be provided by using a pretty gold or silver lame jacket or stole —the jacket tight-sleeved, tight-waisted, with high neckline and tiny buttons.

The younger set might choose the softer lines of pastel-shaded boleros matching a spray of flowers at the waist or hemline.

Lovely contrasts for light-colored dresses are the tiny cap-sleeved boleros of tulle patterned with jet sequins, or tight black velvet jackets, sometimes plain, sometimes beaded or sequined.

Blouses Cheaper

Little evening blouses that once cost exorbitant prices can be obtained for less than £3, examples being cap-sleeved numbers in black or midnight-blue tulle or lace, patterned in jet sequins. Diaphanous organdies and chiffons are shot with the metallic glitter of gold or silver lame woven into the material. There are also many cosy evening sweaters with intricate bead embroidery.

A lovely "separates" choice is a skirt of white net with underslip of pink taffeta, combined with boned strapless, pink-lined bodice of white Valenciennes lace. This two-piece costs just over £15, looks like a 20-guinea gown, and is twice as useful.

For instance, combine the skirt with a boned strapless top in black taffeta crested with a narrow trimming of white lace and you have a different outfit. These tops cost as little as £3 and under.

ROME HEADQUARTERS

Purpose of the organization will be to co-ordinate Roman Catholic charitable activities on an international scale. Headquarters will be in Rome.

Fashion Flashes

A LUXURY TOUCH goes well with the coat of untrimmed fabric. One shop is promoting a beautiful stole and pillow muffs in blue or silver fox as a suggestion to go with one of the new fitted coats.

ON-THE-GO-WOMEN demand a hangbag, that, while it is big and has good capacity, doesn't look clumsy or appear bulky. This quest is answered in a brief-case-shaped bag of red calf with wired, luggage-type handles. There is an outside zipper pocket, and the bag lining is of beige leather.

A BIG JOB can be done by the little fur jacket that goes so well over suits, with skirts to give a suit-like look, and with dresses of all types. A good choice for such a versatile function might well be a loose jacket of black Alaska sealskin cut on barrel lines with a low collar line and softly curved closing. Braid, trims the turn-down collar and makes the buttons down the front and on the turn-back cuffs. Slit pockets.

WINTER FLOWERS are those that bloom on the newest, prettiest hats seen so far this season. A favorite is the draped velvet turban with three large roses at the side in a contrasting shade of velvet or silk. Then there are small bonnets with black clusters of flowers, such as the one in shirred, pinkish-mauve velvet with a dark violet cluster in back.

ADAPTED from a model by Jean Desses is one of the prettiest dance dresses seen in many a day. It is of nylon net and features the designer's blue-bird tones, shading from palest mauve to deepest violet. In shaded tones the tulle is draped about the neck, halter fashion, to flow into hem-length side panels. The bodice is intricately draped.

THE INTEREST accorded the skirt in many models makes for some very different-looking effects, such as that noted in a strapless evening dress of yarn-dyed black taffeta. Brief puffed tiers make up the bodice, and these tiers go all the way down to the skirt, widening to a deep, puffed hemline.

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—A famous 18th century painting depicting the Assumption of the Virgin Mary has been recovered and returned to the Monte Cassino Fenedictine Monastery in Italy. Women no Slouches In Calgary Voting

Out of nearly 34,000 votes cast, there were only 30 fewer women voters than men.

Normally the number of men voters as compared with women is not tabulated, but Carl B. Cummer, assistant city clerk, decided to have the figures broken down.

The result was 16,990 men, 16,960 women. At almost every poll, the figures were about even.

Red Wings, Canadiens Come Up With Two Wins Over Weekend

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETES JUNIORS TONIGHT!

Coach "Red" Doran sent his junior Hawklets through a stiff workout over the weekend in preparation for the joust tonight in Memorial Arena with the Peterborough Triple Links. While the Links haven't been blessed with an overdose of Lady Luck's smiles or those intangible "breaks" of late, nevertheless they are a dangerous squad, and have extended every squad in the group to the limit before bowing to the inevitable. They're a big husky squad, who can make it plenty tough for any team in the group, and during their last tilt with the Hawks with any kind of luck, should have pulled out with a win.

However, tonight is another night and the Hawks cannot afford to drop this one since they now trail the Lindsay Kinsmen by three points. The Kinsmen defeated Peterborough 6-3 Friday night and Saturday night were extended to the limit by a fighting Kingston Vics team before edging the Vics 9-8 in a stiff overtime battle. However Lindsay have played two more games than the Hawks.

The youngsters got a sloppy game off their chests in their last appearance here against the Links, and they're about due for the brand of hockey they are capable of playing. They were travelling at top speed in the weekend workouts and Coach Doran is confident the youngsters will come through with a deserved victory.

* * *

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN!

The least that can be said about this unpredictable senior "B" loop is there is nothing one-sided about the thing. At the moment two teams are tied for top-slot with the remaining pair on an even keel in the second position. With anything and everything litble to happen.

As the group standing indicates, the four participating teams are battling with a fairly even distribution of strength, and the group struggle is resolving itself into a see - saw battle that should continue down to the playoffs. The brand of hockey has improved to a noticeable extent the past week or so since all four teams appear to be devoting themselves to the puck rather than the man as was the case in the opening games. True some tilts develop into the rough and rugged type with an occasional rhubarb, but that is hockey.

The senior Hawks who have led the loop, or shared the top rung since the bugles blew the "Advance" are at the moment engaged in a tough series with the Peterborough clubs. Pretty soon the fans hereabouts will be asking if "Kingston is still in the league" not from any Bill Terry motives but from the fact that the last four games have been clashes between the Hawks, Petes and Eagles with four more in the offing, before a Kingston-Hawks game is scheduled.

The Hawks meet the Petes here next Wednesday night in what should be a thriller-diller. Kingston goes to Peterborough to clash with the Petes on Monday night while the Hawks go there next Friday to resume hostilities with the Eagles. Pretty soon these puckists will be on speaking terms with one another.

ICING THE PUCK!

Today the old icing-the-puck rules goes back into effect according to Secretary George Dudley of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. He has designated that all teams under the jurisdiction of the CAHA must return to the rule "within a reasonable time" but specifically states the Ontario Hockey Association must adopt it starting today.

The old rule, which replaces the new edition, allows the puck to be fired into the end zone from just across the centre line. The new rule, now abolished, in effect for the first time this year, calls for the rubber to be carried or passed over the blueline without reaching the goal-line.

Rule 62 Page 33 of the CAHA 1950-51 rule book under the heading "Icing the Puck" states, "Should any player of a team equal or superior in numerical strength to its opponents, shoot the puck from his own side of the red centre line and beyond the goal line of the opposing team, play shall be stopped and the face-off shall be at either end face-off spot in the defending zone of the offending team, unless the puck shall have entered the goal of the opposing team in which case the score shall be allowed.

"If a player of the side shooting the puck down the ice who is onside and eligible to play the puck, does so before it is touched by an opponent, the play shall continue and it shall not be considered a violation of the rule."

Melbourne Hopes To Play Host In 1952 Olympics

Melbourne, Dec. 17 (AP)—Barring a world upheaval, this city fully intends to play host to the 1956 Olympic games.

There's doubt elsewhere that the Queen City of Victoria of 1,000,000 persons can digest the huge international spectacle. But there is none here.

Problems facing the organizers are tremendous. They haven't yet even decided definitely on a stadium.

The organizers realize that the task of housing the great influx of visitors will overtax the city's limited facilities, but they are confident they'll be ready when the bell rings.

A committee already is studying the problem of providing facilities for the hundreds of writers, broadcasters and photographers who are expected.

It looks as if the heart of the 1956 spectacle will be the Melbourne cricket grounds which has packed in a 96,000 crowd. Tentative plans call for an increase of its capacity to 125,000.

Leaders Out Front by Eight; Habs Tie Bruins for Third; Sawchuk Gets Sixth Shutout

(By The Canadian Press)

Saturday the Wings blanked Chicago Black Hawks 3-0 in Detroit while the Habs defeated Boston Bruins 3-1 in Montreal. Sunday, the Detroiters edged the last-place Rangers 3-1 in New York while Canadiens made it 4-2 over the Bruins in Boston.

In the two other scheduled games, Toronto Maple Leafs clipped Rangers 4-1 in Toronto Saturday and then bowed 4-3 to the Black Hawks Sunday in Chicago.

The Wings' double win moved them eight points out in front of the second-place Leafs. Montreal's two victories boosted them into a third-place tie with Boston.

Sixth Shutout

Terry Sawchuk chalked up his sixth shutout of the season when the Wings blanked Chicago Saturday. Alex Delvecchio, Sid Abel and Marty Pavelich shared the Detroit scoring.

Sunday night, Metro Prystal tallied twice in the Red Wings' 3-1 New York win. Marty Pavelich scored the other goal for the Detroiters who haven't lost a game on the road this season.

Paul Ronty spoiled what appeared to be Sawchuk's second straight shutout for the Rangers' only goal of the game at 17:20 of the final period.

Butch Bouchard, Bernie Geoffrion and Paul Meger scored for Montreal Saturday. Dave Creighton's second-period tally saved the Bruins from being shut out.

Rookie Dick Gamble notched two goals in the Canadiens' Sunday win at Boston. Geoffrion tallied the opener and Meger shot the last one into an empty net when goalie Jim Henry was pulled out for six forwards. Creighton and Dunc Fisher scored the Boston goals.

Toronto blew a 3-0 lead in Chicago Sunday after Cal Gardner, Tod Sloan and Harry Watson had connected for them in the opening period.

Hershey Bears Retain AHL Lead; Win Six Straight

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears remained atop the American Hockey League's eastern division Sunday with their sixth straight victory over the Caps at Indianapolis. The Bears won 4-3 in overtime on Sam Pettio's goal.

In other Sunday games, Providence Reds downed St. Louis Flyers 4-3, while Pittsburgh Hornets pacing the western division, won 2-1 over Bufalo Bisons.

Hershey goal-scorers in regulation time were Obie O'Brien, A. Branigan and Adam Brown. Marksmen for the Caps were Lou Jankoski, Jim Wilson and Bert Geisebracht.

The veteran Paul Bibeault switched from handling ticket sales and tending goal and led Cincinnati Mohawks out of a six-game losing streak and to victory over the visiting Cleveland Barons.

Bibeault, a regular ticket office employee for the Mohawks, took over as goalie from Emile (Cat) Francis who had let 34 goals into the net during the losing streak.

Second-period tallies by Buddy O'Connor and Ian MacIntosh gave the Mohawks a lead they never relinquished.

Saturday games saw Providence and Cleveland play to a 1-1 tie, while St Louis defeated Syracuse 6-2 and Hershey outscored Pittsburgh 5-2.

Marlies Regain Junior A Top Slot; Dutchies Second in Senior Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's front-running Marlboros regained their one-game lead in the classy Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit Sunday as they slammed eighth-place St. Catharines Teepees 7-1 in the second game of a double-header in Toronto.

Saturday night Guelph Biltmores had clipped sixth-place Waterloo Hurricanes 8-4 to move into a temporary tie for top spot in the 10-team loop.

Toronto St. Michael's downed trailing Windsor Spitfires 7-3 in the opener of the Sunday twin bill, holding third spot by two points over fourth-place Galt Black Hawks who drubbed hapless Windsor 7-2 in a wild Saturday night game at Galt. A post-game free-for-all ended with Windsor's Johnny Lumley in jail.

Bill Harrington registered a well-earned shutout in the other Saturday junior clash as his Kitchener Greenshirts held fifth place with a 3-0 win over Oshawa Generals. Ninth place Oshawa has won only four games in 26 scheduled outings.

Dutchies in Second

In the O.H.A. Senior A play, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen moved into second place in the six-team standings when they romped to an easy 8-1 win over Sarnia Sailors while Owen Sound Mercurys climbed back into a fourth-place tie with Sarnia when they downed league-leading Stratford Indians 7-4.

Both games were Saturday night.

In the only other Senior O.H.A. tussle, Hamilton Tigers and Brantford Redmen battled to a 3-3 tie in Hamilton.

Up north, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds strengthened their Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A lead with a 6-5 win over last-place North Bay Black Hawks in a Saturday night tilt. Sudbury Wolves tightened their grip on second slot with a 12-7 decision over Sudbury Miners.

The rough-and-ready Black Hawk-Spitfire clash at Galt saw a free-for-all break out when Windsor's Johnny Lumley charged John Sleaver into the boards as the final whistle went. He battled players, referees and police. The gendarmes had to carry him off to the lock-up before he saw the error of his ways.

In all, there were 28 penalties during the game. Windsor got 18 of them, four going to Lumley, recently acquired from Toronto Marlboros.

John Sleaver scored three of Galt's goals while Tony Poeta, Pete Conacher, Mike Buchanan and Jim McBurney came through with singletons. Lumley and Bill Robertson tallied for the losers.

Palo, Alto, Calif., Dec. 17 (AP)—Even the pigksin is going two-platoon in the Rose Bowl. Oink! oink!!

Assuming it would be host team, Stanford laid in a supply of the brand of ball it's been using all season.

So, to make it easy for ball handlers to pack, pitch or punt, each team will put its own favorite into play each time it's on offence.

Cleveland Browns, Los Angeles Rams Meet for Repeat Title Performance

New York, Dec. 17 (AP) — Cleveland Browns and Los Angeles Rams will give a repeat performance next Sunday of the 1950 National Football League title game.

The Rams clinched the right to meet the champion Browns at Los Angeles by downing Green Bay Packers 42-14 yesterday for the National Conference title as the championship hopes of Detroit's Lions and Chicago Bears were dashed in final game sof the season.

A year ago in Cleveland the Browns and Rams staged a nip-and-tuck battle with the Browns winning 30-28 with a last minute placement by Lou Groza.

Rams Third Year

It will be the third straight year the Rams have been in the championship game. They lost to Philadelphia in 1949.

While Los Angeles was spread eagling the Packers yesterday on five touchdown passes by Bob Waterfield, the Lions fell before San Francisco 49ers 21-17 and the Bears bowed to Chicago Cardinals 24-14.

In other games, Pittsburgh Steelers struck for three touchdowns in the final quarter for a 20-10 triumph over Washington and New York Giants defeated New York Yanks 27-17.

Stan Musial Wins Batting Title For Second Year

St. Louis, Dec. 17 — (AP) Star (The Man) Musial has a new silver bat for his trophy case.

The 30-year-old St. Louis Cardinal outfielder won the National League batting crown for 1951 — the second consecutive year he's been the top hitter in the senior circuit.

No one else has managed to win the crown two years running since Rogers (Rajah) Hornsby made a habit of it with the Cardinals from 1920 through 1925.

Silver bats are awarded annually to the champions.

Only seven National Leaguers have won the crown in two successive years with Don Brouthers of Buffalo first turning the trick in 1882-83.

The 1951 championship is the fifth award won by Musial. The other four were won in 1943 (.357) 1946 (.365), 1948 (.367) and 1950 (.346).

Musial added something else that might prove interesting to National League pitchers — he plans to keep swinging for the base hit rather than the home run.

Musial also was fourth in the runs-batted-in race with 108 and connected for 32 home runs while "swinging for the base hit."

St. Hyacinthe, Que., has been selected as the spot where the 26-mile marathon for the Canadian championship will be run off next May, it was learned last night. Gerard Cote, St. Hyacinthe policeman who won the Boston marathon several times before, said the trial will also decide Canada's entries in the 1952 world olympics.

At New York, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees yesterday were awarded the Jack Singer awards for sportsmanship. Each received a trophy and a $1,000 war bond. The awards are made annually to the player voted as having shown the best sportsmanship during the preceding major league season. The award honors the memory of the late Jack Singer, International Service Sports Writer and war correspondent killed during the Second World War.

Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York Athletic Commission, said yesterday at New York the commission is studying several of the exclusive service contracts by which the International Boxing Club binds ring champions to fight for it. James D. Norris, President of the I.B.C., said he has given the commission copies of such contracts and "we are happy to co-operate."

America's golfing ambassadors lined their pockets with Havana gold in 72-hole invitation tournament which ended here yesterday. Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., grabbed the biggest purse, $1,500, after shooting a final round three-under-par 69 for a winning total of 275. He finished a stroke ahead of Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass., who had a final 68 for second money of $1,100.

Trabert, Connolly Head American Tennis Rankings

New York, Dec. 17 — (AP) — Tony Trabert, 21, and Maureen Connolly, 17, of San Diego, Cal., head the tentative United States tennis rankings for 1951 — among the youngest players in history named for the honors.

The men's and women's lists were submitted during the week-end by the ranking committees. They must be approved by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association at its general meeting next month.

Trabert, former Cincinnati athlete now on leave from the navy, was rated over Philadelphia's Vic Seixas and also over Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., ranked second and third respectively.

The three have been named to the U. S. Davis Cup team which will challenge for the trophy Dec. 26.

Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., also on the team, was rated seventh.

Miss Connolly, mighty "little Moe," won the women's championship must before her 17th birthday, beating Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., in the finals. Miss Hart was ranked second.

'Sasky' Riders Show Profit For '51 Season

Regina, Dec. 17 — (CP) — It cost the Saskatchewan Roughriders nearly $250,000 to field their Western Canada football championship team this season.

At the club's annual meeting Sunday the financial statement showed expenditures of $232,609, revenue of $244,680 and a profit of $12,071. Added to a 1950 surplus of $24,299, the profit gave the club a bank account of $36,370.

Expenditures were practically double those of 1950, the previous high, when $112,709 was spent. Revenue last year was $123,015.

HIT ACROSS FACE

Toronto, Dec. 17—(CP) — A jeweller who made a grab for a gun held by one of two thugs who held up his suburban Scarboro Township store last night suffered a broken jaw for his heroics and lost $40 from the cash register. Joseph H. Bell, 45, was approached by two men, both about 30. One of the men pushed him and pulled out a revolver. "I grabbed for it," said Bell. "He hit me across the face and that's the last I remember until I came to on the floor."

Winter Holds All Canada In Icy Grip

(By The Canadian Press)

Winter holds all Canada in an icy grip and shows no signs of letting go—in the next 24-hours anyway.

Record low temperatures have been reported from every corner of the country, just 11 days after unseasonable balmy breezes shattered record highs, a Canadian Press survey shows.

In Ontario, Sunday temperatures hovered near 10 above all along the lower lakes and near 10 below in northern sections. Biting winds drifted the eight to 10 inches of snow which fell Friday, the first real blizzard of the season.

William Elder, 29, of Edmonton, was frozen to death in 20-below zero weather. He collapsed after walking 14 miles toward the northern Alberta town of Lac La Biche after his car had stalled.

10 Inches at Montreal

Traffic was snarled for hours, firemen were at their busiest and police handled hundreds of accidents.

The mercury dropped to near zero.

Bad flying weather Sunday cancelled an RCAF air defence command training exercise in the city.

On the great lakes, navigation closed as the cold struck. The S.S. Hagarty was the last ship to clear the lakehead and lock through the Sault Ste. Marie canal. She left Port Arthur Saturday in the latest twin city closing of navigation in 10 years.

Maritime regions reported heavy snow, high winds and sub-zero temperatures. Saint John, N.B., reported eight inches and Fredericton 10.

Throughout Eastern Canada some trains ran more than an hour late due to drifting snow clogging switches.

New Terrors on Way

Chicago — Winter today had new terrors on the way, timed to hit the United States behind the great blanket of frigid air that has covered it east of the Rocky Mountains since Friday.

The weather bureau in Chicago today said a storm centre is developing east of the Rockies. Moving in behind it will be a new great cold wave from Canada, already touching northern Montana.

There will be only scattered areas of moderation of the weather that has taken at least 117 lives since Friday.

Lowest readings this morning —23 degrees below zero — were recorded at Bismarck, N.D., and Rumford, Me.

New York's 9.5 degrees above Monday morning was a record for the season.

Military Cross For Lieutenant From Toronto

West Sector, Korea, Dec. 17 — (CP)—Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of Canada's 25th Brigade, announced today the immediate award of the military cross to Lieut. E. Mastronardi of Toronto, 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

On the night of Nov. 2 Lieut. Mastronardi's platoon outpost withstood four attacks by an enemy battalion, withdrew temporarily and recaptured the outpost at daybreak.

The citation accompanying the award said the platoon's success "probably halted an attack that might have engaged the brigade and the commonwealth division."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Among the spectacular plays in bridge is the squeeze. Somehow, its wonders never cease. Even when you expect it to work, there is a thrill when it does.

There are a myriad of different squeeze combinations. But all squeezes come under three general kinds. They are simple squeezes, inverted squeezes, and double squeezes.

Comes this deal:

South is declarer at seven clubs. West leads a diamond. South wins with the ace after dummy plays small. The only chance of losing a trick is in spades.

Instead of trying the doubtful spade finesse, declarer looks for some safer play. With no other sound play in sight, he should decide on a squeeze. And that takes advance planning.

To squeeze he must reduce opponents to the least possible number of cards. Taking three rounds of trumps, he leads a small spade from south. Dummy wins with the spade ace.

The last trump is led from dummy. South then takes three rounds of hearts. On the third heart round, dummy sluffs a spade. South then leads another trump and dummy sluffs another spade.

By this time south has left a trump, a small diamond, the jack of spades. Dummy has K 10 of diamonds, the queen of spades. South leads the last trump and dummy sluffs the spade queen.

East now is squeezed. He has the king of spades and the queen with another diamond. Whichever he lets go of, declarer takes the rest. Lay out the cards and see for yourself.

Accused Given Fine Recommend By His Sergeant

Seoul, Dec. 17 — (CP)—A Canadian soldier charged with murder said today he could not remember anything connected with the offence he is alleged to have committed.

John Murray Steeves of Moncton N. B., and Regina, charged before a court martial with the murder of a South Korean civilian during a shooting spree last Sept. 17, testified that his "blackout" began during the afternoon of Sept. 16 when a work party consumed a quantity of gin.

Steeves said:

"The next thing I remember is drinking coffee or tea in this building next morning but I don't know how I got here."

He said he admired the Koreans and the five working under him "did more work than 20 Canadians would do."

Steeves, a sapper in the Royal Canadian Engineers, was described by Ssm. W. B. Cochrane, Chilliwack, B. C., as "one of the best elements of No. 3 troop in my squadron."

Cochrane said he served with Steeves for four years ending in 1945. They joined as sappers together. When he became an N.C.O., "I thanked God for Sapper Steeves."

The accused was amenable to discipline and was the biggest man in the troop. Others followed his lead.

"During the entire war Steeves was never before his C.O. for punishment," said Cochrane.

Sprs. E. H. Colter, Vancouver, and O. K. Lemay, Prince George, B C., testified to seeing Steeves at 9 p. m. Sept. 16 sleeping in an unoccupied house in Hwang Bang, southwest of Yonghan, where the shooting occurred. The sappers had gone there "to have a party so we couldn't bother anybody."

Capt. J. K. Besley, Toronto, said that after questioning Steeves at 5 a.m. Sept. 17, he concluded that the accused was drunk.

The court then adjourned to permit the prosecutor and defence counsel to prepare their addresses.

ANCIENT FRESCO UNCOVERED

Bath, England, Dec. 17—(Reuters)—Experts have uncovered an ancient fresco of Christ and the 12 apostles from behind a rough coat of plaster on a wall in 700-year-old St. Julian's Church in nearby Wellow. The paintings, at least 450 years old, were covered up three centuries ago by troops of Oliver Cromwell.

28,000,000 SUFFER

Washington, Dec. 17—(AP)—Dr. Leonard J. Scheele, head of the United States Health Service estimated yesterday that 28,000,000 Americans suffer from some mental or physical disability. "Approximately 600,000 have some type of cancer; between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 have some type of heart ailment; 500,000 are suffering from active tuberculosis, and over 900,000 have a complete or partial disability from the crippling effects of arthritis and rheumatism."

BOTH DOING WELL

Dowagiac, Mich., Dec. 17—(AP)—Baby Tidwell got a cold reception when she arrived in this world. Mrs. Ray Tidwell was being taken to hospital yesterday when the car tipped over at a curve and Mrs. Tidwell was thrown into a snowbank. The baby was delivered right there. Evelyn Joan Tidwell — seven pounds two ounces—is doing well. So is her mother.

AT THE McCARTHY

An introduction by David Niven.

The people of "The Way Ahead" are nearly all most unmilitary. Jim Perry and his wife Ted Brewer, Mrs. Gillingham, Marjorie, Lloyd, Luke Parsons, Beck, Davenport, Stainer and the rest are not heroes or heroines concerned to die for a cause. They are men and women with good tempers and bad, with complaints on their lips and the deep desire to live in their hearts; not the perfect shadows but the imperfect realities.

For some of them the story begins before the war; but for most it begins with the arrival of the postman one day in 1940

A territorial infantry battalion has suffered casualties at Dunkirk. The gaps in its ranks are filleld by the "call-up." The new recruits are given a brand new officer (Perry) and a regular sergeant (Fletcher). The platoon is born.

Things are not easy at first.

Perry, the officer, the man who was on the point of starting his own business when the war broke out, has already seen fighting in Belgium. He knows how good his platoon has to be and how much depends on the way he leads it.

Sergeant Fletcher, the regular, believes that there are only two sorts of men in an army—soldiers and dressed-up civilians.

To these two men is given the task of making soldiers out of a travel agent's clerk, a boilerman, a road-house play boy, a Welsh rent collector, a Scottish labourer, a shop assistant, a business man with nervous indigestion, a man who wanted to go in the navy, and other reluctant characters. It looks pretty hopeless for Perry, and you'll feel rather sorry for him.

"The Way Ahead" pretends neither to a "message" nor to "uplift." There is more laughter than tears in it, more excitement and suspense than argument. Its

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, December 18

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—A day for remembering how lucky we are, for realizing the protection, security we possess, to thank God for blessings. We so often forget in our selfish ways.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Stars offer many fine openings for the energetic, wide-awake ones. Start early, don't delay or think "anytime" will do. Now is the time! Business, personal matters favored in turn.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Like Taurus you have an open field, choose hardest tasks first. Taper off energy-stimulus with less important ones. Smile and give a helping hand to the less fortunate on your way.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Good plan would be to freshen your mind with what is expected of you and lay plans to eliminate waste motion. Don't rush in "cold". Spur your will, be ready for unexpected items.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Another excellent day, especially for you smart thinkers. You should garner many credits in p.m. Suggest extra devotion to loved ones, favorite charity, true social obligations.

August 23 to September 23—Virgo—Keep close to facts, know what you are about; it will make much difference in results this fine day. Business, professional, personal undertakings should succeed.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) A fortunate groove. Take advantage of honest benefits and lay away resources for less attractive days. Scurry around for the best leads, most useful implements for accomplishing.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—May be able to chalk up unexpected results if you are keen to note right route and openings. This is within your sphere, so look around, and don't hurry beginning too much.

November 23 to December 22—Sagittarius—Not too stimulating, nevertheless there are possibilities. Expect some diverting pressure but avoid being swayed unwisely. You have certain advantages, put them to use.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Some obstacles ahead exigencies that may annoy if you let them. Use your serene mind and foresight to pull you through and maybe to new honors. Others have why not you?

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—A sincere, non-biased outlook urged in all matters. Some intrigue from unexpected places. Don't just take what comes without forethought or precautions. Fight for the right!

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—With sensible tenacity and honest endeavor you can mark up gains. Be your courageous self, willing to take a knock, or a correction when wrong and you will be honored.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are a Sagittarius native, Jupiter ruling. Your varied abilities are strengthened by the "Disciplinarian," Saturn. Tendency to considerable seriousness in work and other matters. You have a philosophical mind, sober temperament, be thankful. Brush up your humor daily. A taste for research, science. Are a steadfast friend, home-lover, good father, mther. Avoid being too sensitive, worrying or allow jealousy to rule better sense. Make able financier, manager, doctor, writer, journalist.

Hospital Schoolroom Assists Young Patients During Illness

Toronto, (CP)—A spell of sickness doesn't mean an escape from school work for the young patients in Toronto General Hospital. Temporarily immobilized by illness, the pupils have their three R's come to them.

The Toronto General Hospital School was begun in October 1950, the result of concern on the part of doctors and social workers for school-aged patients missing their studies through long periods of hospitalization.

There were 27 pupils enrolled in the school last year for periods ranging from five days to seven months. At present there are 15 pupils taking classes.

Agnes Rose, 15, of Peterborough, Ont., is studying Grade 9 subjects, the same course of study she would be getting at the Peterborough Collegiate. Her back encased in a long plaster cast, she carries on with her studies and homework just as if she were attending classes at home.

"Intellectual therapy" is what the doctors call it. The worry of missing school work could slow many a youngster's recovery. The hospital courses put an end to that.

Don Ball, an 18-year-old Toronto Technical school student is keeping right up with his electronics course while in hospital. His school sends him regular study assignments and he is keeping right up with his Grade 13 class mates, even though he has been in hospital eight weeks. He studies about four hours each day.

Although there is plenty of room for "pupils" at the hospital school the teachers haven't even a cubby hole to call their own. They are hoping the present $14,000,000 building campaign will net them some space.

Merchants Expect Christmas Trade to Hit New Record

Toronto. (CP)—Playing Santa Claus is going to cost more this year—at least in Toronto.

Retailers here say that most of the items in his bag—from wrapping ribbons to the Christmas tree itself—will be higher. Pop's pay cheque should find a 10-to-15 per cent bigger hole in it this year than last.

Shelves are sagging right now with goods that have been lying around for the last five months, neglected by "bought out" consumers. But the merchants aren't worried.

They believe the festive season, in fact, is going to bring an end to the long sales slump. Sales this year, they say, will be the biggest ever.

For the kids, mechanical toys are in abundance. Most come from the United States zone of Germany. But, along with other toys, they'll cost about 10 per cent more.

Among new types of dolls is one that opens its mouth and sucks its finger ,another whose skin can be bathed and powdered and an electrical doll that says its prayers, recites poems and sings songs.

Simulated leather handbags are being pushed by retailers for the ladies. Rhinestone jewelry also is expected to be in big demand and one Toronto dealer carries a cheaper brand this year.

Imported from Austria, the bracelets, necklaces and earrings sell from $1 to $12. But, says the dealer, their quality is just as good as that of the more expensive ones.

For the man who pays for the whole show, gifts are also more expensive.

Sporting equipment, although plentiful, is up in price. Clothes are higher but abundant. Accessories are about the same price and neck ties are about unchanged.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went back in the kitchin for another drink of water, and ma was pealing potatoes with a sad expression, saying, Oh dear, I wish your father would be sattisfied with a cold meal in weather like this. He just simply seems to feel he's starving to death unless everything is smoking hot, no matter what state the thermometer is in, she said.

I'm diffrent, ma, I said. just 3 diffrent kinds of ice creem would be okay for me, I said, and ma said, I dont doubt it.

Anyways, ma, if you were a queen in the old days you'd just send for the court jester to amuse you while you were doing your royal werk, I said, and ma said, if I was a queen in the old days, I'd make a long story short by sending for a slave to peal these potatoes for me.

I'll be your court jester, ma, I said, I'll make up riddles and tell you the ansers. Why is a cat like a camel? Because it's got 2 humps, I said, and ma said, no cat I ever saw.

Sure, ma, a cat humps its back every time it gets mad, and this cat got mad twice, I said. What would a box of cigars do if they wanted to get up a parade? They'd martch in back of their bands, I said, and ma said, Why are you like a pesky mosquito? Because an egg is round on both sides, she said.

Aw G, ma, that dont prove it, you have to really prove it, I said, and ma said, How would you like to prove you can get out of my kitchin out of my site out of the house in 10 seconds?

The result being I was out in the street again pritty near the next breth, to prove I could even do it in 5 seconds.

GAS WAR OVER

London, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP)—London's gas price war appears to be over. Motorists, who have been buying branded gasoline for the past three months for as low as 32 cents a gallon now will be paying a flat 40 1-2 and and 42 1-2 cents a gallon. However, some stations selling unbranded gasoline are selling at 36 cents a gallon.

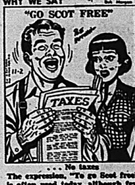
WHY WE SAY

"GO SCOT FREE"



. . . No taxes

The expression, "To go Scot free" is often used today, although few people are able to define its origin. In the early English language, Scot was the word for tax. Thus, one who went Scot free got off without paying taxes.

U.N. Command Says Roads Being Used Illegally

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 17 (AP)—The United Nations' Command today warned the communists that improperly identified vehicles on the Pyongyang-Kaesong road will be attacked by U. N. planes starting tomorrow.

The highway from the North Korean capital—Pyongyang — to Kaesong, the reds' advance truce talks base, has been restricted by agreement to communist vehicles carrying cerise-colored panels.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols U. N. spokesman, told communist liason officers that 18 to 20 unidentified vehicles a week have been spotted moving down the main red supply route.

Up to now the road has been guaranteed freedom from air attack for two convoys daily.

GIVEN HOUR OF GRACE

Toronto, Dec. 17 (CP)—Dance halls here will be able to remain open until 3 a.m. this Christmas and New Year's Eve, the police commission decided yesterday. In other years they have closed at 2 a.m. but the commisison ruled out midnight movies for Christmas Eve, on grounds that "so many religious services are held Christmas Eve." The shows can go on the following night.

By RUSSELL LANE

Chicago, Dec. 17. (AP)—The Republicans and the Democrats will nominate their candidates for president of the United States next year in the Chicago stock yards.

The convention hall—the International Amphitheatre — is owned and operated by the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company, and forms part of the eastern border of the stock yards area. The pens and packing plants are one-quarter to one-half mile to the west whence come the prevailing winds.

Plenty of hogs, sheep and cattle, not to mention horses, have occupied the arena floor where delegates will sit.

It has been the site of bronc riding and steer roping in rodeos of boxing and wrestling matches, auto and horse shows and animal auctions.

For the conventions, the tank-bark footing for the animal blue-bloods of the annual International Livestock Exposition will give way to a well-washed cement floor.

William Wood Prince, 37-year-old president of the stock yard firm which operates the building, says there will be arena seats for approximately 14,000 delegates and spectators when the Republican convention opens July 7, and when the Democrats show up July 21.

Between now and convention time, the nation's telecasters expect to erect an extensive block of studios in the big side halls. The more than 50,000,000 potential TV audience will get a better idea of what's happening than the average delegate.

German Industrialists, Labor Square Off for Real Row Over Nationalization of Ruhr

By BRACK CURRY

Bonn, Dec. 17. (AP)—Germany's industrial barons and the powerful labor unions are squaring off for a finish fight over the "cold socialization" of the rich Ruhr Valley.

Labor is demanding for workers an equal share in the management of all key industries.

Industrial leaders call this "socialism in disguise" and are marshaling their forces to stop it.

Workers in the big coal, steel and iron companies in the Ruhr already have won an equal voice with management in running the plants.

Co-determination puts on the board of directors of a company five labor and five management representatives. The 11th man is selected by these 10.

It's a revolutionary principle which German labor hopes workers in other countries will try to emulate. Labor leaders in the Ruhr claim unions in many other west European countries are keenly interested in this experiment.

Now the West German Trade Union Federation, which claims 6,000,000 members, is preparing drives to extend co-determination throughout the economy.

The federation's aggressive new chieftain, Christian Fette, has marked the chemical industry as its first target. This will be followed by rail and river transportation.

Political observers see little chance that German industry can head off extension of this doctrine after labor's thumping victory in the coal and steel industries.

When the measure came before parliament last April, the country's biggest and bitterest political rivals—the Christian Democrats and the Socialists—united temporarily to support it.

Labor leaders make plain that they consider co-determination more important than higher wages or shorter hours. They say heavy industry helped clamp the Nazi dictatorship on Germany. Now labor, they say, must make sure that the Ruhr barons either keep out of politics or co-operate with the new democratic government in Bonn.

Churchill, Eden Meet Pleven At Embassy

Paris, Dec. 17 (CP) —Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Britain, here for high-level talks with the French government, got down to business quickly today.

They arrived by train this morning and went directly to the British embassy, where Eden held preliminary talks with Selwyn Lloyd and other British United Nations' delegates.

The two statesmen were due to begin discussion this afternoon with French Premier Rene Pleven and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman. Korea and the European army are both on the agenda.

Official aim of their visit is to get French views in connection with Churchill's Washington talks with President Truman next month. He sails for New York Dec. 29.

In addition to the talks, first strictly Anglo-French conversations since the British Conservative government came to power Oct. 26, Churchill and Eden will lunch with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Atlantic supreme commander, Tuesday. They fly back to London tomorrow night.

French official sources said Churchill's visit was especially significant because a year ago when the British Labor prime minister, Clement Attlee, went to Washington, the French premier had to go to London on his own initiative to get a fill-in on British plans.

Fire Destroys Three Buildings At Thessalon

Thessalon, Dec. 17—(CP)—A $60,000 fire today destroyed three buildings in the business block of this northern Ontario town and for a time threatened to wipe out the entire block.

The fire which started at 6 a. m. in the kitchen of a restaurant, was still burning four hours later. A fire truck from Sault Ste. Marie, 55 miles to the west, arrived at 8.30 to assist the 14 volunteer firemen in this town of 1,550.

Destroyed were the restaurant, an unoccupied building, and a pet shop in which four great danes died in their pens. Mrs. Omere Daoust, owner of the pet shop, carried a budgie and led five other dogs to safety.

Firemen, ice-armored from water that froze in the sub-zero air almost as soon as it left the hoses, struggled to confine the flames, whipped by a strong wind.

They feared that flying sparks might spread the blaze to buildings across the streets rebuilt following a fire last November which wiped out most of that side of the block.

W. G. McLean Chosen to Head Picton Legion

Picton—A year of progress was reported at the annual meeting of branch 78, Canadian Legion. Though commencing the year with a deficit, report of treasurer J. Leonard revealed a surplus at the present time with all bills paid.

Election of officers was presided over by L. G. Madden, president of the Belleville branch, with Major Reid as chairman.

An acclamation as president was given W. G. McLean. Wally Evans and Len J. Foley were elected first and second vice presidents in balloting. A. Stonebridge received an acclamation as treasurer as did James Jenkins, recording secretary, and Ronald Stone, corresponding secretary, and Bill Winter, Sergeant-at-Arms. There were 17 nominated for directors, those elected being Howard Seeley, Lionel Hicks, Douglas Caley, Pete Chipeswick, Richard Hart, Lorne Young.

The new officers were installed with impressive ceremony by Comrade Madden assisted by Lieut. Angus Duffy of Belleville, acting Sgt. Major Frank Starr, retiring as a vice president, escorted the new officers to the front, while retiring president H. M. Reid escorted the new president W. G. McLean.

In accepting the office, which he considered a high honor, Comrade McLean paid tribute to the retiring executive. He recalled the early days of the Legion when the spark was kept alive by men such as Frank Starr. He also paid tribute to the women's auxiliary and besought the co-operation of all members.

"We veterans must stand united in order to secure those rights which were brought by service and sacrifice. Only the Legion can do the job it has to do, and every veteran should be a member. The Legion must also be kept alive and active for the benefit of veterans of the future," he said. In conclusion he expressed the hope that the branch would be active, that it would fight for pensions for veterans that funds would be raised to carry out the aims and objects of the Canadian Legion.

Reports were given by vice-president Lance Nethery who noted much progress during the year; Frank Starr who reported $661 profit from sale of poppies and wreaths, and who detailed work of the poppy fund, which is for good of all veterans not just Legion members.

Director Major Chipeswick referred to improvements to the grounds and the interior of the hall. Wally Evans reported on the canteen and on the variety minstrel show. Herb Hyatt reported $585 profit on stock car races, and L. J. Foley for membership committee.

E. J. Bateson reported handing 165 renovated and repainted toys over to the Children's Aid Society for distribution, with more being finished. Included were 33 dolls. He instanced cases where toys last year had brought happiness to many children. Names of children in veterans' families who need toys should be reported to him of F. Starr, he requested.

President Reid expressed thanks to those giving the reports and their committees, the executive and members for their co-operation. He felt the over-all picture to be a good one.

Belleville president L. G. Madden congratulated the Picton branch on its splendid facilities and urged support of the Legion. He was impressed by the work done, as revealed in the reports.

Major Chipeswick paid tribute to Major Reid for his leadership during the past year. Ronald Stone read minutes of executive meetings and Sid Smith read the secretary's report.

Crippled Tots To Get $2,000 By Picton Effort

Picton — Picton and Prince Edward County "went on the air" Saturday night as Picton Rotary Club sponsored radio talent auction night in aid of its crippled children's fund. The members were amazed when more than $2,000 was pledged by the radio audience of CBJQ as they telephoned in to make requests for various artists to perform. Though the program was unrehearsed, the quality was very high and requests came from over an area of nearly 100 miles.

There was something of everything, vocal solos, duets, quartets doing either Christmas, sacred or secular selections; old time music, square dance calling all kinds of instrumental music and two orchestras.

There was plenty of comedy as rank amateurs were called upon to sing a favorite song. The services of Mayor H. J. McFarland ran high with $80 for a song, "Home on the Range," done with Bill Purtell who was also in great demand. A bidder carried of the mayor's socks for $5, but returned them "for obvious reasons." The mayor's tie went for $10 while a kindly bidder offered $5 to let the mayor retain his pants.

Rotary president Herb Colliver got $75 for singing "Margie". Well known citizens were asked to perform but nearly 100 of them did not get an opportunity, so great was the demand. Eight telephones rang steadily for hours with pledges and requests. A capacity crowd filled the Oddfellows' Hall. Jack Devine was master-of-ceremonies and was highly praised for his work.

Unknown Gunmen Again Try to Kill Workers' Official

Hazard, Ky., Dec. 17 (AP) — Unknown gunmen have tried again to kill Tom Raney, United Mine Workers official directing an organizing campaign in Leslie and Clay counties.

Raney, U.M.W. International representative, said he and two other organizers were fired upon from ambush Thursday night near Wooton, in Leslie County.

Five bullets struck their car but Raney and the others escaped injury. Raney said the shooting started when he stopped the car and got out to look for another auto that had been trailing them.

Machine-gun slugs fired from a passing car last October 6 ripped into Raney's vehicle shortly after he and another man stepped out to enter a grocery at Stinnett in Leslie County. The gunmen never were found.

After the October 6 attempt on Raney's life, U.M.W. leader John L. Lewis asked Gov. Lawrence Wetherby to stop what he called a "reign of terror" directed at the union in the two counties.

PICKED GOOD REFUGE

Weehawken, NJ., Dec. 17 — (AP)—A banded pigeon, apparently lost in the snowstorm, picked a good refuge yesterday. He made an emergency landing and stopover on a window sill at the home of Mrs. Bertha Miller, a member of the New Jersey Humane Society.

FRANKFORD

Frankford.—Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rose, of Scott Street, entertained a number of friends at a euchre party last Wednesday. Among the guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caskey, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Caskey, Mr. and Mrs. C. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. H. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. A. Osterhout, Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicolson, of Frankford; also Mr. and Mrs. C. Tucker of Stirling. Ladies' winner, Mrs. H. Frost, and men's, Mr. George Nicolson. Lone hands, Mr. W. Johnson and Mrs. G. Nicolson.

Canadian Legion

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion has received a copy of the "Hansard", containing a summary of the debate on pensions and veterans' allowances. This came through the courtesy of Mr. Follwell, M.P. Mr. Follwell has forwarded a report on his interview with the widow of a Frankford veteran, in an endeavor to settle a pension dispute.

The Legion wishes to express sincere appreciation to Mrs. Cecil Tripp, who provided lodging for a needy veteran, who was passing through the village. Mrs. Tripp is to be suitably reimbursed for her kind act.

Roll Call

Each night, on the Frankford high school bus, roll call must be taken before leaving Belleville, to ensure that all are on board. This little task has fallen on the capable shoulders, of Misses Marilyn Wannamaker and Helen Rose. The bus driver, a kindly soul, thought that they should be rewarded for their untiring devotion to duty, so last pay day, the girls were the recipients of two large, black cigars!

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rose were guests Saturday night of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Martin, in Corbyville.

It seems to be the common opinion around Frankford that stores next week will be open Thursday, Friday, and Saturday night, as well as Christmas Eve. Last year many of the stores remained open on Wednesday afternoon and evening, but found it quiet.

Car Accidents

Mr. Jaroslav Krcek was involved in an accident in Peterborough, Thursday, coming into collision with a train. Mr. Krcek approached the crossing on George Street, in Peterborough, over which the train was passing at a level crossing. He applied brakes, but the streets, were too icy to permit him to stop. The car was heavily damaged, although most fortunately, Mr. Krcek was uninjured.

Cars driven by Mr. Sam Caskey, of Frankford, and Mrs. Nellie Ketcheson, of Wallbridge, collided in a minor accident near Belleville, Thursday evening. Icy roads seemed to be responsible for the accident.

North Trent Street has had a permanent surface applied from the home of Mr. Elgie Moynes to the gate of the Bata Shoe plant. The portion of road in front of Mrs. Olive Williams' home on Trent Street, has also been surfaced. This stretch of pavement has always been a headache to drivers, as it appears to be springy underneath. The C.N.R. crossing on Mill Street, has also been repaired, and should be much smoother going from now on.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Three months of slow-burning, winter sun and acrid lodge-smoke had apparently brought me to the point where a fellow white man could not discern my true color.

"Yellow Bird!"

"Aye, Cetan Mani?"

"Is my tongue straight?" This in English, of which Yellow Bird understood considerable and spoke a little.

"Aye," nodding soberly.

"If I tell this dog I shall spare his life, will it be so?"

"Aye."

"If I tell you to put his head in the shirt with that of the bald one, will you do it?"

"Aye!" Lips lifted swiftly over gleaming teeth.

"Now then my friend," I snapped, "you heard, didn't you? You can talk or have your hair lifted off at the neck. I don't much care which, but it's going to be one way or the other. Quick!" Yellow Bird eased forward, slipping a foot-long skinning knife out of its sheath as he came. "Where's Slatemeyer?"

"Who was with him?"

"Passell of Crow Injuns. 'Bout 30."

At this, my braves came alert their jet eyes glinting in the firelight. "Crow!" snarled Yellow Bird contemptuously. The Crow were the most precious of the Sioux blood enemies.

What was the whiskey runner figuring that needed 30 Indians of a tribe that, not even accepting the Sioux, was as tough as any that roamed the prairies?"

I burst out; "Yelow Bird, the knife." He almost had our guest decapitated before the words were well out of my mouth. I was barely in time to knock his arm up.

"Now talk fast," I snarled, raising the runner clear of the ground, my fists knotted in his greasy buckskin shirt. "Who else was with him?"

The chill of the words ran into me like the bite of a saber-blade. "What was he called?"

My eyes must have been blazing like an animal's for the fellow recolled, gasping, "I think I heard Slate call him 'Mouse.'"

Tonkalla, the Mouse. So this was our traitor, Tonkalla, the snivelling, unpopular, Sans Arc chief.

"Tonkalla was present in the council of the Fox lodge at the camp of Tashunka Witko?" I shot at Yellow Bird, thinking I remembered him there.

"He was," the Sioux answered, calmly "and he will remember it as his last."

Facing the prisoner again, I put the pivot question. "And just what is Slatemeyer up to?"

"This here Mouse he come down the river last week and told Slate a white man is with the Sioux drummin' them up about whiskey runnin' in gen'ril, and him, that's Slate in particular. He told Slate this here feller was aimin' to come down here with his gang and smash up the whiskey boats. Slate gits out the jug and laces this redskin up with whiskey, proper. After he's got him his snootful, the Injun upins his chin and really lets it wobble.

"'Bout halfway through his spiel Slate suddenly recollects who this white feller is. 'I know him!' he yells, jumpin' up.

"Well, the Injun goes on. Slate keeps lacin' him with the jug. But now Slate don't seem to care 'bout anythin' but this white feller. Don't say nothin' 'bout the whiskey.

"Finally he gits it outa this chief that there's a gal in the deal. Some sort of a squaw medicine woman er somethin.'"

"Star of the North," I interjected, tonelessly.

"Yup. Thet's the one. Well, anyway, Slate acts like he already knows all 'bout this here female but when he hears the white man has been sparkin' her he jumps up again. He grabs this here puny little Sioux and yells somethin' thet sounds like 'Hopo!' and him and the Injun departs instanter."

"Where did they go? Which direction?" My words sang like a strung bow.

"They went east. Then they come back a day later with this here bunch of Crow. This time they hit out north, the whole kaboodle of 'em. Thet was 'bout five, six days ago. Slate said he'd be back in a week and when we asked him what if this here guy comes after the whiskey while he's gone, he says, 'Jest don't worry none 'bout thet, I'll be back in plenty of time fer him.' 'Peers like this little Sioux done told him the fellow wasn't aimin' to come down until the grass was up short."

"Anything else?"

"Well, no, 'ceptin' I never seen Slate so kicked up 'bout anythin'. He ain't persactly what you'd call a happy-jack, ordinarily, but when him and his Injun pals set out to leave, he's grinnin' like a crockydile. He yells back to us, 'Take care of the liquor, boys. I'm bringin' me back a squaw and we'll need ev'ry drop for the weddin' party.'"

Nodding, my lieutenant said quietly, "let us put snow on the fire, Cetan Mani."

All that night we drove through a high plains blizzard. By dawn the ponies and their riders were caked inches deep with frozen snow. Gulping pemmican as we rode, we pushed on, crossing the Missouri above Fort Sully, following the Teton River across the Bad Lands, reaching its headwaters two nights later. Striking the Cheyenne the next day we got clearing weather, sundown raising the jutting headlands of the Gate of the Buffalo far ahead.

Here we parted company, Yellow Bird and the eight braves riding west for the lodges of Crazy Horse.

Two days later I arrived under the broad hulk of the Gate of the Buffalo.

Scattered within eight feet of me were the bodies of several Indians, all stripped and scalped. The body at my feet had run a bull elk with me the month previous. It hed had a name then; Heyoka, The Clown. These were Sioux.

Nor was that all. Heyoka had been a Fox Lodge brave, one ot the police detail for Mesa Valley.

So Slatemeyer had Star. I knew this as surely as I breathed. It was impossible at the time to imagine how he had made the capture. Later, when I knew, it appeared entirely simple. Yet pure simplicity is frequently the hallmark of genius and in his violent way Slatemeyer was undoubtedly a genius.

Arriving three days ahead of me he had placed his Crow ambush, sent Mouse into the valley with a message. As a Fox Lodge member the entrance and authority of the Sans Arc chief were unchallenged. The message he bore was clear.

A mighty chief lay very ill, almost within the portals of Wanagi Yata the Gathering Place of the Couls. . . Would the Wiyan Wakan come at once? It was the great Crazy Horse himself!

At the mouth of the Canyon waited 30 of the finest warriors to escort the Wiyan.

Star had gone, taking with her only such braves as were present. The ambush and massacre within the canyon mouth had flolowed. The whole thing took scarcely a day's time.

If Star's guard had repulsed the attack and withdrawn to the valley, which was not impossible she was of course safe. If Slatemeyer had her I must find the trail. That took light.

I crouched there among the dead, miserable with cold and hunger, keyed up to the point of craziness by the forced wait. Then, an hour before dawn it rained as though heaven had been knifed to breastbone. When daylight came sick and pale through greasy gray clouds, a Pawnee couldn't have trailed a picketed pony 10 feet.

For the first few minutes I ran around the throat of the canyon whimpering like some fool hound which has lost his line on the fox and thinks to find it by sheer obstinacy. Then I began to think.

Slatemeyer's course was not hopelessly unpredictable. To his north lay the yawning canyons and impassable crevasses of the Black Hills. To his west the land of the Oglala and the lodges of Crazy Horse. He could go either south or east with his prize—if indeed he had it. Perforce, I had to assume he did.

I had just come over the most logical route east, having seen no fires or camp sign, no pony dust. It was possible I had missed him also that he had skirted the hills, turning north. But the best bet was he had gone due south to strike the headwaters of the White, this stream running east to empty into the Missouri at Fort Kiowa only 10 miles above his camp. In reducing his course to this choice, I took into consideration his precious whiskey. Slatemeyer wouldn't want to be absent from his stock-in-trade any longer than necessary.

An hour's journey on Hussein brought me to the end of the territory pelted by last night's storm. On a hunch I ran out a quartering movement, striking a broad trail within 15 minutes. I I counted no more than 25 ponies and knew I had Slatemeyer in front of me.

Another 15 minutes and a still broader trail of at least 50 ponies struck in from the west. Crazy Horse, too, was ahead of me.

A new thought arose to frost the warmth of this discovery. Trusting the generalship of the great Oglala I could not help but remember he had the sanguine Yellow Bird along, together with 50 other Fox Lodgers, all doubtless loyal to Star but posssibly even more intrigued with the prospect of arranging for brother lodge member, Mouse, to lose his dues-paying status instanter.

I could guess the temper of the trailing Sioux, imagine quite easily the made state of "Hookakeys!" which would announce their sighting of Slatemeyer's band—and the ensuing rush which would just as surely mean death for Star as for the whiskey runner and his crew.

The first thing an Indian will do when hard pushed is abandon all equipment save horse and gun. The second, kill any captives he has along. Even if Slatemeyer willed otherwise, the first cornering of his crew by Crazy Horse would wing a Crow lance into the body of the Indian girl.

I Hussein's heart and lungs on the auction block of necessity. Had my own life been at stake I might have held some reserve in him.

List of 11,550 U.N. Prisoners Turned Over by Chinese

Most Hopeful Break Since Cease-Fire Line Created

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 18 (AP)—The communists today turned over to the United Nations a list of 11,559 prisoners, including 3,198 Americans and one Canadian.

They said the list includes all prisoners of the Korean War in their hands. The U. N. gave the reds a list of 132,474 Chinese and North Korean prisoners.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters in Tokyo said it understands the list includes Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean, lost commander of the United States 24th Division. Dean has been missing since the fall of Taejon in July, 1950.

Communist newspaper men at Panmunjom said Associated Press photographer Frank Noel was also listed.

Study Lists

Lists were exchanged Tuesday when communist truce negotiators suddenly capitulated to U. N. demands. The prisoner sub-committee recessed until Thursday to study the lists.

Brig. - Gen. William P. Nuckols, U. N. spokesman, said the respective arms of the services in the U. S. would notify the next of kin immediately the list was verified.

Of the 11,559 names, a U. N. command communique reported: 7,142 are South Korean, 3,198 American, 919 British, 234 Turkish, 40 Filipino, 10 French, six Australian, four South African, three Japanese and one each from Canada, Greece and The Netherlands.

The communist lists fell far short of previous public Allied estimates of 100,000 or more.

The 3,198 Americans listed as prisoners compare with approximately 12,000 Americans officially listed as missing in action. Two Canadians are listed missing.

No Great Disparity

But a reliable source in Tokyo said there probably was "no great disparity" between the official U.S. army estimates and the number announced by the reds. He said that probably many of those listed as missing actually died in battle.

Sudden communist capitulation in turning over the names of prisoners is the most hopeful break in talks since a provisional cease-fire line, was created last month. The buffer line will become effective if other truce terms are agreed to by Dec. 27. Otherwise it will be changed to conform to changes in the battle line.

The reported listing of the 52-year-old Dean among the prisoners climaxes a long series of reports that the highest-ranking American listed as missing in action in Korea, was wounded. killed or taken prisoner.

TTC Operators Take Strike Vote On Wage Demands

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP) — A union leader announced today that a strike vote of Toronto's 4,700 street-car and bus operators will be taken tomorrow.

James Robertson, secretary of the street railwaymen's union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.), engaged in a wage dispute with the Toronto Transportation Commission, said voting will be between 5 a.m. and 6 p.m.

If the vote is for a strike, a walkout legally can be called at 4 p.m. Thursday. Union officials have not yet set a strike deadline.

The vote will be held despite intervention of the Ontario government in the dispute to avert a strike which would paralyze public transportation at the height of the Christmas shopping season.

Affected would be more than 1,000,000 residents of the metropolitan area of Canada's second largest city.

Labor Minister Charles Daley called a meeting in his office at 10 a. m. tomorrow of representatives of the Toronto Transportation Commission and the Street Railwaymen's Union (A. F. L.-T. L. C.).

Before the minister acted the union began preparations for a strike vote among the 4,700 T. T. C. employees. The vote would be by secret ballot.

Mr. Daley's intervention was in the form of a telegram to T. T. C. general manager H. C. Patten. It said he took a "very serious view of the situation because of the fact that this is an essential public utility and all parties must realize their responsibility to the public."

The union and commission were separated by 10 cents an hour on an operator's rate when talks broke up yesterday. The union is demanding $1.55; the T. T. C. has offered $1.45 plus a cost-of-living protection.

Operators now receive a base rate of $1.24, plus a 16-cent cost-of-living bonus. Conductors receive five cents less.

If a strike materialized it would be the sixth time for Toronto. The longest strike, in 1919, lasted 12 days. Other walkouts were in 1917, 1920, 1902 and a brief pulling of switches in 1945.

Elections Begin Amid Tension

Tehran, Dec. 18 — (AP)—National elections began today in Iran amid high political tensions that have touched off repeated bloody riots and death threats in recent weeks.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and his aNtoina and his Nationalist followers were confident of winning on Mossadegh's reputation as a national hero who defied foreign "enemies" and took over the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Voting is for the 136 seats in the Majlis (lower house of parliament). They select a premier. Mossadegh himself is not an election candidate. Under the constitution, he could not be premier or hold other office if he were a member of the Majlis.

Balloting is spotted over the country at different times and it takes several days to complete the voting and the count. Balloting began today in northern provinces on the Soviet border and in Tehran.

JANE'S REPORTS SOVIET BUILDING 1000 SPEEDY SUBS

Claims 120 New Craft Under Construction

London, Dec. 18. (AP) — A British naval yearbook reports that Russia—believed to have no fewer than 370 submarines in service—has drafted plans to build 1,000 speedy new subs.

Jane's fighting ship said in a new edition issued yesterday that 120 of the new craft are already under construction.

The sub fleet will include one mine-laying type with a submerged speed of 25 knots, Jane's said.

The new subs were reported being equipped with the German-developed Schnorkel breather tube, which will permit them to cperate for indefinite periods without surfacing.

Jane's said data from reliable sources indicates the Soviet ship building program also includes three battleships, 20 cruisers and 120 destroyers.

Again the yearbook "presented with reserve" what it termed persistent reports that the Soviet navy in recent years has been building from "one to four battleships of a new powerful types."

It said the new battleships were reported to be 42,000 to 45,000 tons, 785 feet long, and carrying two batteries of guided missiles in addition to six to nine 16-inch guns and two dozen 5.5-inch guns of a new model.

Have Catapult Towers

Jane's said the ships are "said to be equipped with one of two catapult towers for firing radio-controlled aerial torpedoes, also rocket-firing apparatus and radio-controlled guns."

The year book said the Russians are believed to have rebuilt the former German aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin for use as a guided missile test ship.

It said they also have resurrected a 1,350-ton British frigate, the Lark, which the Royal Navy abandoned as beyond repair after she was torpedoed on the Arctic convoy run Feb. 17, 1944.

Britain which now has only 53 submarines, has been forced by the Russian underwater menace to concentrate on the development of submarine killer ships, Jane's said.

Reeve Defeated

Peterborough, Dec. 18 (CP)—William C. Grant, reeve of Lakefield for six years and C.C.F. candidate for Peterborough in the recent provincial election, was defeated when he sought re-election on Monday. Elwood Northey, former member of the council, defeated Mr. Grant by 101 votes. The vote was Northey 342, Grant 241.

A second nomination meeting has been called to name two councillors after only two qualified at the first meeting.

New Model Jeep Still Remains Get-up-and-go Vehicle of Last War

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Germany, Dec. 18—(CP)—A jeep is a jeep, as Gertrude Stein might have said, particularly after a jeep ride, and the new jeeps are just as guilty as the old ones. But they are at least jeeps with humane and heartening differences.

The new version is coming into use with the 27th Brigade and is stimulating considerable comment as well as profanely-fond recollections, particularly among that elderly element which survived the sweetness and blight of this form of transportation in the last war.

The new jeep may be said to have more distinction, more power, more gadgets, more versatility and—undoubtedly out of a guilty conscience—more comforts than its predecessor.

It remains, however, essentially the same unabashed and indelicate vehicle, the same old get-up-and-go, hell-for-leather creature which defied hills, fields, crags and human denunciations to make a profound contribution to both the winning and suffering of the Second World War.

Its improvements are both numerous and varied. Its motor purrs with enormous self-satisfaction, reminding one of a dead-end kid engaged in the arts of wilful deception. It handles better. It isn't so cramped inside. Its technical improvements are extensive.

But, at least from the standpoint of its relationship to mankind, one wonders at the advisability of broadening the jeep's powers of atrocity to take in such features as complete immersion of its engine in water without harm and the ability to scale a 75-degree slope.

To balance these, however, are at least two advancements of the most excellent merit, as anyone will see who has bounced and cussed and half-perished, raw with wind and dust and backside callouses, across the Europe of the war years.

One is the new, rubber-cushioned seat, indeed a tender and a sympathetic heir to an egregious predecessor. The other consists of the protective and windowed sides which are buttoned on to shield the inhabintant from the elements.

Progress of this sort will be greeted by the majority without the slightest regret at signs of mellowing in the jeep's spartan character. But not by everybody, for there still remain those who are loyal to a rugged past when neither jeep nor man asked for or gave quarter.

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, for instance. First thing he did when he got his new jeep was to have the new-fangled sides stripped off.

Canadian Troops in Korea Receiving American Rations, Including Free Cigarets

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 18—(CP)—Canadian troops in Korea, loaded down with free American cigarets, are talking of starting a "parcels from Korea" movement to help out the tax-slappy folks at home.

Sketchy reports of discussions in Canada about their comfort, and the contents of letters and parcels from home led to the facetious suggestion.

The fact is the troops are well provided for in everything they need in the way of smokes, food and clothing, and suggestions otherwise amuse them. Lack of amenities such as pleasant leave centres is a more serious matter.

Chocolate bars? They've given away so many from their daily free ration that even the Korean children are beginning to shy away from them.

Plenty of Cigarets

Cigarets? They can't smoke all the free American fags they get and if they prefer Canadian or British they can get them at 13 and 15 cents a package. (Toronto price 42, Montreal 46).

Socks? Every man has at least two pairs, which is as much as most soldiers can take care of. There is no scarcity of them.

The Canadians, in fact, are the best looked-after troops in the theatre.

They are in the position of playing both ends against the midde, quite legitimately drawing on either United States or British supply lines, or both, as they see fit.

They are the only troops in 1st British Commonwealth Division drawing American rations. With those rations come every week free parcels containing shaving cream, tooth paste, soap, laces, combs, razor blades etc.

Units also operate canteens, and besides drawing on the lavish supplies the United States army makes available for its own canteens, they buy from the British "N.A.A.F.I."—navy, army and air force institutes.

Sell Everything

The result is that unit canteens are like miniature department stores selling anything from razor blades to portable radios and cameras. One canteen has a monthly turn-over of $14,000, which, at the ridiculously cheap tax-free prices, represents a considerable volume in sales.

Cola drinks are available and beer is sold to the men at a rate of one bottle a day—Japanese or British according to taste.

Yes, war isn't so tough in some ways, thanks to the luck of the draw. The biggest beef in brigade headquarters is the lack of a certain Scotch liqueur. With five other types of liqueur, two of cognac, other spirits and assorted wines available, officers moan that every brand of the Scotch liqueur is reserved for full colonels!

Gen. Eisenhower Tries to Sell Churchill Idea of Supporting Unified European Army

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, Dec. 18 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower was host at luncheon today to Winston Churchill and tried to sell him on the idea of supporting a unified European army.

Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden heard strong arguments for the same cause from French leaders yesterday, amid complaints that the British leader's position is confusing. Before his Conservatives were elected in Britain, Churchill praised the European army idea as a step toward European unity, but now he seems reluctant.

French official sources reported, however, that Churchill was willing to enter a diluted European army plan modelled on the wartime coalition of forces, although he would not pool British troops in the army proposed by French Premier Rene Pleven—one controlled by an authority higher than any individual nation and financed by a common military budget.

Churchill and Eden met again this morning with Pleven and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman. French sources said the four agreed on co-ordinating policies in the Mediterranean area, where both countries are facing rising Arab nationalism.

As for the Pleven plan army, however, Britain is pictured as withholding final judgment until completion of negotiations on a treaty draft by the six founder nations: France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Italy and West Germany.

The European army a key part of Eisenhower's plans to build up continental bulwarks capable of standing off any Russian attack is essential as a means of enlisting western Germany in European defence without risking revival of German conquests.

Present plans for the European army call for it to become a 43-division segment of NATO forces, Eisenhower wants to build up NATO defences to about 100 divisions by 1954.

The European army plan, conceived by Premier Rene Pleven of France, has been agreed to by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands.

The Netherlands is the only country to ratify the plan so far.

Churchill has been a prime advocate of European unity in post war years. But since he returned to leadership in Britain Oct. 25, he has balked at committing Britain to the European army.

START NEW PROJECT

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 18 — (CP) — The Kiwanis Club yesterday started a Canadian - European good neighbor movement. Citizens will be asked to invite one or more European immigrants to Christmas dinner in their homes.

Western Defence Planners Want Smooth Command

Paris, Dec. 18 (AP)—The 12 planners for western defence disclosed today that the western army needs many improvements—a smoother command set-up, better training, a more efficient supply system and establishment of priorities to get the job done.

W. Averell Harriman, United States Mutual Security administrator who headed the 12-man investigating committee, reported a six-point plan for changes in building both the forces and the economic backing for a strong North Atlantic treaty army.

But details of how to carry it out—expected to be made public today—were kept buried in a confidential report.

Harriman's prepared statement made clear that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, top military man of N.A.T.O. defences, approves and wants quick action from member governments to carry it out.

But rebellion already is stirring over the specific recommendations for some of the 12 countries to increase their contribution.

Want Spending Raised

Inside sources have reported the committee called on eight of the 12 Allied countries to raise their military spending. The biggest increase, of more than 50 per cent, was demanded of Belgium and the Belgians are stubbornly resisting.

Harriman listed these six objectives:

1. A system to set priorities for training, equipping, and supplying N.A.T.O. forces, and constructing military establishments for them;
2. Establishment of standards of preparedness for the forces;
3. Improved training and organization;
4. Efficient methods of planning production and supplies;
5. Effective arrangements with supporting the troops with supplies, and
6. Improved command arrangements.

Driven Into Night

Detroit, Dec. 18 — (CP) Flames roaring through an eight - family apartment building in suburban Dearborn early today drove 37 persons in nightclothes into 15-above-zero temperatures.

The fire, originating in the basement of the two-storey structure, caused loss estimated at $15,000. No one was injured.

HOTTEST ISSUE OF FALL SESSION BEING DEBATED

Garson Says Legislation Helps Small Consumer

Ottawa, Dec. 18—(CP)—The Commons opened debate yesterday on one of the hottest issues of this fall session—the government's proposal to ban resale price maintenance.

Justice Minister Garson introduced the legislation as a means to help the small consumer and the Progressive Conservative party promptly proposed that it be killed on the grounds it would destroy the small business man.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), contending the bill would help the government's "friends in the field of big business," proposed its consideration be deferred for six months—a parliamentary devise for killing legislation.

The bill, up for second reading, would prohibit resale price maintenance—the business practice by which manufacturers set the price at which the retailers will sell their merchandise. Generally, the producer can force the retailer to maintain the fixed price by refusing to supply goods.

Before taking up the prices legislation, the chamber adopted a bill creating an agricultural products board and heard Agricultural Minister Gardiner announce the government plans to continue price supports for bacon and eggs in 1952.

A formal division developed when Speaker Ross Macdonald ruled out of order a C. C. F. amendment calling for higher floor prices for farm products. The ruling was upheld 97 to 38.

Three Main Points

Mr. Garson buttressed his argument against resale price maintenance with three main points:

1. Prices are higher with price maintenance than they would be without it, and the "poorer" purchaser is deprived of the right to buy cheaply in minimum-service stores.
2. Price maintenance is spreading and helps to promote price-fixing combines.
3. Elimination of price maintenance would not drive the small retailer out of business. He would get protection from predatory price-cutting—underselling below cost to kill competition—from laws already in effect.

Had To Be Considered

He said the position of the "thousands of little fellows"—the consumers—had to be considered. They could not be expected to tolerate for long a practice which allowed the manufacturer to set the retail price of his goods.

Largely unorganized and unprotected, they were asking why the government, which did not control prices, allowed a "private control" of prices by manufacturers.

In Serious Condition

Kingston, Dec. 18 (CP) —Two young persons found unconscious in a parked car Sunday morning were still in serious condition in hospital here today, suffering the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Hospital officials said Lena Peters, 17, of Gibson's Hill, was still unconscious. Merrill Hamilton, 20, of Verona, was semi-conscious.

The young couple were found in the old-model car, its motor still running, by Rev. Thomas Richardson of Verona. Mr. Richardson, after failing to revive them, brought them to hospital.

Monkeys Will Undergo Training To Aid in Radioactivity Check

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 18 — (AP) — A band of monkeys and chimpanzees is training in Texas for an air force problem in radioactivity.

The problem is whether atomic radioactivity will have effects on mental abilities, and on seeing, hearing and muscular dexterity.

The Air Force School of Aviation Medicine here wants the facts for the airmen who will fly atomic-powered planes.

The monkeys' schooling will simulate three types of troops: —green, partly-trained and fully-trained. They will take varying amounts and types of radioactivity of the sort that military airmen may face.

Memory will be tested before and after radioactivity by various games. One involves seeking out peanuts from different - colored containers, having memorized the pay-off containers.

Human brains damaged by accidents or surgical operations sometimes lose in ability to learn new things, but retain what they had learned before the damage. If radioactivity has this effect, then it may be expected that well - trained troops will carry on satisfactorily.

Concept ability — the quality of being able to size up new situations — will be tested in more complicated games. For instance, locating a peanut would involve recognizing certain oddities of form, shape or sequence as well as color.

Heavy Snowfall Hampers Traffic Over Wide Area

Thousands of Persons Late For Work in Toronto

(By The Canadian Press)

Heavy snow fell today over most of Ontario, hampering highway traffic over a wide area and causing many minor accidents.

The storm, second in four days, covered all of southern Ontario from Lake Huron to east of the Ottawa Valley and part of the north. Up to seven inches of snow fell during the night when the fall, gentle in most areas owing to light winds, continued today. A let-up was predicted by nightfall—but more snow, and colder weather was forecast for tomorrow.

In Toronto thousands of persons were late for work as streetcar and motor traffic crawled along streets buried under inches of slushy snow. But traffic in and out of the city was off schedule but train service was reported almost normal. Air traffic was not interrupted despite low visibility.

The provincial department of highways reported driving conditions treacherous but said all highways were open with snowplows working through the night. Visibility along rural roads was termed only "fair," with conditions poorest north and west of Toronto.

Township Roads Blocked

Southwestern Ontario appeared along the St. Thomas-London other sections of the province, no serious accidents were reported. Some township roads were blocked in the Stratford area, where since last Friday's storm more than 22 inches of snow fell. Rural mailmen there had difficulty completing their routes yesterday.

Between four and five inches of snow fell on the Kitchener district, bringing the total fall there in the last four days to 15 inches. Roads around Woodstock were reported "passable, but very heavy." Galt reported the heaviest snowfall of the early-winter season with many minor accidents.

Many Cars Abandoned

The snow appeared heaviest on the north shore of Lake Erie with St. Thomas reporting heavy drifting. A score of automobiles were ditched between St. Thomas and Aylmer, 12 miles to the east, and many others were abandoned along the St. Tmos-London highway. The fall in that area was 10 inches, with drifts two and three feet deep.

New York Central passenger trains from the east through St. Thomas were running from a half hour to five hours late this morning. Two feet of snow blanketed the N. Y. C. terminal in Buffalo, N. Y., with deeper snow reported along the railway's main line to New York City through western New York.

In eastern Ontario, more than seven inches of snow fell in two hours this morning as the storm moved from west to east across the province.

Storm in Alberta

Edmonton— (CP)— The first blizzard of the season was building up in southern Alberta today.

A storm centre moving in from the Pacific coast brought snow and high winds, reducing visibility to less than a mile. Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat were in its path. All reported sub-zero temperatures.

Sapper Convicted Of Manslaughter, Given 15 Years

Seoul, Dec. 18 (CP) — Spr. John Murray Steeves, charged with the murder of a South Korean civilian, today was convicted of manslaughter and was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

The findings of a court martial are subject to review and Steeves, of Moncton and Regina, is entitled to appeal to a Canadian court martial appeal board a civilian authority.

Steeves was charged following the death of a Korean named Shin Yong Dok in a sten-gun shooting in the village of Hwang Bang, southwest of Yongchon, last Sept. 17. It was alleged that, while intoxicated, he entered the village ostensibly to look for a watch he had lost and fired bursts from a sten-gun. Two other Koreans were wounded in the shooting.

The court martial opened Dec. 14.

The prosecutor, Lieut. A. B. MacDonald of Kingston, Ont., addressed the court for 20 minutes. Lt.-Col. J. R. Cameron of Ottawa, defence counsel, spoke for 80 minutes and after announcement of the finding, made a moving appeal for mitigation of the sentence.

Eight Catholic Priests Seized At Confession

Hong Kong, Dec. 18 (CP) — Communist soldiers seized eight Roman Catholic priests and one brother at morning confession Dec. 5 in Northern Kiangsu province near the Yellow Sea coast, church authorities said today. The Canadian clergymen were placed under house arrest in Suchow.

At the same time American Bishop Philip Cote, 55, of Suchow (Tungshan) was also seized, and taken to jail. No reason was given for the arrest—one in a long series in the drive against Catholicism in communist China. Three Chinese priests went to prison with him.

Church sources also reported that another American, Msgr. Adolphus Pasehang, Ohio-born Bishop of Kongmoon, had again been beaten up for failing to come across with extortion money demanded by the communists, allegedly to make good exorbitant levies he made. But his mission superiors decided not to pay, despite information that he would continue to be maltreated.

Decision not to pay was taken on instruction of Bishop Raymond A. Lane, super-general of Maryknoll Mission of New York who said that if the money were paid "every Catholic missionary in reach of the reds would be placed in further jeopardy"

A spokesman said nothing further had been heard about the fate of five Canadian nuns convicted Dec. 2 on charges of ill-treating children in Canton's Holy Infant Orphanage.

Two were sentenced to five years' imprisonment and the others were ordered to be expelled.

There were persistent rumors that the three nuns expelled had left Canton, but they have not arrived in Hong Kong, the spokesman said.

18 Graduate From NCO Course At Armouries

Eighteen other ranks of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (ALI) and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment were graduated from a special junior non - commissioned officers' course at an impressive passing out parade in the Bridge Street Armories last night.

Following the parade graduation certificates were presented to the men by Brigadier A. F. B. Knight, OBE, area commander, Kingston. With Brigadier Knight was his general staff officer Major H. W. C. Stethem.

Representing the regiments were Lieut. Col. G. W. MacGregor, MC, ED, commanding officer, 9th Anti Tank, and Major William Graydon, second-in-command, Hastings and Prince Edward who appeared for Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, MC, commanding officer, unable to be present. Other officers of the two units were present in an observation capacity.

Fifth Course Completed

The course was the fifth one to be completed in the area, others being held at Kingston, Ottawa, Cornwall and Peterborough. Officer commanding the courses is Captain A. L. Weirmier. Other similar courses will be held in the New Year at Ottawa, Perth, Renfrew, Prescott and other reserve army centres.

The courses are of two weeks' duration with students taking instruction nightly including Sundays when instructional sessions were held during the daytime The instruction was given by the area instructional commander.

Twelve of the graduates were "Hasty Pees" and included Acting Corporals E. H. Burley, G. L. Vanskiver; Lance Corporal G. C Burgoin and Privates O. E. Ash, S. E. Ashley, G. P. Coe, W. Y. Emorey, D. C. Gorsline, E. J. M. Haney, A. D Levesque, L. H. Leverton and N. M. Post.

Teaching Staffs of Collegiate And Public Schools Given Across-Board Salary Increase

Across the board salary increases and cost-of-living bonus for teaching staffs at the Collegiate Institute and in the city public schools were approved by members of the local Board of Education at their final meeting of the year, held Monday evening.

Salary increases, including cost-of-living bonus, range from $400 for the collegiate principal down to an average increase of $318 for members of the public school teaching staffs.

Under the schedule agreed on, the collegiate principal will receive $6,300 instead of $5,900. The average salary to be received by members of the secondary school staff will be $4,208 instead of $3,789; the average for public school principals to be $4,320 instead of $3,940, and $3,130 for public school teachers instead of $2,812.

Cost-of-living bonus allowed is based on the cost-of-living index with a differential for teachers having more than one year's teaching service in the city.

Board Dissolved

Following the meeting which was the last of the year for the Board of Education, the board was dissolved. Next year there will be a public school board and also a board to conduct the business of the recently formed Bay of Quinte High Schol district.

Five of this year's members of the local Board of Education, A. C. Campbell, H. C. Seldon, Miss Josephine Tickell, Mr. Geo. Wishart, and Mr. Enos David, have been appointed as members of the High School District Board. The first meeting of this board will be held January 4th at the Collegiate library.

Named Representative

Mrs. Ralph Morden was named as Public School board representative to the High School board. The appointment was made at last night's meeting of the Board of Education.

Members of the Bay of Quinte High School board and some of the newly elected members of next year's public school board sat in on the board meeting.

Replacement of drapes in the collegiate auditorium will cost considerably more than was first anticipated, it was learned by the board.

At the last meeting of the board members of the collegiate Students' Council volunteered to make replacement of the drapes as their project for the year but financial assistance from the board was sought.

Tentative prices received by the Students' Council ranged up to $3,850 for complete stage curtains and tracks and window drapes. The matter was referred to the 1952 high school board.

Installation Proceeding

Installation of sound systems at the Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth schools is proceeding although installation will not be complete until some time early in the new year, it was stated by Stuart Robb, chairman of the property and supply committee.

Enrolment for the vocational branch of the collegiate for November was 552 and 595 for the academic classes, according to the report of the principal G. E. Currie. Enrolment in the evening classes was 471. Total enrolment at the collegiate for day classes is 1147.

Resolution Passed

The meeting passed a resolution submitted by member George Wishart calling for school board membership on provincial-municipal committees. It was pointed out that school boards are interested in municipal taxes and are responsible for spending considerable tax money and therefore should have representation on the above committee.

Another resolution submitted by Mr. Wishart and passed by the meeting called for some serious consideration to be given to the idea of securing school support other than through property taxation.

Both resolutions will be forwarded to the Urban Schools Trustees Association.

34th Battery RCA Enjoys Annual Unit Dinner

Members of the 34th Battery RCA, member unit of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (ALI) are nobody's fools when it comes to battery proficiency (they've got a cup to prove it), and by the same token they take a back seat from no unit in the art of turkey-dispensing.

That was proven the other night at the annual battery dinner when a large number of battery all ranks sat down to a turkey repast, with all the trimmings.

Major Joe Black, battery commander was in charge of the affair, a most successful one and saw to it that his officers and men lacked for nothing.

The centre of attraction was the Progress Cup, a trophy donated by Col. P. H. Wills for annual competition by batteries of the regiment. The 34th was awarded the trophy this year for the second time in succession and members observed the tradition by drinking punch from the cup, said punch supposed to be provided by the losing units.

Major Everett Fairman, regimental second-in-command, represented the regiment in the absence of Lieut. Col. G. W. MacGregor, M.C., E.D., commanding officer who was unable to be present. Also present was Major William Burgoyne, officer commanding the 32nd Battery.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. George Fountain, a gifted raconteur. The "troops" enjoyed a sing-song and social amenities until a late hour.

Serving Liquor at 'Office Parties' Frowned on by L. C. B., Police

The Liquor Control Board as well as police departments will frown on that "office party" where employees of organizations gather to celebrate the holiday.

That is such parties will be frowned on if intoxicating liquors are served with result that drivers appear on the streets with their driving ability impaired.

It is pointed out by the police department that such parties where liquor is served are absolutely illegal as liquor may be given or consumed by a person only in the residence in which he resides. In many instances, however, the offenders are not aware they are committing an offence. Convictions of such an offence carried a penalty ranging from $10 to $1,000, and for a second offence, imprisonment for three months.

The police chief noted that this Christmas a driver does not necessarily have to be "drunk" before he can be dealt with by police. Under new traffic laws drivers may be taken in by officers when their driving ability is impaired by drinking.

Police Chief Probert also appealed to householders to refrain from offering drinks to delivery men during the pre-Christmas season. It is not one drink that does the damage but the "several" drinks which the deliveryman may receive during the course of his deliveries.

"Just remember", the chief pointed out, "the delivery man is in charge of a motor vehicle. No householder wants to be responsible for someone getting in trouble."

Obituary

MRS. JOHN W. JOHNSON

Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church was filled on Saturday afternoon Dec. 15 with relatives and friends who attended the funeral of Mrs. John W. Johnson formerly Margaret Merrick, who was almost 87 years of age and was a pioneer of this community having spent all her life here.

Her pastor Rev. R. R. Bonsteel conducted the service and based his message on the text "I have finished my course." He was assisted by Rev. H. E. Beare pastor of Springbrook United Church as Mrs. Johnson died while visiting her son Elwood, at Springbrook.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang by special request "When They Ring the Golden Bells For You and Me." The hymns were two old favourites of deceased "Rock of Ages" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

The committal service was held in the church and the bearers were six grandsons Messrs. Keith, Ralph, Ronald and Donald Stanley Williams and Gerald Morrison. The interment was made beside her husband in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

LATE MRS. MARY E. WANNAMAKER

Bancroft—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Ellen Wannamaker was held from Hartsmere Public School on Sunday afternoon, with interment in Long Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Simon Bronson of The Brethren Church officiated.

The deceased who was in her 79th year died at the Hastings County Home, Belleville, on Dec. 15th. Her husband, the late James Anson Wannamaker predeceased her a number of years ago. She was the daughter of the late Wm. John Ralph and Jane Ralph, nee McKitric.

Surviving are three sons and one daughter, Wesley, Marshall and Alexander Wannamaker of Hartsmere and Mrs. Lexena Clarke of Millbridge; two sisters, Mrs. Florence Thompson and Eliza Ralph of Boulter; and two brothers, Wesley Ralph of Boulter and Robert Ralph of Belleville.

LATE THOMAS A. STRINGER

The funeral of the late Thomas Andrew Stringer was held in the White Church, Carlow Township, Thursday afternoon, with the Rev. Kingsley Cutler of St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery. Last rites were conferred by L.O.L. No. 624.

Born 76 years ago, the deceased was the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stringer of Carlow Township. With the exception of a few years spent in western Canada he was a lifetime resident of this district. Before retirement he was a tailor and carpenter.

It's still a full week before Christmas but already the heavy stream of Christmas mail — greeting cards, letters and gift parcels—has commenced to pass through the Belleville post office.

The annual Christmas rush commenced at the post office some days ago and is gradually increasing in volume until by mid-week or later postal workers will be all but snowed under.

To augment the regular postal staff for the big Christmas rush 99 additional helpers have been taken on until the big rush is over, it was stated today by Mr. J. C. Waddell, postmaster. This is six workers more than were hired last year for the big rush although the actual number of hours worked is not expected to be any greater.

Approximately two-thirds of the temporary staff are high school or university students and most of them have had previous experience at the job. Thirty-two of the additional helpers will assist the various letter carriers on their routes, while the others will work inside the post office, sorting.

Speeds Up Work

Again this year the postage register for parcels is saving endless lineups at stamp wickets waiting for parcels to be weighed and the correct amount in stamps to be counted and affixed. Mr. Waddell stated the metering machine for parcels has speeded up this end of the work tremendously.

Early mailing for Christmas cards and parcels was urged by post master. "There is just no point in waiting until the last few days," he says, "and it helps the postal workers greatly."

Another tip—A special mailing box has been provided outside the post office for mail for city delivery. Placing of mail for local delivery in this box greatly reduces sorting time and speeds up delivery.

Small Display Turkeys, Geese On Market

Heavy snowfall and threat of continuation of the present storm put an effective quietus on city market activities today.

Exactly five vendors of Christmas poultry were on hand with a small display of turkeys and geese. No chicken was offered.

Prices quoted today levelled at those of Saturday with turkey offered at 80 cents the pound for hens and 75 cents for drawn gobblers. Hens undrawn were quoted at 70 cents the pound and gobblers 65 cents.

The outside market was devoid of vendors. No vegetables or other produce was offered inside.

Tribute Paid Retiring Members Of City Council

Tribute to Mayor R. T. Potter and to the three retiring members of city council was paid Monday afternoon at the final council meeting of the year.

Alderman Argue expressed his appreciation for the efforts of Mayor Potter as well as to the three retiring members, Alderman "Sandy" Lummiss, Alderman Fred Deacon, and Alderman Ormonde Butler.

Mayor-elect A. M. Haig added his own appreciation noting that this had been "one of his happiest years in council" and one of the most harmonious. Credit for this was given to the leadership of Mayor Potter.

In reply Mayor Potter thanked his fellow council members for their co-operation during the year. "I have enjoyed the work very much," he assured. "I will miss it very much. I wish the 1952 council the best ever."

The three retiring council members expressed their regret at leaving the municipal field and assured they would always take a keen although possibly not active interest in municipal affairs.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP) —Slowly strengthening mid-session support today pushed early afternoon stock market prices slightly higher.

Refining oils, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials formed the market's strongest sections while liquors and banks drew firm support. Utilities, constructions, steels, textiles and retail stores held gains and losses in balance but papers and foods weakened.

Industrials changed hands while a broad list of penny golds drew speculative interest. A few lower-priced western oils and base metals showed sporadic activity. Volume for the first three hours was 1,082,000 shares.

Base metals made little headway. Consolidated Smelters and Waite Amulet slipped fractions while Falconbridge and International Nickel strengthened.

Western oils traded irregularly. Canadian Atlantic, Home Oil, Selburn, Western Homestead and Calmont strengthened but Calvan Consolidated, Consolidated Cordasun, Okalta and Trans Empire weakened.

Senior golds posted seven gains against one loss. Changes were small. Junior producers were mixed while prospects dipped and holding companies turned upward.

Canadians of Draft Age In U.S. Subject to Call

Ottawa, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Canadian officials today saw little hope for any relaxation of United States selective service draft laws which now apply to Canadians working across the border.

A Washington story last night reported that Canadians and other aliens of draft age (18 to 26) now are subject to the call-up for service in the armed forces.

This has particular significance to the thousands of Canadians, mainly in the Windsor - Detroit area, who live in Canada but work in the United States.

United States authorities take a dim view of aliens of service age holding jobs in the United States while U. S. citizens are drafted for armed service.

Special Committee to Report On Possibility of Disposition Of Former County Home

A special committee from outside council will investigate the possibility of disposition of the former county home.

This was decided at the last council meeting of the year held Monday afternoon when a committee of St. Claire Hurlbut, William A. Watson, Engineer Stan Price, City Comptroller H. D. Bateman, Don McNevin, Kenneth Ross and S. Goodman was appointed to investigate disposal of the home.

"The purpose is to determine if any use can be made of the county home building," noted Alderman A. M. Haig as the recommendation was tabled for ratification by council. The committee had been formed of men outside council and with different background of experience so that any decision made might be free of prejudice.

"The city has $165,000 invested in the property and will have $300,000 invested by the time debentures are paid off. There should be a well considered report before any decision on disposition of the home is made," Mr. Haig noted

At a previous council meeting it had been suggested that city offices be moved to the county building with possible sale of city owned property in the downtown section of the city.

The city will definitely adopt the sanitary fill method of garbage disposal and will purchase a release from the contract to purchase a monobearth from the Francis Hankin Company.

Release From Contract

City officials have conferred with representatives of the firm with whom the contract was entered into and Francis Hankin will release the city from the contract for a consideration covering their expenditures. The amount suggested was not to exceed $5,000.

Alderman Deacon wanted to know if this was the lowest figure which Francis Hankin would consider for breaking the contract. To this Alderman Haig said he would be happy to amend the recommendation limiting the cost to the city and in the meantime endeavour to bargain with the firm.

The city solicitor was authorized to draw up the necessary agreement releasing the city from the contract to purchase the incinerator for a sum not exceeding $5,000.

Boxing Day Holiday

Mayor R. T. Potter will proclaim Boxing Day as a civic holiday it was decided by council. Whether or not the day should be observed as a holiday saw discussion with Alderman Deacon noting that proclaiming the day as a holiday caused embarrassment for some industries.

"I think council is taking something on its shoulders that is not necessary," he said. "If the retailers want the day as a holiday, let them observe it, but I cannot see that any proclamation is necessary."

By a close vote council decided to proclaim Boxing Day as a holiday.

Considerable discussion was entered into by council with respect to a recommendation which in effect would have given The Corbin Lock Company; The American Optical Company and the G. T. Lanning Company some relief from assessments decided on under the recent re-assessment of industry.

Recommendation Withdrawn

Following the discussion, however, the recommendation was withdrawn before a vote was taken.

The three manufacturing companies concerned had claimed they had been promised fixed assessments by previous councils when they had constructed additions, new buildings or commenced business and they felt council had a moral obligation to carry out the promises.

Alderman Porter summed the matter up by noting there may be some moral obligation on the part of the city, but there were three points against the recommendation submitted to council.

The first of these was that in the opinion of Mr. Porter it was not a legal agreement, and secondly, there may be another increase in assessment within the term suggested by the recommendation and if so "we would be going through it all over again."

City Not Bound

In the third place Mr. Porter said any business man in the city had a fair idea of what the city can do in the way of fixed assessments and should therefore know the city was not bound by any such promises. "This," he said, "lessened any moral obligation for the city to live up to any promises made."

Alderman Argue said that he, for one, thought the present council had no moral obligation "because of the stupidity of previous councils." He said he thought council should stand behind its assessment commissioner.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle who was a member of the Industrial Commission at the time the promise of a fixed assessment to the Corbin Lock Company was allegedly given, said the policy of the commission was not to interfere with assessments but to direct industrialists to the city hall.

City Comptroller H. D. Bateman, who was assessment commissioner at the time the Corbin Lock addition had been constructed said he thought the assessment agreed on at that time had been comparable with industrial assessment in the city. He had advised the company at that time that the assessment agreed on "should" continue until 1959.

"I did not envisage a general increase in assessment in the city," he said.

Mr. Bateman said he knew nothing of any promise being made to the G. T. Lanning Company with respect to assessment.

Alderman Duffy was of the opinion there was no moral obligation on the part of the city. "I feel somebody is merely trying to get a feather in their cap by having their assessment reduced," he said.

Ald. Asks Question

Alderman Countryman wanted to know what council would do if some other industry in the city came up with a claim that it had been promised a fixed assessment.

"This same thing will be coming forever," said Ald. Rollins. He pointed out that when an industry was interested in locating in a centre they want to know what the assessment will be.

"You must give them some answer so they can compare with other centres," he said.

It was at this point that the recommendation concerning the three industrial firms was withdrawn.

New Sander Purchased

Purchase of a new road sander was authorized at a cost of $5,999, the payment to be included in the next equipment debenture issued.

James T. Davis, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce, was appointed as secretary to the local Industrial Commission.

The city parks board operated with a deficit of $5,800 during 1951, members of council were informed by a letter from the board. The letter tok the form of a request for a supplementary grant from the city to allow the board to balance its budget.

There was an explanation for the deficit, however. The board had been forced to spend $3,200 for repairs to the superintendent's home on Yeoman Street and had also spent more money than was expected on Zwick's Island and in the maintenance of other city playgrounds.

Council took no action on the request but referred the matter to the 1952 budget committee.

Concur in Resolution

Council concurred in a Fort William resolution calling for six month residence instead of three months residence instead of three tients.

Use of the tourist park property on Dundas Street as a site for the proposed firehall again came up for discussion but the discussion was ruled out of order when it was pointed out that there was no recommendation before council.

A new building inspector was hired for the city. He is S. D. Barker, Toronto, qualified engineer, who will assist in the engineering department during the slack building season. Starting salary will be $3,600 per year.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts for the supply of diesel oil, gasoline and motor oil for city use were awarded. The lowest tenders in each case were accepted with Regent Oil receiving the contract for 2,500 gallons of diesel oil; B. A. Oil the contract for 30,000 gallons of gasoline, and Imperial oil the contract for 600 gallons of motor oil.

Appointments to the Bay of Quinte High School District were made by council. Mr. A. C. Campbell and H. C. Seldon were appointed for a three-year term; Miss Josephine Tickell and Mr. George Wishart for two-year terms and Mr. Enos David and Mr. W. Baldwin for a one-year term.

Asks for Divorce

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP) — A writ for divorce has been filed by Frederick Reason, suburban East York bricklayer, against Beatrice Reason, held in Detroit awaiting deportation from the United States, it was learned today.

Mrs. Reason, four times married, was taken to Detroit recently from Chicago where she was arrested with Alfred P. Greene, former Toronto high school teacher. The two left Toronto in 1949 after Greene left personal articles in his blood-spattered automobile in an effort to mislead police that he had been murdered. Brought back to Toronto, he was sentenced to six months in jail for non-support of his wife and family.

PROBLEM FOR CHURCHILL

One of the most serious problems concerning Great Britain at this time is a shortage of coal. The British are even importing coal from the United States. Actually, there is plenty of coal in Britain, but there are insufficient miners to operate the mines at capacity. Besides, the miners refuse to do more than what they regard as a reasonable amount of work. Further, they resist the introduction of mining machinery which would increase production.

Italy has a labor surplus of at least 2,000,000 men. While the British Labor government was in power, it tried to induce the coal miners' unions to allow Italians to work in the mines. The unions accepted 500 Italians as co-workers, but no more. The unions were powerful enough not only to keep the Italians out of the mines, but even to prevent the Labor government from allowing any more of them to enter the country.

During the six years in which it held power, the Labor government saw the working force in the mines decrease from 800,000 to 700,000, while coal production decreased correspondingly. In recent years, the British have suffered power shortages, cold houses, production cuts and other difficulties directly attributable to shortages of coal.

For hundreds of years, Britain exported coal. Today, Britain needs exports worse than ever. Coal is the one natural resource which modern Britain possesses in large quantities.

The Labor government tried, and probably tried its best, to change the attitude of the coal miners toward Italian immigration, but with no success. It is going to be interesting to see what Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill and his Conservatives will do in dealing with this problem, because it is a problem which must be solved if Britain's economy is going to recover its former health.

NEW SECRET WEAPON?

J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservativve member of the House of Commons for Toronto Greenwood, informed his colleagues there on Thursday last that Canada's department of national defence had ordered 62,000 chefs' serving forks.

To add to his remarks, Mr. Macdonnell produced one of the implements and displayed it. It was more than a foot long, with a highly polished hardwood handle and two long, strong tines more than an inch apart. It was the sort of fork, Mr. Macdonnell explained, used by chefs in serving meat. A large hotel, he said, might purchase perhaps twenty of them at one time.

Expressing curiosity as to why the department of national defence required 62,000 such forks, Mr. Macdonnell recalled that the total strength of the Canadian army, navy and air force, as of October 31 last, was 85,358, all ranks. This 85,358 includes, of course, large numbers of non-combatants.

The department of national defence has promised to investigate and inform Mr. Macdonnell why so many of these forks were needed. Until this explanation is made, Mr. Macdonnell and anyone else who is curious will just have to wait and wonder.

Surely the department of national defence has enough funds at its disposal to provide Canadian troops in Korea and elsewhere with more suitable weapons than forks. If funds are lacking to buy modern weapons, baseball bats, swords or crossbows would be more effective than chefs' forks.

DUPLESSIS CUTS TAXES

The government of Quebec has just taken a commendable step in reducing the death duties which are payable on small estates.

Under the new legislation, the first $10,000 of any estate up to $50,000 will be entirely exempted from death duties where the heirs are in direct line of succession. Formerly, the exemption was granted only when the total estate was less than $10,000. Until now, even on the smallest estate, the full amount was taxed.

The Montreal Gazette, in arguing that the exemption should have been made higher, points out that in Ontario the basic exemption where there are direct line heirs is already $50,000, with heavier levies on larger estates.

In discussing his new legislation in the Quebec legislature, Premier Maurice Duplessis stated that it meant reduction in taxation on Quebec estates of between $600,000 and $700,000 a year. This is not a large sum for all Quebec, but it is something.

CHRISTMAS NOISES

Glorious noises I was hearing:
Paper wrapping, door bell ringing,
Grown-ups many a bundle bringing,
Footsteps running, tones emphatic:
"Put that parcel in the attic!"
"Not for you and stop that prying!"
"My, but children can be trying."
Christmastime for little boys is
One of curious, tempting noises.

Now, the door bell rings. No matter.
Deaf I've grown to women's chatter.
While they're busy bundle wrapping,
On the sofa I stay napping.
This the solemn truth I'm speaking:
Gone the joy of Christmas peeking.
Stilled the sound of reindeer prancing,
Gone the mysteries entrancing.
But this thought as I peruse them,
It's too bad I had to lose them.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th., 1931

The members of Christ Church parish, Hillier, Prince Edward County, enjoyed a social gathering recently at "Lilac Lodge," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton, near Melville. Following an enjoyable program at which the Rev. John Brownlie presided, a handsome arm chair was presented to Mr. Ernest Terry as a token of appreciation of his services as church warden for the past twenty five years.

Mr. Jack Redfern is home from the College of Pharmacy to spend the Christmas vacation.

Mr. Earle McDonald is home from Queen's University to spend the Christmas vacation.

Dec. -8th., 1921

A large gathering of school trustees and ratepayers assembled at Queen Victoria School today to witness the presentation of prizes won by pupils of that school. The Governor General's medal to the pupil under thirteen years of age taking the highest standing at the high school entrance examinations was presented to McKenna Farrell. This medal has been won by pupils of Queen Victoria School seven times in the last ten years. The St. Julien I. O. D. E. prize to the pupil of any age taking the highest standing at the entrance examinations to the high school was presented to Marjorie Hegle by ex- Mayor W. B. Riggs. This prize has been won by a pupil of Queen Victoria School every year since it was offered. The Strathcona prize for proficiency in rifle shooting was presented by Mr. H. McGinnis to Newton Wilbur, Kenneth Naylor, Howard Rainbird and Max Connors. The prize for proficiency in drill was presented by Mr. H. W. Ackerman to the cadet corps. The prizes for physical culture were also presented by Mr. Ackerman to the classes of Miss Campbell and Miss Barlow.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th., 1911

Mr. S. W. Lazier, an old Belleville boy and a son of Mr. Nicholas Lazier of this city, was elected a member of the city council of Santa Barbara, California, at a recent election.

Several corporation men working on Bleecker Avenue saw a robin perched upon a tree yesterday. The farmers report that snakes and angle worms are upon the ground the same as they are in the spring of the year.

Mrs. W. A. Kerr of Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County, has a turkey hen which has made a record; commencing in April last this bird continued laying until October and during that time produced a total of 114 eggs.

Mr. William Carnew, barrister, is in Port Hope today on legal business.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 18th., 1901

If this weather lasts until Saturday, it will undoubtedly be the busiest day for retail business that Belleville has ever known.

Many people will be glad to learn that the electric street railway may again operate. A citizen said this morning that he would be willing to subscribe $500. if the cars would run out Bridge Street east.

The work of selecting jurors for the year 1902 was completed today by Mayor R. J. Graham, Warden Pearce, Judge Lazier, Judge Fraleck, County Treasurer Wills and County Crown Attorney P. J. M. Anderson.

The snow bylaw is, as usual, not being observed. Many sidewalks have yet to make the acquaintance of a snow shovel. Something should be done about this.

Mr. Allan Petrie is home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the Christmas vacation.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GIVE A BOOK!

At this season of the year, when so many people are wondering what to give to a friend or beloved one, I am sure I give good advice when I say, "Give a book," for when you do you give something of the mind and heart of another human being, and often that gift has invited the recipient to a new line of thought, and often a new world!

I recall a letter that a toll bridge attendant in Pennsylvania once wrote me. He said he had never read a book until he was intrigued into buying one that I had suggested in these Talks. Then he bought another, and another, until he told me he had a library of 300 books. Two years later I told this story in this column and he wrote that his library had grown to 400 books!

You can't go wrong in giving a book, or telling someone else about one that has been a delight to yourself. These silent friends keep blessing you from year to year. As a boy books thrilled me. They still do, though I already have enough for a respectable book store! Books are men and women in condensed form. A story of their thinking, their experiences, their ideals and their purpose in life.

Give a book—one that will instruct, inspire, or merely entertain for the time. e need all sorts of books, as we need all sorts of friends to satisfy the hunger within us; be it physical or spiritual. There are books we all tain for time. We need all sorts they give to us in new hope and stimulation. I have a little group that I continually turn to. I set them apart from others, in the same manner as I have listed the small group of intimate friends who have been a precious heritage over the years.

Books are friends. And they are changeless. A great book today will be a great book tomorrow. And if it has enriched you once it will do so again and again. I recently re-read Stephen Crane's "Red Badge of Courage." He wrote it when he was but twenty-two years of age. He died in his thirtieth year yet after fifty years since that time his book still remains a classic, and currently there is a magnificent movie of it. Great books are like old soldiers—they never die!

THE BIG KILL

(This one is about the adventure of a man temporarily under the influence of the detective stories of Mickey Spillane, the new "wonder boy" in the crime school. The man has read non-stop the four Whodunits featuring Mike Hammer, private eye.)

* * *

When she handed me the slip of paper I looked at it hard. I stuck a Lucky in my mouth and tore a match out of the book. I felt a snarl ripple across my mouth and my eyes were as cold and deadly as those of a manta ray. I stubbed out my butt.

"This is it?"

"Yeah".

Her voice did things to me. I went hot and cold and then hot again. I walked across the room and hit her on the jaw. I knew she liked me that way. She sipped her brew, watching me over the rim of the glass with eyes shiny as new dimes.

"Well," I said, "you're the boss."

"Let's keep it that way!"

"Yeah."

"Yeah."

* * *

I reached into my shoulder holster and took a slug of bourbon. I stuck my hat on the back of my head and got out of there. The slip of paper was burning a hole in my pants pocket.

I climbed into my heap and turned the motor over. There was a dead man in the back seat and two in the trunk. I wondered where they came from. I hadn't killed anybody all day.

The rain. The never-ending rain. It turned the burg into a city of reflections, a city you saw twice no matter where you looked. It was a slow, easy rain that took a while to collect on your hat brim before it cascaded down in front of your face. I sat there a minute wondering if I ought to buy a top for the car.

The streets had an oily shine that brought the rain-walkers out, people who went native whenever the sky cried and tore off their hats to let the tears drip through their hair. Everyone was nuts. Everyone but Mike Scott or Jack Hammer or whoever I was. I lit a bourbon and drank a slug of Lucky.

* * *

I pulled away from the curb with a roar and instantly my eyes went to the rear view mirror.

"Coppers!"

There were three cars tailing me. I could see their tommy-guns poking from the windows but I didn't recognize any of the faces. They didn't know me and I didn't know them. That made us even. In the mirror I saw my face. It was filled with the kill-lust. It wasn't nice to look at. It never was.

I lit a Lucky and pulled on the butt until it caught in my lungs the way I like it to do. Two streams of smoke spiralled from my ears.

They were getting closer now. Yeah, they'd like to have that slip of paper, wouldn't they? They'd like to see another poor shamus stretched out with a head full of lead. Yeah. I set fire to a Lucky.

I pulled up the heap with a scream of brakes and was out of the car with a leap, a turning twisting figure in the rain. The rain. The never-ending rain. I could hear the slugs crashing into the windows around me. What shots! Somebody would lose his badge over this. I took a slug of bourbon and set fire to my nose.

When the door banged behind me I wheeled around. I knew she'd be there. She was, waiting for me across the room.

* * *

Every motion she made was like liquid being poured and there was a flame in her eyes that waited to be breathed into life. Something about her made me too warm. I took off my mittens.

There wasn't any kitten softness about her now. She was big and lovely with the kind of curves that made you want to turn around and have another look. I turned around and had another look. The lush fullness of her lips had tightened into the faintest kind of snarl and her eyes were the carniverous eyes you could expect to see in the jungle watching you from behind a clump of bushes.

"Yeah?"

There was ice in her words. My collar was too tight all of a sudden and something was crawling up my spine. My eyes probed into her brain and I got that animal look.

* * *

"I've got the list," I said.

My voice was a short fuse ready to explode any minute.

"What's it say?" she snarled.

I stuck a Lucky in my ear and pulled the slip of paper from my pocket. I could feel her eyes burning on me.

"It says 'two loaves of bread, a tin of sardines and a box of Cheezies,'" I said, looking around the grocery, "and this is the last time I'll ever go shopping for my wife if it's going to be this dangerous."

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GIVE OLD AGE A CHANCE

Waste! Waste! Waste! We read of unnecessary expenditures in civil government and military circles, and it makes us sick to realize the enormous values which we are throwing away with both hands.

But human values are vastly more important. One thing we are throwing away today is old age. People have come to assume that when a man reaches 65 or 70 his usefulness is at an end. Sometimes it is. But there are men who are making a vital contribution to great projects long after they have passed the age of retirement.

In the community in which I live there are three elderly men, the youngest of whom is 80, the oldest almost 90. Two of them are today writing the most trenchant articles in their particular field of study that I have ever read. These articles appear in publications side by side with the writings of younger men, and these Nestors simply cast their young contemporaries into the shade by their incisive thought and clarity of expression. One of these men complains a great deal over the fact that he had to give up tennis at 80. The third man, now 85, has written five books in four years. The summer he was 82 he beat his golf record for all time by playing one of the Lake Placid courses in one under par.

There is still a lot of vitality and usefulness in old age if we will only give old age a chance.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

IF YOU WOULD LIVE LONG DON'T WALK ON EGGS

There are a good many people walking on eggs, worse, resigned to walk on eggs as long as they live, because they have heart trouble of one kind or another, actual heart weakness or iatrogenic heart weakness. Iatrogenic means produced by the doctor.

The common belief that exercise, play, work, activity should be avoided by one with heart trouble is not founded on fact. In 890 cases of coronary artery occlusion (thrombosis) the circumstances under which the attack occurred were in most cases during rest; in the next largest number, sleep; next, mild activity; next, walking; next, moderate activity; and in the fewest of all, unusual exertion.

In far too many instances young people with a valvular leakage from roughening or distortion of a heart valve following acute endocarditis (inflammation of heart lining) which occurred as a complication of tonsillitis, septic sore throat or other acute infectious illness, are encouraged or permitted to accept the temporary incompetence of the heart as a permanent and insurmountable handicap.

Before me here are numerous records of extraodrinary athletic achievements by individuals with heart disease. For example Drs. Jokl and Suzman reported the case of a man with aortic regurgitation and mitral setnosis who entered a marathon race in Johannesburg, against their advice.He was one of four contestants who finished out of a field of seventeen, about 26 miles in three hours and two minutes, in intense heat and at an altitude of 6000 feet. His condition after the race was "surprisingly good and his recovery time was short as compared with that of the other competitors."

In a case reported by Dr. Wm. H. Lewis, Jr., the original attack of coronary thrombosis occurred when the man was 43 years old. He was kept at complete rest in bed for 7 weeks, remained at home for a month taking gradually increasing walks. He stopped smoking altogether after the attack, and continued moderately active for the next year, but took about 15 hours rest in each 24 hours throughout the year. In the next few years he enjoyed dancing, wimming, skiing and transocean flying at altitudes of 6,000 to 12,000 feet. Six years after the original thrombosis, when the doctor reported the case, the man was in excellent condition.

I cite these exceptional cases just to show that work, play or exercise is not so bad for the "weak heart" as the old timers in practice and most persons with heart disease believe it is. In talks to follow I'll try to show that graduated exercise is just as important as rest and vitamin B complex in the rehabilitation of the individual who has had a bout of coronary thrombosis.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What! Farmers Eat Plain Wheat?

Please send us your pamphlet Wheat To Eat. We are going to begin a campaign to persuade prairie farmers to eat the best of the wheat they grow, instead of feeding it to the hogs... (——, Editor).

Answer—We can always make room for one more inmate, here in the nut hatchery. Don't let the refined white flour interests and the vendors of cheat-foods in pretty packages get wind of your campaign. They'll mow you down by threatening to pull their ads. Any reader who provides stamped, self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Wheat to Eat. Not only the poor geeks who grow it but householders everywhere who have enough brains to think for themselves, should learn how to use wheat in the everyday diet.

By GREGORY CLARK

In the next few days, the calendars begin to arrive. Grocers and butchers will still stick to the measly little type, with a picture of a cottage buried in hollyhocks, or the sun going down on Lake Como in Italy. Your bank will send you a large and handsome picture, either a painting by a leading Canadian artist, or an architectural representation of its own head office, if it has lately built a new one. If you are a very good account, the bank will also send you a small, tailored desk calendar.

Your local garageman will send you a magnificent pin-up girl, done with fluorescent highlights on her hips and shoulders. She will be looking over her shoulder at you.

Despite the declining size of the human habitation, calendars still run large. It would be interesting to know what percentage of big pictorial calendars never are hung up, except in the higgledy-piggledy offices of garages, machine shops or in quick lunches. The up-to-date office leans towards the small desk type.

The place to see calendars in the old days was the flour and feed store. When it went, the service station and garage took its place. There is usually a dandy collection in the back room of a garage.

My own taste runs to fishing and hunting scenes, Labrador retrievers coming out of the water with ducks, humorous scenes of anglers doing somersaults in the stream or flight of wild geese streaming across a mauve sunset.

My family will not allow me to festoon these around the house: so I hang them behind my cupboard door, and in my attic storeroom along with the tackle and guns; or down cellar by the work bench, so that I always know where I can go to find out what time of year it is.

BANCROFT

Bancroft—A crowd of over 4,000 people attended the Bancroft Lions Club Santa Claus Parade in Bancroft on Saturday afternoon, despite a biting wind, a below-zero temperature and a miniature blizzard during the previous evening.

Three minutes before the parade swung around the corner of Station Road and Hastings Street there was just a good Saturday afternoon crowd to be seen but hundreds of cars lined the route. Then in less time than it would take to recite the names of Santa's reindeer, from every car came from three to eight people and from every store came children and adults by the score. As over 1,400 bags of candy were distributed, parade officials estimated that there were at least 2,800 adults in town for the event.

Three-Man Band

First, mention must be made of the band, as parades in Bancroft are usually bandless. It was only a three-man affair but they played unceasingly with plenty of gusts and rhythm, and provided the necessary 'zip' for the high school cadets who headed the procession. The bandsmen were Kenneth Bowser, trumpet and leader; Elwood Vardy, cornet and Kenneth Parnell, drummer.

Leading the affair was the army cadet corps from North Hastings high school, under the command of Cadet Major Fred Ayres. About 50 boys, wearing regulation uniforms but without great-coats, led by two flag bearers, marched in column of route and appeared to be unaware of the polar weather.

Fairyland Floats

The majority of the floats portrayed the characters from fairyland and the nursery rhymes. Among then were Little Bo-Peep, The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe; Alice In Wonderland; Old Mother Hubbard; Three Men in a Tub; Hickory Dickory Dock; Frosty, The Snow-Man, several Clowns and many others. There were also displays entered by Bancroft Fire Department, the Ontario Department of Highways and many local organizations, merchants, lumbermen and tourist operators. And, of course, on the biggest and highest float, was Santa Claus.

After going twice around the block bounded by Bridge, Sherbourne, Station and Hastings Streets, Santa Claus came to a platform in front of the community hall where he was officially welcomed by Reeve Theodore Tryon. Then with the assistance of a number of clowns, he passed bags of candies to every boy and girl.

The afternoon was completed by two free shows, one in Bancroft Theatre and another in the community hall. Using a shuttle system the boys and girls were able to see both sets of pictures, as both places ran their pictures twice.

'Seat Prizes'

Although everybody was carrying a large bag of nuts and candies, the quantities of these dropped on the floors of both the community hall and the local show were far less than usual. During the proceedings at Bancroft Theatre, a number of lucky youngsters were awarded cash 'seat prizes' given by a local garage. Both theatre manager, Gordon Broughton, and Lions agreed that the behavior of the gatherings was excellent.

In charge of the afternoon parade and its added features was a committee of Bancroft Lions, headed by Jack Follis, who also was the capable master of ceremonies. Everett Schram was the chairman of the float committee. Probably frigid conditions helped for Corporal Archie Grayling of the Bancroft detachment of the OPP, aided by Constables Lloyd and Hawkins of town, Howden of Apsley and Chief Creighton of the municipal police, had an exceptionally easy group to handle.

Must Create Goodwill Before We Have Peace Says Speaker

"Peace is the fruit of seed sown and exists, in substance, in the heart and nature of God," said Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas' Church, in addressing the Rotary Club on Monday. "We have to create goodwill before we will have peace," he said.

In explaining the season and its meaning, Mr. Smith stated that it is extremely difficult to say something instructive, positive and encouraging with the world in its present state of affairs. There has never been more distress, more privation, nor more sickness, he added, nor more people with a desperate outlook of the future in this aspect of world affairs.

He pointed out, however, that one thing stands out and that is the Christmas message; "This message is Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace and goodwill to all men," he said. Mr. Smith contradicted the translation of this wording, stating that the actual meaning was peace to all men of goodwill.

"Peace," said the speaker, "is not stored in the reservoir of heaven and handed down piecemeal but is the product of goodwill. We all have our task to do to build peace and goodwill in the world whether it be in the community, a group or within ourselves."

"If we will listen just once in a while," Mr. Smith concluded, "to that voice of God within ourselves, we shall succeed."

The speaker was introduced by Rev. Duncan McTavish and thanked on behalf of the club by William Hurst.

A party for the blind was announced by president Court Miller and will be held in St. Andrew's parish hall on Dec. 27. A request was made by James Allen to club members for autos to transport the blind for this occasion.

Virgil James, bulletin editor of the Rotary Club, was announced as the winner of the prize for the best bulletin published by clubs with a membership of 60 or over in the province of Ontario.

Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Dinner, Installs Officers

The Ladies' Auxiliary to B. of R.T., held their annual dinner at the Queens Hotel with 27 members and three new candidates present.

After the dinner, the members and candidates adjourned to the lodge rooms where initiation and installation of officers took place.

Miss Isabel Taverner and her staff of officers completed a year of service on Wednesday last and Mrs. H. Quinsey installed the 1952 term of officers as follows: past president, Miss Isabel Taverner, president; Mrs. William Smith; vice-president, Mrs. Robert Noyes; chaplain, Mrs. George Clapper; conductress, Mrs. Clayton Gilroy; warden, Mrs. F. J. Savage; treasurer, Mrs. William Morgan; secretary, Mrs. Charles Coleman; inner guard, Mrs. Lena Addy; outer guard, Mrs. James Kitchen; legislative representative, Mrs. F. Savage; delegate, Mrs. B. Berry; acting past president, Mrs. H. Quinsey, and pianist, Mrs. J. White.

Mr. J. White ably assisted at the piano and rendered appropriate music which helped to make the installation an impressive service.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Isabel Taverner and her fellow officers by Mr. H. Quinsey for the success of the past year.

The retiring president was given the past president's pin from the lodge. Miss Isabel Taverner also received a purse from the officers and members in appreciation of the wonderful work done in the past and a wish for every success in her new position in Toronto.

Miss Taverner graciously thanked the officers and members for their gift; for the splendid co-operation and attendance in the past term and wished the officers for 1952 every success.

A vote of thanks was also tendered Mrs. L. Reynolds and committee for the splendid arrangement made for the dinner.

Pr. Ed. Women's Club Donates $25 For Christmas Cheer

With Mrs. Lent presiding the Christmas meeting of Prince Edward Women's Club opened with the singing of carols, followed by a poem, "What Can a Mother Give Her Child?" read by Mrs. Wannamaker.

It was decided to send Mrs. Helen B. Anderson, who is a patient in Picton Hospital, and whose poems have been so greatly appreciated, a shower of Christmas cards.

The old, old story of the birth and early life of Christ was presented to the club in flannelgraph, by Mrs. Gault, East Bridge Street.

The club was also pleased to again welcome Major Honeychurch and Mrs. Honeychurch, who led in the carol singing with accordion accompaniment. Mrs. Honeychurch gave the story of "One Little Grey Sheep".

Following a short devotional period, Major Honeychurch was presented with a cheque for $25 to be used for Christmas cheer.

Mrs. George Sweetnam, Hillside Street, gave an interesting reading.

Appreciation was tendered to all those assisting in the program, to Mrs. Osborne for the Christmas cake; and to the refreshment committee, Mesdames Pierson, Barber, Spencer, M. B. Button, Earle, Ackerman, Lent, and to the conveners Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Roblin.

There were 28 members and 15 visitors present. The collection amounted to $14.50.

Alpha Lambda Chapter Entertained At Christmas Party

Following the carol sing Santa appeared and distributed the attractively wrapped gifts, and a social time ensued.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

Plainfield. — The Christmas meeting of the Plainfield W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. Archie Meeks with 30 adults and nine children present.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Kerr.

Mrs. Bertrand took charge of a well prepared Christmas program: Mrs. Salmon gave a reading: "The real meaning of Christmas is to be at peace with all men, and the desire to enter into the joys of children."

The motto, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" was given by Mrs. Frank Treverton. She said "the idea of giving is like flowers: the more you pick them the more they bloom".

Mrs. Vance gave an instrumental selection and Mrs. Wilder favored with a vocal solo.

Mrs. Mabel Hubble gave a reading, "Going Home For Christmas".

Mrs. Garnet Denyes gave a demonstration on the various ways of wrapping Christmas gifts.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the ladies.

NOT ENOUGH RECRUITS

Port Arthur, Dec. 18 — (CP) — The Salvation Army bowed to the machine age this Christmas. Instead of the traditional trumpet and drum band, the army now is using a sound truck with records. The reason: not enough recruits for the band.

Christmas Supper Enjoyed by Evening Branch W.A.

Last evening, 34 members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church, enjoyed their Christmas supper party and program in the Parish Hall. The tables were attractively arranged with poinsettia-decorated cloths and serviettes centred with glistening miniature Christmas trees flanked by red candles in holders.

Following the supper, the president, Mrs. H. Ingram, welcomed all and extended season's greetings.

Mrs. G. G. Wright spoke of happy associations with the group and Mrs. E. Hickey told of the legend of the cattle at Christmas and recited "The Cattle in the Stall", by Nina Moore Jamieson.

Two much appreciated solos were sung by Canon J. B. Creeggan, "Garden of Happiness", and "Tomorrow Will Be Friday", with Mrs. J. Hibbard accompanying on the piano.

Mr. Arthur Simpson with his record player presented several numbers from the Boys' School of Church Music as well as a fine recording of Dickens' "Christmas Carol".

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN)

Display your Christmas cards to say "Hi! It's Christmas! Welcome!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What do you think about displaying the family's Christmas cards? Do you agree with my sister, who considers this "show-off", or do you agree with me that displaying the cards is in perfectly good taste? —Betty E.

I'm most enthusiastically for this all-out-for-Christmas plan of displaying Christmas cards! And I heartily agree with you that it's in good taste. Indeed why isn't it in good taste? Persuade your sister not to be stuffy about this charming idea, and not to hold back the family's enthusiasm (as I imagine she is trying to do).

It's fun to see how we can display our Christmas cards so that they will 'look prettiest in our Christmas song." It's fun to be a home-decorator and design a personality-pattern for these gala, heart-warming cards that are so gaily arriving. And think how highly complimented your relatives and friends will be at finding their card-remembrances so joyously and 'personally' displayed. You can make a glowing Card Tree, an entire Christmas tree, a green or blue or all-white one, with Christmas cards the only decoration. Or next to the family Christmas tree, have a pert, smaller, "sister" tree entirely garlanded with cards. Or, for the background, use a folding floor-screen ,or large heavy sheets of red or green or gold or silver thumb-tacked to the picture-molding, or the mantelpiece shelf, or a large mirror. Particularly beautiful cards may be pasted on lace paper dollies these to be displayed perhaps on a special drapery, or on a mirror, or on a large wreath or greenery-garland. It's a fitting idea to collect the religious cards and display them together, perhaps on the mantelpiece shelf. To make the family name-group of cards on a large mirror grou pof cards on a large mirror in the formation of the initial of the family-surname.

Questions concerning showers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are having many family discussions about the showers for the two approaching weddings in our family.

(1) I have always thought that bridal showers were correctly given by a close friend of the bride. But now we are told by several people that they should be given by a close friend of the bride's mother.

(2) Should the prizes won at a bridal shower be given to the bride for her new home, or may the guests who won the prizes take them home? —T. K.

(1) Usually, and most often, and really most correctly, a bridal shower is given by an intimate friend of the bride-to-be, or by a group of her friends. It is correct also for a friend of the mother of the bride-to-be, if she wishes, to give a general shower, often for guests of various ages.

(2) Surely it makes sense that the person who wins a prize should keep it. . . and this is the form customarily followed today. If the hostess wishes to provide another "prize" . . .this really a gift. . . she should provide a so-called "guest prize" for the guest of honor.

Food for Thought

Just One Week Until Christmas

By Mary Moore

I can't make idle talk today. So many of you want cookie recipes that I haven't yet given you that there will be no room for my daily palaver.

This will answer Mrs. George H. P. (the cookie part of her letter), W.K.C., Mrs. C.D., and listener in the audience who says her Filbert Cookies stick on the cookie sheet (but did not sign her name).

I think you should make shortbreads, Mrs. George H. P., becausa it carries so well in the mail. Wrap every individual piece in a small square of wax paper or aluminum foil. I did this and they arrived at their destination in perfect condition.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD
(With variation)

One cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup confectioners' sugar, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-3 teaspoon salt. Cream the butter well and gradually cream the sugar into it. Stir in dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Roll out on very thinly floured board to 1-4 inch thickness, patting as your roll and cut for this dough has a tendency to split at the edges. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. on ungreased cookie sheet until crisp but not at all browned. Some may be sprinkled with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. To one-third of the dough add some ground blanched almonds or finely chopped cashews. Into these little nut cookies press a half piece of whatever nut you have used.

W.K.C. wanted shortbread too so there it is. Ginger Creams are very close to the gingerbar cookies with almond you describe.

GINGERBARS OR GINGER CREAMS
(For W.K.C.)

Two-thirds cup good quality shortening, 1 1-4 cups brown sugar, 1 cup pale molasses (do not use dark blackstrap), 5 1-2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon each soda, ginger and cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup hot water or coffee, 1 cup chopped raisins, blanched and split almonds (for top). Cream the shortening well, then beat the sugar into it, and add molasses and beat well again. Sift and measure floor and sift it with the salt, soda and spices. Add the dry ingredients to the first mixture alternately with the hot water or coffee. Beat until well mixed. Add raisins. Spread dough on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 to 375 for about 20 minutes. When they have been in oven for ten minutes, remove them and press half almonds at even intervals all over top. Return to oven to finish baking. Cut in oblongs when cool. If you care to, you may omit the almonds during baking time, frost the cookies with simple frosting when cold, and press half almonds into the frosting before it sets.

PLAIN WHITE COOKIES
(For Mrs. C.D.)

One or 1 1-2 cups shortening best quality of butter, 1 1-2 cups icing sugar, 2 egg yolks, 4 cups unsifted flour. Cream the shortening until light and continue creaming while you add the sugar gradually. Beat in yolks. Add the flour which has been sifted after measuring. Roll out on lightly floured board to 1-8 or 1-4 inch thickness. Cut out with scalloped cutter and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 10 minutes. Sour cream cookies in two weeks' time.

FILBERT COOKIES
(For reader who did not sign her name.)

One-half cup shortening, 2-3 cup brown sugar well packed, 1 beaten egg, 1 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-3 cup chopped filberts (or pecans). Cream shortening and sugar together well, then beat in egg. Sift the flour with the cream of tartar and add them with the nuts to the creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet and bake in slow oven (300 deg. Fahr.) for about 12 minutes. Remove from pan at once with spatula. These cookies will not stick to pan if you grease it before baking, and remove them from it at once after baking.

Good luck to all you cookie makers.

Fashion Flashes

BRIGHT STAR of a recent showing was an evening dress of honey-beige silk satin with a deep halter neckline of mink. For the rest, a front-buttoned tunic flares widely over a street-length sheath skirt of the handsome dress.

TAKES A FINE LINE to wear those strapless sheath dresses, but it's worth dieting off the pounds to be able to wear one well. A charmer is composed of stripes of black velvet woven on black silk faille for a narrow striped or tucked effect from the deep, strapless neckline—through which a velvet ribbon is laced—to the slim skirt. Skirt is crossed with woven velvet bands of graduating width from the hem to just below the knee.

THIS IS THE YEAR for a velvet suit, for never was this pretty fashion so well handled. Silk velvet is used for a handsome suit. The skirt has a taffeta petticoat attached at the waistband, and the jacket has parachute-pleated sleeves, square rhinestone buttons and a short peplum.

IMAGINATION has played a major part in many of the beautiful accessories imported for the new season . From France comes a big bag in burnished brown leather lined with champagne beige suede. It has a softly fluted skirt and the tip is rimmed by a belt strap and gilt-metal-tipped buckle.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You can't hold a husband by force

There are far better ways of holding a man than by letting him know that you intend to keep him tightly tied to you.

You can figure it out for yourself. It has to do with the natural human feeling of resentment toward being forced to do anything. If a man is aware that his wife is trying to force him to stay with her, it often makes him more eager than ever to get away from her, just to show her that she really has no power over him. Conversely, if he knows he's free to stay or leave, as he pleases, he's much more apt to stay.

Here's a woman who, faced with that most heartbreaking of problems, an unfaithful husband, is obviously making this sort of tactical error.

"This is the old story again," she writes. "My husband started running around with a married woman three years ago, and it's been a constant heartbreak ever since. I don't know where it is all going to end, but I know one thing, and that is, he will never get a divorce from me. I would like to know what steps I could take to break this thing up."

Approach With Understanding

Now as I have just suggested, this wife makes a bad mistake to say flatly that her husband will never get a divorce from her. For as already suggested, such an attitude at once creates an atmosphere of bitterness in which it will be completely impossible for her to solve anything. No marital problem is ever solved until at least one of the two people involved in it is willing to approach it with all the tolerance, understanding and reasonableness that can possibly be summoned up.

So, first and most important, she should make it clear to her husband that he is entirely free to make his own choice whether to go or stay.

Next, she should examine the relationship between the two of them and see if it could be strengthened anywhere. What could she herself do, for instance, to make it happier?

Many wives think they are doing all they can to make a happy home for a husband when they simply keep the house neat and have dinner ready when he gets home. That's not enough. In fact, neither of those things, nor both of them together, will do any good at all, if the neatness of the house is spoiled by an atmosphere of hostility, and the best-cooked meal in the world loses its taste if it is served grudgingly.

Improve Attitude

Then, besides doing what she can to improve her own attitude and the spirit that prevails in their home, she should check also on her outside activities to make sure her life is not made up solely of housekeeping and waiting around for her husband. She should get interested in as many things outside her home as she has time for, as this will not only make her happier by giving her less opportunity to brood over her troubles, but it will also provide her with things to tell her husband about when they are together. Under present circumstances, it is very likely that all she has to talk to her husband about is how he is neglecting her, and how lonely she is, which will certainly do nothing toward improving the situation.

The whole point is, that a husband who wanders is usually searching for something he does not find at home.

It is quite possible that what he wants, or thinks at the time he wants, is something his wife, with all the best will in the world, is not able to give him. If that is so, of course; if what he is after is either outside her nature, her ability, or even outside the bounds of reason, then that is something else again and may call for more drastic action.

But no wife should take such a fact for granted. She should first find out what may be lacking in herself or in their home environment which her husband goes to seek elsewhere. If she does this conscientiously and well, she has a good chance of outwitting that "other woman".

BEAUTY

Keep physically fit and look snappy

Health is fashionable. No longer do women dwell on their operations. Women have practically forgotten how to cry—or most of them, anyway. It makes their noses red and they look terrible. When a guy takes a gal to a party he doesn't want her to look wilted before it is time to go home. So keep fit.

Good health is largely the result of protecting and developing the body, as we are coming more and more to realize. Good health means bright eyes, cheek roses that are not dipped out of the rouge compact, fine figures, pleasant dispositions—because the better one feels the better is one's behavior toward one's fellow creatures.

We need sunlight, fresh air, long hours of sleep, nutritious food, emotional control and exercise. Women do not have sufficient physical activity, though the homebody probably thinks she gets more than she needs. It isn't the right kind. Exercise should be interesting, should not be drudgery. That is why outdoor sports offer the best means of keeping the musculature strong, the fibres resilient.

Simple breathing exercises are helpful in keeping the physical frame young. Learn to breathe with the abdomen contracted, thus forcing the ribs to rise. Try it, this minute, just for fun. See what it does for you. If you are afflicted with a sagging tummy this type of breathing will, in time, tuck it away where it belongs, smack up against your backbone.

Along with a flat chest one finds rounded shoulders and a weak back. But your chest will be normal if you can devote ten minutes each day to arm-swinging exercises. Double up one fist and swing it high, wide and handsome, as if you were swinging a lantern. Six times with one hand, six times the other and repeat. Double your fists, with your hands straight out in front; lift them high; lift your chest; send the arms out at the sides and back to first position. Good muscle tone is essential to health, and is necessary for an attractive silhouette.

If calesthenics do not appeal, a twenty minute walk each day will contribute toward health and good looks. Wear comfortable, low-heeled oxfords with flexible leather soles. Lift your chest and flatten your tummy. Assume a determined, forceful stride, as if you were eager to get to your destination. Your arms shoud swing six inches in front of, and six inches behind, the middle line of your body. Walking rouses all the muscles into action. So put on your boots this very day, and keep going.

Fresh Blast Of Sub-Zero Weather on Way

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP) —More snow fell over the United States mid-west today and a fresh blast of sub-zero cold was on the way. Meanwhile, the death toll from last weekend's severe wintry weather rose to 151.

The snowstorm, borne by winds of 20 to 25 miles an hour, moved eastward.

The storm centre which moved from the centrals plains to the Chicago area early today brought snow over the upper Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes region southward to the Ohio Valley.

It was far below zero early today in most of the northern plains states as the cold air mass pushed across the Canadian border.

Temperatures moderated in the eastern states after yesterday's severe cold.

Film Council Reports Growing Interest in Work

At the December meeting of the Belleville and District Film Council, held at Corby Library, Thursday evening, Olive Delaney secretary treasurer, reported a full booking of Christmas films and a keen interest in the community service being rendered by the film council.

John Chard, president explained the plans for a film workshop, to be held in January under the sponsorship of Picton, South Hastings and Belleville film councils. A representative from the community programs branch of the Ontario Department of Education will conduct the film demonstrations and discussions. These will be of especial interest to adult educational groups, service clubs and other organizations in the city and to secondary and primary teachers in both urban and rural communities.

Plans were completed for a series of radio broadcasts to be undertaken by the council.

An account of the Peterborough Film Council discussion group and its activities in December was given by Ron Ward.

Mr. Ward commented on the growing interest in this phase of film council work in eastern Ontario.

London, Dec. 17 (AP)—An echo-suppressing gadget will be tried out in St. Paul's Cathedral Wednesday. 3 Feet of Snow In Watertown Isolates City

Watertown, N.Y., Dec. 18 (AP) —A blizzard swept in from Lake Ontario yesterday, dumped more than three feet of snow on Watertown and virtually isolated the city.

The snow driven by 35-to 40-mile-an-hour winds blanketed an area within a 25-mile radius of Watertown. All road travel in the area came to a halt.

Air travel also was at a standstill. The New York Central Railroad said it would operate passenger runs from Watertown to Syracuse, but all trains were hours late.

Drifts in the city reached a height of six feet. They piled even higher in the country.

A similar, less severe local snow storm hit the Buffalo area. About five inches had fallen in the city by evening and more than two feet in the southern suburbs.

Tonnage Carried Through Canals Sets New Record

(By The Canadian Press)

The 1951 Great Lakes navigation season has ended in a blizzard of snowflakes and sub-zero cold, five days later than last year.

But the shipping period, which ended yesterday with the tanker Cedar Branch passing through the Welland Canal, may have set a record for tonnage carried.

Tonnage through the Welland Canal up to Dec. 8 totalled 16,009,952 compared with 14,690,614 last year. Substantial increases were noted in the movement of grain, oil, ore and miscellaneous goods such as pulpwood, flour and automobiles. There was a slight drop in coal.

Closing of the canal ended inter-lake navigation, though there may still be vessel movements on the lower lakes. Today tenders were still lifting buoys and other warning devices from the shipping lanes.

The United States Coastguard buoy tender Mesquite was caught in an ice flow in the St. Mary's River near Sault Ste. Marie yesterday. The ice breaker Mackinac set out from St. Ignace, Mich., and freed her last night.

At Goderich, Ont., navigation closed yesterday with the sailing of the Imperial Oil tanker Cobourg, the same ship which opened the season April 17.

The lakehead closing last Saturday was the latest in 10 years.

The last of Owen Sound's winter fleet of 12 ships were berthed Saturday. Port Colborne's winter fleet, with two arrivals to come, will number 23.

Unofficial figures on tonnage moved through the Welland Canal up to Dec. 8, with 1950 figures in brackets, showed: grain 4,075,821 (3,585,265); oil 2,605,168 (2,035,000); ore 2,116,120 (1,576,298); coal 4,832,581 (4,999,511); miscellaneous 2,380,259 (2,188,320).

Flood Waters Reach Highest Point Recorded

The ice jam in the lower St. Mary's River blamed for the flood broke up last night and started to move downstream. As it cleared away the flood waters began to draw back from the inundated streets, parks and docks near the river.

Damage is expected to be heavy.

The McLean Sand and Gravel Company was submerged, the Imperial Oil dock and other waterfront buildings were flooded, and water nearly reached the 80 power turbines of the Electrical Carbide Company.

Efforts to close off the flood waters upstream were hampered by ice blocking open the gates of the power dam that serves both United States and Canadian Saults.

Boats that had been pulled 100 feet up onto the shore for the winter were reached by the flood. Some had been drilled through the hull for drainage, these sank in their sheds.

Deputy Sheriff Wounds Wife, Kills Companion

Detroit, Dec. 18—(CP)—John L. Ryan, 53, allegedly shot and wounded his wife and killed her male companion when he found them together at his wife's home Sunday night.

Ryan, a deputy sheriff and a justice of the peace and an ex-convict, sobbed his confession to police while his wife Eva, 38, lay on an operating table and her companion, Conrad King, 36, lay dead with five bullet wounds.

He said he shot the two because "they were trying to take my children from me." There are four Ryan children, aged from 14 to 21. Ryan and his wife had been living separately for a year.

$150,000 FIRE LOSS

Saint John, N. B., Dec. 18 (CP) — A two-alarm fire early today gutted the one-storey building of Saint John Motors Ltd. Loss was estimated at $150,000. Several of the 60 cars in the garage were destroyed.

Mystery of Fake Ballots Keeps Port Arthur Agog

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 18. (CP) —The mystery of the fake ballots kept Port Arthur agog today.

City Council, perturbed over the counterfeit mayoralty ballots found blowing about in the streets last week, decided last night that ballot boxes used in the Dec. 10 municipal elections should be opened and examined.

The confusion over the fake ballots deepened, with mayor-elect Cox saying yesterday he thought the whole thing was a "gigantic hoax". However Harold Stanworth, who has printed civic election ballots here for 35 years, said Sunday night that the fakes "might possibly have been waste" used to clean the type on which the ballots were printed.

Detective O. Hartl also told council that ballots made in testing the printing machine before the regular run were crumpled and thrown into a refuse box which had been placed outside the printing shop Dec. 11. The seven forms found, five of them counterfeit, also were crumpled.

But Mayor Robinson asserted that the five bogus ballots were found on the morning before the refuse box reached the street. In other comment, Alderman Russell Brown said he had found one subdivision where there were more ballots in the box than the number of persons who voted.

FOR INDIAN READERS

Cutknife, Sask. — (CP)—John Tootoosis, president of the Union of Saskatchewan Indians, has announced that the new Federal Indian Act is being translated into the Cree language.

Former Member Of Parliament Dies in Calgary

Calgary, Dec. 18—(CP)—Arthur LeRoy Smith, one of the House of Commons' wittiest debaters and counsel in many famous legal cases, died last night.

The 65-year-old lawyer, a King's Counsel for 25 years, died suddenly in hospital. Mr. Smith had been elected a Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament in the 1945 and 1949 general elections.

Mr. Smith died of a cerebral hemorrhage. His physician said the attack was the summation of an illness that forced him to resign his seat early this year.

Only a week earlier, C. O. Nickle, 37-year-old oil journalist and a Progressive Conservative, had been elected to fill the Commons vacancy caused by Mr. Smith's resignation.

Born in Regina, he attended public and high school in that city. He graduated from the University of Manitoba in 1905 with a Batchelor of Arts degree. Three years later he graduated from Osgoode Hall in Toronto as a lawyer.

His first big case came when he successfully defended Tommy Burns, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, and Arthur Pelky on manslaughter charges following the death of Luther McCarthy in a Calgary bout with Pelky in 1912.

When he went to parliament in 1945, he was already known as a brilliant lawyer. He had acted in Ottawa as a counsel in the 1932 Beauharnois Power Development probe, a keen political issue at the time.

A keen sportsman, Mr. Smith participated actively in hockey, lacrosse, soccer, baseball, golf and curling. After coming to Calgary he refereed hockey games.

He was married in 1912 to Sara Isabel Ryan of Winnipeg. Two children, Arthur R. Smith and Mrs. Eric J. Yorath, both of Calgary, survive. There are four grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal Of Sask. Premier

Ottawa, Dec. 18 —(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada Mon., dismissed the appeal of Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan and upheld a lower court decision ordering a new trial in the $100,000 slander and libel action launched against him by Walter Tucker, the province's Liberal leader.

The unanimous decision of the supreme court, which can be appealed to the Imperial Privy Council, was on a case which developed out of the Saskatchewan 1948 provincial election campaign.

Mr. Tucker, a Rosthern, Sask., lawyer charged that certain statements concerning his business activities, made by the premier, during the campaign, were libelous and slanderous.

When a trial judge dismissed his suit for damages, the Liberal leader took the case to the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, which ordered a new trial.

Mr. Douglas appealed to the supreme court, claiming that the appeal court erred in directing a new trial, and that the charges against him should be wiped out.

Mrs. Willis, in the business for six years, has packed 245 boxes of apples in an eight-hour shift.

More than 80 types of skies will be tested.

SNOW CANCELS MEET

A spokesman said the track itself was in condition but reports indicated highways from Washington and Baltimore were packing with snow.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma left me at pop's office this afternoon so she could give all her attention to shopping instead of having to give some of it to me, and she made pop promise to stop on his way home and buy a mecanical toy for ma's dressmaker's little boy, so we went to Hookbinders and took an elevater up to the toy department.

Being the most crowded elevater I was ever in, and when we got out of it pop said, Are you still breething, Benny?

Sure, aint you? I said, and he said, Well, with difficulty. A good many years ago I used to injoy this sort of thing, but now I seem ti need more oxygen in my air.

And we got in and out of some more crowds trying to find the mecanical toys, and pop bawt an elefant that sat up on its hine legs and wobbeled, probably being all rite for a little kid, and pop said, The werst it yet to come.

How do you meen? I said, and he said, We've got to get down to the main floor again, and I'm feeling weaker every minute.

And we stopped to watch a buntch of little kids waiting in a line to tell Santa Claws what they wanted, and pop said to the ferst kid in line, Excuse me, sunny, I beleeve Im ahead of you.

Which by that time he was, saying to the Santa Claws, Say, old boy, can you werk miracles? Can you tell me how to reach the street without suffocating in an elevater; he said, and the Santa Claws said, As a matter of fact I can. I'm due for a half hour break rite now, I'll take you down with me in the employees elevater, he said.

And we followed him and went down in a big elevater with nuthing in it but us and a lot of boxes, and pop said to the Santa Claws, By gollies, I've never stopped beleeving in Santa Claws, and now my faith has been rewarded. Stick these in your stocking, he said.

The task of arm-waving orchestra conductors has been made lighter since someone dreamed up the idea of making batons of aluminum. This gave us the notion that aluminum bull-fiddles would be a lot lighter to lug around. But, sure enough, someone had thought of that, too! Aluminum certainly lightens the load for lots of people these days—and in lots of ways.

To make more of this metal available Alcan is embarked on a further long-range expansion programme which will run to a quarter of a billion dollars. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Hawklets Defeat Peterborough Links 12-2; Draw Closer To Top Spot

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A GOOD ONE!

The junior Hawks came up with a fine brand of hockey last night to hang a 12-2 defeat on the plucky Peterborough Triple-Links. "Red" Doran's voteless crew got one of the best games of the season out of their collective systems with every man jack on the squad turning in a fine performance. They skated fast and hard going both ways, combined like veterans and from the first three minutes when they rapped in three quickies, the game was in the Hawk's nest.

Hector Lalonde, just about the smoothest smoothie in this junior set-up had a field day at the expense of the Petes juniors. The dark-haired youngster banged home four goals while his playmaking and general ice-lane behavior was a treat to watch. George Jacklin and Billy Strahan, the other members of the Production Line also came through handsomely with the tireless George getting five assists and young William a trio of markers.

The rest of the squad was not far behind. Brown and Barclay were the heroes defensively with the pipeminder like the proverbial turkey apparently improving with age. The lad kicked out a lot of Peterborough rubber and his efforts kept the visitors score down to what it was.

The Linkmen, so Fred Maybee informed us, were short some players but the Liftlock crew put up a gallant fight against a better team on the night's play and they deserve a lot of credit for a never-give-up fight. This boy Robinson is a star in the making and we'll take him for our side any time we get the opportunity. Young Master Batley who, we are told made his second appearance in the twine, was a dancing jack all evening. At that the youngster came up with some sparkling stops especially when the Hawks sifted in on him on lone sorties.

PETES TOMORROW . . .

What looms up to be one of the senior "B" classics of the current season is that Hawks-Peterborough Petes senior "B" clash here tomorrow night. These Petes are now riding high on the group top perch after that 15-4 crusher they handed the Kingston Essanays in Peterborough last night, and the pesky cusses may be hard to subdue. They got away to a slow start and have been gaining momentum steadily since. They're two points ahead of the Hawks and the Doran crew would like nothing better than to deflate the Petes tomorrow evening. Should be quite a tussle.

SEZ SMITTY!

Doug Smith, Canadiens hockey broadcaster, and one of the best radio sports announcers, let go a torrid blast at the Detroit Red Wings management and coach on his Sunday night air waving that must have turned the Penobscot Building in faroff Detroit a delicate shade of pink.

Smith blasted the Wings for their kitty-bar-the-door tactics after scoring a goal while over 14,000 fanatical Habitant fans "ate" their programs, tore their hair and almost committed mayhem on their seat-neighbors. The Wings, he said, lined up five abreast on their own blueline and practically dared the Hawks to "come into my parlor".

Detroit, one of the best if not the best, and certainly boasting the starriest aggregation of players in the National Hockey League deliberately stalled and played strictly defensive tactics before a record crowd who paid them tribute by packing the Forum to the doors, Smith said. He poured tonsilar rebuffs on Coach Tommy Ivan, whom, he claimed, ordered that style of play.

Smith dwelt at some length on the tour of Glen Dobbs, starry Saskatchewan Rough Riders import star, who ras been scouting eastern college teams for Rider material for next year. He stated that "Black Jack" Smith, Rider coach who was "fired" confided in him to that extent before the axe fell.

Smith came up with the announcement that Dobbs will be the Rider "player-coach" in 1952, "although he does not know it yet". Dobbs he said, will be the only player - coach extant next year, and observed that the Rider management was showing signs of canny business tactics when they "get a player-and-coach for approximately the same money".

Condolences go out to Gerry Wagar, Queen's U. hockey and baseball star in his recent sad bereavement . . . Something new in hockey rink missiles was noted during a recent west coast game. A referee was felled to the ice when an irate fan fired, but accurately, of all things, a dead duck . . . Has recovered nicely from that serious accident . . . Cobourg Comets decided to be good boys and remain in the OHA fold. They turned down an invite to hook up with the Trent Valley League . . . Peterborough scribe comes up with the crack that the 7-3 shellacking given his Eagles by the Hawks did not indicate the play. "Was much closer" he remarks via remote control. You shoulda seen the game, bub. The score by play indication should have been 10-3 . . . And puleeze, pal, were the Eagles ever beaten by a better team on a night's play, or is that injury alibi going to last forever? . . .

Lalonde Gathers Four Goals In First-Line Scoring Spree; Links Outplayed Throughout

The Belleville Junior Hawks, slamming in three goals in less than three minutes after the start of the game, had little trouble in subduing the visiting Peterborough Oddfellows by a score of 12-2 at the Memorial Arena on Monday night.

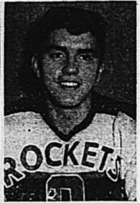
It was the Hawks all the way with the team picking up a total of 25 scoring points, half of which were garnered by the first line of Lalonde, Jacklin and Strahan.

The triple links had hardly a look-in in the first two periods and a half although some sensational stops by Barclay robbed them on a couple of occasions. Playing with only 12 men, the visitors seemed to lack organization and could not get going for any concentrated drives.

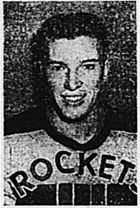
Batley, playing only his second game between the Peterborough pipes, looked rather nervous although he did stop some shots that appeared to have him beaten later in the game. In all fairness to the youthful netminder, the defence by the team in front of him was not of the best.

Score Early

The small crowd of slightly over 400 had hardly gotten settled in their seats when Bill Strahan scored his first of three goals for the evening. Then Don "Darkie" Bigford went off for high sticking and the homesters banged in another pair. The second of these was a high shot by Harry Brown from just outside the blue line that completely baffled Batley.



HEC LALONDE
. . . Gets Four



GEO. JACKLIN
. . . Five Helpers

No more scoring resulted in that period although five more penalties were levied, all to the Hawks, and the Oddfellows had a two-man advantage at one time. It was during that time that Barclay came up with a fine effort to protect the lead.

Lalonde fired his second, third and fourth markers to pace the homesters in the second period with Gilmour and Strahan accounting for each one. George Jacklin set up three of the counters. Play was predominately in the visitor's end of the ice.

Strahan and Ray Carey netted two more clean goals before the Oddfellows finally hit the score sheet when Twist and Bigford passed around Brown, the lone defenceman back to beat Barclay on a rebound.

Don Houle and Henry Therrien picked corners to add to the Hawks already impressive total before Stewart and Robinson combined in the last minute of play for the final goal.

BILLY STRAHAN
. . . Hat-Tricker

Despite the fact that 12 penalties were handed out, ten of which were to the homesters, it was a very cleanly played game, all offences being for very minor although justifiably called offences.

The first line of Lalonde, Jacklin and Strahan were once again the most formidable unit on the ice, picking up 12 scoring points. Wilson on defence and Barclay in the nets also played commendable games as the whole team played well as a unit.

"Red" Robinson was once again the outstanding performer of the triplelinks while Coyle and Twist deserve honorable mention.

The teams:

Marlies Brass Object To Player's Diet

The youthful right winger of Toronto Marlboros Ontario Hockey Association Junior A club being groomed for the jump to Toronto Maple Leafs, became a yogurt-grape-apple convert as a track man under coach Lloyd Percival. Underweight for hockey, he again took up the Percival-prescribed diet.

His weight went up, but not enough to convince Marlboro and Leaf officials that it was because of the new diet.

The brass objects that while the diet may be fine for a track man, it's no good for a hockey player with three tough games a week.

Cobourg Comets Change Mind

Cobourg, Dec. 18 —(CP) — Players of the Cobourg Comets hockey team last night rejected a proposal to join the Trent Valley League and voted to remain in the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A Lakeshore group.

Jack Skitch, club secretary, said the OHA offered more security and better rinks than the Trent Valley set-up.

The departure of players Coon Medhurst and Bun Flesch and the subsequent loss of four straight games had forced the Comets to consider withdrawing from the Lakeshore group.

Machine Shop Edges Office 3-2

Machine Shop edged the Office team 3-2 in a close well-played Northern Electric Inter-departmental Hockey League game in Memorial Arena last night.

The Shoppers took an early lead when Clark scored the first goal after a minute of play in the first period. Office came back with the tying marker seven minutes later when Thrasher took Woodley's pass to beat Weeks.

Wardhaugh put the Shoppers in the lead with the only goal scored in the second period, hitting the hemp from Weatherall's pass midway through the heat. MacDonald increased the margin to two early in the third period from Wetherall's pass but Office got that one back when Philp scored unassisted.

It was fast clean hockey with Jones and Bone handing out but two penalties.

It was announced that games scheduled for Friday nights will be played on Thursdays in the future.

Good Health THE CANADIAN WAY

Snow, snow . . the gang's all here

Snow usually brings lusty cheers from the children. For them, it's a signal of happy hours ahead, filled with fun and sport.

But grown-ups, with a walk or driveway to shovel, don't always burst into "Bravo" when they look upon a heavy snowfall.

Shovelling snow can be healthful exercise—if you are in good physical shape. Don't go at it too grimly. Take it easy—rest often—let the children help, too. If the fall is too heavy or you are beyond the snow-shovelling age, better turn the job over to a husky youngster.

Toronto, Dec. 18 (CP) —John Kelly, Niagara Falls, Ont., middle-weight, finished strongly to score a unanimous decision over Stratford's Bob Hesson in a five-round main bout of the Ringside Athletic Club Amateur boxing show here last night.

Kelly drepped the first two rounds to the hard-punching Hesson but floored him for an eight count in the fourth.

New York, Dec. 18 (AP) — Chet Nichols, a 20-year-old rookie, was the National League's most effective pitcher in 1951 with an earned run average of .288.

Official figures released today show that the Pawtucket, R.I., youngster who serves them up for Boston Braves allowed 61 runs— only 50 of which were earned—in 156 innings. Chet completed 12 of 19 starts and fashioned three shutouts. He won 11 and lost eight.

Nichols shared the pitching spotlight with Elwin (Preacher) Roe, veteran Brooklyn southpaw, whose spectacular 22-3 mark gave him the highest won-and-lost percentage, .880.

Maglie Second

Three hurlers were under the 3.00 earned run average. Sal Maglie of New York Giants placed second with 2.93 and Warren Spahn, crafty Braves' southpaw, was third with 2.98.

The 34-year-old Maglie placed second on a won-and-lost basis with a 23-6 record to tie teammate Jansen for the most victories. Jansen's 23-11 was fourth best. Third place went to Don Newcombe, big Brooklyn right-hander who won 20 and lost nine.

There were seven 20 game winners, the highest since 1923. The list included Maglie, Jansen, Roe, Spahn (22-14) Robin Roberts of the Phils (21-15), Newcombe and Murray Dickson, who notched a 20-16 record for the seventh-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cliff Chambers, 29-year-old lefthander traded by Pittsburgh to St. Louis in mid-season, pitched the only no-hitter, a 3-0 victory for the Pirates over the Braves May 6.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Star rookie wingman Fred Hucul has been lost indefinitely because of a mysterious muscular disease affecting both legs, Chicago Black Hawks disclosed yesterday.

Hucul, 20, from Eeston, Sask., was one of the brighter National Hockey League prospects until the disease began to slow him three weeks ago.

Hucul has been advised that only rest will cure him.

Norman Hayes, young Boston Negro, made effective use of a left jab and speedier footwork to gain a split decision over Robert Villemain of France in a bruising 10-round feature boxing bout tonight at the Boston Garden. Hayes weighed 163,, a pound less than the former European middleweight titlist.

Johnny Greco, 150, Montreal veteran, stopped Alfred Lagrutta, 144½, of Milan, Italy in 57 seconds of the third round with a right to the body.

At Edmonton, manager Al Anderson of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union said last night that the club expects quarterback Lindy Berry to return to Edmonton in January. Commenting on a Winnipeg report that Berry has enlisted in the United States Army, Anderson said his information is that Berry obtained a deferment until next September.

At Miami, Fla., Charlie Burr, the 17-year-old freckle-faced jockey from Arkansas City, Kas., who has clinched the 1951 national riding title, notched his 296th winner of the year aboard Otto Blank's Deflation in the featured event at Tropical Park yesterday. Deflation paid $29.90, $9.40 and $4.10.

Rain, of all things, forced a basketball game at Sault Ste. Marie to be called at the end of the first half. The roof of the Sault Technical School gymnasium began to leak badly from heavy snow. So much water poured the floor that play became dangerous. Sault Ste. Marie Wildcats, leading Rogers City, Mich., 27-19 at halftime, were awarded the game.

It was the battle of the hydro teams as KVA and Short Circuits tied for first place in the standings, with the latter team being short-circuited for a five point loss.

Other five point winners were Symons, Sun Rays, Smasheroos and Whiz Bangs over Hy Rollers, Egg Heads, Live Wires and Jets. Bombers took all three games from Power Pins while Marketeers failed to appear and forfeited their games against High Liners.

Northern scorers were B. Young, B. Robson and D. Taylor.

The game, which was efficiently handled by Don Dolan and Bill Spafford, lacked the sparkle of midseason performance, but with practise both of these teams will obtain confidence through experience and are sure to give all comers a battle. Bob Ketchesoff was scorer and timekeeper.

Six teams have entered the league which has been organized by the "Y" physical director Ants Juurup. Games will be played at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evenings. Tomorrow night sees Northern Electric "B" tangle with the "Y" Intermediates in the first game at 6.45 p.m. and "Y" Business Girls meet the Nurses in the second game.

Norway Upheld

The Hague, The Netherlands, Dec. 18 — (AP) — The International Jourt of Justice today upheld Norway in her dispute with Britain over fishery rights.

A 10-to-2 decision declared the method used by Norway to mark exclusive fishing zones off her coast line was not contrary to international law as Britain had contended.

The decision concluded two years of litigation in the court, which culminated a 25-year controversy on whether British trawlers could operate in waters reserved by Norway for her own fishermen.

British trawler captains have been arrested and fined in the disputed area.

Sick Missionary Taken from North For Treatment

Montreal, Dec. 18—(CP)—A Canadian air force ace of the Second World War is carrying on his heroic deeds in peacetime, but now he flies more previous cargo—ailing people.

Group Capt. Leonard J. Birchall, of St. Catharines, Ont., "Savior of Ceylon," yesterday completed another successful mercy flight from Canada's Arctic wastelands, bringing a sick missionary back to civilization and proper medical aid.

The flight was another of many such missions since his apointment in July, 1950, as officer commanding the Goose Bay, Labrador, R. C. A. F. station, but it proved to be more eventful than some of the others.

His ski-equipped Dakota aircraft landed with a dead starboard motor and nearly crashed through thin ice covering a lake near the Izuyizik Mission at the north-western tip of Quebec. Huskies were used to pull the craft to safety and it took off Sunday after repairs were made.

The flight started last Friday and ended last night when the plane landed at Dorval Airport carrying Brother Andre Chauvel of Fasseau Blond, Que., a Roman Catholic missionary suffering from hernia. He returned to civilization after 11 years among the Canadian Eskimos.

Birchall was dubbed Ceylon's saviour in 1942 when he spotted the Japanese navy heading for Ceylon in a surprise attack. He was shot down and remained in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp until the end of hostilities.

In April, 1949, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Order of the British Empire for his heroic action.

Oil, Natural Gas Production In Western Canada Makes Big Advances During Year

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton Dec. 18 (CP)—The oil and natural gas industry of western Canada, still a lusty youngster, took on the proportions of a giant in 1951.

It was the industry's greatest year for production, for exploration activities and for cash proceeds. But as 1951 ends, even greater developments are in prospect for next year.

Again it was almost an all-Alberta show in 1951 but the three other western provinces made a spectacular entrance into the picture with promising discoveries. The first oil was found in British Columbia. Saskatchewan added several important oil and gas discoveries under an increased exploration program, and southwestern Manitoba had its first show of oil.

At the year end a second major outlet for Alberta oil appears in prospect. Premier E. C. Manning said the province's production had reached the point where another outlet was needed immediately to keep pace with the capacity of its fast-growing number of producing oil wells.

The best bet was that the oil would be piped to the closest market, the Canadian west coast and the U.S. Pacific northwest where the demand for Alberta crude is mounting. Several companies wishing to pipe Alberta oil to the coast through the Yellowhead or Crow's Nest mountain passes await approval from the Board of Transport Commissioners at Ottawa.

Big Pipe to East

This year saw Alberta crude reach eastern markets in Canada for the first time. The oil, some 13,000,000 barrels of it, flowed through the $90,000,000 interprovincial pipeline, stretching 1,150 miles from Edmonton to the Lakehead from where it was transported by tankers down the Great Lakes.

Plans are to increase this flow to an estimated 18,000,000 barrels next year, and to 26,000,000 barrels in 1953. But oil cannot move across the Great Lakes during the winter. The proposed year-round pipeline to the west coast, which would take a year to build, would help offset this factor and prevent production cut-backs in Alberta.

Natural gas pipelines also were in the news. The Alberta legislature last April approved the first major export of natural gas—south into Montana solely for essential defence production by Anaconda Copper Mining Co. The 70-miles pipeline was completed by year-end and only approval of the U.S. Federal Power Commission was needed to start the gas moving south.

The provincial conservation board, completing three years of exhaustive inquiry into other applications for permits to export gas, was expected to announce soon whether Alberta has an exportable surplus over and above the province's needs for the next 30 years.

Early this year the board decided there was no surplus for export. But the government said it would favor export as soon as adequate reserves were proven. It issued new "incentive" regulations designed to speed gas exploration. Reserves soon multiplied to the point where authoritative sources estimate they were at least double the province's 30-year requirement.

Most of the companies seeking gas export permits want to ship the gas to the west coast and the Pacific northwest. Others want to send it as far east as Montreal.

Boon to Alberta

Alberta's oil and gas industry developed to such an extent—in one week last August oil output reached a record 180,423 barrels daily—that Premier Manning was moved publicly to envisage the possibility of a tax-free province. The government has mapped out a debt-retirement program by which it hopes to make Alberta debt-free by about 1973. The province has undertaken the west's most ambitious road program, and this year started "sharing the wealth" with its municipalities through big annual grants.

This year the government brought in the continent's leading oil and engineering experts to discuss the feasibility of extracting the oil from the sands and marketing it. They agreed with S. M. Blair of Toronto, the government's oil stands engineer, who reported in January that the sands could be economically tapped.

New developments are expected soon in this phase of the oil hunt. The government already has announced its policy on royalties and leases for the oil sands and has promised every reasonable inducement to firms pioneering the work.

During the year Alberta also increased its royalties on oil production. Generally, they were favorably received by the oil industry. Under the new scale, effective for the next ten years, the average royalty paid the government will be nearly 14 per cent compared with the former average of between nine and ten.

Some Field Problems

The year was not without its problems. Pressure at the fabulous Redwater field, accounting for about half of Alberta's output, was discovered to be decreasing at an alarming rate because of the great withdrawal of oil, especially since the interprovincial pipeline went into operation. The operators planned to carry out a giant water flooding project at the field next year to maintain pressure and prevent a substantial loss in the ultimate oil recovery.

Development work at Redwater was coming to a virtual standstill at year-end as the productive limits of the field were being reached. Discovered in 1948—it was the world's biggest field discovery of that year—Redwater appeared to be nearing a maximum of close to 900 oil producers. In 1950 Redwater accounted for an average of 35 new oil wells each month; this year the average was about 12 and tending lower.

The Leduc field, whose discovery in February, 1947, heralded Alberta's new oil era, headed development activity towards the end of the year.

No new major fields like Redwater or Leduc were discovered in 1951. But a number of smaller fields, especially at Wizard Lake west of Leduc, gave great promise. A Wizard Lake well uncovered a pay zone of 603 feet of oil-bearing strata, one of the thickest on the continent.

Important discoveries of heavy crude and natural gas were made in the Kindersley and Coleville districts of Saskatchewan, about 120 miles southwest of Saskatoon. More oil and gas wells were brought in at Lloydminster, still Saskatchewan's only major producing field.

Talk of oil and gas pipelines to the west coast gained new impetus with the discovery late in the year of light crude oil at a wildcat well near Fort St. John in northeastern British Columbia near the Alberta border. The find spurred development work in that region.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Leaping Lena System is for and with palooka bridge players. A palooka uses it because he knows no better signals. An expert uses it with a palooka who knows no better signals.

Good bridge partners do not jump their bids too high if lower bids will accomplish their aim. With such players each kind of a jump has its own meaning.

A one-jump bid is a universal signal that orders a partnership not to stop bidding until a game is reached. If a one-jump bid answers the purpose, a higher jump is avoided. Study the jump in this deal:

NORTH
♠10 9 8 5 4 2
♥4 2
♦Q
♣9 7 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠A 7 6 3	♠None
♥A	♥K Q J 9 8 7 6
♦K 9 7 3 2	♦10 5
♣Q J 10	♣K 6 5 3

SOUTH
♠K Q J
♥10 5 3
♣A 8

South opened with a bid of one diamond. West made a double for takeout. North passed. East bid two hearts. South passed. West bid two no-trump. North bid three spades. What does east do now?

The east two heart bid was a one-jump signal to keep the bids alive to game. So, if east has nothing more to say he may pass. Why?

There is a signal afloat which says the east and west pair will not let the bidding stop at less than a game contract. The last bid so far mentioned is three spades by north.

Why would east be free to pass in this spot? Because if north has made the latest bid, west will still have a chance to bid again. And west should not pass because of the signal.

But east has something more to say. His heart suit is rebiddable. Therefore, east should bid again to show the rebiddability of this suit. The bid by east in this spot is four hearts.

When east bids four hearts, the obligation for west to bid again ceases. Because the jump bid by east required only that the bidding be kept alive to game. And four hearts is a game contract.

After a game-force jump, one partner may pass if the other has a chance to bid. Just so long as one or the other keeps open to game.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

The returnee is Mitzi Green, a veteran of 25 years in show business but a youthful 31.

Twenty years ago she played Becky Thatcher opposite Jackie Coogan's Tom Sawyer, and cavorted with Wheeler and Woolsey in "Girl Crazy."

Mitzy, now the mother of three children, is acting as one of the foils for Abbott and Costello in another of their far-flung epics, "Lost in Alaska."

"Naturally, I felt a little jumpy about doing a picture after 15 years away," she remarked. "When I arrived on the set, Jean Yarbrough, the director, suggested that I run through the scene. I went through it breezily."

Since then she's been getting along swimmingly.

Mitzi, the daughter of a vaudeville team, was entertaining backstage at four. It wasn't long before she was doing her stuff onstage. She got her break in pictures in 1929, at the age of eight.

Since 1936 she has been in Broadway shows, vaudeville and night club work.

Steel Workers Give Ultimatum To Government

Pittsburgh, Dec. 18 — (AP) — Strike ultimatum by the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.) put up to the government today the next move to stave off an economically - crippling national steel strike New Year's Day.

Philip Murray, president of the million - member union, says a strike is unavoidable unless the industry grants a 15-cent hourly pay boost and other concessions.

Government sources say present wage ceilings would permit an increase of only eight to nine cents an hour.

The union estimates average hourly earnings of its members at $1.92. The American Iron and Steel Institute, an association of steel firms, says the figure is $1.97.

Murray's steelworkers have had five wage boosts since the end of the Second World War but the veteran union chief said average earnings have not kept pace with inflation.

Murray issued a formal statement yesterday declaring the union's executive board and wage policy committee "have directed ue to call a special convention of the organization January 3, 1952, because of the seriousness of the situation."

Murray said the convention will have the power to accept or reject any proposed settledent that may be worked out by the government by that time.

Guided Missiles Shoot 100 Miles

Philadelphia, Dec. 18 (AP)—An electronic brain checking the flights of guided missiles is showing that they shoot at least 100 miles.

Another is working on the United States 1950 census—and having difficulty learning the job.

A third helps design new electronic brains.

These are a few of the mechanical wonder brains from both sides of the Atlantic whose troubles were disclosed to a meeting of American Institute of Electrical Engineers here last week.

The only wonderful thing is their speed. Otherwise, they are unbelievably big, awkward and rely on well-trained human brains.

The guided-missile brain is an international business machines programmed electronic calculator. Telescopic cameras track a missile on a test range, taking pictures at 100 a second.

Computers then study the pictures to learn exactly what happened. Human computer crews took two weeks to calculate results of a single flight. The electronic brain does it in eight hours.

The brain designed to improve other mechanical brains was built by the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. It aims to discover why these huge brains make mistakes.

Two Marmora men, Kenneth Chrysler and Douglas Bailey, have also been arrested by city police and are charged with the theft of car radios from Bonn's Used Car Lot on Dundas Street. The radios disappeared from cars on the lot about one week ago.

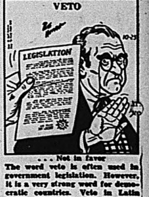
FAMOUS TOWER

The Eiffel Tower in Paris was built by engineer Alexandre Gustave Eiffel as a feature of the 1889 Paris Exposition.

WHY WE SAY



. . . Not in favor

The word veto is often used in government legislation. However, it is a very strong word for democratic countries. Veto in Latin means, "I forbid". In the U. S. a veto does not have half of that power because even the veto of the President can be overruled.

Several members contributed to the birthday box and all joined in singing "Happy Birthday." It was decided to purchase four Christmas Carol books for the choir. Mrs. E. Ray asked for more quilt blocks to be made.

Mrs. Ray was presented with a gift as one of the winners in the recent copper contest.

W.M.S.

Mrs. G. Sills presided at the December meeting of the W.M.S. at the Edmondson home. The treasurer's report showed that the allocation has almost been reached. A wonderful report was given by Mrs. R. Thrasher on behalf of the Mission Band.

A moment of surprise came for Mrs. G. Sills when she was presented with a Life Membership of the W.M.S. by Mrs. R. Thrasher on behalf of her aunt, Miss Hamilton, of Bridge St. W.M.S., Belleville.

A lovely candlelight service was presented. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. L. Hall. The responsive reading was led by Mrs. G. Sills. The response was singing "Come and Worship, Come and Worship, Worship Christ, the New-born King." All joined in singing "Angels From the Realms of Glory." The Magnificat was read in unison. Five members lighted candles for the different nationalities of the world. Mrs. E. Ray lit the candle for the Jews of Canada. An Indian hymn was read and Mrs. J. Kelley lit the candle of goodwill and friendship for the Canadian Indians; a French carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful" was sung and Mrs. R. Hart lit the candle of friendship for the French Canadians; a German carol, "Away in a Manger" was sung and Mrs. B. Roblin lit the candle for those whose ancestors came from Europe to found new homes in Canada; a Polish carol, "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly" was sung and Mrs. D. Thrasher lit the candle for all newcomers to Canada from Europe.

A Canadian carol, "Gentle Mary Laid Her Child", was sung, and Mrs. R. Thrasher lit the candle of Christian love. "To obey the command of Jesus, love thy neighbor as thyself," this truly is to keep Christmas. Love can speak a language all nationalities can understand.

Kelley; group leaders, Mrs. H. Hancock, Mrs. L. Hall, Mrs. F. Aikens and Mrs. W. Slavin; Mission Band, Mrs. R. Thrasher; Mission Circle, Mrs. W. Slavin.

Minnesota Scientists Discover Inferior, Diseased Type Has Extra High Fertility Rate

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Minneapolis, Dec. 17. (AP)—A vicious time bomb of human heredity has been uncovered in a study of two brothers.

The bomb dooms people to a fatal nerve disease. It also drives them to be extra fertile, to produce more children, many of them headed for the same fate.

The time bomb is a gene, or unit of heredity. It causes Huntingdon's chorea, a chronic disease of uncontrollable shaking movements. It also affects the mind. It doesn't hit until middle age.

The story was traced by Dr. Sheldon C. Reed and J. D. Palm of the Dight Institute for Human Genetics at the University of Minnesota.

It starts with two young boys who came to Minnesota in 1834.

Brother A carried the gene, later died of the disease. Brother B was free of the gene. Each had ten children.

Since then, brother A has had 787 descendants, with 716 still living. Nineteen have had or have the disease, and 101 more are expected to get it. From one man, a total of 120 persons affected.

Brother B had only 186 descendants, 167 still living. None had chorea, none will get it.

The disease hits families hard. The sick person can't work. Usually the victim dies of exhaustion; often he spends his last few years in an institution.

One reason for the higher fertility in affected families may be social and economic, the scientists said. Livng standards are lowered. Children tend to choose mates from families of about the same economic level.

There seems to be some inborn reason for the higher fertility, Dr. Reed and Palm said.

There is a possibility that potential cases of the disease can be detected by brain-wave studies, before people reach reproductive age. Then they could be told of the danger, so they could decide whether they wished to have children.

FRANKFORD

Public School Holds Successful Two-Night Christmas Concert

Frankford. — The Frankford public school tried something new in presenting their annual Christmas concert, and it proved an overwhelming success. In other years, the concerts have been so lengthy, that invariably some of the numbers had to be deleted to finish before midnight.

This year, Principal A. C. Bates and the staff, decided that the concert would be presented on two night, rather than the one. This would afford more opportunity for each grade, and at the same time would make a shorter program each night.

The first night of the concert was presented on Wednesday night, by the Senior pupils of the school. The program was as follows: Intermediate choir, "O Canada"; recitation "Till Christmas Comes", by Lennie Row; play, "Santa's Worries" by grade 6; duet, by Faye Smith and Mary Johns of grade 7; folk dances by grade 8 girls; "Just Wait—You'll See" by grade 4; tap dance, by Joan Black; "Too Much Borrowing" by grade 6; Pyramid building by the grade 8 boys; choral reading, "The Fir Tree", by grade 4; dialogue, "When Tom Laughed", by grade 7; monologue, by Shirley Horseley of grade 8; recitation, "Signs of Christmas" by Glen Reynolds; shadow play, "Three Wishes", by grade 4; play, "An Obstructive Hat", by grade 5; guitar solo by Nadine Howard; "Angel Song" by grade 4 girls; monologue by David McFarland; play, "Bashful Cousin Jim", by senior girls; song, by Ursula Elsner; monologue, by Carol Wannamaker; drill, "Bells of St. Mary"; recitation "Castor Oil", by Ronald Baker; Pyramid building, by grade 8 boys.

Second Night

The second night of the concert, presented on Friday night featured the pupils of the lower grades of the school. The program was as follows: address of welcome, by Patsy Hills of grade 1; play, "Twas the Night Before Christmas", featuring Frankford and Batawa kindergarten, assisted by Peter Horcica, of grade 3; solo, "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer", by Karla Horcica, of Batawa kindergarten; rhythm band, grade 1; recitation, "Gay . Old Santa", Eleanor Beach of grade 3; play, "Days of Long Ago", by grade 2; drill, "The Little Wooden Soldiers" by grades 1 and 2 of Batawa; recitation, "Merry Christmas Everyone", by Judy Palmateer and Douglas Prudhomme, of grade 1; song, "Six Little Milkmaids" by grade 3, "Christmas Entertainment", by grade 2; play, "Mother Goose" by grade 3; recitation "What Santa Looks Like", Rosalee Rogers, grade 2; Christmas exercise, by grades 1 and 2, Batawa; solo, Christianne Van Hedegan, of grade 3; clown drill, boys of grade 3; pantomime "The Old Dolls" by girls of Batawa; song, "Santa Claus is Coming" by grade 3; star drill by grade 3; tableau "Christmas Night", by grade 2; junior choir, kindergarten, grades 1 2 and 3 of Frankford and Batawa.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Slatemeyer, having no reason to expect such immediate pursuit as was already upon him, would travel at an accented trail-gait, only a moderate speed-up of the ground covering, shuffle-trot of the Indian pony.

Crazy Horse would travel faster, probably at a canter but knowing his prey was within reach would rate his pace to overtake Slatemeyer at dawn, always the Indians' favored attack hour.

I, holding a rolling gallop through the night, would outdistance the Sioux, coming up to Slatemeyer an hour ahead of both dawn and the Oglala.

These were assumptions, the kind any fighting man makes daily. If he's right, he wins. If he's wrong, he doesn't care. The dead never do. What I meant to do when I came up with my enemy I didn't know. The hour itself would have to decide that.

I tightened by grip on the braided leathers of Hussein's hackamore, slacking his gait. Under my clamping thighs the flow and rhythm of his gallop felt perfect in reach and timing. No tiring yet. The miles rolled endlessly back into the night.

Slatemeyer's way led down a long shallow valley, a well-travelled Indian track familiar to me, reaching from the Cheyenne to the White River. When I had gone as far down this as I felt I could without running over Crazy Horse's camp in the dark I slowed Hussein, swinging him wide of the valley trail, heading for the foothills to the left. He was trembling under me, very tired now.

I hoped he would get a fair blow while we walked our way around where I supposed the Sioux camp to be, this respite being out of no consideration for him but due to my respect of the fact an Indian can ground hear a running horse for a good two miles.

As we padded through the thick dust of the hillsides I got the first satisfaction in days. Off to my right and directly below us the querulous whickering of ponies carried up on the night air. My in-the-dark computations had not missed by 400 yards.

Once around the Sioux camp I put Hussein back on his gait. He was running unevenly with probably not more than an hour's effort left in him. His breath came scraping into his lungs metallically. Under my knees the exhausted hammering of his heart was ragged and heavy.

Pity came thick in my throat. I loved this vicious horse not knowing, until this night, how well. But now as he ran dying under me his whole body faltering with every stride, I knew. Leaning far over his outstretched neck I buried my head in the ragged backstream of his forelock. My mouth close to his flop ear I spoke to him my words as soft as a mother's whisper.

"Hopo, you ugly crowbait. Do you know I love you? Do you know I am killing you? Hiyee. Easy."

Staggering brokenly then finding his stride, he managed a racking whicker. His neck then, at the spot my face lay against it, was wet not from lather alone

Three miles more and I eased him down and left him. He stood spraddle-legged, head to the ground, gaunt flanks whipping in behind slatted ribs with every gulping breath. His eyes protruded fixed and glazed, his tongue hung swollen and lifeless between the long yellow teeth. Thin blood ran in twin streams from the bell-flare of his nostrils. As I turned to leave him he raised his head, looking for me, then staggered a step or two as though to follow. He moved directly away from me. He was still alive.

Finding 30 Crow Indians and a renegade white gunman in three miles of pitch black prairie was no easy chore but I did what I could. I began quartering the wind from a spot I considered to be well to the nearside of their camp. Luck was with me, the fresh morning air shortly bringing what I sought—the pungency of their pony herd.

I worked upwind to a point I thought would be about 100 yards from the horses. Here I holed up, for an Indian will always sleep between his horses and his enemies and I had no desire to find myself wading knee deep in Crows.

In an hour a ghost-glow of light appeared. Fifteen minutes more and the true dawn would start fading the night. In 20 the camp would come alive.

In the uncertain gloom, not two shades off real darkness, I could make out the black lumps of sleeping men all about me. These lay singly, Indian fashion.

The wind and luck held in my direction. Not 10 paces away, sheltered from the main group by a clump of elder bush, lay a double shadow. From the larger shadow came the stertorous breathing of a man in deep sleep from the other no sound at all. The smaller shadow, then, was awake. It was Star.

It seems unreal to me now, as it did then. I went over that intervening 10 yards as noiselessly as a hawk's shade over hard rock. The whites of Star's eyes rolled up at my looming figure. She had no way of knowing who this was crawling in at her out of the black prairie, but Indian-wise, made no outcry or motion. She was between her guard and me, leaving no way to get at him save over her.

The next instant my knife was buried hilt deep in living flesh. I struck once only, for I felt the powerful body stiffen and convulse with that all over contracting spasm peculiar to the paralyzing shock of a lethal heart wound.

I cut Star free of her bonds and we fled. It was still dark as we stole away but morning was bare minutes behind us. Out of earshot of the camp we began to run for the hills, and I panted hoarsely, "You are all right, Star? Not injured?"

"Not with wounds, Cetan." The sound of her low voice thrilled me but her words struck my heart.

To Star I snarled out "you have said I shall bring you the heart of a great enemy."

No answer save a silent upturn of tear-stained face.

Still no word, this time not even a glance. But I felt the tear as it splashed hot on my naked arm.

"His heart is yours. I shall bring it to you when I bring my own."

We reached the shelter of the hillside rocks in safety, the last few hundred yards being made in full daylight. There we lay quietly for several seconds, Star, tight-held in my arms, not moving nor speaking, our hearts pounding in rapid unison. After an endless minute thus we drew apart for our first look at one another.

I can imagine what my face looked like with its accumulation of beard and mud-cake. Star's was in little better repair, dirt and tear-streaked, gray drawn, hollow-eyed. Still all the wild passion and beauty of her smoldered in the green eyes, lingered on the irrestible slight petulance of the full lower lip.

"Is there any pursuit, Cetan?"

My mind and body came back to the present. I peered between the rocks. Far below and cross valley there was consternation in the Crow camp. As was only natural, conditions down there being what they were.

"None," I answered. "Nor shall there be. Come and see for yourself.

She joined me at the rock, her eyes widening at the sight below. And I should say, speaking cautiously, that as sights go it was an eye-widener.

In a huddled knot the Crow horsemen milled their ponies over the ground of their last night's camp. They seemed confused, starting now one way, now another, then halting and going neither, as though with all this prairie to ride in they didn't quite know in which direction to go.

At first glance I was as muddled as they, but Star's slim arm pointed northward gave me the first clue. Following the direction of her gesture, I saw 30 horses, standing in a wide-spread line atop a small rise 400 yards up-valley of the Crows.

• • •

Ordinarily 30 horses wouldn't cause an Indian maiden's eyes to burn with the fire now glowing in Star's. But these were special horses. Atop each one sat an impassive, war-feathered Oglala Sioux.

Star's slender arm was now pointing southward.

Fifty more horses were strung out across the south flank of the Crow camp. Here again no sound or movement came from the waiting Sioux. No wonder the Crows were showing a bit of indecision.

"Where did they all come from?" I wondered aloud, thinking of the 50 odd Sioux I had counted in the track of Crazy Horse's band.

"Many Kills," she answered, indicating the south line of Sioux.

FIRE DESTROYS CAMPBELLFORD BUSINESS BLOCK

Another Storm To Hit Province Within 24 Hours

Gales and Heavy Rain Deal Blow to Maritimes

(By The Canadian Press)

A freak winter storm—combining winds up to 85 miles an hour and heavy rain-struck a crippling blow at southern New Brunswick and Nova Scotia early today.

Nova Scotia reported disrupted telegraph and telephone communications but the province had one consolation: 40-degree temperatures accompanied the storm.

Ontario residents, digging out from yesterday's worst snow storm of the season, had a grim outlook. The weatherman today said another storm is on the way within 24 hours.

He forecast that it would equal yesterday's wallop, which piled about nine inches of snow on Toronto streets and cause the worst traffic snarl in the city's history.

Temperatures ranged from zero in southern Ontario last night to 35 below in the province's far north.

On the west coast, snow and rain followed by freezing temperatures struck suddenly at Vancouver Island last night, Victoria had its first snow of the winter.

Rain in the Atlantic provinces turned snow to slush and the temperature drop made streets treacherous. Motorists found going heavy in Saint John, N. B., and in hilly Halifax.

The storm that tied up Toronto buffeted Montrealers after howling across Ontario and caused much of the same sort of trouble as in Toronto. Traffic was slowed to a crawl, street-cars poked along and taxi companies had more business than they could handle.

Poor Visibility

Poor visibility forced commercial airlines to cancel many flights.

Drifts upwards of four feet deep blocked some streets in Quebec City. Taxi companies took their cabs off the street. Communities in the district were isolated.

On the prairies, the first blizzard of the season whirled across southern Alberta and Saskatchewan. Winds of up to 30 miles an hour whipped soft, powder snow across the plains. Authorities warned motorists off the roads.

The storm dropped 12½ inches

State Secretary Says Progress Has Been Made

Washington, Dec. 19. (CP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson said today European countries have made more progress toward unity in the last four years than in the previous 500.

His statement at a press conference was in effect a reply to critics who say Europe must do more for unity, more quickly. In support of it, he cited the French-sponsored plan for a coal-steel "pool" and the arrangements being discussed for an all-European army.

Acheson also said:

1. The western Allies hope early in the new year to complete arrangements for western German self-rule and participation in European defence.

2. He would never recommend to President Truman any disarmament plane based on Russian promises. There must be concrete evidence of disarmament in every country if it is to work.

3. There cannot be any disarmament while military operations are going on in Korea.

4. The situation in the Middle East has grown more serious and the western countries have lost ground in efforts to obtain a solution for the Iranian and Egyptian crises.

5. Russia's assertion that two alleged spies, now reported executed, were dropped into the Soviet Union by the United States is a fabrication. He described it as in line with communist efforts to charge the United States and its Allies with aggressive intentions toward the red bloc.

6. The United States is continuing to do all it can to bring about the release from red Hungary of four American fliers captured when their plane went down last month.

Don Jail Escapee Arrested in Tavern

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)—William Jackson, 25, one of three men who escaped from the Don Jail here Nov. 4, was arrested in a Montreal tavern Tuesday night, Toronto police said today.

Picked up for illegal possession of firearms, Jackson had a loaded gun in his pocket and 20 spare cartridges, Montreal police reported.

Jackson escaped with Edwin Alonzo Boyd, since blamed for leading a band of bank robbers here, and Leonard Jackson, 29. They escaped by climbing down a 40-foot rope made of bed clothes and scaling an 18-foot wall.

Jackson was to appear in Barrie today on charges of holding up the Royal Bank at Bradford last summer.

Montreal police said Jackson gave his name as William Gibson but was identified today by fingerprints.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP)—Synopsis: The young storm which passed through Ontario Tuesday, grew into a giant overnight, and roared through the maritimes, giving winds up to 85 miles per hour with rain in Nova Scotia and snow near the St. Lawrence Valley.

Most of the province was clear last night and minimum temperatures ranged from zero in southern Ontario to 15 below in central sections and to 35 below in the far north.

Ontario has less than 24 hours in which to dig herself out of the snowdrifts before the arrival of another storm, equal in intensity to the last. Temperatures will moderate ahead of the storm but turn and windy again behind it.

PETITION GRANTED

Hamilton, Dec. 19. (CP)—A petition by Johannes Juho Jeets, an Estonian refugee, who sought permission to presume the death of his wife, was granted today in county court.

Mr. Jeets arrived in Canada in September, 1950, and now owns a farm in the Hamilton district.

DEBATE ON BILL MAY DELAY HOUSE CLOSING

Greatest Criticism Launched by P-C's

Ottawa, Dec. 19. (CP)—A prolonged and bitter debate, threatening to keep parliament in session until after Christmas, has been stirred up by the federal government's bill to ban retail price fixing.

Greatest criticism has been launched by the Progressive Conservative party, which hinted of a possible filibuster as the controversial measure to outlaw resale price maintenance went through the first full day of Commons debate yesterday.

Because of this, it was learned that Prime Minister St. Laurent may propose that parliament recess Friday for Christmas and return to work Thursday, Dec. 27.

The debate yesterday produced name-calling, two amendments and an indication that the Liberal party is not completely united on the anti-price-maintenance bill.

Roland Beaudry (L—Montreal St. James), an advertising executive, criticized Justice Minister Garson, the bill's sponsor, as the "minister of make believe."

He said he did not like the bill because the facts on which it was supposedly based had not been disclosed and coming from a constituency where there were many shop-keepers, he feared the results of the measure.

But, he added, even though he did not like the bill, he would support the government in a vote.

Tight Party Lines

With the exception of Mr. Beaudry, tight party lines were drawn around the bill, with the government gaining support from the CCF and Social Credit parties.

As debate steamed up on second reading of the bill, to prohibit manufacturers from setting the prices at which retailers sell their merchandise, sharp words were exchanged across the chamber floor.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton), member of a special parliamentary committee which studied the government's legislation, levelled a charge—later withdrawn and modified — that James Sinclair (L-Coast-Capilano), committee chairman, and Mr. Garson had dispensed "rotten justice" in the committee.

Mr. Sinclair charged the Progressive Conservatives with indulging in "obstruction" and described them as the "historic friends of privilege, monopoly and reaction."

Main theme of the four parties:

Liberals—The bill will help bring down prices on price-maintained items; it will strengthen anti-combines legislation by making prosecution more effective; it will help the consumer get a better break on retail prices.

Santa Claus' 'Helpers' Will Find Toys More Expensive Than Last Year

(By The Canadian Press)

Jolly old St. Nicholas this year may bring Junior a bus station complete with traffic lights and public-address system. He may surprise some little girl with a washing-machine that really whirrs.

In a peek through Santa's pack of toys The Canadian Press has found this year's play-things as close to the real thing as an imitation can get.

Santa Claus' "helpers" will find most tops in most Canadian centres more expensive than last year. But in Montreal and Winnipeg prices are about the same as in 1950.

Not many "war" toys have appeared in Canadian toylands. In Saskatchewan, some youngster is going to exclaim Christmas morning about his new road-grader. Mounted on heavy rubber tires, it sells for $16.

Doll manufacturers have taken advantage of the current home-permanent fad and turned out a blonde beauty with straight hair which may be curled by using the accompanying "home permanent" kit.

This doll is described as having enough nylon in its wig to make seven pairs of silk stockings. (Mother pays from $1.50 to $2 a pair for hers.)

Alberta stores are selling a doll that weeps when its ears are pressed and coos when its tummy is squeezed.

Stores in Saskatchewan are selling one with a record inside that plays a bed-time prayer. In Vancouver, Italian - made dolls with human hair are selling for $45.

Most of Santa Claus' "helpers," however, are spending their money on less expensive play-things. These include baby's bath toys of rubber which sell in Toronto for $1. There also are furry little animals which can be slipped into the washing-machine when they become dirty.

Saint John, N.B., has found the demand for electric trains greater than the supply. In Halifax, there are aircraft and motor cars built carefully to scale and good enough to pass the most critical juvenile inspection.

German-made mechanical toys are on the market in Vancouver.

Churchill Announces Britain Will Not Join European Army But Will Give Full Support

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

Paris, Dec. 19—(AP)—Encouraged by British support if not alliance, French officials today expressed confidence that they can stitch together a six-country international army with one uniform, one budget and one command.

Two days of talks between leaders and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, put new force behind France's drive for the European army.

In a joint communique, Churchill withheld Britain from joining the army he himself had advocated, but promised British troops will be "linked with those of the European defence community for training, supply and operations by land, sea and air."

Six-power talks among France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxemburg begin in Paris Dec. 27. They will try to put the final touches on the army set-up.

Despite British support and the hopeful feeling it imparted in France, one big question remained unsolved:

What will the Belgians do?

Belgium has battled against giving too much power to the proposed super-authority to run the army, and is highly suspicious of joining in a common military budget. Money demands disturb the Belgians, who already are in near-revolt against requests by the North Atlantic Treaty organization for a 50-per-cent increase in their arms spending.

Belgian leaders also have warned their parliament may balk at joining a European army which lacks complete British membership.

If Belgium falls out, the French fear The Netherlands and Luxembourg will go with her.

And they confess that a European army limited solely to France, West Germany and Italy would be vetoed by the French National Assembly.

Western Disarmament Plan Wins Overwhelming Support

Paris, Dec. 19 (AP) — The United Nations overwhelmingly adopted the western disarmament plan today and threw out a Russian bid for an immediate ban on atomic weapons.

The vote on the whole plan was 44 to 5, with 10 abstentions.

The decision taken by the 60-nation political committee, will be formally adopted by a final vote of the same countries sitting in the assembly itself.

A new disarmament commission, instructed to try to end the costly world arms race along lines laid down by the western powers, will be set up.

Russian amendments which would have twisted the western proposals into a Kremlin plan were spurned.

The Soviet ban on the atom was voted down 42-6, with 9 abstentions, and three countries absent.

The Russian bloc fought the western plan and Poland declared she would not serve "on this illegal body."

Poland is one of the five countries named to the investigating body. The others are Brazil, Iceland, The Netherlands, and Pakistan.

The vote in the 60-nation committee to set up the commission was 45 to 6 with eight abstentions.

East German representatives and the Soviet occupation authorities of the eastern zone have served notice they will bar the probers from that part of the divided country.

The big three western sponsors said they would not send the commission to the western zones they occupy unless it also had free access to the Soviet zone.

The resolution called for appointment of an "impartial commission under U.N. supervision to carry out a simultaneous investigation in the federal republic of Germany, in Berlin, and in the Soviet zone of Germany, in order to determine whether existing conditions there make it possible to hold genuinely free elections throughout these areas."

Amendments by western nations provided for the commission to help supervise the election machinery if its inquiry showed an election feasible.

Israel, discontented with the probe into the remnants of German'naism, voted with the Soviet bloc.

The Russian bloc argued the whole thing is an illegal U. N. action. They said only the four occupying powers and the two German governments could set up a legal vote.

FIVE SOLDIERS MISSING

Ottawa, Dec. 19—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said today that five Canadian soldiers are missing in Korea but "we do not know whether any of them are prisoners."

He was replying in the Commons to Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) who said that one man from Hamilton was listed as a prisoner of war in the exchange of information by truce negotiators in Korea.

Mr. Claxton said it was true that one Canadian was listed as a prisoner of war in the exchange of information.

Soviet Court Says Two Executed As American Spies

Moscow, Dec. 19—(AP)— The Soviet Supreme Court said today that two men with Russian-sounding names have been put to death as American saboteur-spies parachuted into Russia.

The announcement from the military collegium of the court said they were dropped into Russia from an American plane manned by American military officers.

Their names were given as A. I. Osmanov and F. K. Sarantsev.

(Michael McDermott, state department press officer in Washington, said the state department knows nothing about the incident and said he never heard of two men with those names.)

The two were arrested in August shortly after dropping into Russia's Moldavian republic, a small state near the Romanian border, the Russians said.

Forged papers, guns, poison and large sums of money were found on them when they were picked up, the Soviet account reported.

Russia's story of the cloak-and-dagger incident said:

The spies confessed they were recruited from displaced persons camps in Western Germany by American intelligence agents. They were given special training by American agents in map-making, use of firearms, parachute-jumping, organizing sabotage and terror, and spying.

Investigation and trial brought out that Osmanov and Sarantsev were smuggled into Greece after being trained, and from there were flown in by American officers to the place where they parachuted onto Soviet territory.

Both were said to have testified at their trial that after carrying out their assignments they were to report to U.S. agents at Kars, Turkey.

Navy Plane In Trouble Off West Coast

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 19—(AP) —Emergency air-escort planes raced out over the Pacific today for a rendezvous with a four-engine navy transport plane reported in trouble about 900 miles off the coast.

The pilot's message said he had a "runaway propeller." This meant that he couldn't control the speed or pitch of the blades.

The plane was en route from Honolulu to the navy air base near San Francisco. It was due there at 1 p. m. PST. (10 a. m. EST).

Messages from the plane did not say how many were aboard.

TTC EMPLOYEES START VOTING ON STRIKE ACTION

Streetcar Riders May Know Decision Tonight

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)—Toronto street-car and bus riders will have to walk to work. wil have to walk to work.

Employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission pressing for wage increases today began voting for or against strike action to enforce their demands. Union polls close at 9 p. m.

A strike of the T. T. C.'s 4,700 employees would effect many of the 1,300,000 residents of Toronto and suburbs. The employees also man buses of the Gray Coach Lines, a T. T. C. subsidiary operating in central Ontario.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Daley and chief conciliation officer Louis Fine met union and T. T. C. officials in an attempt to break the deadlock. "We will get the story from both sides and see what we can do about bringing them together," said Mr. Daley.

The Street Railwaymen's Union (A. F. L.-T. C. L.) is seeking a basic hourly rate of $1.55. The T. T. C., basing its offer on the majority report of a conciliation board, has offered $1.45 and an esculator cost-of-living bonus. The current rate for operators is $1.24 an hour plus 16 cents in cost-of-living bonus. Conductors get five cents an hour less.

The commission maintains that it cannot meet the union's request without boosting fares from three-rides-for-25 cents to 10 cents a ride.

The strike vote was to be taken by secret ballot at various divisional points and garages of the T. T. C. system. If the membership votes for a strike, the executive will probably allow period of grace for further talks before a strike is called.

Yesterday the Toronto traffic conference, an advisory body to city council, met to discuss emergency measures required in the event of a strike.

Stores, industries and businesses have organized car pools to carry workers to and from their jobs if a strike materializes.

If a strike is called it would be the sixth time that Toronto's transportation system was halted in this way. The longest strike, in 1919, tied up the city for 12 days.

OMINOUS HINT

Paris, Dec. 19. (AP)—Russian Foreign Minister Vishinsky said today he hopes the four American fliers forced down in Hungary will receive "due attention from military justice authorities" in that communist country.

He did not elaborate on "military justice", but this might indicate a military trial for the four men downed by Soviet fighters while off their course on a flight from West Germany to Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

'Copters Take Miners on Lost Gold Searches, No Crackpots Need Apply

Vancouver, Dec. 19 (CP) — Two types of people still seek the legendary Lost Creek mine, the "reputable" ones and the "screwballs."

That's how Carl Agar classifies those who come to him for a helicopter ride to the mountain wilderness where the gold mine is supposed to be located, only some 50 miles north of here.

Agar is manager of Okanagan Air Services, which owns five helicopters, the only such service in British Columbia. Agar incidentally, is 1950 winner of the McKee Trophy, awarded annually to the person contributing the most to flying in Canada.

Lost Creek mine, so the legend goes, was discovered in 1892 by an Indian, who, unfortunately, was hanged for murder without revealing his secret.

Since then, 21 men have disappeared trying to find it.

One of Agar's helicopters flew in the 21st victim, 60-year-old Albert Gaspard, about two years ago.

Agar said today that Gaspard was one of the "reputable" ones. The veteran prospector knew what he was doing and what he was up against.

The only other party Agar has consented to fly into the area was a crowd of mining engineers. They failed in their search but survived. They knew how to look after themselves.

Agar said that as soon as anyone comes into his office here and says he knows definitely where the mine is and wants to be flown to it, he immediately classifies him as a "screwball."

"Ten or 12" have approached him. One comes in every spring.

"He looks up at the ceiling and his eyes go glassy. He doesn't want to fly all the gold out at once. He propositioned me to fly him in every three years or so and take just so much gold.

"He says if he took all the gold out at once he'd lose it in income tax. His toes are sticking out of his shoes."

Among the 10 or 12 has been one woman.

"Half of them don't even bother about taking any food," Agar said. "I don't know how they expect to live, or how they plan to get out. They just expect to pick up the gold, then, swish, they're out.

"I'm not taking anyone else in unless they are reputable parties who understand travel and the responsibilities in mountainous territory."

Does he believe in the legend?

"If we thought there was anything there we'd be out there after it ourselves."

15 Persons Forced To Leave Homes In Night Attire

Damage of $150,000 Caused By Early Morning Fire

Campbellford. — Fifteen persons were forced from their apartments in sub-zero weather early this morning when fire swept through a three-storey downtown business block causing damage estimated at $150,000.

No one was injured but three middle-aged women were overcome by smoke and had to be carried from their second-floor apartments.

The fire was discovered at 2:15 this morning when a year-old child of one of the families living in the block started to cry. The mother, Mrs. Claude Post, awakened to find the room full of smoke.

She ran downstairs and despite the ten below zero weather ran to a neighbor's to spread the alarm.

Seven families were forced from the building in their night clothes as the blaze spread rapidly in the structure formerly known as Wellman's Hotel. The building was at the corner of No. 30 highway and Bridge Street.

Those Forced Out

Forced from their homes by the fire were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Post and their three children, the baby, age one; Wayne, seven; and Shirley Ann four; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Carswell; Mrs. Arthur Drinkwater; Mr. and Mrs. Erle Gill; Mrs. Josephine Doan; Mrs. Mae Phillips, Mrs. Josephine Moyce, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred McArthur and their son, Joel.

Two civilians braved heavy smoke to rescue three women sleeping in upstairs apartments. Mrs. Drinkwater was carried to safety by Garfield Fraser, while two other women were carried from the burning building by Bruce Wallace after they were overcome with smoke.

Notified of Blaze

Wallace, night superintendent at the nearby Campbell Clothing Company was notified of the fire by Vernon Rose, who was on his way home when he noticed the fire.

The fire was believed to have started in the rear of Kellaher's Meat Market either from an oil burner or from a short circuit. Business places destroyed by the fire included the meat market, Birk's Drug Store, owned and operated by Mr. Douglas Carswell, and the Garneau and Dunsmore electrical appliance store with a heavy stock of television sets, radios and other appliances.

Firemen fought the stubborn blaze in zero temperatures for over eight hours before it was brought under control. At 11 o'clock this morning the fire was still burning but firemen had confined the blaze to the former hotel building. A firewall prevented the spread of the fire to another block immediately to the west.

Heavy masses of ice from tons of water directed into the fire covered the remains of the building at mid-morning.

CBC Chairman Says Colleagues Are Underpaid

Ottawa, Dec. 19—(CP)—A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman, said yesterday he believes his colleagues on the CBC board of governors are underpaid.

Appearing before a senate committee studying amendments to the CBC act, Mr. Dunton said that the governors on the nine-member board receive $50 and expenses for each board meeting. The board meets for two or three days five or six times a year.

The amount paid the governors was small when one considered that they left their regular occupations in various parts of Canada to travel to Ottawa or elsewhere for the meetings.

The fees for the governors are fixed by statute. As chairman of the board, Mr. Dunton receives $15,000 annually.

Senator A. K. Hugessen (L—Quebec), chairman of the committee, asked if the senators wished to propose any change in the fees paid to the governors. Senator John T. Haig (PC—Manitoba), opposition leader in the Senate, said he did not think the Senate should take such action.

Senator G. P. Burchill (L—New Brunswick) said the governors should be paid "what they are worth." Senator Haig said no one is ever paid what he is worth.

The matter was dropped.

Hydro Makes Appeal

Toronto Dec. 19—(CP) — The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission yesterday appealed to all Ontarians, especially in the southern half of the province, to curtail their power usage.

A spokesman said:

"Adverse, dull and cold weather has placed a sudden additional strain on Ontario's hydro supply. This has been further aggrevated by the loss of over 200,000 kilowatts in capacity (about half the load of Toronto) due to ice conditions and over-loaded equipment."

The commission requested consumers to save electricity during the heavy peak period from 4.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. for the next two days.

FAST JOB DONE IN SNOW REMOVAL

Despite yesterday's heavy fall of snow Front Street was almost clear this morning following the public works department being on the job during the night.

At midnight the street was blocked off and snowplowed with trucks picking up the snow and transporting it away. Many of the streets in the residential areas were also plowed during the night.

JUVENILES PLAY

In the revised juvenile league schedule the Police Dept. team meets the Belleville Cleaners in the first game of a doubleheader in the arena tomorrow night, starting at 8.30. The second half of the bill sees the Glen Roys and Belleville Lock teams clash.

MOIRA RIVER SHOWING SMALL STRETCHES OF OPEN WATER

Despite a twelve-below thermometer reading at eight o'clock this morning, the river is showing stretches of open water near its mouth.

Water-borne snow and ice particles appear to be getting a free passage beneath the main ice-field indicating a lack of "plugging" under the ice in the bay off the river mouth.

'Y' Boys' Choir Has Large Holiday Program

They start their musical efforts with an appearance on station CJBQ on Friday evening at 8:30 and follow that up on Saturday morning with a concert at the McCarthy Theatre starting at 10.30.

Saturday evening will see the young choristers assuming the "waits" role offering Christmas carols on street corners.

On Sunday afternoon between two and two-thirty they will appear at the Belleville General Hospital to sing to patients.

Plans are also in the making for the choir to appear at the Old Folks Home.

On December 30 the choir will be at the morning service at Tabernacle United Church and on January 6th at Holloway Street Church.

POLICE BLOTTER.

A quantity of cigarettes was stolen from Roper's Garage on Cannifton Road some time during the night when the business premises were entered. Entry was gained through breaking of glass in the front door.

A light standard on Front Street near the Income Tax Office was discovered knocked askew this morning, presumably as a result of being struck by a vehicle.

An old fashioned runaway occurred on the East Hill Tuesday when a delivery horse owned by Lummiss Bakery moved away in the absence of the driver. The driver had stopped at the county courthouse to determine what bread was required and when he returned the horse was missing. The horse turned up on Forin Street. No damage was reported.

Salvation Army To Place Kettles On Front Street

The once familiar Salvation Army Christmas Cheer kettles will make a re-appearance on the streets of Belleville this year.

On Saturday three kettles will be mounted in prominent positions in the downtown area, one each at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, Front and Campbell Streets, and Victoria and Front Streets.

In them goes the contribution the passerby, whose support of the Salvation Army's relief work is gratefully received. Through the kettles the Salvation Army is able to help those who appeal for assistance, not only at Christmas time, but throughout the year.

One kettle will be manned by members of the Kiwanis Club, another by the Salvation Army Men's Club, and the third by a group of volunteer friends and Salvationists.

Contributions besides the amounts dropped in the kettles may be sent to the commanding officer of the corps here, Major Herbert Honeychurch at the citadel at 256 Pinnacle Street.

Farm Forum News

The subject of a farm forum broadcast last week was "Folk Schools for Farm People". The attendance for the four forums reporting was up a bit from last week, namely: 21, 19, 15, 14. All forums think rural communities should have training in leadership and in conducting business meetings. Also in discussion groups. Each person has a responsibility in community affairs, and should avail himself of every opportunity to be prepared to lead if and when the occasion arises.

Folk schools were suggested as a means of getting required training. Hazzards are planning a folk school in their community from Jan. 25 -28, and think it may create an interest and be of some value.

All four forums have Junior Farmers' and Women's Institutes in their areas, also Sunday Schools and Young People's Unions. As a result of these organizations there is some leadership training.

Orillia, Ont., Dec. 19—(CP)—Orillia food merchants last night won a three-month battle to close all day Monday for 10 months of the year instead of the usual Wednesday half holiday. They will remain open six days a week during July and August. Mayor W. M. Cramp cast the deciding vote in the matter when council deadlocked over the issue.

Govt. Plans No Representations

Ottawa, Dec. 19—(CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons today the government is not planning representations to the United States government concerning Canadians working in the U. S. and subject to the military draft.

He said all Canadians working in the U. S. under an immigration visa come under the draft.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, asked if some representations should not be made to Washington.

Mr. Pearson said the draft applied to all aliens working under similar conditions—not just Canadians.

Musical Program, Yule Message Given Kiwanians

"Every sky has its star, every vision its price, and every fidelity its reward," said Rev. S. E. Larman in delivering a Christmas message to the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

"We have a date with destiny", he said, "although many of us are afraid of destiny and choke on the dust of mortality. Christ came not to bring immortality but light to the world."

Mr. Larman dealt with the teachings of Matthew and Luke from the New Testament and also compared the three wise men at the time of the birth of Christ to current situations.

"Too many of us are dealing with platitudes in this day," said the speaker. Mr. Larman expressed himself as being of the opinion that all fences between churches should be removed as the Kingdom of God is bigger than any one sect or religion.

In conclusion he summarized by saying that God has many messengers, whether it be a star, an angel, or His only son.

Musical Program

Prior to the speaker's address a musical program was supplied by six members of the Salvation Army band under the direction of Major Herbert Honeychurch. The band rendered several Christmas carol selections, concluding with a vocal arrangement of "Silent Night."

President Everett Fairman addressed the club at this, his final meeting in the president's chair, and thanked everyone for the fine co-operation which he had received during his term in office. Special mention was made by Mr. Fairman of Frank Creeggan and Jack Wood for the extra efforts, which they had made on the club's behalf.

Silence Observed

Two minutes silence was observed following the luncheon in memory of Russell Smith, a former Kiwanian, who passed away during the weekend.

Twenty-five Kiwanias offered to donate thirty minutes time on Saturday to help the Salvation Army Christmas Cheer Fund.

Donations amounting to $113 were made by Kiwanis Club members at the meeting in aid of a Christmas welfare fund.

FIVE FAMILIES ESCAPE

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP)—Five families escaped from their homes into zero weather last night when a $75,000 fire destroyed an exclusive five-suite apartment building about two blocks from Government House, home of the governor-general. Fire Chief Gray Burnett had a close call when he was blown down a flight of stairs by a smoke explosion.

Mercury Drops To 12 Below; Snow Tomorrow

Those rash people who wagered that Christmas 1951 would be of the "green" variety, are now slightly pink of face, and it is not altogether due to being on what appears to be the losing end of a bet.

And that "White Christmas dream" of the song-writer now appears to be a definite reality, unless a weather miracle occurs.

Last night the weather gods "gave out" with a real taste of wintry atmosphere. On the heels of the blizzard that swept the province causing traffic tie - ups and blocked roads, came sub zero temperatures, the second lowest of the season.

The mercury started its decline shortly after midnight and by four o'clock this morning had touched the one below mark. Dropping steadily it reached 10 below at seven o'clock and an hour later had touched 12 below, the lowest of the night.

A sudden change in heart caused the weather man to up the silver to six below at nine o'clock and at ten it was up as high as two below.

But don't go away. Winter is not over, by a long sho,t nor is its seasonal weather.

Tomorrow the temperatures will be higher, but according to the latest weather man predictions, storm-driven clouds will drift in from the northwest and "we shall have snow".

That's it. More snow tomorrow.

Hastings County Home Residents Are Entertained

Old folks in the Hastings County Home are not lacking for entertainment and "treats" this Christmas season.

On Sunday night the 8th Cub Pack, Belleville, under the supervision of Mrs. Lillian Ashley staged the "Christmas Story" in a fine performance, later treating the elderly people to candy canes.

Last night the Nurses Choir from Belleville General Hospital under H. W. Wakefield and Miss Millard gave a splendid choral concert, much enjoyed by their audience. The program was varied, while the choir easily lived up to its reputation of being one of the best choral groups of its kind in this district.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 19—(CP)—Early afternoon stock market prices edged upward today as mid-session support strengthened. Trading was confined to leading issues.

Refining oils and miscellaneous industrials formed the market's strongest sections with a scattered list of fractional advances. Papers, liquors and manufacturing companies drew firm support. Foods and banks weakened.

Chemical research climbed steadily in active trading. Penny golds drew speculative interest. Homer Yellowknife was a standout as it climbed pennies in a turnover of about 85,000 shares.

Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, International Nickel and Noranda posted gains to $1. East Sullivan, Labrador, Steep Rock and Quebec Manitou climbed pennies.

Western Oils made little headway. Ajax Petroleum, Calvan consolidated, Central Explorers and Sapphire strengthened while Canadian Atlantic, North Canadian and Selburn weakened.

Senior Golds eased from yesterday's gains. Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addison, Lake Shore and McIntyre dipped fractions. Secondary issues showed little trend.

HOGS

Prince Philip Now May Fly Own Standard

Newcastle, England (CP) — A new royal standard takes its place in history, puzzling many who see it for the first time.

This is the personal standard of the Duke of Edinburgh, flown for the first time at the end of November when the duke opened a new engineering section at Newcastle's King College.

Part of the arms are already well known, being those of Princess Elizabeth. The half nearest the hoist, however, bears the three lions of Denmark (blue on gold), and the Greek cross (white on blue). Beneath are part of the Battenburg arms and a representation of Edinburgh castle and the rock on which it stands (black and red on white).

From now on, this standarad will be flown when Prince Philip makes official appearances at any ceremony. Should Princess Elizabeth accompany him, however, her standard takes precedence.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP) — Ontario stockyard prices were firm on a few to good slaughter cattle today. Trade was dull on other cattle. Receipts: Cattle 100, calves 40, hogs 150, sheep and lambs 90. The leftover from Tuesday was 700 cattle.

Good weighty steers sold for $35 while medium to good light stockers brought $31.50-$34.50. Good western cows made $26 with other cows downward to $25. Medium to good stockers sold $27-$30.

Calves were steady at $36-$38 for choice vealers and downward to $31 on medium calves.

Hog prices were established at $30.50 for grade A with sows $24 dressed.

PRODUCE MARKET

Cries of 'Humbug' Enliven Debate On Price-Fixing

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP) —Laughter, heckling and cries of "humbug" were heard in the Commons today as members debated the government's bill to ban retail price fixing.

The Progressive Conservatives strengthened their opposition against the controversial measure with the promise of J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox-Alberni) that he will support that party's motion to give the bill a six-month hoist —a legislative way to kill the legislation.

Back-benchers held the floor most of the morning. Liberals argued that the bill, to prevent manufacturers from setting the retail price of their merchandise, favored the consumer and the Progressive Conservatives countering with declarations that it will destroy the little business man.

Wilfrid Lacroix (L-Quebec-Montmorency) said the Progressive Conservative party has its eyes "wide open on those who feed its electoral fund and only pretends to have one eye turned to the Canadian people."

"May I say in their face that they are humbugs," said Mr. Lacroix with reference to the Progressive Conservatives.

"Humbugs, indeed, when they introduce motions in this House protesting the rising cost of living and yet object when an opportunity offers to have it brought down.

Humbugs, indeed when the Conservative party clamors for government price control but would leave it in the hands of manufacturers. Humbugs, when they talk of inflation yet oppose a measure that would check its growth."

Each statement brought cries of "humbug" from Progressive Conservative benches.

ORPHANED

Led to safety by his grandparents when his home in Streetsville, Ont., caught fire, Peter Amos, 6, has not yet comprehended that his mother and father will not be with him at Christmas. They stayed in their third-floor apartment to collect some of their personal possessions and perished. Peter, who finds consolation in the presence of his dog, Skippy, is concerned about the loss of presents which he intended to give to other children.—Central Press Canadian.

Trenton Man Charged

Toronto, Dec. 19. (CP)—Police charged George Edward Fifion, 34, of Trenton, with carrying an offensive weapon after a downtown restaurant owner called police Tuesday night because "he talked too much".

Restaurant owner, John Wolsochuk told police Fifion, who appeared to have been drinking, told him that he was carrying a gun and had "two men outside with shotguns".

Joseph Reid Travels Far To Get New Job

Montreal (CP) — Joseph Reid, former Canadian Rhodes scholar, will have put thousands of miles behind him when he takes up his new appointment as head of the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization team advising the national scientific documentation centre of India.

He flew from Paris to London, then on to Scotland, Iceland and Montreal. From here he goes by rail across Canada, flies to Yokohama, boards a steamer to Calcutta and finishes the journey to New Delhi by automobile.

The young scientist has had extensive training for his job, which will last for one to three weeks. The assignment is to advise India on the establishment of a scientific library. It will have a photographic copying installation to enable copies of scientific articles to be sent anywhere in India, as well as a translation service and a plant to print scientific journals.

Reid's early education was in Sydney, N.S. He was an undergraduate of the University of Manitoba, and was named a Manitoba Rhodes scholar in 1935.

Since his studies at Oxford University he has been with U.N.E.S.C.O. with headquarters in Paris, making his home at Versailles.

From Paris he took the long way around to his new assignment in order to visit Canada again and see his father, Rev. Andrew D. Reid, at Victoria, B.C.

T.T.C. SITUATION

Everyone who works for wages feels that he could use more money and many wage-earners are extremely vocal in making their feelings known. Not many wage-earners, however, would go as far as to suggest that the wage-earner is entitled to a good deal higher pay than his employer. But that is exactly what the employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission are doing. Further, they are talking of striking if their demands are not met.

At present, the street car operators are receiving $1.40 an hour for their efforts, made up of $1.24 an hour wages plus 16 cents an hour cost of living bonus. These T.T.C. employees have a pension plan, a disability allowance, sick benefits ($25 a week for 20 weeks), two weeks' paid vacation after one year's service, and three weeks' paid holidays annually after fifteen years' service. They are given free clothing and transportation.

These T.T.C. employees are now asking the T.T.C. to raise their hourly rate of pay to $1.55, plus certain "fringe" benefits which, if granted, will raise their average weekly pay to $80.

According to figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the average income of persons gainfully employed in the Toronto area is $53.07 (as of September 1 last). The T.T.C. employees are the employees of the "persons gainfully employed in the Toronto area."

According to spokesmen for the T.T.C. union, the street car operators are now receiving an average wage of $58.21. We may be sure the union is not exaggerating the figure. The Toronto Transport Commission has offered, by way of conciliation, to raise the men's pay rate enough to give them a weekly average of $68.50.

The street car employees are already receiving about $5 a week more than their employers, the people who own and use the street cars. They have been offered a $10 raise, which would give them about $15 a week more than the owners of the T.T.C. That isn't enough, they say. They want $80 a week, or about $27 a week more than the citizens who own the T.T.C.

There must be a moral in all this somewhere. The one we draw is that it is far more profitable to be a tax-eater in Toronto than to be a taxpayer. The some conclusion may be applicable, in some degree at least, elsewhere.

NO HALF-WAY MEASURES!

According to an article in the Christian Science Monitor by Erwin D. Canham, Frank E. McKinney, chairman of the Democratic party's national committee, and Frank McHale, described as "his political sponsor," have been probing into some of the orders for equipment that have been placed by the United States Army.

Mr. McKinney and Mr. McHale learned the United States military chiefs had purchased from Detroit area plants enough front axle housing gaskets for jeeps to last 104.1 years; enough engine clutch washers to last 84.7 years, and enough engine valve tappets to last 79.4 years. They learned other things too, but the foregoing will suffice as examples.

It may be argued that the Americans have a right to spend their money however they like. This is true enough, but it is also true that Canada is involved in the same war which the Americans are fighting in Korea and is likely to become involved in any others in which the United States plays a part for a long time to come.

Let us hope that whoever is doing the purchasing for the Canadian armed forces is less pessimistic than those who have been doing it in the United States. A war that will last from 80 to 100 years is not a pleasant prospect, to say the least.

C. H. HALE BOWS OUT

A testimonial dinner was given over in Orillia the other night to Charles Harold Hale, editor emeritus of the Orillia Packet and Times.

Mr. Hale is one of the last of the old time editors. He never learned to use a typewriter. Although he and his brother sold their newspaper several years ago, he consented to remain as editor emeritus for a time. The dinner given him last week was in recognition of his having spent six decades in the publishing business.

Mr. Hale may not have been right always, but he usually was, and his editorial page carried weight far beyond the small town in which he lived and worked.

Among those who attended the testimonial dinner were Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, a former prime minister of Canada, and Hon. Leslie Frost, the premier of Ontario.

REFORMATION

From now 'til Christmas Day has gone
I shall not frown on anyone.
The time has come when once again
I'll demonstrate good will to men,
To womenfolk and children, too.
At Christmastime I always do.

Though kind words seldom spoken are
To him who drives the other car,
Throughout the season, day and night,
I will be friendly and polite
And as to him I say "adieu"
Wish him a Merry Christmas too.

To friend and stranger round about
A Merry Christmas I will shout
That every one I meet may see
The gentleman that I can be,
And just how nice to all am I
When I've made up my mind to try.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Even in the biggest organizations, even those in which there is quite a lot of stuffing in nearly everybody's shirt, it is generally recognized that the girl at the switchboard is an extremely important member of the firm.

Fortunes can be spent on erecting and furnishing head offices; further fortunes may be spent on institutional advertising. But if the little girl at the switchboard does not possess a pleasant voice and a pleasing manner, then fortunes are wasted. For it is the switchboard girl who meets the public at the very instant of contact. And her public is a vastly larger one than ever comes to visit the office.

There are still firms who realize the importance of a good switchboard operator but who allow very unappealing types to contact the public in the business office. In one of our biggest commercial enterprises there is a sub-senior executive who has to make certain final decisions, and whom the public is obliged to meet in fairly considerable numbers every day.

This character has a patronizing air, a raspy, sarcastic voice, and an acid wit. He infuriates most of those who have to deal with him. Speaking to one of the older executives of the company one day, I enquired why a man of this disposition should be allowed to be a "front" man in the organization? Wouldn't he be better employed, in behind?

"I realize he has an unfortunate manner," agreed the old man. "But he is a terrific worker. Nobody around the place works as hard or as willingly as that chap has, all the years he's been with us."

But how much of his hard work is offset by the customers he loses? Hard work, as Edith Cavell said of patriotism, is not enough. In business, nothing is more important than a pleased customer.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

COOKS' TOUR

Some interesting mail this week from restaurant chefs, all of them agreeing with me that Canadian dining places leave much to be desired, but offereing a variety of reasons.

It's the public, writes M. A. B., chief man in the kitchen of a large restaurant.

"What Canadians seem to like is the so-called 'blue plate special'," he writes.

"They want big, heavy meals at a bargain price and to succeed a restaurant must cater to them. In other words the market does not compare with the market in he United tSates where people have learned to appreciate well-prepared dinners.

"I know that many experienced chefs will agree with me when I say that it is a gamble to open a quality restaurant in any Canadian city under half-million population.

"You need merely to compare Vancouver and Seattle, both cities of comparative size, but Seattle supports a half hundred outstanding eating places while in Vancouver you can count them on the fingers of one hand.

"What is true of every product is true of restaurants: If the public wants an improvement, and is willing to pay for it, they will get it. But not before."

* * *

It's the catering industry generally, writes another cook who, for good reason, prefers to be anonymous.

"We have no standards," he writes.

"You are quite within your rights in saying that the chef is unsung and underpaid. It is partly our own fault because we have done so little to earn a respect for our profession.

"Consider the large number of Chinese employed in the kitchens of Canadian restaurants. Please believe me. I have nothing against the Chinese. Some of the best cooks I know are Chinese and so are some of the worst.

"But the reason there are so many Chinese is simply because, in the beginning, they were hired for a song and would work around the clock. This was not to their discredit, but to ours because so often Chinese and other racial groups would not be hired except as cheap labor.

"It does indicate, however, the sorry situation in Canadian catering and, as I said, it is partly our own doing.

"We should insist on proper training and proper examination. It should be as much an honor to be a chef as to be a doctor or lawyer, but it never will be that unless we do our own 'police' work."

* * *

It's the proprietors, writes W. A. C. another chef with wide experience across the country.

"You wrote of the neon-lighted fronts" he notes. "Well, ninety-nine percent of them are all front.

"Have you ever looked in the kitchen of the average food dispensary? They are small, poorly equipped. It is almost impossible to prepare edible meals in any quantity.

"I have personally worked in large restaurants where the stores weren't much larger than what you find in a house. If the canneries were to stop canning fruits and vegetables in large gallon-size cans, over half the restaurants wouldn't have sufficient cooking pots.

"It's a lucky chef who has the equipment or the time or the ingredients to take any pride in his trade or to prepare a tasty dish. Is it any wonder that he soon loses interest in his work?

"There is also the other side. The public expect their orders served to them within five minutes. I have known customers to complain because they waited 10 minutes for a well-done steak.

"It seems to me the whole thing could be solved if the owners of sights and make an effort to improve the situation. In the long run it's in their interests to make Canada a country of people who enjoy dining out."

* * *

Finally, a brief note from the proprietor of a well-known restaurant who says the trouble is simple economics.

"If we could serve beer and wine and cocktails Canada overnight would be a place where the most discriminating diner could be satisfied," he writes.

"The problem now is simple economics. There is no profit in this business. I will wager that if you checked with the leading hotels, whose dining rooms are generally the best in the country, you would find they were losing money on that branch of their operations.

Princess May Soon Fulfill Promise Made

London, Dec. 19 (CP) —Princess Elizabeth may fulfill sooner than expected her promise to pay a return visit to Canada "before too long."

Under a plan now being studied, the royal visit to Australia and New Zealand early next year may involve a transatlantic flight home by way of Canada.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said today this is one of two possible methods of returning now under consideration. The other route by-passes Canada.

The return via Canada, if adopted, would involve a flight from Wellington, N.Z., to Fiji, with subsequent stops at Hawaii and Vancouver.

Whatever route is travelled, the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh are expected to be back in London by June.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE — BY INCH, YARD AND MILE

One of life's great mercies consists in our not knowing very much about the future. We can only surmise. Although it is true that most of the things we worry about never happen to us, it is also true that if we knew in advance some of the problems we would have to face, our peace would be disturbed and we might be less able to solve them when the time for solution arrived.

Just a few days ago I saw hanging on a wall in a doctor's office a statement which ran as follows: Life by the yard is hard; Life by the inch is a cinch.

Not always; but as a general proposition, yes. If we don't cross our bridges before we come to them, if we continually reinforce our minds with the statement of Jesus, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," then certainly we get along vastly better than we would otherwise. There is a real art in taking life as it comes. The more we forget the past and refuse to peer into the future, the better off we will be. Life by the yard is hard; Life by the inch is a cinch. I should like to add these words: Life by the mile is a smile; if we make it so.

Personal Health Talks

TONSILECTOMY IS A BAD BET FOR ALLERGY

Before we begin gritting our teeth and raising our voices, fellows, let's define two words. First, tonsillectomy means removal of the entire tonsil. Second, tonsillotomy means removal of a portion of the tonsil.

As you fellows know, I hope, I teach whoever heeds the teachings of an egregious newspaper quack that, with rare exceptions (malignancy, for instance) tonsillectomy is an atrocity, primarily because it is unnecessary. I tell the world that tonsillotomy is (a) instanteous, (b) a minor operation (c) and fully adequate treatment for enlarged tonsils.

In many instances, especially where the child's hearing is impaired by tonsil or adenoid (lymphoid, round cell) tissue masses obstructing the naso-pharyngeal orifice of the Eustachian tube, a few painless X-ray or radium emanation treatments will correct the trouble without any surgery.

For infected tonsils, seldom present in children, and particularly when the physician believes a septic focus in the tonsil may be accountable for some systemic ailment such as chronic rheumatix (focal infection) the method of choice is tonsil diathermy (electro - coagulation), which is, first of all, as safe as houses and in practice benefits the patient's systemic ailment at least as much as tonsillectomy can. After all, the purpose of treatment in the circumstance is eradication, drainage, disinfection, sterilization or pasteurization of the septic focus, is it not?

Commenting on the 1,235,000 tonsillectomies perpetrated (my word for it — the authors said "performed"—as a performance tonsillectomy is the crudest in the repertoire of the trick specialist of yesterday; its very crudity makes real doctors hesitate to perpetrate it on children) —the 1,235,000 such operations yearly in the United States, Drs. Hansel and Chang pointed out Archives of Otolaryngology that signs and symptoms of trouble in nose and throat commonly ascribed to "mad tonsils" may be due to allergy. These authors found 26 cases of nasal allergy in 104 boys and 96 girls between the ages of 3 and 16 years, chosen at random for examination. The diagnosis of allergy was based mainly on the finding of eosinophils in the nasal secretions — this may interest doctors but it is insignificant to laymen.

Drs. Hansel and Chang estimated that 160,000 allergic victims were subjected to unnecessary tonsillectomy in the United States in the year.

That would work out to, say, 440 atrocities a day on this pretext alone.

Yet the ever ready operators continue to feed their gullible customers the same old line of hokum and lure them to the operating-room just as though this were 1901 and the march of medicine had halted finally at the close of the 19th century.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Head of Cabbage and Can of Beans

Please advise what material you have on hand for gas on stomach and bowels...(H. J.)

Answer—Well, let's see— I find three cans of beans and a head of cabbage in fairly good working order. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (a clipping will not suffice) for pamphlet Yankee Stomach.

Vitamins and Iodin Ration

My daughter 42, has had wonderful effects from taking your Iodin Ration...but now the druggist tells her it is dangerous to take it when she is taking vitamins...(Mrs. E. G. M.)

Answer—And what does the grocer and the traffic cop tell her? In the pamphlet The Iodin Ration, available to any one who asks for it in writing (clipping will not suffice) and provides stamped, self-addressed envelope, I say the Iodin Ration can hardly do child or adult any harm in any case—no matter whether medicines or vitamins are taken along with it or not.

Bootleg Ingredients?

I have brewed a good many batches of your "foolproof" cough medicine. We swear by it, and I have given it to several of my friends who find it highly satisfactory... (Mrs. N. H.)

Answer—Instructions in booklet Call it Cri—for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope. From your letter, Ma'am, I infer that the druggists in your community have not yet cracked down on the sale of one of the ingredients. You know they don't approve of the use of home remedies by intelligent people.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TODAY

From one of the delightful books of the late Roy Stannard Baker (David Grayson) I came across where he tells of an old friend to whom he planned to write a cheerful letter, but when he had finally decided to write, he learned that his friend had died. How many of us have had a similar experience. There is never any time so urgent as Today when you decide upon anything that is important, or which ought to be done.

That letter which you have planned, or thought of writing to someone near and dear to you ought to be sent pronto! Tomorrow the opportunity may be gone. We are all neglectful at one time or another. Today is the only day of which we are certain. As a teacher once wrote in my boyhood autograph album: "This day will never dawn again."

If there is something you have planned to do "some day," why not make it Today? People who do their best Today do better things Tomorrow! A stranger, seeing the great Tolstoy plowing in a field, stopped to ask him if he were to die on the morrow what he would do Today. His reply was: "Plow corn," and he called to his team to go ahead, leaving his visitor in deep thought!

Whenever the impulse comes over you to do something fine, do it without delay. That impulse may never come to you again. Write that letter you have intended for so long to write. Do that little act of kindness that your heart has prompted you to do. Today is your day of days!

The Emperor Titus, once at supper, reflecting he had done nothing notable on that day, exclaimed: "My friends, I have lost a day!" And in the British Museum is an autograph album once belonging to one David Krieg, in which these lines appear: "Count that day lost whose low descending sun views from thy hand no worthy action done."

Every single one of our days is a link in life, so to make the life-chain a strong and notable one each link should be made durable. We never know when this day's task may prove to be the one that shall make our life notable and triumphant.

Churchill, Eden Home

London, Dec. 19 —(AP) — Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned today from Paris conferences with French government leaders and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, head of the Atlantic Pact defence force.

Both looked cheerful as they motored to 10 Downing Street, to report to the cabinet.

The prime minister is expected to give some indication of his plans in a radio address Saturday night.

HAVE POWER TO CALL STRIKE VOTE

Threat of a transportation workers' strike that would affect 500,000 Toronto and district travellers has reached a crucial stage. Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees are meeting with members of the Toronto Transportation Commission to find a solution to the problem created when the workers refused to accept a conciliation board recommendation that they accept a basic wage rate of $1.45 an hour. International Vice-President James McGinnity, left, and George Wilson, local president, received authority from the membership to call a strike vote whenever necessary.—Central Press Canadian.

Twenty thousand refugees fled this fiery scene, using every means available to cross the strait to Mindanao Island. The eruption continued for more than a week killing 788 people.—Central Press Canadian.

Hospital Aux. Completes Plans For Charity Ball

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held on Tuesday afternoon at the nurses' residence with Mrs. George Stobie, presiding.

It was with regret that Mrs. Sillitoe's resignation as chairman of the Opportunity Shop was received to become effective the end of January. The members are aware of the difficulties of replacing her able management under which this project has been most successful and the auxiliary as a whole is appreciative of the endless time, thought and energy which she has expended. Mrs. Dallas turned over to the general funds a cheque for $500 from the Opportunity Shop earnings. This sum represents hours of work on the part of the staff as well as the interest of many citizens who have donated merchandise or placed such on consignment.

A payment on the loan to the student nurses has been received accompanied by a letter stating their appreciation of the interest, assistance and co-operation of the auxiliary.

Christmas gifts to ward patients is under the management of Mrs. Wilson and a further sum voted to cover gifts to a larger number of patients than was originally anticipated.

Plans for the annual charity ball to be held next week at the Club Commodore are completed. Demand for tickets on the Manly Macdonald picture is great and it would be appreciated if members having undistributed books would turn them in at Dr. Stobie's office on Campbell Street, for redistribution. It is anticipated that this dance will be the usual gala and well-attended highlight of the Christmas season.

A thousand dollar Dominion of Canada bond has been bought toward a building fund and tentative plans for the spring fashion show and a fall tag day discussed.

Following the meeting tea was served by Miss Potts.

Business Women Hold Christmas Party at 'Y'

The December dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A. The tables artistically decorated by Mary Moult and the glittering Christmas tree made an excellent setting for the club's Christmas party.

Favorite Christmas carols were enjoyed, led by Muriel Jobson, and impromptu solos were given by Norma Arkles, Vi Burwash and Dorothy Brown. Isabel Wallbridge's Christmas quiz proved fun for all.

During the evening, tickets were sold on a Christmas cake and chocolates, Vi Burwash winning the cake and Dorothy Brown the chocolates.

Climax of the party was Mrs. Santa Claus, portrayed by Florence Fitzgerald, who was delightful and refreshing in her role, and provided much merriment in handing out the gifts.

Mrs. McLaughlin of the local Children's Aid Society, was special guest of the Club and was presented with a cheque for $25 to be used for the children. She graciously thanked the club for their gesture. President Eva Doolittle closed the meeting by extending the best wishes of the season to all.

King George H-S. Association Enjoys Social Evening

The December meeting of the King George Home and School Association took the form of a social evening, with the president, Mr. Hall, presiding. Business was kept to a minimum.

A card of thanks was read from Miss Wedden, a former teacher of the school, for a rose and vase sent to her by the Sunshine Club. Mr. Cousins also tendered thanks to the club from his mother.

Mr. Simpson and his boys' choir entertained with several Christmas carols which were greatly enjoyed by all.

A film "The Prince of Peace", was screened for the benefit of the Association and was a beautiful and fitting selection for this Christmas season. The class award of a radio was won by Miss Grier's class.

Square and round dancing were enjoyed by members, with music being supplied by Mrs. Calvert at the piano, assisted by Mr. Garrell with the violin.

SUBWAY SYSTEM DOWN

London, Dec. 19—(Reuters) — London's subway system broke down in the rush hour today for the second time in a little more than 12 hours. Thousands of workers were trapped for more than 30 minutes while others lined up in the streets for buses.

The hold-up today was caused by jammed brakes on the northbound train. Last night four trains broke down during the evening rush.

Paris, Dec. 19 — (AP) —A conference of European atomic scientists, meeting here to consider foundation of an international nuclear physics laboratory, yesterday recommended Copenhagen as a suitable site. Fourteen countries are represented at the conference.

Women's Guild Sends Food, Money Gifts

Mrs. Wm. Hurst, Church Street, opened her home for the December meeting of the Women's Guild. The main business of the evening was the decision to send two food parcels to India through CARE and $10 to the Save the Children's Fund for the Greek Children.

Singing of carols and a worship service of the reading of the Christmas story with a flannelgraph demonstration was conducted by Mrs. W. M. Gault. Two delightful readings, conversational pieces, "The Denominational Garden", and "The Treasurer's Report", by Mrs. Gault, were much appreciated.

Miss Olive Elson, assisted by Miss Alice Heasman, Mrs. G. Wishart, and Mrs. J. Buchanan read "The Mansion", by Henry Van Dyke. This story depicts a so-called self-made man surrounded by luxuries and the treasures accumulated through the years, who in his own estimation is the essence of good sense and planning, in that all his investments as well as his charities and endowments are planned to bring the greatest returns—to himself.

Dream Decides

This man, and his son are sitting at a table, being served their night-before-Christmas supper, and the discussion shows up their differences of opinion in what is expected of them. The son wishes to finance a college friend through an illness which requires a year or more sick leave, and the father refuses on the grounds that the possibility of returns is too remote. Following this rift with his son, the father apparently falls asleep in the library, and he dreams that he has passed over the Great Divide into the next world where he meets some old friends of years gone by being escorted to their beautiful mansions, as their reward for the years of unselfish service to humanity in this earthly world, while he is shown to a mere hut as his heavenly home. This phenomena is almost beyond his comprehension, but he wakens to the realization that he had lost his sense of values, and to make amends decides to finance both the college friend, and his son's desire to work in the mission field.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Buck, and Mrs. Wm. Fothergill after the singing of "Silent Night" bringing a most enjoyable evening to a close.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This romance offers only disaster

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20, and eight months ago, met a man of 25 with whom I fell deeply in love. He has told me he loves me very much, and I believe him, because after he went away to another state a little while ago, I went down there to see him and stayed two weeks, and when I left to come home, he cried.

Recently, however, I received a letter from him, telling me he was married and has two children. He said he doesn't get along too well with his wife. I was very much hurt about this, and stopped writing to him, but he kept on writing to me.

I would like to marry him, if he ever gets a divorce, as I am still very much in love with him. But there is another problem, too, and that is, we are of different faiths, and we are always arguing about this.

What do you think I should do, and would it be wrong for me to answer his letters?—S. A. G.

Dear S.A.G.: Since you have already stopped writing to this man, I think it would be wise for you to let the whole thing drop right there. The fact that he not only cultivated your acquaintance under false pretenses, plus the fact that you disagree so definitely on the very basic question of your faiths, should be enough to warn you away. Deceit and fundamental differences make an extremely poor start for any romance.

Don't let unhappiness cloud your judgment

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25, have been married for four and a half years, and have a three-year-old girl and am expecting another child next month.

About a month ago, my husband and I had a quarrel, and he refuses to talk things out. He had taken out two loans which I knew nothing about, and he goes out every night in the week, staying out until all hours. If I try to talk to him, he says, "Don't bother me," or, "I'm only interested in the kids, and don't want any part of you." But he hasn't given our daughter the love she longs for, so I am worried about what will happen to the one that is coming.

All I get out of this marriage is cooking, washing and ironing, plus my lonely evenings. I can't afford a baby sitter, so I have to stay home. I am at my wits' end, and am thinking of separating from my husband, as my nerves are getting the best of me, and I don't know what to do.

Could you please give me some advice?—L. W.

Dear L.W.: If you separated from your husband, would you have any way of supporting yourself and your children? That is the first thing you should think about before making any decision. If you cannot even afford a baby sitter so that you can go out occasionally, I am afraid you would have a very difficult time if you put yourself in a position where you did not even have a roof over your head. Do not let your unhappiness rush you into something you might quickly regret.

What I think you should do is to talk your problem over with some community organization which can help you work out your problem in some way. If you will send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to give you the name of such an organization in your vicinity.

Fashion Flashes

MAKING AN IMPRESSION with fashion-wise women is the all-fabric town coat. Black fleece is used for a wonderful coat cut on loose, square, boxy lines with a forward-moving loop collar and scarf and a dropped shoulder line. The coat is lined with shocking pink taffeta with a very faint gray stripe.

THERE'S NOTHING to beat the all-white dance dress, especially when it has a discreet bit of glitter. White crusty lace, sprinkled with tiny dewdrop rhinestones, flares out in a widening tunic over a skirt fashioned of layers of white nylon tulle.

Food for Thought

'Meal of The Year'

By Mary Moore

Best fun of the year, best day of the year, best column of the year—actually as I write this there's a smile on my silly face for I fancy I am in on the fun of your Christmas dinner. Maybe you will choose something I suggested. Maybe the stuffing will be just a mite better this year because you made it the Mary Moore way.

Anyway, I permit myself to believe I help. Wouldn't you if you received a letter saying "My husband tells me I am getting to be a better cook every day. I told him to tell that to Mary Moore, so he said he sure would if he knew who Mary Moore was!"

It's great fun when you drag approval out of the husbands.

See if you like the items I have selected for this meal of meals. It is tricky clinging to tradition yet including novel minor courses to give your guests something to "um" and "ah" and be surprised over. Notice that I have selected a first course with appetite appeal that adds its color note too, to your elegantly laid and laden table.

CHRISTMAS GRAPEFRUIT

Cut grapefruit into halves and carefully loosen each section from its membrane. With scissors clip out the little dividing walls of membrane and the centre core. Between each section slip a paper thin slice of maraschino cherry—using red and green slice alternately. Place a large red one in the centre.

CHRISTMAS COCKTAILS

Cook gently 1 pint cranberries with 1 pint water until fruit is very soft. If desired add 2 or 3 whole cloves while they cook. Strain. Add 1-2 to 1 cup sugar and simmer 5 minutes, then cool and add 1-4 to 1-2 cup orange juice and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Serve over cracked ice in cocktail glasses.

SAVOURY STUFFING

Chop finely 1 cup celery stalks and leaves, 1 cup onion and 1-4 cup parsley. Combine and saute over very low heat for 10 minutes. Add 1 tablespoon poultry seasonings or 1 teaspoon each powdered sage and thyme, and 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Pour this over 8 well-packed cups soft breadcrumbs. Now add any one of the following: from 1 to 3 cups cooked and chopped French chestnuts (to shell them you heat in very hot oven to dry skin and then shuck them) or the chopped giblets from the turkey after cooking tender or 1 cup chopped oysters or sauteed mushrooms. Add just enough hot water to make this moist—not soggy, before stuffing the turkey with it.

TIME FOR ROASTING TURKEY

A 6 to 9-lb dressed bird requires 2 1-2 to 3 hours at 325 deg. Fahr. A 10 to 13-lb bird requires 3 to 4 hours at 300 deg. Fahr. A 14 to 17-lb. bird, 4 1-2 to 5 1-3 hours at 275 deg. Fahr. An 18 to 25-lb. bird 6 to 8 hours at 250 to 275 deg. Fahr. Baste every half hour if uncovered.

SWEET POTATO BALLS

Six cups riced cooked sweet potatoes, 3 tablespoons milk, 1 1-4 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 3 tablespoon melted fat, 3 egg yolks. Add the milk, salt, pepper, minced onion, melted fat, and beaten egg yolks to the riced sweet potatoes. Shape into balls about 1 1-2 inches in diameter using about 1 heaping tablespoon for each. Roll each ball into a round in fine sifted breadcrumbs, next in beaten egg using 1 egg and 2 tablespoons water beaten together and then in crumbs again. Fry in deep fat at 390 deg. Fahr. until golden on all sides. Keep hot on unglazed paper.

Note: Same method may be used for white potatoes.

STERLING SAUCE (For Plum Pudding)

Cream together 1-2 cup butter and 1 cup brown sugar until very light, then add 1 teaspoon vanilla drop by drop, and 4 tablespoons heavy cream slowly. Other flavourings besides vanilla may be used such as almond, orange or pistachio.

Tomorrow I will give you a Christmas Supper menu—if you can face the thought of two party meals in one day.

MADOC

Women's Institute Presents Christmas Program, Skit

Madoc—Madoc Women's Institute held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Nicol on Friday afternoon with an attendance of 26 members and ten visitors. The rooms were decorated in keeping with the festive season. The president, Mrs. Kernahan, conducted the opening exercises including the business.

Communications and letters of thanks were received and it was decided to send remembrances to the sick and shut-ins at Christmas. A communication was received from Miss Moorcroft regarding the Folk School to be held in January at her home. It was decided to send a delegate, a junior member to be chosen at a later date.

A short time was spent in the singing of Christmas carols with Mrs. Hulin at the piano. After which the convener for the program, Mrs. J. McGowan, took charge, assisted by the younger members and visitors.

Country School Concert

Mrs. McGowan put on a skit, "A Country School Christmas Concert". The teacher, Miss Hildagarde Higgins (Mrs. J. Miles) had trained her scholars for the event and in turn they played their parts well, adding much pleasure and merriment to the program throughout.

Mrs. McGowan, as chairman of the trustee board, decided to dispense with the usual chairman's address and gave two recitations. "Patent Medicine Man," and "It's Nothing to Laugh At." The rest of the program—recitation by primary scholar, "Welcome", Mrs. Norma Stickwood; chorus and drill, "Jingle Bells", Eva Holmes, Norma Nicol, Norma Stickwood, Emma Henderson, Hazel Beatty, Margaret Caskey; encore, Rudolph, the Red Nosed Reindeer". monologue, "Addressing Cards" by Mrs. Frank Phillips; solo—O Holy Night, Mrs. Earl Armstrong;

Presentation was made to teacher by the pupils; duet, Mrs. Norma Nichol and Mrs. Armstrong; chorus, "Away in the Manger".

Arrival of Santa Claus with a bag full of gifts for the members concluded a happy and enjoyable meeting, recalling to mind to many of the members the school days of yesteryear.

A most hearty vote of thanks was given to the convener and her assistants for the pleasant afternoon. A social half hour followed with the hostess being assisted by Mrs. Tanner, Mrs. E. T. Nayler, Mrs. McCrimmon and Mrs. Munro in serving refreshments.

Annual Christmas Tree

The Madoc Christmas tree was held on Saturday afternoon at the Armouries. The attendance was not as large as usual but a happy crowd of boys and girls accompanied Santa Claus on his drive through the village to the Armouries where the children enjoyed an hour of moving picture., followed by a treat of candies and nuts. Much credit is due Mrs. W. Rothwell principal of Madoc public school, Ken Holmes and several of the citizens who made this event possible for the kiddies who look forward to this special treat at Christmas time.

BANCROFT

C. G. I. T. Hold Vesper Service

Bancroft — On Sunday evening, the Canadian Girls in Training of St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, conducted their annual Christmas vesper service when they took over the pulpit from Rev. Kingsley Cutler. Across Canada, 30,000 C.G.I.T. members were taking part in this national candlelighting ceremony in their own churches.

Haroldeen Watson took the leading part in the service while Myrna Mather read the Scripture passages. The choir of C.G.I.T. girls led in the singing of Christmas hymns. "Silent Night" was sung by Mr. Bert Ellerbeck who assisted the girls with their music.

During the candlelighting ceremony, Miss Watson reminded the congregation that "at this time of year, in company with thousands of others across the land we perform our candlelighting service to symbolize our re-dedication to the worthy aims which C.G.I.T. embodies in the life of the Canadian girl."

Aldith Robinson lit a candle in acknowledgment of His everlasting mercy. Shirley Robinson lit a candle in symbolic memory of Him the bright and morning star and in the recollection that He was born for the salvation of the world.

Anne Weiss lit the third candle "in symbolic memory of the light within each of us, by which all the world may know that we have been with Jesus."

The leader of the group, Mrs. A. W. Smith, who has worked in United Church mission fields among the Indians in the prairie provinces, told stories of the wonderful development in the Indian girls who had been able to attend mission schools.

COLDER WEATHER

of snow on Trail, B. C., and 18 inches on Rossland in the British Columbia interior in a 24-hour period.

The western blizzard extended from the Crow's Nest Pass in the Rockies to Swift Current in southwestern Saskatchewan. It heaped fresh discomfort on prairie residents who had just shivered through more than a week of sub-zero temperatures. Temperatures were expected to stay well below zero today.

A temperature range from 25 below zero to 10 below was predicted for most Manitoba points. Winds of about 20 miles an hour intensified the chill.

Chicago, Dec. 19. (AP)—Nature tossed a one-two punch—snow and cold—at northern sections of the United States today. Recent weather deaths mounted to 206.

Fresh snow fell on the northern plains and in the northern Rocky Mountain area. Strong winds, with drifting snow, were reported in the Dakotas and Montana. Snow also was falling in New England.

Bad weather was in its sixth day in many areas. The end was not in sight.

Temperatures were in the sub-freezing range in most of the northern states from the western mountains to the Atlantic, and lows of zero or below were registered in eight states.

Snow and much colder weather were forecast for tomorrow for the midwest.

Besides the death toll of 206 from the weather's onslaught since last Friday, thousands of persons suffered injuries in falls on icy streets and sidewalks.

Highways throughout the snow-blanketed areas were hazardous for travel. Schools in many areas were closed. There were widespread cancellations of basketball games. Yesterday's race program at the Charles Town, West Va., track was called off.

Cold weather extended over most of the eastern and northern sections of the country today. It was below zero again today in most of Montana and the Dakotas, the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes region.

SERVED 27 YEARS, PROVED INNOCENT

Catching up on the good things he has missed, Vance Erin Hardy enjoys an ice-cream sundae while on a brief visit to New York. Through the untiring efforts of his sister, Gladys Barrett, and a U.S. magazine, Hardy, was recently freed after spending 27 years in a Michigan prison for a crime that he did not commit. —Central Press Canadian

Washington, Dec. 19—(AP)—The United States has sharply told Russia that its own "aggressive action" and its "subversion" against middle eastern states are to blame for Allied plans to create a middle-east military command.

Replying to a Soviet protest of Nov. 24 against the Allied project, the U. S. cited once-secret negotiations between the Soviet and Nazi German government in 1940 as evidence of a Russian aim to create a red sphere of influence in the middle east.

The U. S. note, made public today, added that Russia's attitude toward that area since the end of the Second World War has led the American government to assume that the aims set forth 11 years ago "remain the policy of the Sovet government."

Britain, France and Turkey, which had simultaneously received Russian protests against the command which they are sponsoring jointly with U. S., also rejected the Soviet notes delivered to the foreign ministry in Moscow yesterday. States Department officials said.

All Make Same Points

While the Allied notes were described different in wording, officials declared they all made the same major points:

1. Rejection of a Russian assertion that the proposed command would be an aggressive organization.

2. An assertion that far from being aggressive it is based on provisions of the United Nations charter for collective action in defence and in support of world peace.

3. An accusation that, in the words of the American note, "Soviet threats" to the states of the middle east against joining the command "constitute interference in the affairs of these countries."

The Russian note had charged that the aim was to create a great base for the armed forces "of the Atlantic bloc," to assure the western governments of "the possibility of continuous interference" in the affairs of middle eastern countries, and to deprive those countries of "their national independence."

The Soviet-Nazi - negotiations referred to in the American note were discovered when the Allies captured German documents in the last war.

Egyptian Press Says Meeting Was Failure

Cairo, Dec. 19—(AP) — The Egyptian press said today the meeting between Anthony Eden British foreign secretary, and Egyptian Foreign Minister Salah El Din in Paris has been a failure.

The two ministers met yesterday in an attempt to find an area of agreement in the bitter British-Egptian dispute over the Suez canal.

The independent newspaper Al Ahram said in a Paris dispatch that neither Eden nor Sala El Din "budged an inch" from their positions. The dispatch said Eden asked Salan El Din to see that guerrilla attacks in the Canal zone were stopped and that the way be prepared for negotiations.

Sala El Din replied, the dispatch said, that immediate evacuation of British troops from the canal area is a prime requisite for restoring peace and improving Anglo-Egyptian relations.

In Cairo, the acting foreign minister, Ibrahim Farag, was quoted as saying his recent talks with U.S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery concerned the question of middle east defence. The U.S., Britain, France and Turkey has announced plans to go ahead with a defence-command setup, despite Egypt's rejection of a bid to join. Newspapers quoted Farag as commenting that Middle East defence should be undertaken exclusively by Middle East countries.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 18 — (CP) — The Kiwanis Club yesterday started a Canadian - European good neighbor movement. Citizens will be asked to invite one or more European immigrants to Christmas dinner in their homes.

Research Chemist Facing Charge Of Manslaughter

Milan, Italy, Dec. 19 (Reuters) —A laboratory assistant who injected a leading Italian research chemist, Dr. Giovanni Pauletta, with a new drug in a fatal experiment, today was charged with manslaughter.

Police said Pauletta had asked the assistant, Angelo Cresceri, to inject him. Cresceri was charged because "he neglected to satisfy himself about the subject's physical condition before the injection."

First reports said Pauletta, 34, applied the injection himself. He died an hour after the injection, suffering violent stomach pains.

Pauletta was experimenting with an anti-biotic drug of the chloromycetic group. Only he knew the formula. Such drugs are used for pneumonia, dysentery, typhoid, typhus and minor ailments.

He had conducted successful tests on guinea pigs with the new drug.

Allied Infantry Repulses Several Light Attacks

Most of what little action there was took place on the western front.

Northwest of Chorwon artillery was called on to help throw back a red assault that began late Tuesday. Light contacts with reds up to company strength were reported from other sectors in the west.

U.S. Eighth Army reported no American soldiers were killed along the front in the 24 hours ended at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Other U.N. and South Korean units counted some casualties, but they were light.

Allied ships and planes carried the war to the reds without interruption.

Allied jets contacted Russian-made MIG-15 planes three times Tuesday, but no damage was reported to either side.

Tuesday night B-29 Superforts ranged deep behind communist lines and bombed bridges and supply dumps.

The U.N.C. told the reds Monday it would attack from the air any large groups of vehicles, not properly marked, it found on the supply route.

Through daylight hours Tuesday the U.S. Fifth Air Force said it spotted only one truck on the highway in addition to the six-panel-marked vehicles that are allowed daily between Pyongyang, red capital, and Kaesong, communist advance truce base. The truck was considered too small a target for attack.

The weather was so bad Wednesday that pilots could see only part of the road. No unmarked vehicles were noted.

1,000 Oil Drums Are Blown Up By Jet Pilots

Tokyo, Dec. 19 — (Reuters) — United States Thunderjet pilots claimed today they blew up 1,000 oil drums in a half-mile-long stack between Pyongyang and Wonsan in North Korea.

Their bullets set off a chain reaction. Some of the exploding drums hurtled 50 feet into the air.

Fog and low ceiling kept U.S. Sabre jet fighter planes on the ground Wednesday but other fifth Air Force planes flew 164 sorties despite the poor weather.

Four Hunters Fined

Newmarket, Dec. 19 (CP) — Four hunters, who were sighted by Game Warden G. R. Armitage shooting at the same deer, yesterday were fined $50 and costs for hunting out of season. Convicted were William Reilly, R.R. 7, King; Douglas McRae, Toronto; Albert Lawson and Eric Gardner of Aurora. The deer escaped unhurt.

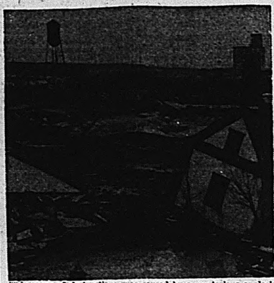
WATER TANK EXPLODES, FOUR KILLED



This scene of destruction was caused by a mysterious explosion which appeared to originate in a tank holding 2,750,000 gallons of water, in Tucumcari, N.M. Four persons were killed and 15 homes were destroyed, including the one show at right.—Central Press Canadian.

Ex-Servicemen's Groups In Germany Now Compete Vigorously for Membership

By JOHN EARLE

Bonn —(Reuters)— Germany's main veterans' organizations are competing hotly to sign up the millions of west German ex-servicemen.

The winner in this recruiting campaign may determine whether the former soldiers, organized as such, will be a major force in west German politics; and, if they are, whether they will back the Bonn republic or the nationalist right.

The three main veterans' groups are:

1. The Union of German Soldiers, a loosely-knit grouping of old comrades' associations such as the Afrika Korps, the "Green Devils" paratroopers, the S.S. men. Formed in September to include all local organizations, it pledged support to the Bonn Germany but claimed that otherwise it would be non-political.

2. The Stahlhem (Steel Helmet), an avowedly "anti-Bolshevist political organization.

3. The Kyffhaeuser League, which limits itself to welfare work.

The Union of German Soldiers soon ran into difficulties with the Bonn government. Its provisional president, Col.-Gen. Hans Friessener, 59, publicly condemned the July 1944 plot against Hitler's life and defended the German soldiers who in 1939 invaded Poland. The government rebuked the union's leaders for breaking their undertaking not to take part in politics.

Since then, there have been cratic enough and that too many generals are in senior positions. There have been calls for Gen. Friessener's removal.

Fights Bolshevism

The Stahlhelm works less publicly. Its headquarters — on the patched-up top floor of a bomb-damaged building in Cologne, signs that the union has met further trouble in its own ranks.

Local paratroop branches have complained that it is not demo-adorned with Imperial German flags — have a "cloak and dagger" atmosphere.

Its program, avowedly political, is couched in vague, semi-mysterious terms. A spokesman, who asked that his name not be disclosed, said: "Our practical task is to fight Bolshevism. We would not stand idly by if the state were threatened by Marxism."

Stahlhelm is a re-foundation of the nationalist, para-military force absorbed into Hitler's S.A. (Brownshirts). Claims that it has over 130,000 members are doubted by allied and west German officials.

With an eye to the future, it aims at attracting youth. Its spokesman says that the "Young Stahlhelm" has 7,000 members, whom they would like to put in uniform and equip with small arms.

The "Kyffhaeuser League" is led by a former Prussian Guards commander, Gen. Wilhelm Reinhardt, who says: "We reject politics. Our task is social."

Hitler Took Money

The league, founded in the last century, numbered 3,000,000 members, paying 30 pfennings (about 7 cents) dues a month, when Hitler dissolved it in 1943.

Its activities were to maintain a chain of homes in Germany for veterans and their dependents in distress, to provide financial help for the sick — cancer sufferers could have operations paid for — and to encourage the spirit of old comradeship at home and abroad.

Hitler confiscated its property as well as its 40,000,000 reich marks assets — "funds gathered from the pennies of the poor people," Gen. Reinhardt says.

Today, the league, trying to reorganize in face of rivalry, finds itself involved in expensive legal wrangles over the return of its homes from the state government.

We're fairly bulging with Christmas gifts for men. Big gifts, little gifts and medium size gifts. Everyday gifts and Sunday-go-to-meeting gifts. The kind that a man of taste would buy for himself. Come in and browse.

N.Y. State Struggles to Free Itself from Heaviest Storm But Colder Weather on Way

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 19—(AP)—New York State struggled today to free itself from the season's heaviest snowstorm, but the weather man said a new wintry onslaught was on the way.

Since Monday, 13 persons have lost their lives. The toll raised to 19 the number of deaths attributed to a series of storms that have buffeted large sections of the state since last Friday.

Crews battled swirling drifts and a five to 50 inch snow blanket that played hob with travel and shut many school and businesses.

Forecast for tomorrow was—more snow.

The hardest-hit section was the state's perennial snow belt extending from Watertown to the Syracuse-Rome-Utica area, where gusty winds whipped up towering drifts.

Elsewhere, most roads were open but slippery.

Blizzard-groggy Watertown had 50 inches on the ground and Mayor Henry A. Hudson ordered all firemen on 24-hour duty.

The northern New York industrial centre of 40,000 has been blanketed by an almost continuous snowfall for three days. Yesterday's storm followed a freak blizzard that dumped 40 inches on a wide patch of Jefferson County Sunday and Monday.

A 25-mile wind, with gusts up to 30 and growing stronger, caused heavy driting in the Syracuse area.

Trains and buses were running late in many sections. Airline flights were cancelled.

Buffalo had 16 inches of snow and other cities ranged from Rochester's 12 to 5 inches in Cortland, Auburn, Ithaca and Geneva.

Deaths and Heavy Property Loss Caused by Fires

(By The Canadian Press)

Deaths and heavy property loss were caused by a number of serious fires across Canada in the last two days. In most cases the fires were accompanied by biting cold weather and heavy snow which hampered efforts of fire fighters and added a further handicap to those burned out of their homes.

A blaze caused an estimated $250,000 damage Tuesday when it destroyed a warehouse and wholesale office of A. E. Hickman Company, Ltd., in the west-coast Newfoundland town of Corner Brook. The loss was originally estimated at $1,000,000.

Lost were 2,100 tires, $40,000 worth of bonded cigarets and 40,000 bottles of beer. Cause was not known.

In Winnipeg, two firemen were injured, 26 persons were left homeless and damage unofficially estimated at nearly $190,000 was caused in a series of fires.

At Val d'Or, Que., fire destroyed the $150,000 arena, opened last January.

Garage Gutted

At Saint John, N. B., a two-alarm fire gutted the one-storey garage of Saint John Motors Ltd., in the east end of the city. Loss was estimated at between $100,000 and $150,000. About 60 cars were in the big garage when the fire broke out. Some were driven out in time, but the majority were lost.

In Smiths Falls, Ont., Albert Hunter, a semi-invalid, was suffocated in his bed Monday night when fire swept through a grocery store on the floor below his bedroom.

At West Flamboro, five miles north of Dundas, Ont., two children died following a fire that consumed the home of George Philp.

In a score or more fires across Canada during the weekend— when a sharp cold spell gripped much of the country — loss of nearly $1,000,000 was caused and two persons died in Streetsville, Ont.

DEBATE ON BILL

Progressive Conservatives — The bill may spark price wars, destroying the small merchants and placing them at the mercy of price-cutting departmental and chain stores; will not assist the consumer since there is no proof it will reduce prices; moved a motion to kill the legislation for this session at least.

How They Lined Up

C.C.F.—Favored creation of a consumers' price control board to regulate retail price setting and proposed a motion to that effect; supported the bill if the motion was defeated; asked the government to plan legislation to outlaw "loss leaders", selling at below cost to attract trade and kill competition.

Social Credit—Supported the legislation because it would help the consumer; suggested it not be considered as a substitute for government action to bring down living costs.

Mr. Sinclair said the major effect of the bill will be to strengthen the Combines Investigation Act. A secondary result would be the reduction of price-maintained items.

Those who are against the bill, he charged, are "a few manufacturers who have loudly claimed their allegiance to free enterprise for everyone else, but who want iron-clad protection for themselves—and that party which, since the days of the Family Compact, has been the historic friends of privilege, monopoly and reaction—the Tory party."

Want to Distract People

Mr. Fleming charged the government had introduced the bill because it was looking for something to "distract" the people from the high cost of living.

H. A. Hosking (L—Wellington South) said the Progressive Conservatives were trying to enforce a "stall" on the bill, but the government would be prepared to proceed with "good government" after the stall was over.

The Progressive Conservatives were not protecting the little business man—but was protecting big business. He had made a survey of the retailer in his own constituency, and found that none of the small retailers had complained about the government's bill.

It was true that the retailer enjoyed some benefits from resale price maintenance, but he could not be sure what would happen to him eventually.

The aircraft is powered by a 175-horsepower gas turbine and unlike the piston engine, the turbine requires neither cooling fan nor centrifugal clutch. F. W. Schumacher, Founder of Town Bearing Name, Plays Santa to 850

Schumacher, Ont., Dec. 19 — (CP) — Each year for the last 35, Schumacher schools personal Santa Claus has travelled to Toronto to buy gifts for several hundred persons.

He is Frederick W. Schumacher, 82, of Columbus, O., founder of this Northern Ontario gold town and probably Canada's largest individual Santa Claus.

Three weeks ago in Toronto, the white-haired millionaire bought 850 presents, one for each student at the public and high schools here, for more than 40 teachers, and for the entire school staffs, down to the janitors.

Dean of the north country's gold timers, Mr. Schumacher first prospected for silver in the Cobalt region. In 1910 he arrived in the Porcupine camp.

Soon he acquired two of the most valuable claims in the history of Canadian mining, located between Hollinger Consolidated Mines and McIntyre Porcupine Mines.

He sank a shaft and built a townsite on the 80 acres. In 1922, he took Hollinger's offer to buy him out and went to live in Columbus.

Later, he made spectacular success in other Canadian mining areas.

But he has not forgotten the children in the townsite he carved out of the bush. The population of Schumacher now is 4,000.

Percy Boyce, principal of Schumacher public school, describes him as "the best friend the children of Schumacher have."

Still spry and debonair, Mr. Schumacher visits town every autumn and the kids gather to meet him and stage a concert in his honor.

His presents will be distributed here Thursday, last day before the school Christmas holiday. In big brown cartons they arrived steadily from Dec. 1 to Dec. 10 and are stacked in the public school storeroom until they are presented Thursday.

Many Freighters Ice Locked In River, Lake

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 19 (CP)— As freezing temperatures choked off the Detroit River in one of the earliest freeze-ups in its history, the lower river and west end of Lake Erie was dotted today with ice-locked freighters. Five tankers, a coal boat and two cutters of the United States Coast Guard were reported in trouble.

Stranded ships have been there for almost two days. There was little hope of rescuing the ships.

The Amherstburg tug, Atomic, veteran ice smasher around that part of the navigation system, was in Toledo, O., where she safely deposited the Imperial Leduc late Tuesday night.

The Leduc, torn by explosions at Sarnia last week, was towed to the Toledo dry dock for repairs.

The atomic battled the ice 12 hours to get the world's largest fresh water tanker to the dry dock berth.

The Atomic, on her return trip will go to Pelee Passage lighthouse to pick up the lighthouse crew, R. S. Lidwell and Albert Moore of Leamington. Both are Department of Transport employees.

The tanker L. S. Wescoat has been at the Detroit River light, 17 miles south of Amherstburg, for 36 hours. With her is the Boston Socony, another tanker from Cleveland.

The tanker, Blue Comet, is stuck in ice somewhere between the Detroit River light and the Toledo light and a tanker called Pan-Oil is crossways in Livingstone Chanel, off Amherstburg.

The tanker Meteor, off Pelee Island, may get a hand from the Atomic when she comes through.

The two, however, has not yet left Toledo.

The U.S. Coast Guard sent out two cutters to assist the stricken vessels. The cutters soon became stricken vessels themselves. One was iced in Livingston Channel overnight but freed herself this morning, and was moving up the channel.

Shoppers Pick Practical Gifts This Christmas

(By The Canadian Press)

Santa Claus this year is a cautious old gentleman who takes his time shopping, demands his dollar's worth and, in most cases, picks practical gifts.

The Canadian Press found in a cross-Canada survey of the Christmas trade that gift hunters are looking before they buy. Most centres report customers dodging expensive items. However, in Montreal, parents seem to be going all out for the children.

Stores in Quebec City said credit restrictions cut down purchases of big items such as refrigerators, electric stoves and pianos.

At the same time they have been practically emptied of toys imported from the United States. Big costly dolls sold at a great rate. Electric trains priced from $15 up have sold well in both Montreal and Ottawa.

Most merchants figured that over-all values of sales would at least equal that of last Christmas although in Ontario some felt there would be a drop from the province's $372,000,000 value of retail trade during December, 1950.

Last-minute shoppers were the trouble. Toronto merchants said Christmas "seems to be delayed." They hope for a rush immediately before the big day.

"Slowing up of buying, partially due to lack of funds," was given as one reason for the fewer early sales. In Toronto, the Retail Merchants' Association said most persons are in the habit of buying 80 per cent of their gifts for around $2 each. This Christmas they have found that a $2 article costs $3.

Clothing stores led sales in Vancouver. Women bought clothes for their husbands and vice versa. Clothing also was favored as a gift at Saint John where women bought shirts, ties and socks for their men folk.

In Halifax merchants tried everything from an early Santa to new revolving credit accounts to attract herds of shoppers who looked longingly at luxury items but ended up buying practical articles.

Several Maritime-made products sold well. An electric teapot was particularly popular. British-made goods also were snapped up.

Bernard Braden Acting in Britain

London (CP) — Bernard Braden, versatile stage, screen, radio and television actor from Vancouver, has taken over the role of an undertaker in one of this season's stage hits, "The Biggest Thief in Town".

Braden succeeds J. Edward Bromberg, United States character actor who came to Britain on special invitation to play the part. Bromberg, 49, was found dead in his room Dec. 6. Death was believed due to natural causes.

APPROVE RECORD BUDGET

Madrid, Spain, Dec. 19 — (AP) — The Cortez (parliament) approved yesterday a record budget of 22,745,646,520 pesetas (about $2,061,000,000 at the official exchange rate) which promises Spaniards more and higher taxes for 1952.

Scientists Study Ways to Stop Leaks in Tanks

Ottawa (CP) — Has your hot water tank sprang a leak lately? Are you troubled with rusty hot water?

The National Research Council, which studies everything from plant life to cosmic rays, thinks Canada's householders — those with galvanized tanks — have a problem — and it took it up recently.

Today it came up with results of a survey of 5,200 tanks of all ages up to nine years, 300 of which failed during the first six months of the survey. Council scientists subjected 55 of the corroded tanks from 15 different Ontario localities to a minute examination.

Their findings:

1. Tanks with thinner protective zinc coatings — anything less than about 3½ thousands of an inch — tend to leak quicker.
2. Under certain conditions of temperature and water composition steel exposed to the water corrodes and pits even though covered by a zinc coating.
3. Large hand-operated tank heaters are better than smaller, automatically-operated heaters which provide hot water all the time.

However, the scientists think that the leaky tank problem can be licked. The answer, they believe, lies in a method of adding a corrosion inhibitor to the water just before it enters the tank.

A simple device for doing this now is undergoing tests.

SOOTHING TREATMENT

Sugar is prominent in methods of treating stomach ulcers because it furnishes non-irritating energy.

What is the Miracle of Canada?

The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.

When the pattern breaks

But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETES TONIGHT!

The Pestiferous Petes, an up-and-coming bunch of brash puck fillipers from the borderland of the Kawarthas appear here tonight in one of the title roles of the Hawks vs Peterborough Petes hockey drama.

The said Petes have arisen from a mere talking part, sort of an extra, as it were, when the curtain rose on this all-winter epic of ice histrionics, to top billing on the advertising pasteboards and a spot on the top rung of the ladder from which they dare, egad, anybody to oust them.

Their press agents have done a good job by them. And some of it deserved. They boast a powerful organization of puck opportunists which knows a lot of the hockey answers correct and otherwise, and their gradual surge to the seat of the mighty in the senior "B" bespeaks no mean ability.

And their particular hockey appetites boast a strong yen for Hawk meat, especially the kind to be derived from the birds that flutter along the banks of the Moira. It seems that their early season dignity was mortified to no end when the detested Hawks had the unforgivable effrontery to sink, scuttle and disintegrate not to mention humiliate their organization in the opening game of the season by the unbelievable score of 11-3.

That has been an indigestible morsel in the collective crops of the Petes, one which cannot be ousted except through the medium of Hawk defeat. That, the Petes have been able to accomplish but once in the three joustings of the squads to date, the Hawks having the colossal nerve to defeat them in their own lair by a 6-5 score, and bowing by an 8-5 count in the last tussle.

And so it is quite reasonable to assume that tonight's tussle between these squads should come under the heading of classic. The Petes administered a terrific 15-4 shellacking to the Kingston Essanays in Peterborough Monday evening, and as a desert for this tasty entree they anticipate fresh Hawk meat in ice.

Be that as it may. The Hawks, too, are in the picture. Tabbed as "in-and-outers" by the usually reliable Michael Rodden, Kingston sports scrivener, the Hawks hung a decisive 7-3 defeat on the Peterborough Eagles their last time out, and if they play the same brand of hockey, it might be safe to predict that the end of hostilities tonight will see their third victory over the Liftlock crew, and a sharing of the top perch of the loop roost.

In any event it should be a thriller since the Petes are Hawk-hungry and the Moira falcons have regained their hockey heat.

HAWKLETS LOSE!

The Lindsay Kinsmen came through with a well-deserved win over the junior Hawks up in the Scugog town last night, nipping them 10-7 before a sparse throng of some 300 spectators to increase their lead to three points. The Hawks were minus Strahan, Mason, Doran and Stephens but but up a grim battle after the long haul and the leftover from the game of the night before. The Hawks had no alibis for this one, except perhaps their first line was broken through Strahan's absence, for the Kinsmen came through with an outstanding exhibition to cop the game gonfalon. From here it looks as though the group title will be battled for by these squads but in this unpredictable game of hockey, it is foolish to predict anything, even a game result. Peterborough and Kingston are still in the running and can toss the well-known monkey wrench into all and sundry hockey machinery.

ONE WAY!

The night previous Shibicky had been bounced from the bench for arguing with the referee.

In the jail game an inmate moved in on him and asked: — "Are these the same refs who tossed you out last night?" Shibicky said they were.

"Why don't you go over and take a slug at one of them," the inmate suggested. Then you take a jail term for assault. We could do with a good hockey coach in here."

Bob Waterfield Pro Football Pass Champion

Philadelphia, Dec. 19 (AP) — Bob Waterfield, star quarterback of Los Angeles Rams, won the pro football passing championship, and Eddie Price, workhorse of New York Giants, the ground gaining title in the National Football League.

The weekly N.F.L. statistics disclosed today that Waterfield had edged teammate Norman Van Brocklin for the passing title in the closest finish in the history of the league.

Waterfield led the Rams to their third straight divisional crown, finished with an average of 8.8977 to 8.8917 for Van Brocklin, last year's aerial champ

Price shattered a record established by Steve Van Buren of Philadelphia Eagles in 1949. The Giant heavy duty fullback carried the ball 272 times. Van Buren ran 263 times. Price picked up 965 yards, an average of 3.5 a try in edging Washington's Bob Goode, who finished with 951 yards on 208 rushes for an average of 4.6.

Lindsay Jrs Increase Lead With 10-7 Win Over Hawks In Open Free-Scoring Battle

Building up a two goal lead in the first period, the Lindsay Kinsmen were never headed as they defeated the Belleville Junior Hawks by a 10-7 score in a Junior B contest played in Lindsay on Tuesday night.

The win strengthened the homesters' hold on first place in the league standings as they moved three points in front of the Hawks, their nearest rivals. The Hawks have played one less game.

The undermanned Hawks showed the effect of having played a game on the previous night and could not match strides with a rested Lindsay crew. Bill Strahan, Charlie Doran, Ross Mason and Ted Stephens missed making the junket, through illness or other reasons.

Play was on a fairly even basis for the first 20 minutes although the homesters held a scoring edge, but it became obvious after the beginning of the second frame, that the Scugogs were playing faster and taking better advantage of their opportunities.

Two Goal Lead

MacDonald and Shinkel slid the puck past Barclay in the Belleville nets early in the initial frame before DeGray potted the Hawks only score in that period. Marshall added a third for Lindsay, late in the period, on a breakaway using another man as a decoy.

Powell increased the Lindsay lead with a quick pair of goals at the three minute mark of the second period.

"Sonny" Therrien provided a bright spot for Belleville with two scores and added another after MacDonald, Dysart and Smith had nullified his previous fine efforts.

Lalonde's second goal at the beginning of the third period narrowed the Lindsay lead to two goals, but only temporarily. Deeth and Shinkel racked in insurance markers at the mid-way mark to put the game "on ice" for the homesters. Harry Brown accounted for the other Hawk tally with a shot from just over centre ice that seemed to fool Truax completely.

Barclay received a penalty in the third period when he stopped a shot with his hand, faked the puck one way and then threw it in the opposite direction. Time was served by Hull.

Lindsay showed an evenly balanced team on the ice and backed it up in the scoring, dividing the points among 12 players. Powell and MacDonald each scored two goals and an assist, Smith and Marshall a goal and an assist, and Shinkel bulged the twine twice.

Henry Therrien led the Hawk squad with three goals. Lalonde netted a pair, DeGray picked up a goal and two assists and Doug Hull, playing only his third game set up a pair of scores.

A very small attendance of 342 people witnessed the battle for first place in the group.

Brantford Reds Edge Indians 5-3; Dutchies Win

(By The Canadian Press)

When Brantford Redmen do something they do it in a big way, especially if it's in front of a home town crowd.

Last night the Redmen picked up two important points with a 5-3 win over Stratford Indians in an OHA Senior A game. The two points at the expense of the league's top club boosted Brantford from their lowly cellar position right up into fourth place in the six team circuit.

The Brantford-Stratford tussle was the only Senior A game played although Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen were originally scheduled at Owen Sound. Tuesday's heavy snow storm clogged roads so thoroughly, the Dutchmen couldn't make it.

In the OHA Junior A group, Kitchener Greenshirts moved to within a single point of fourth place when they dropped the visiting sixth-place Waterloo Hurricanes 7-3 before 1,870 fans. At St. Catharines only 738 hockey followers turned out to watch the Teepees shove Oshawa Generals deeper into ninth place with a convincing 9-2 victory.

Bruins Rally to Tie Wings And Take Over Third Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Boston Bruins have another argument for overtime play in the National Hockey League.

Last night they battled back from a late-game two-goal deficit to tie Detroit Red Wings 5-5 before a slim garden gathering of 4,290.

Trailing 5-3 early in the third period, the Bruins banged in two past Terry Sawchuk and looked very much as if they were going on to win when time ran out. Stymied once again by the N. H. L.'s no-overtime regulation, they had to settle for a tie.

In Third Place

The single point earned with their late-game rally moved Boston back into undisputed possession of third place in the six-team standings while Detroit came through their 14th road game without a loss.

Bruins' veteran captain Milt Schmidt notched two goals, but it was bespectacled Hal Laycoe and Johnny Pierson who produced the third-period markers that gained the tie. Rookie Jack McIntyre was the other Boston goal-getter.

Vic Stasiuk, Ted Lindsay, Metro Prystai, Glen Skov and Gordie Howe tallied for the Red Wings.

Boston opened fast and took a 2-1 first-period lead, only to have Detroit leading 4-3 at the finish of the middle session.

Only one game is scheduled in the National Hockey League tonight. Four-place Montreal Canadiens visit cellar-dwelling New York Rangers.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press).

Chuck Dressen returned a signed blank contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday to show how eager he is to tackle job of managing the club in 1952.

Dressen is willing to let president Walter O'Malley and vice-president E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi fill in the salary terms when they get ready.

When the salary is written into the contract it probably will be about $30,000 on a one-year basis.

In an effort to bolster his squad, George Redding, coach of the Ontario Hockey Association senior 'A' Tigers last night announced the signing of two new players.

[illegible]my Faner and Gus Lyal are the newcomers. Faner, a forward, played last year with the Philadelphia Falcons of the Eastern United States League. Lyal was with Simcoe intermediates last season.

At San Francisco, the head of the California State Athletic Commission said yesterday that former heavyweight champion Joe Louis will not be permitted to box again in California because he is too old. The announcement by Commissioner Joe Phillips headed off the plans of local promoters who had hoped to match Louis here when he returns from a tour of the Far East.

California rules specify that no boxer over 36 years old may be given a licence without special permission of the commission. Louis will be 38 next May.

Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League fired head coach Johnny Michelosen yesterday and hired Joe Bach in his stead.

Michelosen resigned after owner Art Rooney notified him his contract would not be renewed for the job he has held the last four years. Bach, head coach at St. Bonaventure College the last two seasons, was a right tackle in Notre Dame's "Seven Mule" line that supported the school's famed "Four Horsemen."

For the third straight day, Charlie Burr, the 1951 United States jockey champion, guided home the winner of the main event at Miami's Tropical Park. This time, he made the grade with Narrator in $2,400 Dinner Key Purse, increasing his total for the year to 298 winners.

Philadelphia Athletics yesterday postponed until Dec. 27 a decision on buying the Ottawa franchise of the International League and returning the club to Jersey City. It was understood that a second group, headed by Lester Osterman, a Wall Street broker, is interested in buying the Ottawa club and moving it to Newark. Earlier yesterday, in New York, Frank Shaughnessy, president of the triple-A league, said a decision would be made on whether Newark or Jersey City will get the Ottawa franchise.

Ownership of the Moncton Hawks hockey club will be transferred to a citizens committee, it was announced early yesterday, by Lebaron Reid, president of the Maritime Major Hockey League club. The committee will conduct a financial campaign on behalf of the club. A $10,000 objective has been set.

Two Sections Will Comprise Valley League

Eleven and possibly 12 teams will take to the ice at the start of the New Year when the Trent Valley Hockey League commences another season of play.

Definite starters include Belleville, Trenton, Wellington, RCAF Station, Trenton, Frankford, Stirling, Marmora, Norwood, Havelock, Lakefield and Hastings.

The league is once again split into northern and southern divisions, Stirling, Marmora, Norwood, Havelock, Lakefield and Hastings will form the northern group with Belleville, RCAF Station, Trenton, Wellington, Frankford, Trenton, rounding out the southern group.

The top four teams in each division will enter the playoffs with each division declaring its own champion, before the winners clash for the league championship and the Thomas Bata memorial trophy. The championship was won last year by Peterborough Brintons, who downed the Trenton Taximen in the league finals.

To be eligible to perform with teams in the league, a player must be released by any OHA club he may have signed with this year and take part in no OHA games after Jan. 1, 1952.

Each division will play a double schedule within itself with games taking place on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The league plans to open on Wednesday, Jan. 2.

Hershey Bears Scalp Mohawks, By 4-1 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears strengthened their hold on first place of the American Hockey League's eastern division last night with a 4-1 victory over Cincinnati Mohawks while Providence Reds defeated St. Louis Flyers 7-2.

Cincinnati is fourth in the western division and St. Louis is second there, while Providence holds third place in the eastern section.

Paul Gladu, veteran left-winger, paced the Providence attack with two goals. Ray Powell picked up four points on a goal and three assists and tied his teammate, Jack Stoddard, for first place in the league scoring race. Stoddard scored a goal and two assists. Each has 41 points.

Barry Sullivan, Pete Kapusta and Jack McGill scored the other Providence goals. The St. Louis goal-getters were George Milligan and Glen Sonmor.

At Cincinnati, Hershey Bears capitalized on a sieve-like Mohawk defence. Joe Schertzl and Jerry Toppazzini racked up first period goals for the bears and they never had much to worry about after that.

Herb Dickenson's shot for Cincinnati cut the deficit to 2-1 in the second period but two goals midway in the final period by Toppazzini and Norm Corcoran clinched the verdict for the Bears.

Mother Over-joyed

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 19 (CP)—Mrs. Arthur Jenkins last night was "over-joyed" to hear that her son, Gnr. John Orval Jenkins, missing in Korea since late last summer, is named as a prisoner-of-war in a communist list handed over to U.N. truce negotiators.

She added, however, that she and her husband have not yet been informed officially that their son is a prisoner.

Gnr. Jenkins was one of two Canadian soldiers listed in casualty reports from Ottawa as missing. He was the only Canadian on the list handed over by the communists.

"REMEMBER—IT COSTS NO MORE AT ESQUIRE"

Ezinicki Shrugs off 'Rough' Charges 'I'll Play Hockey My Way' He Says

Boston, Dec. 19—(AP)—Wild Bill Ezinicki, hockey's renowned ruffian today shrugged off charges that he is a menace and a detriment on the ice with a snarl that sounded like "I'll play hockey my way."

Reunited on Boston Bruins' top line with Milt Schmidt, last year's most valuable player in the National Hockey League, Ezinicki seems interested only in catching any opposing player with his head down and splattering him in all directions at once.

He is dedicated particularly to a manhunt for Ted Lindsay, star left wing of Detroit Red Wings. Ever since last season, when Lindsay carved Ezinicki across the face and whacked him into a stupor, Wild Willie has sought to square things on ice.

Not Get Chance

But he'll never get the chance, according to Detroit coach Tommy Ivan.

"Why should I risk a $75,000 player like Ted against a wild man?" Ivan says.

So Lindsay and his linemates, Sid Abel and Gordie Howe, are replaced for less scintillating players every time Boston coach Lynn Patrick throws on Ezinicki.

What does Ezinicki think of this state of affairs?

"I'll answer that my way," says Ezzy, a deceptively powerful fellow of 170 pounds on a 5-10 frame.

A golf pro at the Colonial Country Club, Wakefield, Mass, in the spring and summer months, Toronto-born Ezinicki never seems too eager to return to hockey. In each of the last two seasons he held out for no other reason than there was still a lot of good golf weather.

Ezinicki has played for two big league coaches, Happy Day in Toronto and Patrick in Boston. Day now is a trouble-shooter in the Maple Leaf organization.

"Every time I see Day," Patrick says, "He asks me: 'How's Ezzy?' and then he bursts out laughing. But Ezzy isn't so funny to a lot of players who get careless when he's on against them. No sir, he's not a bit funny."

Lew Hayman Steps Down As Lark Coach

Montreal, Dec. 19—(CP)—Lew Hayman has stepped down as coach of Montreal's big four Alouettes. It was announced today. He takes over as general manager and managing director of the club.

The club said Hayman had not yet chosen a successor.

In dropping his coaching duties, Hayman ends a career which saw Cup championships. His Toronto Argos won the cup in 1933 and repeated the performance in 1937 and 1938. He masterminded the R.C.A.F. Hurricanes to the trophy in 1942 and brought it to Montreal with the Alouettes in 1949, the first time in 18 years that it came to the ciy.

838 KNOWN DEAD

Manila, Dec. 19 — (AP) — The typhoon which ripped across the central Philippines early last week left 838 known dead, 403,430 homeless and destroyed 44,000 homes, the Red Cross reported.

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Ready for Hockey Opener; Form First Juvenile Team in Years

Bancroft (Special)—To the names of hockey teams from this area you can now add that of 'Bancroft Timbermen', the first juvenile team to be organized in North Hastings in years.

Whitney Martin of Martin Brothers Lumber Company, the sponsor of the outfit, today gave the outfit its first pre-season publicity. Jack Stuckey, the P. and H. E. man at North Hastings High School will be in charge. Jack is a former player from the Grand Valley - Orangeville - Shelbourne intermediate circuit and while attending University of Toronto and Ontario College of Education was connected with North Toronto Lions and U.T.S. teams.

Would Like League

Players will be drawn from North Hastings High School, reinforced by others who have not yet attained their eighteenth birthday. Sweaters have been ordered—and a recent phone call to Toronto confirmed the fact that they would arrive in town in time for the first game. Martin and Stuckey are now engaged in promoting a league for their boys and are anxious to get in touch with any and all teams within travelling distance.

Madoc will play Bancroft Pontiacs on Dec. 28th to open Hastings-Addington Hockey League schedule for the season. On the same night Tweed is billed to play in Tamworth but there likely will be a last minute switch of that game as it is touch and go as to whether Tamworth will have its new arena ready for the initial tilt.

President Milton Brough and Manager Bernard Shapiro of the champion Pontiacs were not able to tell their initial line-up as there have been a number of changes in their roster since the March play-offs. However, they did mention two new faces — Jack Hattin of Tip Top Tailors in the Toronto mercantile loop and Jack Stuckey of O.C.E. and Grand Valley. With smiles of satisfaction they also noted that goal tender Art Young who moved to Madoc in the spring has once more become a citizen of Bancroft.

Tallulah Trimmed To Bit Player Size By Defence Counsel

The 48-year-old star; complaining of stage fright in her first witness stand appearance, played her part straight as she denied ever giving Mrs. Cronin permission to raise the amounts.

Last week defence council had charged that the money went to furnish "booze, cocaine and sex" for the red-haired star of screen stage and radio.

The mink clad Miss Bankhead, who has denied the charges and said they were made to force her to drop the case, swept down upon reporters and piped in her throaty drawl:

"I guess he didn't have the temerity to cross-examine me."

She added: "When this is all over, dahlings, we're going to have a big party and you'll all be there."

She called her first witness stand appearance "my finest hour." But flubbed the next line trying to quote Shakespeare, saying:

"He who steals my purse steals trash, but who steals my good name. . ."

The way Shakespeare wrote it, in "Othello," was:

"Who steals my purse steals trash. . . but he that filches from me my good name, robs me of that which not enriches him and makes me poor in indeed."

ANOTHER DAUGHTER

Los Angeles, Dec. 19 — (AP)— British actress Deborah Kerr gave birth to a daughter last night. She and her husband, Anthony Bartley, named the eight-pound child Franceska Ann. The Bartleys have one other child, Melanie Jane, 4.

BEST SINCE 1940

London, Dec. 19 — (Reuters)— If Britain's miners dig more than 8,855,300 tons of coal during the next two weeks, they will exceed the target of 224,000,000 tons set by the government for 1951. Last week's output was 4,909,300 tons— the best since June, 1940.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 19 — (AP) — Sour-faced comedian Fred Allen, here for a movie stint, paused long enough to blast his favorite target — air networks and advertising agency vice-presidents.

He blames them for television's failings, including his own.

"My shows have been pretty bad," he admitted, "except the last one. The reason is that until now I had been doing what everybody else said I was supposed to do. But on the last one, I disregarded their advice and did the kind of show I wanted. The sponsor was dropping the series anyway, so what did I have to lose?

"These executives have a lot of screwy notions about TV. They say everything has to have movement. Even if you're standing still and doing a monologue, there has to be two guys running around behind you."

Bad Effect

He believes that the advertiser's influence in TV has produced a bad effect, "just as it did in radio."

"The TV performer has the same importance as the label on a can," he argued. "The show itself is not important; it's whether the show can sell the product.

"I think it's bad in any medium when the entertainment quality is not the important thing. A discriminating audience has certainly helped the movie business. Pictures had to get better, because people found out they could eat popcorn right out in the open; they didn't have to go in darkened theatres to do it."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players cry their eyes out if you deliberately bid too high against them. They mistakenly think this is not a nice way to play the game. A very silly notion confined to palookas.

One pair competes against another pair. The aim of each pair is to end with the most number of points. Not only by gains. But also by keeping their losses at the least possible.

If a pair sees the other pair may win a contract, they prefer to overbid. It may force the other pair into a contract they will lose. Or lead to their own defeat for an amount that is less than opponents could have gained in some other way.

It is the theme on which is concluded this deal:

NORTH
♠ 10 9 8 5 4 2
♥ 4 2
♦ Q
♣ 9 7 4 2

WEST
♠ A 7 6 3
♥ A
♦ K 9 7 3 2
♣ Q J 0

EAST
♠ None
♥ K Q J 9 8 7 6
♦ 10 5
♣ K 6 5 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q J
♥ 10 5 3
♦ A J 8 6 4
♣ A 8

East and west reached a contract of four hearts. However, north realized that east and west could make a contract of four hearts. So he decided to do something about it.

Instead of permitting opponents to play the contract of four hearts, north bid four spades. He did so with the conviction that he would be defeated at that contract.

But he mentally computed that his loss at four spades, even if doubled, would be less than opponents could make at four hearts. Which is good bridge.

Only among players who are inexperienced in these tactics is it considered either unfair or impolite to take such losses. In fact, the lows of bridge are constructed to encourage such tactics.

Yes, there are some players who call a sacrifice bid dirty bridge. It is just the opposite. It is good competition. It is the life of bridge.

One of the fine arts of bridge is to know when it pays to take a sacrifice. If you are going to lose five bucks and see a way of losing only two, you save three bucks in the deal.

MANY KANGAROOS KILLED

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 19 — (Reuters)— Many kangaroos fleeing before renewed bush fires in the Blue Mountains, 60 miles west of Sydney, were run over and killed early today by trucks carrying firefighters. The new outbreak, which flared up yesterday, is one of the worst this season.

Washington, Dec. 19 — (AP)— To save scarce metals needed in the defence program, the government and the states have agreed on a program to make 1951 or 1952 automobile licence plates do indefinitely. The National Production Authority said yesterday that in 27 states the last new plates motorists will get for the time being are those for 1952 and in 21 states the 1951 plates will be used through 1952. Small tags or clips will be issued to bring them up to date.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, Dec. 20, 1951

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—couraging outlook, yet cautious against over-confidence. Plan early, waste no time on unessentials; be consistent in your demands as well as your effort to achieve.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Use well that gift of imagination, try some new ideas on this favorable day. General business, advertising, research, professional matters have clearer headway.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Current outlook bright for you who are wide awake and ready for strong sincere effort. Take a breather somewhere to ascertain your gains and coming tasks. Don't rush heedlessly.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Mix your hard earned success with occasional pleasant diversions. "All work and no play" is imprudent.. But don't ever be satisfied with conventional gains en you can make better ones.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Because you may be coasting along easily don't think it will continue without alertness and steady striving. Protect property, lay away a store for leaner days. Be rational in demands.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Speed up some; many fine possibilities ahead. Improve your business; financial, any position by giving each item sincere, smart handling. You are capable, use your innate gifts.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Opportunity for you who are aware, judiciously energetic yet ready to extend self beyond the ordinary. Personal affairs can be satisfying through your good offices.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Quality not quantity will bring you nearer goal. You have natural gifts to cope with whatever the problems if you put your mind to them. Pray for guidance.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — General influences. But you must seek and develop them. Your foresight, perseverance should put you well over success mark; aim high. Romance, family affairs favored.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Adhere to wise traditions, respect facts; investigate hearsay. Stability, intelligent effort will be your medium for any true gains. Shun avoidable contention.

January 22 to February 20—(Acquarius)—In the middle of important decisions, problems? May have to think fast. Remember, calm, serene thinking—plus intelligent but not over-quick action achieves most.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Reach into the new and experimental-where possible, and if feasible. Don't be content to survive on past laurels. What would this world be if we all did so! Use your imagination carefully.

YOU BORN TODAY: Pleasant companion, good-natured, generous. Many fine qualities; have foresight, charity. Seek higher education and religion always; the latter will hold you safe from many temptations, including foolish chances. Watch tendency to be abrupt, blunt. You are at times because of honest intent and straight forward attitude, and expect others to be to the point. But everyone does not understand this view. You love the outdoors, travel, good-living. Make fine statesman, salesman, judges. Birthdate of: Thomas Chatterton, poet, Josiah Royce, educator: Evelyn Keys, screen actress.

Arena Damaged

Val d'Or, Que., Dec. 19 (CP)—Fire Tuesday caused an estimated $20,000 damage to the Val d'Or arena, home of the Golden Stars of the Northern Ontario intermediate A League.

Fire apparently started in the bleachers and soon spread to the roof. A heater left burning through the night was suspected as the cause of the blaze.

It has not been decided whether Golden Stars will be at home to the Rouyn Flyers tomorrow night as scheduled.

SHANNONVILLE

United Church W.A. Elects Executive

The Christmas meeting of Shannonville United Church W.A. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. K. R. Vivian with 24 ladies in attendance. Mrs. Vivian graciously welcomed all to her home. Mrs. L. Scott presided at the piano for the Christmas hymns which were used throughout the service.

An appropriate Christmas reading was given by Mrs. Vivian. The devotional was in charge of Miss Sara Stickney, who read "God's Gift to Man". Mrs. Charles Wood read the lesson thoughts.

In answer to an appeal from the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, a donation was voted to this institution; a note of thanks was read from Mrs. Fred Melborne for the card received when she was a patient in Belleville hospital, also a card in thanks for birthday greetings from Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McFarlane; as well as a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy expressing their gratitude for the card sent them at the time of Mr. Murphy's sister's death.

Appreciation Voiced

Mrs. Sam Elliott expressed her appreciation for the card she received at the time of her brother's death. Mrs. Frank Doxtator thanked the ladies for the card of birthday greetings which her husband received, and Miss Sara Stickney voiced her appreciation for the lovely cherry plant presented to her mother, Mrs. Jane Stickney, on the occasion of her 94th birthday.

The treasurer, Mrs. Claude Clarke, reported that $673 had been raised this year to which the day's receipts would be added. The secretary reported 39 members enrolled; 11 meetings had been held; two members were deceased, Mrs. Charles Boulstridge, on January 28th., and Mrs. Charles Howard on September 19th. Both deaths were sudden and much regretted by the members.

The Rev. L. W. Scott congratulated the ladies on their successful year's work, and thanked the president for her splendid leadership. The meeting day was changed to the second Friday of each month.

Mrs. F. Doxtator moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Mastin for her efficient work as secretary for eight years; also to Mrs. Claude Clarke for her fine work as treasurer. The task of looking after the finances has not been easy, and the members appreciate the service given by Mrs. Clarke who has filled other offices as well as that of sewing.

Mrs. Sam Elliott invited as many as could come to her home on Monday evening to help fill baskets of fruit for the sick and elderly members and adherents of the congregation as well as those who have moved away. It was decided to buy a new communion table for the church.

Following the close of the meeting, Mrs. Vivian and her assistants served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. Clarke, on January 11th, (Friday).

WHY WE SAY

"PEEPING TOM"
THANKS WALTER MECKENKEE WINNIPEG, CANADA

. . . Just one man

We use the expression "Peeping Tom" today to allude to someone who prowls at night. The expression came from the legendary story of Lady Godiva in Coventry England. Lady Godiva had appealed to her husband to reduce taxes. He agreed, if she would ride naked through the streets. All of the townspeople agreed to stay indoors that day except one tailor named Tom who peeped but was struck blind. (Thanks Walter Meckenkee, Winnipeg, Canada).

Three Keepers Drift Ashore After Three Days

Chatham, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Three lighthouse keepers on south east shoals, six miles south of Point Pelee, drifted ashore Tuesday 12 miles south of here.

Cole Main of Dunville, Peter Soroke of Toronto and Alfred Wigle of Leamington had been drifting in their outboard motorboat since Sunday noon.

The two men shoved off for shore after Soroke, a radio operator, was advised that a fishing tug from Kingsville, to have taken them ashore for the winter, was unable to get through the heavy ice.

The men started out in their boat. When the motor failed, they lost direction and drifted.

Survey Indicates Yule Turkeys In Good Supply

(By The Canadian Press)

The Christmas bell has started toll for turkeys.

All across Canada, a Canadian Press survey showed today, supply is as good or better than last year, prices are generally the same and the anxious exodus from the farms to the roasting oven will soon be under way.

In British Columbia raising turkeys is big business, worth some $37,000,000 annually. When the Christmas market opened, B.C. growers had some 4,500,000 birds ready for shipment to retail outlets.

Prices generally were up five cents a pound from last year in B.C. with retailers asking 70 cents a pound for birds under 18 pounds.

Turkeys are plentiful in Al- secrets . . . ” berta with prices about the same as last year. The Edmonton Marketing Board said Bronze turkeys are in good supply.

More birds are available in Saskatchewan—the supply up as high as 15 per cent in heavy turkeys 18 pounds and over. However, demand is greatest in the 10-to-14-pound class. Prices for heavier birds are up five cents while those for smaller birds are about unchanged. Retailers are asking 65 to 70 cents a pound.

In Manitoba, prices are generally the same as last year, in some cases up a cent. Supply is equal to 1950 while chicken supplies are up.

Grade A special birds are selling at 47-48 cents a pound for birds under 18 pounds while birds over 18 are selling at 41-43. Grade A birds under 18 pounds cost 46-47 cents while heavier grade A birds are selling at 40-42.

In Ontario, prices are estimated at 68 cents for toms and 75 cents a pound for hens.

Agriculture Department officials said the supply would be about the same as last Christmas. The preferred family turkey in Ontario runs from 12 to 16 pounds.

Other fowl are in good supply in the province. Some Australian rabbits have been imported to sell at 45 cents a pound.

In Quebec, production of turkeys reached a record this year with 692,993 birds compared with 516,136 in 1950. Some 100,000 younger birds were shipped to western provinces some months ago. The rest of the supply will be for consumption within the province.

Prices are slightly higher than last year, ranging from 69 to 75 cents a pound. Domestic goose and duck production dropped this year.

New Brunswick prices remain about the same — 80 cents or slightly lower for grade A drawn. Choicest weights are the 10-12 pound birds.

Production in Nova Scotia has risen 50 per cent in the last few years. Prices this year are 75 cents a pound or slightly higher—about the same as last year.

Floor Prices for Eggs, Bacon Will be Continued in 1952

Ottawa, Dec. 19 (CP) — Continuance in 1952 of government floor prices for eggs and bacon was announced to the commons Monday by agriculture minister Gardiner.

He said the government will continue to buy any eggs offered at the year-end at 38 cents a dozen for grade "A" delivered in Montreal and bacon Wiltshire sides at $32.50 a hundredweight.

Mr. Gardiner made his announcement as the chamber considered legislation, later adopted, to establish an agricultural products board to handle government bulk purchasing of farm products.

He said the board, already in existence by virtue of emergency powers, will not operate on a day-to-day basis of buying and selling. Rather, it will be available to buy farm produce if, for example, the government needs them to fill a bulk contract for a foreign government.

Opposition members used the legislation as the basis for a campaign urging the government to establish parity prices for farm products or at least raise existing floor prices.

This drive led to a formal division as the chamber voted 97 to 38 in support of speaker Ross Macdonald when he ruled out of order a C.C.F. amendment demanding that the government boost the floor prices.

Dealing with floor prices, Mr. Gardiner said the government has had no pork products offered to it at the support price since market prices are above that level.

Under its egg-support program, it offers to buy any grade "A" eggs remaining in storage in Montreal at the year-end. No one has offered eggs to the government at that price.

The board would not have the right to requisition farm products or make farmers deliver to it.

H. O. White (P.C.-Middlesex East), expressing his opposition to bulk buying by governments, said the farmers had come to the conclusion the government had decided it could ride "roughshod" over Canadian agriculture.

L. E. Cardiff (PC-Huron North) said the board would not be much use if agriculture was not represented on it.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Peering intently I made out a lone horseman sitting slightly in advance of his fellows. It was the old chief from the valley. Apparently his forces had joined those of Crazy Horse sometime during the night.

Below us the Crows had made their decision. I watched, fascinated, for the Plains Indian is the world's finest natural cavalryman, and I, something of an expert in that line, was professionally intrigued by their tactical position.

Their manoeuvre was a classic of its kind. They began by forming a closed phalanx of three columns of 10, riding slowly down upon the southern Sioux, the three width presented forward. Behind them the northern Sioux closed in at a following pace, keeping their spread line. Here was none of the whooping and yelling popularly associated with Indian battles. Here were 30 men trying to outsmart 80 and not aiming to bring it off by outwhooping them.

The myth of the Indian's 'blood curdling' vocal efforts in attack comes from his use of this psychological weapon upon the whites. Here it works. But where a high-screaming war whoop may serve to unnerve a white settler, a Crow knows a Sioux and a Sioux knows a Crow, and both know nobody ever got killed by war whoop.

Below, old Many Kills showed hesitation, then shouted for his line to pull in and bunch to receive the Crow assault. Exactly, I imagined what from my field view, what the Crow leader wanted. For the minute the Sioux bunched, the Crow horsemen split, and not in two or three sections, but 30. Every man for himself. The old scatter-and-ride through, which until that moment I had believed we Confederates practised better than any cavalry. But the way the Crows pulled it off put us to shame. They bombarded out of that tight phalanx like quail from a berry bush.

In the rear of the fleeing Crows went the bowling Sioux, the whole pack of them being lost in a down-valley dustcloud in less than two minutes. Turning to Star I laughed aloud, the first genuine release from tension in days.

"In all the world," I announced joyously, seizing her outstretched hands, feeling now the full post-danger letdown, "we haven't a thing to worry about but Slatemeyer!"

"Isn't that enough?" The question fell with singular flatness in the morning stillness of the hillside.

Beside me I felt, rather than heard, Star's stiffening gasp.

Slatemeyer stood on the hillside behind us, his back to the morning sun, as quietly at ease as though in Market Square at Kansas City.

Standing there black against the sun he looked enormous. In the card game at Kansas City I had been able to study him only as he squatted on his haunches. I had been impressed then, but not as I was now.

Two silver mounted pistols hung low and forward on his thighs, the holsters and crossed cartridge belts in black leather and silver. In the cradle of his right arm rested a new rifle. A flat-crowned black hat and black neckcloth with heavy silver slipring completed his outfit.

"Turn around slowly and drop your holsters and the knife."

Turning slowly, I unbuckled my guns, letting them slide to the ground. Reaching inside my shirt for the knife thong I tensed my body for what would likely be my last lunge. If I could strike fast enough to get the blade into him before the lead that would be in me weighted me down, Star might—

"If that knife touches your hand the squaw gets shot." Behind me the dry click of a cocking rifle put the period on his warning. "Pull the thong over your head. Let the knife dangle where I can see it all the time. Then drop it. I don't want to fire a shot. Indians get curious about shots. Drop the knife."

If I didn't drop the knife he would shoot if it brought the whole Bad Face band down on him. He was literal. What he said you'd better believe. I dropped the knife.

"Now turn around."

I obeyed.

"Pick that stuff up, girl."

Star glanced at the guns and knife disdainfully, making no move. He stepped in close to her, repeating, "pick it up."

She spat in his face. He stood expressionless, letting the spittle course his cheek untouched.

"Pick it up, Star." This tersely from me. "Pick it up or we're both dead."

"I would rather be," she snarled, her lips drawn back savagely over the white teeth.

"Star. Pick it up. I order you to do it." I used the Sioux phrase with which the brave terminates all tipi arguments when he has heard enough. She looked at me, surprised, hesitated, smiled quizzically and dropped to one knee, picking up the knife and guns.

"Yes?" she queried, turning obediently to me.

"Do as he tells you."

"Throw them over the rocks behind you—down the hill," Slatemeyer ordered.

As she turned to do so he stepped quickly in behind her. When she threw the weapons he struck her across the head with the barrel of the rifle. She dropped soundless. "She'll keep," he said, not even glancing down to see if she would or not.

Facing me, he added, "back up, in between those rocks. Those two high ones that wedge together."

I stepped back until my shoulders touched the boulders. They were 12 feet high with smooth vertical sides. A puma couldn't have gotten out of that spot. The only way was through the figure fronting the opening.

Unbuckling his own guns, Slatemeyer threw them contemptuously up onto the hillside behind me, following suit with his rifle.

"They're yours," he grunted. All you have to do is to get them." As he spoke he drew his knife, starting in toward me. "No noise," he explained, tonelessly, making a slight twisting gesture with the blade.

I suppose no man is totally without some shred of the actor in him, some ravelling of humor in the cloth of his makeup. Deep inside Slatemeyer lurked a maverick strain of mirth. His weakening to it in this moment was one of those weird split-hair things; the sort of featherweight foolishness that has cost many a man many a battle. Pausing five feet from me, his eyes never leaving mine, he made his memorable sally into sarcasm.

Between the pause and the speech I gathered myself to counter his attack.

"In all the world," he began, his mimicry of my stupid announcement to Star being painfully good, "I have nothing to worry about but Slatemeyer—"

"—and Crazy Horse." The deep Sioux gutteral dropped into the end of Slatemeyer's sentence and left no room for argument.

The whiskey runner froze and I swept my gaze upward past him. Fifteen yards up the hill stood the war chief and 10 Oglala braves.

"Welcome to my tipi," I called to Crazy Horse.

"I can believe you mean it," he answered, flashing the rare Sioux smile. "What do you want done with this dog?" he asked, referring to Slatemeyer.

"I want him taken alive."

As he heard me speak, the whiskey runner pivoted slowly on his heel until he faced the Indians. I watched the muscles of his back and knife arm, seeing them tense. Being a white man I could read that sign where the Sioux might not. If they saw it at all they would see it wrong; figuring he meant to make a fight.

"A-ah!" I called the Oglala warning word to Crazy Horse as I launched myself at Slatemeyer's back.

I caught his arm in the downstroke, deflecting it so that the knife ripped harmlessly through his feather shirt instead of into himself where he had aimed it. In a second the braves swarmed over us.

But the giant white man reared up like a cornered grizzly throwing warriors off like a huge dog shaking himself free of water. Crazy Horse stepped in close, faster than I have seen any man move, and brought the haft of his war ax ringing down across Slatemeyer's skull.

I stood up facing the Oglala chief across the body of the whiskey runner. "Two times now you have saved my life," I acknowledged gratefully, extending my hand.

He took it in both his but looked past me out over the valley as he answered somberly. "It is nothing. In the end there will be another battle and you will lose your life. I am seeing this now. This is a great battle. A great victory for the Sioux. But you are lying among the enemy dead. A chief dressed in black riding a black horse is bearing you away. It is I. I am alive. I am carrying you away." No one spoke then, the Indians stirring uneasily in the silence following Crazy Horse's vision. . .

Neither Star nor Slatemeyer were any the worse for their "walks in the evening," Star recovering as we lashed the still unconscious form of her abductor to a pack pony.

Riding back to Crazy Horse I told him of my plans for a part in the victory ceremony. He listened seriously, calling up Yellow Bird and Many Kills that they might hear also.

"Cetan Mani will honor the victory dance," he told them. "He has requested a trial-by-knife for the white dog."

The Sioux trial-by-knife is a legal simplicity. When two litigants have reached the impasse where one or both of them is unwilling to settle for less than the life of the other, they are stripped naked, handed knives and told to fight as loud as they have talked.

A circle of 15 long paces' diameter was drawn on bare ground. Around this boundary fires were built, these providing light for audience and principals alike. Between the boundary fires and around the perimeter of the circle squatted the more efficient of the tribe's lancemen, each armed with a short, razor-headed buffalo javelin. If either fighter got beyond the circle for any reason, tricked, forced or frightened there, the nearest Indian was delighted to lance him back into the contest.

There are just two ways these duels can end. First: one of the fighters kill the other. Second: by virtue of mutual conviction that both have had enough, neither fighter will kill the other. In this case the waiting lancers move in and satisfy them both.

The Sioux have no word for "tie."

As to the survivor, no matter what his status prior to the contest, he is entitled to the full rights of the tribe. In Slatemeyer's case this meant one thing; if he killed me he went free. And he would go with honor, riding my horse, wearing my weapons, being escorted in full honor to the boundaries of the tribal lands

About midnight Yellow Bird came to me and said "it is time. I am to be kola (second) for you."

"What has happened to the Mouse?" I asked, not wanting to appear concerned about my own case.

"He is with his ancestors."

"Did he die like a man?"

The tall Sioux spat viciously as though to rid his mouth of a bite of rotten meat. "He died like a mouse," he said.

Together we strode toward the distant clamor by the fires. Still trying to fit the pose of the calm and collected, I questioned, "And Star? Where is she?"

"You will see her."

He would not talk further and then as we reached the dark outskirts of the crowd, stopped short. "Here," he announced stiffly. "Here is the knife of Mangus Colorado. Wear it."

I took the long thin blade, feeling its beautiful heft and balance at once. I had never felt such a knife. It seemed alive in the hand.

"I give it. It is yours." Turning, he was gone in the dark.

Alone I went forward, the cold rising from the ground, creeping through my legs, settling in my belly.

A deep "Hun-hun-he!" ran around the packed circle of savages. Every eye swung in my direction as those nearest me parted to let through. I walked looking neither right nor left, head high, warrior fashion; as nearly as I could.

Toronto, Dec. 19 (CP) — A number of Ontario trucking firms yesterday opposed an application before the Ontario Municipal Board by the Canadian Pacific Company for a licence to operate a trucking service between Toronto and Belleville.

F. A. Doyle, superintendent of the eastern division of Canadian Pacific Express, said the company is now operating on a temporary permit but wants to be free to expand the service.

Canadian Pacific, he added, is making the application to speed up fast passenger trains and supplement the present service.

The hearing is continuing.

AIR LINER MAKES FORCED LANDING AT COBOURG

P-C's Threatened With 'Closure' By St. Laurent

Prime Minister Wants Price Bill Debate Ended Dec. 27

Ottawa, Dec. 20—(CP)—The Commons was thrown into an uproar today when Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that he intends to apply the drastic parliamentary rule of "closure" if the Progressive Conservatives don't halt their marathon debate against the government's prices bill.

His disclosure followed a joint C. C. F.-Social Credit move to have the house go into a non-stop sitting beginning today with a similar end in view—a termination of the debate so the members can get home for Christmas.

Mr. St. Laurent said he would apply closure—which limits debate on any issue—Thursday, Dec. 27, if the house does not dispose of the anti-price fixing bill by tomorrow night.

Rarely-Used Device

Closure, a rarely-used parliamentary device, automatically limits each member to one speech of 20 minutes. If the debate then is not completed by 2 a. m. of the following day, it must end automatically at that hour and the issue immediately decided.

In this case, it would mean that debate on the prices legislation would end at 2 a. m. Saturday, Dec. 29.

Closure is so rarely invoked that veteran parliamentarians had difficulty recalling when it last was used to terminate prolonged debate. It is believed to have been used in the mid-1920's to halt a runaway constitutional debate.

Mr. St. Laurent already has served notice that he will ask the house to return to work Dec. 27 if it has not completed the government's legislative program by tomorrow night.

Promptly Launch Debate

The Progressive Conservative forces, fighting the prices legislation on the ground it would ruin small business, promptly launched a debate on the motion to have the house swing into a marathon sitting today to clear up business.

A constant flurry of cat-calls and other interjections punctuated their attempts to keep the debate rolling, still under way as the chamber rose for lunch at one p.m.

Liberal, C.C.F. and Social Credit members appealed to them to let the issue go to a vote.

The motion — introduced by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) and seconded by Solon Low, Social Credit—called on the chamber to skip lunch and dinner today and to ignore the customary rising hour tonight.

It was vigorously applauded by the Liberal benches.

Later, George Nowlan (PC-Annapolis-Kings) introduced an amendment which would nullify the Knowles motion by restoring the existing house hours except for knocking 15 minutes off the dinner adjournment.

Four Perish In House Fire West of Hearst

Mattice, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP)—Four persons died and four were injured when fire early today destroyed a house in this isolated northern Ontario community 25 miles west of Hearst.

Identity of the dead and injured was not learned immediately.

The four injured, taken to hospital in Hearst, about 100 miles northwest of Timmins, over slippery snow-covered roads, were a man, a woman and two children. Their condition was said to be critical.

No details of the fire were available.

House Parties Will Prevail In Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 20—CP—Montreal—The gay Paree of Canada—will be without night clubs for the holiday season.

With a 9 a.m. curfew ordered by provincial authorities for Christmas and New Year's eves, residents have two choices.

Hold a house party, or get out of town.

Meanwhile, the 43 liquor commission stores in the Montreal area are selling an average of 90,000 bottles of liquor and wine daily. The revenue from these sales totals $500,000.

Quebec liquor commission heads said this was an indication that house parties will prevail as a result of early closing order to all night clubs and taverns.

Company Gives $230,000 For 195 Acres Land

Sarnia, Dec. 20 (CP) — The Sarnia Indian band Wednesday night accepted $230,000 from Dow Chemical of Canada for surrender of 195 acres of Indian property.

This price was $20,000 more than the last one mentioned by the company and rejected because of technicalities under the new Indian Act.

Before that, the Dow offer was $200,000.

The area constitutes five rivof the city. Residents of the lots of the citi. Residents of the lots will be given additional compensation for removing their homes and for other inconvenlences incurred through surrender of their property.

L. D. Smithers, executive vice-president of Dow Chemical of Canada, said the price would have to be confirmed by comdid not indicate there would be pany directors. However, he did not indicate there would be any objection.

If the price is approved, half will be distributed among the band and the rest will be deposited in the band's trust account at Ottawa.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)— Synopsis: The storm slowed its advance last night and delayed the arrival of the snow which was forecast for today but it has not weakened in intensity and there is definite risk tonight of rain or freezing rain near Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Temperatures should be nearly 20 degrees higher than on Wednesday but will drop again Friday by 10 to 15 degrees.

TEN HOMELESS IN $500,000 FIRE AT BROCKVILLE

Seven Business Firms, 3 Apartments Burned

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 20 —(CP) — Fire that raged for hours destroyed a river-front business block and apartment building early today. Loss was estimated at $500,000.

Two firemen, Deputy Chief Charles Storey and Capt. Edward Lacasse, were injured slightly.

The fire swept through the premises of seven business firms and three apartments and left 10 persons homeless, including five children. No one was hurt.

The blaze started in the two-storey red-brick Shorey's Glove Works building which housed the apartments and commercial firms.

At day break firemen still poured water on the remains of the 75-year-old building on Broad Street. The blaze was first noticed shortly after 11 p.m., and was fed by chemicals and other inflammable products.

A temperature of 10-below zero hampered fire fighters. A south wind, blowing off the St. Lawrence River, fanned the flames which for a time threatened 15 nearby houses.

The apartment tenants were Russell Shorey, son of the owner of the building, his wife and three children; Constable John Larcombe of the Brockville police department, his wife and child; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collier.

The firms which occupied the building were Shorey Glove Co., Brockville Sign Studios, Kedco Novelty Company, Brockville Awning Company and National Display Company. Capt. W. L. Snider and Sons Moving Company stored furniture in one end of the structure and Johnston Shoe Company, owners of Reward Shoe Stores Limited, used part of the building for storing footwear.

Merchandise Destroyed

Townsfolk helped the apartment dwellers carry out most of their belongings before the flames reached the living quarters at one end of the building. Contents of the warehouse section and merchandise and equipment in the factory section, where the fire is believed to have started, were destroyed.

Men Will Appeal

Lindsay, Dec. 20—(CP)— The two men dismissed from Lindsay police force have entered appeals which probably will come before city council.

The men are Russell Hargrave and Gordon McCartney. "We feel an injustice has taken place," said Hargrave "and we were suspended and dismissed unfairly."

A petition has been circulated in favor of the two constables.

The suspension was made following a report the two were called to an attempted break-in and when they found a former constable near the scene they allegedly allowed him to go home. He later was arrested.

Famous Canadian Regiment Bags First Communist Tanks In Two Separate Actions

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 20—(CP)—Canadians have bagged their first communist tanks in Korea.

Three, believed Russian-built T-34s, have been knocked out in two separate actions by "C" squadron of the Lord Strathcona's Horse.

In the first action two of three which took on a strathcona Sherman were knocked out of action by Cpl. Syd Harrison of Flin Flon, Man., while the third recently was accounted for by a tank crew commanded by Lieut. Strathcona Macdonald of Vankleek Hill, Ont.

The two engagements—indicative of the growing appearance of communist armor on the Korean front—are the highlights of six weeks of action which have seen the squadron fire almost 10,000 rounds in hottest anger, 95 per cent of them aimed shots.

The tanks support the infantry of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group—the 2nd Battalions of the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment, and the 1st Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

The battalions have never yet been anywhere in Korea without the Strathcona's tanks in close support—to the admiration of others in the theatre who have begun to study Canadian tank tactics.

Kill 600 Chinese

The Strathconas also have been credited with a total of more than 600 Chinese killed under their fire in various actions since the beginning of November.

The bodies are those of communist dead actually counted on the battlefied, either by infantry patrols or under the binoculars of Maj. Vic Jewkes of St. Johns, Que., the squadron commander.

They were killed during shoots in support of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry and then of the Van Doos during the November fighting for possession of hills 227-355. Most times the shooting was done on the armored men's own initiative, and it wasn't until days later, in one instance, that the Shropshires learned the origin of the fire that removed the pressure of one Chinese attack.

Harrison, who spent entire days in the turret of his tank scanning the Chinese positions 2,000 yards away across the valley, spotted the three tanks which engaged him just as they were about to open fire.

He ducked down into the turret himself, swinging the gun around and at the same time shouting for Tpr. Don Ledster of Oshawa, Ont., his loader-operator.

None of the enemy's fire hit his Sherman, but Harrison made his rounds count. Firing armor-piercing shells, he scored five direct hits of 11 rounds fired, knocking out two tanks and the third pulled out.

Two shots sent the first tank up in a blaze, three accounted for the second. There has been no firing from that quarter since.

Harrison was a tank gunner in the desert during the Second World War and by coincidence his old squadron commander with the 8th Irish Hussars was in action nearby during the operation.

Tank Duel by Radio

"It went something like this," he says:

"Macdonald: 'I fired at him. I missed.

" 'He fired at me. He missed.

" 'I fired at him. Missed.

" 'I fired at him. Gosh —he's blown up."

Macdonald's second shot had landed close to the Chinese tank, and the third had hit him.

Although the hull isn't available as evidence of the kill, the knock-out has been confirmed by a Patricia patrol and a R.C.H.A. forward observation officer who witnessed it.

The shoots which felled Chinese communists literally in droves occurred in the latter half of November when to form up to attack hills 227-355 the enemy had to marshal directly in front of the Strathconas and with their backs to them.

One shoot felled an estimated 100 attacking the Shropshires, another couple felled similar masses of them as they advanced onto the vandoos, while still more fell in "opportunity" shoots. One entire platoon advancing on the Van Doos in 10 files of four abreast, was decimated by a tank commanded by Sgt. George Thwaites of Charlton, Ont.

In six weeks the Strathconas fired more than twice as much ammunition as they did during their first six months in action. During one three-hour action one tank alone, commanded by Lieut. Doug Smith of Montreal, fired 100 belts of .50-calibre machine gun ammunition and 125 belts of .30-calibre, incidentally wearing out both barrels. Smith personally fired the .50-calibre gun, standing in his turret exposed to shell fire to do so.

Mayor Jackson Asks Immigration Be Suspended

Hamilton, Dec. 20 (CP)—Mayor David D. Jackson said today he intended to "check" with immigration minister Harris on a policy of suspending immigration until the present "adjustment period" between civil and defence industrial activity has been solved.

The mayor intimated that while he had made no previous statements publicly, he had been in touch with the situation through local immigration officials. His worship understood that immigration from Europe would be "tightened", but that obviously boatloads of persons already en route to Canada could not be turned back.

His worship believed that caring for immigrants until they found jobs was the responsibility of the department of immigration rather than that of the city.

With the situation in Hamilton rendered more acute by the reported 3,000 laid off in the textile industry, Mayor Jackson said he would confirm again with federal authorities the policy of suspending immigration until the labor market was in better shape.

LINESMAN DIES

Ottawa, Dec. 26 (CP) —John Kelly, 26, one of two Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission linemen who were critically injured Monday night when they fell down an elevator shaft in an RCASC mess, died in hospital yesterday. It was believed Kelly and Hugh Alexander, 33, were looking for the washroom when they found the elevator dors.

Royal Couple Will Visit 23 Towns

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 20 (CP) — Although the experience of their Canadian tour has been used to reduce some of the strain on the royal visitors, the itinerary of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their New Zealand tour next May will still be strenuous.

The program for the five-week tour announced today shows they will visit 23 towns. Only one official two-day break has been provided, but it is understood they will have free time over the weekends.

The mode of travel has not yet been announced but it is believed they will travel by air.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland said the royal couple expressed a wish to see as much as possible of the country's life, industry, farming and education, health and scientific organizations.

Kingston P.S. Teachers Accept $200 Increase

Kingston, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Kingston public school teachers have accepted a board of education offer of a $200 across-the-board increase effective Jan. 1, and an amended salary schedule on a category system, the board announced today.

Under the new system, maxima for elementary school teachers extend from $3,300 to $5,200, depending on qualifications and so on.

Tom Robinson Sees Wife, Daughter After Separation Lasting 42 Years

London, Dec. 20—(AP)—Tom Robinson told his wife, Ada, "I'll see you soon."

"Don't be long, love," she cautioned.

That was 42 years ago, when both were 29.

They finally greeted each other again last night in London's dingy Waterloo Station.

Tom was carrying a photograph which Ada mailed him. But Ada trusted her memory and it was good. Glimpsing Tom through the crowd, she told her 42-year-old daughter "That's dad."

One quick kiss, then Tom said, "Hello, love. How've you been?"

Tom and Ada met as children in Darlington, a coal mining town in north England. He went to South Africa to make his fortune, then sent for Ada and they were married at Capetown in 1905.

Three years later their daughter was born and a doctor advised Ada to return to England for a rest.

Tom brought his wife and baby back, then returned. He said he kept meaning to come back for Ada, "But I had a good job and if you left it in those days, someone took your place."

Ada meant to join him in South Africa. But soon after Tom left a son was born and she decided to stay until the children were a little older.

Then came the war, the depression, another war.

"It seemed something always kept happening," Ada said.

They each wrote every week.

A month ago Tom got three months leave from his job and caught the first ship for England.

Beaming, Ada said she will go to South Africa with Tom this time.

P-C OPPOSITION MAY EXTEND HOUSE SESSION

Chamber Must Complete Work Friday or Return

Ottawa, Dec. 20. (CP)—The big Progressive Conservative drive against the government's plans to outlaw retail price-fixing rolled into its third full day today amid indications it may keep parliament in session through the holiday season.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, obviously determined to get the controversial legislation through, served notice yesterday that unless the chamber has completed its work by Friday night it will be asked to take a five-day Christmas recess and get back on the job Thursday, Dec. 27.

The Progressive Conservatives, fighting the bill on the ground it will put the small retailer out of business, put up 10 speakers against six Liberals who rose to the defence of the legislation.

A lone Independent — J. L. Gibson (Comox-Alberta), a former retailer who usually votes with the government—threw his lot in with the Progressive Conservatives and told the Liberals their unity on the legislation outshone their "common sense".

Two Parties Silent

The C.C.F. and Social Credit ranks, who favor the bill but feel there should be protection against "loss-leaders", remained silent.

As debate gained momentum, party strength diminished on all sides as members representing distant ridings, principally in the west and on the east coast, entrained to get home in time for Christmas.

George Drew, whose Progressive Conservative supporters have moved that the legislation be killed, stepped into the debate to assert that the bill is a "red herring" designed to distract attention from the government's "failure" to deal effectively with inflation and the high cost of living.

Man is Charged With Attempted Murder

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) Marvin Henrickson, 40, Wednesday night was charged with attempted murder at nearby Cooksville after Frank Hackim, 56, of suburban Port Credit, was shot twice during what police said was an argument over Henrickson's wife.

Hackim was reported in fair condition in a Toronto hospital. Doctors said he had one bullet wound in the back of his neck and another in his stomach.

Police said he also had a severe wound on the back of his head. They said they thought it was inflicted with the butt of a pistol.

Henrickson drove the wounded man to hospital while Mrs. Henrickson telephoned police.

Chinese Communists Use Christmas To Spread Anti-War Propaganda

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 20—(AP)—Chinese communists are using a new kind of propaganda on the Korean war front—Christmas stockings.

The United States Eighth Army said cheese-cloth stockings full of Christmas cards, cheap presents, and invitations to surrender were being "delivered" by the reds.

Most are brought across the lines by Korean farmers. Others are sneaked across and left where Allied troops can find them.

A typical stocking was shown to correspondents today. It contained a handkerchief, a wooden cigaret-holder, a Christmas card with a lilting verse, a safe-conduct pass urging Allied soldiers to surrender, a lapel pin "peace dove," and a variety of pictures.

The pictures were designed to contrast the hardships of war in Korea with the luxuries of life in the United States.

One showed happy citizens lolling in Florida sunshine, and half-frozen marines marching in last year's Hungnam evacuation.

Another showed the grim face of a marine as photographed by Life Magazine's Dave Duncan. In contrast was an American beer advertisement showing a family gathered around a loaded dinner table on Christmas day.

Under the family group was this caption: "Those who love you want you back home safe and sound. Find a way out. It is no disgrace to quit fighting in this unjust war."

Other drawings included the face of a blonde: "Why not go back to her?"

And a verse:

"Whatever the color, race or creed,
"All plain folk are brothers indeed.
"Both you and we want life and peace,
"If you go home the war will cease."

47 Escape Injury As Plane Lands In Farmer's Field

Craft Was En Route From California to N.J.

Cobourg, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP) — A big California air liner, lost in a snowstorm with one engine dead and its radio out of commission, made a spectacular forced landing in a farmer's field near here today. None of the 47 persons aboard was injured and the twin-engine aircraft was only slightly damaged.

Engine trouble then icing of the plane's radio equipment caused the belly-landing as the pilot, Capt. Bruce Smelser, 35, of Burbank, Calif., sought refuge in a snowstorm sweeping eastern Ontario.

Passengers said Smelser's landing was "even smoother than the landing we made at a proper airfield in Chicago."

Most of the passengers were United States servicemen from the west coast heading east for Christmas. Four children, including two babies, were aboard.

Pilot Was Lost

Smelser said later that he was "completely at a loss" as to his whereabouts at the time of the landing, other than that he knew he was in Canada north of the Great Lakes.

The Major Air Lines C-46, bound for Newark, N.J., from Burbank, Calif., made a belly-landing in a foot of snow after hopping over a house and tearing down fences. It came to rest a short distance from the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, about a mile west of this eastern Ontario town 70 miles east of Toronto.

"I never knew that land could look so good!" said one passenger, Leo J. Wilson of Plainfield, N.J., as he told of flying over "the ocean" — 70-mile-wide Lake Ontario — with the aircraft dropping steadily.

Forty-four passengers — including a half-dozen babies — and a crew of three were aboard the plane which took off from Burbank yesterday. It made a number of stops en route, the last one at Chicago. It left Chicago at 2 a.m. CST.

Passengers Given Breakfast

All passengers, given breakfast in the Wilson home, praised the skill of Pilot Capt. Bruce Smelser of Burbank in making what they termed a "miraculous landing." Co-pilot was Edgar O'Leary, Fresno, Calif.

The plane landed in level, snow-covered pasture land less than a half-mile from Lake Ontario. It skidded to a stop between two houses. The port propeller was bent, the wings were dented and the under-carriage was slightly damaged.

Passengers were taken by bus to Trenton R.C.A.F. Air Station, about 30 miles east of Cobourg. It was presumed their flight would be resumed from there later in the day.

Coolest of the passengers was Edward Moore, New York City, who boarded the plane at Chicago. In the Wilson house a short time after the crash-landing he started on a jigsaw puzzle.

Mrs. Leo Wilson said she "knew something was going to be wrong." She said she had

Eleven Missing As Fire Destroys Danish Ship

Astoria, Ore., Dec. 20 (AP) — The coast guard said today that eight passengers and three crew members "possibly are missing" from the Danish motorship Erria burning in the mouth of the Columbia river.

The coast guard said 23 passengers and 80 crew members have been accounted for. These estimates were based on the belief that 114 persons were aboard the ship when it anchored just inside the mouth of the stream to await clearing weather before attempting to cross the bar. Crew members were unable to say positively how many passengers were aboard.

Lt.-Cmdr. V. A. Johnson, commanding officer at Tongue Point coast guard station, said the 103 were taken to the barracks and then were moved to a hotel here.

Early reports indicated that only one of those aboard went into the icy waters of the river. He was Hugo Ray of Vancouver, a passenger, who grabbed a line hanging over the side of the ship when the fire broke out. The line was unsecured and he plunged over the side, but was picked up by a coast guard vessel.

Ray's 11-year-old son, Bill, suffered a burned heel in the fire and was taken to a hospital here. Ray's wife and three-months-old son were safe.

The Erria, bound from Portland, Ore., to San Francisco, was burning three quarters of a mile off the coast guard station She was at anchor, awaiting clearing weather before crossing the bar.

Crew members said they thought the fire started from a shorted cable. It spread rapidly through the 400-foot long vessel.

An early arrival off the ship, E. L. Blyth of Portland, Ore., said the fire started in the middle of the ship and spread rapidly toward both ends. He said there was no disorder when the abandon ship order was given.

The Erria is a 460-foot, 8,786 ton motor vessel of Danish registration operated by East Asiatic Lines, the coast guard said.

VENDORS PROTEST LACK OF HEAT IN MARKET BUILDING

A number of vendors on the city market today protested against the lack of heat in the market room. Radiators were ice-cold and vendors and shoppers alike shivered in the cold atmosphere.

"They'll come around later when they want their market dues" complained one lady vendor. "But you don't see any officials when heat is needed."

TURN VERBAL SHAFTS ON LIMBS OF LAW

"They'll do it every time."

A man and wife were having a family spat last night, and the thing got to the point where the police were called in.

You guessed it. Both parties had been drinking, but on the appearance of the law, they suddenly decided to patch their quarrel, and turned their verbal shafts on the pink-eared limbs of the law.

SERVICE STATION ENTERED IN NIGHT

A burglar or burlars entered the Roper Service Station, Cannifton Road, some time last night and escaped with a small amount of merchandise consisting of cigarettes and candy.

Entrance was made through the front door of the station which was forced by what is believed to be a heavy jimmy.

The owner could not estimate the loss this morning, but police stated it was light.

JACK FROST PLAYS FUNNY PRANKS

Jack Frost plays funny pranks. Several workable parking meters were said to be "out of commission" by motorists when they parked their cars today.

The reason is, coins taken from a pocket are warm, and when exposed to frosty air a film of ice forms over them causing them to stick to the slot of the meter.

CNR Association Holds Successful Social Evening

Despite adverse weather conditions, over 400 members and friends attended the second annual turkey draw night sponsored by the C. N. R. Athletic Association at the Club Commodore on Tuesday night.

The event, which was under the chairmanship of Allan G. Meagher, featured modern and old-time dancing by Rolly Winstanley's orchestra and an outstanding floor show. Dance routines were offered by lovely Dorothy Dickey who did a solo tap number and also the talented Galbraith sisters who were given an ovation for their well rehearsed comedy number. Phil Burton entertained with two electric guitar selections and this was followed by the "Formalaires," a local barbershop quartet whose renditions of the old favorites were outstanding. Harold Foote then brought down the house with his comedy routines, the feature being his imitation of Jamie Clarke and his bagpipes with a turkey being used in place of the "pipes."

Guest vocalists with the orchestra were Art Duby and Al Clarke while J. R. "Doc" Wellman handled the caller's duties for the square dances.

Mr. Meagher introduced Geo. F. Foster, president of the association who thanked the committee for their efforts in making the night a success, and called upon all present to give their continued support to the association during the coming year. Mr. Foster then presented two of the local C. N. R. officials, Mr. C. E. Shaver, Asst. Superintendent and Mr. Lloyd Stewart, assistant division engineer, both of whom made brief remarks. Mrs. Jean Rogers, president of the C. N. R. A. A. Ladies Auxiliary then presented the entertainers with small gifts.

The draw for the turkeys then took place with the following winners being announced: Mrs. C. Soderburg, 145 Front St., Bill Beare, 352 Dufferin Ave., Joanne Hall, 156 Dundas St., R. J. Muir, 251 Foster Ave., Mrs. B. Hudson, 318 Bleecker Ave., Mrs. Winstanley, 20 Reid St., D. J. Freeman, 148 Bridge St., G. W. McCammon, Belleville, James Goodman, Port Hope, and Mrs. S. J. Shannon, Lindsay. Two additional turkeys were then drawn for with Mrs. Cecil Long and Johnny Lloyd as winners.

The turkey draw committee consisted of Mr. Meagher, chairman, R. J. Ferguson, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Cecil Lloyd, Mrs. B. Shaddock, Percy Thompson, E. A. Schlievert, H. H. Hall, A. Carmichael, J. R. Wellman and H. Bawden.

Pre-Christmas Market Small To Other Years

A comparatively small pre-Christmas Thursday market greeted city shoppers on the market today.

While a fairly level price spread existed in turkeys the most attractive offer was 73 cents for gobblers "dressed for the oven".

Small hen turkeys, drawn were quoted at 80 cents the pound with gobblers priced at 75 cents. Hen turkeys not dressed were tabbed at 70 cents with gobblers at 65 cents. Large weighty birds were offered at 65 cents rough dressed.

A small number of geese were apparent in a very light poultry offering, the birds being priced at 65 cents the pound, rough-dressed. Only a few ducks were offered these selling at 70 cents the pound, dressed.

With most vendors concentrating on poultry offerings, little other produce was in evidence. A few dozen eggs were available, priced at fifty cents the dozen for the large type. No vegetables were in sight and the outside market was devoid of vendors.

Christmas trees were offered in good quantity with no price change noted from Tuesday quotation of from 75 cents to $1.50.

Expect Campaign To Attain Mark

If contributions to the Belleville sector of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association are indicative of public response elsewhere in the county, this year's campaign will once again attain its mark.

According to the latest figures, released by Mr. John Thornbury, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia and association campaign treasurer, a total of $1861.90 had been received at the organization's headquarters up to and including December 19, for the Belleville area.

This year the association divided the county into seven sections with headquarters at Madoc, Tweed, Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Trenton and Deseronto. Figures from these other centres are not available at present but a similar favorable return is expected.

A total of over 7,000 solicitations were sent out by the organization to householders throughout the county and the response thus far has indicated the confidence of the public in their work.

Contributors who did not receive a letter from the association, and who wish to aid in this worthy cause, should send their cheque or money order to the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, Box 100, Belleville. These donations will be acknowledged with a receipt which may be used for income tax deduction purposes.

P-C'S THREATENED

Mr. St. Laurent's declaration and the C.C.F.-Social Credit motion, arose from the lengthening Progressive Conservative drive against the government's anti-price fixing legislation.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has warned that the debate on the resale price maintenance bill, now in its third full day, will go on "for a long time".

House Must Decide

Mr. St. Laurent said the Knowles motion was something which the House itself would have to decide.

He personally would abstain from voting on it, but would allow his followers to ballot freely without regard for party line.

Mr. Drew observed that there appeared to be "remarkable" co-operation between the Liberals and the CCF.

Mr. Knowles, introducing the motion, said its purpose was to give those members who felt they had a right to be home for Christmas a chance to vote on the contentious issue now before the House.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto-Eglinton) said it was "amazing" that such a motion should come from Mr. Knowles who had protested against efforts to speed up House business on the ground it would overwork the staffs.

The government would be able to have its majority sit in relays while its staffs were worn to a frazzle.

The only reason the House had not been able to complete its work by now was because the government was wielding a "big club" over the heads of the opposition by not giving it sufficient time to study the prices legislation.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Toronto Greenwood) said the prime minister made it obvious the chamber would face closure when it returned to its labors Dec. 27.

Called Unchristian Threat

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said the prime minister's threat to cut off the debate on Dec. 27 was an "unchristian threat" since it would interfere with the hope of many members to be home with their families for Christmas.

It would mean that those members who had far to travel in order to be home may be forced to remain in the capital in order to be present that day.

The threat was an attempt, he added, to have the resale price maintenance legislation "rammed" through the house with no more than 5½ days for discussing the important measure which would affect nearly 1,000,000 Canadians.

As for the motion by Mr. Knowles, there appeared to have been "collusion" between the government and the C.C.F. party.

Mr. Knowles denied the charge. As far as his motion was concerned, he said there was no collusion. It was his own idea.

Mr. Drew and E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) questioned the legality of Mr. Knowles' motion saying that a motion which dealt with the days of sitting required notice.

Speaker Ross Macdonald ruled there were precedents for such a motion without notice so long as it did not interfere with the next day's sitting. He ruled that Mr. Knowles' motion, though it might mean sitting continuously until 11 a.m. tomorrow morning, would not interfere with tomorrow's sitting.

If the debate were not concluded, the house would be adjourned before 11 a.m. and called again at that time to begin a new day's sitting.

Offers Sympathy

Mr. Low said he did not care what the Progressive Conservatives said about his seconding of Knowles motion—whether they wanted to call it "conspiracy," "collusion" or anything else.

He sympathized with any group that had a deep conviction about legislation.

He had been in a similar position in 1945 when the 13 members of the Social Credit Group fought legislation to ratify the Bretton Woods Financial Agreement. There had been a suggestion then, by former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, that closure would be applied.

But the Social Credit group did not let it go that far because they did not think it "wise."

He suggested to the Progressive Conservatives that, in a democray and with parliamentary government, any group which failed to convince others should let the issue come to a vote to tell the government "it's their responsibility."

He felt ample opportunity had been allowed for discussion of the prices bill.

Amid applause from the Social Credit, CCF and Liberal benches, he suggested that members of the House's staff have a "perfect right to a decent Christmas holiday.

Mr. Nowlan, introducing his amendment, said he wanted to see the prices legislation debated "reasonably." The Knowles motion would not permit "orderly" debate.

Speaking for a second time, Mr. Drew cited to the Chamber the legislation still on the Commons order paper for discussion at this session.

He read from the order paper slowly, pausing frequently whenever a back-bencher from the government side of the House interjected a remark.

Ordered to Stick to Relevancy

Finally, Mr. Knowles suggested to speaker Macdonald that there must be a "law of relevancy" which should be applied to the motion under debate and Mr. Macdonald ordered Mr. Drew to stick to relevant matters only.

Mr. Drew said that was exactly what he was doing and continued to read from the order paper, enumerating the various bills.

If any member is "impatient", said Mr. Drew, then they must know that it was not the Progressive Conservative party which had introduced the original motion.

If the member, who introduced the motion, was prepared to withdraw it, the debate would immediately come to an end, Mr. Drew added.

Mr. Drew said if there was any question of curbing the holidays of the parliamentary staff, it was the government's responsibility. The government should not have proclaimed a new session of parliament in October and there would have been no throne-speech and no lengthy throne-speech debate.

If the Social Credit leader was concerned about time, he should seek to have the government adjourn the house and return at a later date and discuss the business properly.

The government's anti-price fixing legislation, he charged, had been "held back so that members might be persuaded under the pressure of the Christmas holidays to restrict their remarks."

Such crowding of important bills at the end of the session was not fair to the people. They depended on the press for adequate reports. But the press gallery, due to the volume of the house's last-minute business, found itself forced to condense reports to cover all subjects.

What Do They Want?

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, asked just what the official opposition wanted. They said they were anxious to debate prices, yet they had debated the motion for a non-stop sitting for 1½ hours.

Appealing to them to let the issue go to the house, he said he knew of no parliament in the Commonwealth where there could be such prolonged debate as there had been on the prices bill.

Every aspect of that legislation had been debated "thoroughly" and anything else said would be just "repetition".

As Howie Meeker (PC—Waterloo South) rose to speak, a Liberal member shouted "another fillbuster.'"

Mr. Meeker reminded the house that there were thousands of Canadians in Korea and in Europe who also were anxious to get home to their families at Christmas.

Appeals For Return

Hugh Cleaver (L—Halton) appealed for a "return to sanity" on the part of the opposition. Under the rules all members had opportunity to present their views, but after a "reasonable time" the will of the majority should prevail. The opposition was taking an absurd position in opposing a motion which would provide more time for more argument "if they have any honest desire to do so."

Mr. Drew demanded the remark be withdrawn.

Mr. Cleaver said if he had offended the opposition he would withdraw.

Mr. Fleming said no doubt today's sitting would prove to be an "historic sitting." It would decide issues which were fundamental to parliamentary practice and the democratic system of government.

If the amendment to the motion did not carry then orderly procedure would go out the window.

Convicted of Mutiny

New York, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Seven young army privates were convicted by court-martial yesterday of mutiny and riot in the Fort Jay guardhouse last Sept. 17. The maximum penalty is death. However, executions by the army in the United States are rare. No date was set for sentencing.

had an intuition and "prayed all night."

Passengers agreed that "no one was particularly scared." They said there merely was a perceptible bump as the big plane landed and skidded through the soft snow.

Richard Ciceri said:

"I didn't even feel the plane touch down on the field. I was checking on how tightly I was holding my baby daughter Lynn when suddenly I realized that we had stopped.

"I know I said at least one 'Hail Mary' on the way down.

"Maybe with this landing in Canada I'll be able to surprise my parents in Montreal by arriving sooner than we'd expected. They were expecting us for Christmas."

In Toronto, Capt. John Poulain of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane that circled the crash scene complimented the major pilot for a "beautiful piece of flying."

A Trans-Canada Air Lines plane flying from Ottawa to Toronto was advised from Toronto that an aircraft was reported down in the chill waters of Lake Ontario. It circled the Cobourg area and the crew saw men run from the Major Air Lines machine to a nearby highway.

The T.C.A. plane reported "all well" to Toronto and rescue work got under way. Ambulances sent from Cobourg were not required.

The crash-landing about 8 a.m. was in a level area of cleared fields.

WANTED: AN EXPLANATION

According to Arthur Blakely, Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Gazette, "recruiting for army service in Korea and Europe has gone better in the province of Quebec than many pessimists had expected. The percentage of French Canadian recruits has kept fairly close to French Canada's percentage of the total population of Canada."

But if the French Canadians are enlisting in the ranks as freely as other racial groups in proportion to their numbers, they are not making out so well in some other respects. Mr. Blakely seems doubtful whether they are accorded promotion as rapidly as some other folk. He quotes these figures:

"Of 186 navy officers holding the rank of commander or above last November 30, four were of French Canadian origin. On the same date, the air force had 382 officers who ranked as wing officers or better. Only ten were French Canadians. At army headquarters in Ottawa, there are 127 officers holding the rank of lieutenant colonel or higher. Three of these army officers were French Canadians."

Full details of the 1951 census are not available, but the 1941 census showed that Canada had then a population of 11,506,655. Of them, 3,483,038 gave their racial origin as French. Canadians of English origin, who were the second most numerous racial group, numbered 2,968,402. Thus, in 1941, the French Canadians were by far the largest single racial group in Canada. As the French Canadian birth rate is considerably higher than that of other racial groups, the percentage of French Canadians in the total population today is probably a good deal higher than it was a decade ago.

Besides those who give their racial origin as French, there are a good many other folk who have an English, Irish, or Scottish name but who also had a mother, a grandmother or a great-grandmother who came from Quebec and perhaps could not speak English at the time of her marriage.

If Mr. Blakely's figures are accepted as accurate, it would appear that Jean Baptiste is welcomed into Canada's armed forces as a recruit, and that he accepts the invitation in proportion to his numbers. But he does not seem to be nearly so popular when promotions are being awarded.

A few French-speaking members of parliament have criticized this situation, and there are a good many people who are neither French-speaking nor members of parliament who do not like the look of it any more than they do. If Canada is going to be a really united country, discrimination against French Canada must be stopped and the time to stop it is now.

NEW HIGHWAY NEEDED

Residents of this region will approve the decision of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce to wait upon the deputy minister of highways for Ontario with a request that the four-lane highway from Oshawa to Montreal be given priority.

The policy committee of the chamber of commerce has been instructed to urge the continuance of the four-lane road on three main grounds — traffic safety, national defence and tourist attraction. All three reasons are important. Everyone in this area knows that the present King's Highway No. 2 is badly crowded. Everyone knows also that, with the international situation as it is, alternate routes by which personnel or materiel may be moved rapidly from one place to another could become a necessity almost overnight. The importance of the tourist traffic to Ontario's economic well-being is too well known to require discussion here.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has taken an active part in urging the construction of this new highway for the last two years. Everyone who lives in this district should support the chamber in this effort, because the building of the new highway will have real value for everyone who lives in this region.

AN AWAKENING

The London Labor Council, according to a Canadian Press dispatch from the western Ontario city on Saturday, will send a deputation to Ottawa in January to protest against credit restrictions and present income tax levels.

At a meeting which preceded the decision to send the deputation to Ottawa, the council decided, the credit restrictions and tax levels were causing unemployment.

The wage-earners who constitute the membership of the London Labor Council, it seems, have reached the conclusion that restrictions on business enterprise as well as income taxes at present levels hit other folk beside large corporations and wealthy individuals.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As you drive around the suburbs of the big cities, or the small cities for that matter, viewing with astonishment the springing up of the countless little housettes that clothe with human abode the areas that were bare fields less than a year ago, the question cannot help but rise in your mind: where are people getting all the money to buy these homes?

Every one of these miniature bungalows costs at least $8,000. and most of them a good deal more than that. Though whole hundred and two hundred acre fields of them consist of housettes as identical as peas in a pod, the price of each and every one may be $12,000 or more. On the better streets of these suburbs in miniature, where the builders have indulged in a little variety of design, the price jumps to $16,000 or $20,000.

Let us not marvel at the prices. Let us wonder where all the money comes from?

Ladies and gentlemen, every one of the owners of those houses has had to put down somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty percent of the cost. That means somewhere from $3,000 to $10,000 cash. In this day and age, how can anybody get together $3,000 to $10,000?

We can understand the odd person, one in a hundred, being the resistant type. But to think of literally thousands of people, young people even, being able to fight off spending to the extent of $3,000 to $10,000 is a sad reproach on the advertising profession.

What has happened to the advertising boys? Did they know, all these past three and four years, that people by the hundreds and the thousands, were quietly amassing lumps of cash? Right in our midst? Think of the motor cars, television sets, washing machines—think, even, of the basement bargains those thousands of new homes represent!

Let the advertising profession go for a drive in the suburbs and weep.

Suspend Sentence

Milton, Ont., Dec. 20. (CP)—Doreen Sheffield, 16-year-old policeman's daughter, yesterday was given a suspended sentence of two years less one day for wounding her father, Corporal John Sheffield of the Provincial Police detachment at nearby Oakville, Sept. 13. She pleaded guilty.

Staff Sergeant John Clark testified that an argument between the girl and her father over her boy friend and several hours' brooding led to the shooting.

"She told me her father had torn up a photograph of her boy friend," said Clark. "After the argument Doreen walked the streets of Oakville for several hours brooding over the argument."

"She told me she hated her father because of his severity concerning her boy friend."

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

ALL FOR DAD

Well, as I always say, it's not the gift that counts, but the spirit behind it.

When Christmas morning rolls around I just stand back from the merry family group, a picture of quiet paternal pride. Something for old Dad under the tree? Why, shucks, I'm as surprised and delighted as can be. It doesn't have to be anything elaborate. A simple little certified cheque or money order will bring the roses to my cheeks.

I mention this because word seems to have got around that I'm something of a tyrant on Christmas morning, shoving everyone aside, feverishly clawing the wrapping off my parcels and sometimes even retiring to my room with a nasty oath when I've reached the last of the worthless trinkets.

This isn't true at all. Naturally, a man is eager to discover what his loved ones have done with his money and anxious to find out if this will be the Christmas when something will fit him.

It's hard to settle down to the real solid enjoyment of the day until you're padding about in the beaded river barges that mother thought were your size in slippers or admiring the altimeter for your car the kind of thing that always seems to be waiting for Dad under the tree. (That's what I got last year; an altimeter. I needed it like I needed a wooden leg.)

There is always the excitement too, of discovering what Aunt Maud will send. You might get anything from Aunt Maud. Last year it was a splendid cigarette box that automatically flung cigarettes out to the floor or into the fireplace and in fact, went berserk one night and disgorged an entire package all over the room.

What Is It?

I'll tell you this, a man has to be something of a diplomat when it comes to reacting to the presents from the ladies in his life.

I don't know what gets into the girls at this time of year, but it looks quite a bit like madness. All year long a wife or mother will buy shirts, socks and other supplies with a careful eye on her budget and a nice sense of taste. But let her set forth on her Christmas shopping and anything can happen, usually with engraved initials on it.

The scene on Christmas morning finds the son or husband opening his first parcel with a gleam of anticipation only to find a purple smoking jacket that looks as if it were something left over from the last Shriner's convention. Here is the strongest test of a man's character. He slips into the jacket rolls up the sleeves so he can use his hands and forces a wild smile on his face.

"A bath robe!" he cries. "Just what I wanted!"

"It's a smoking jacket, Meathead," the lady will say. Then, instantly: "You don't like it!" For some unfathomable reason all women say this.

"Like it!" you cry, "Why, it's just the very thing I needed. Gosh, somebody must have told you!" (You have been hinting for three months that you wanted a new reel for your rod.)

This will continue until the smile freezes on your lips at which point you will drink yourself into insensibility with egg nogs.

I remember one Christmas when I really did get a smoking jacket like that from my wife. When people dropped in to visit us she'd say, "He'd never think of buying that for himself." Which was true.

For the Neck

The real bane of a man's life at Christmas, however, is the waste of money that will go into ties he'll never wear, an investment over the years that would easily build the St. Lawrence Seaway.

There must be something about a rack of ties in a haberdashery that has a Svangali effect on the female mind. The most conservative women fall prey to it and in the early hours of Christmas morning millions of men are confronted with neckwear of robin's egg blue embroidered with Irish harps. I have a drawer full of them and wear smoked glasses when I look in there.

It's no wonder that father always plays with the kid's toys on that awful morning. He just wouldn't have any fun at all if he had to amuse himself with his own loot. I challenge any man to be captivated by an altimeter for more than a minute and a half.

Fortunately, most of us are braced for the worst, and I was caught off-guard only once. The gift was obviously a bottle. It gurgled attractively when shaken and from the contours and the heft I was sure it was a certain brand of liqueur Scotch. Here, at last, was the gift to make a man happy.

Its' still there in the kitchen closet, a bottle of peach and apricot brandy. If things get too hopeless this Christmas I'm going to put on that smoking jacket and one of those ties, lock myself in my room with that bottle and let the altimeter tell me how I'm getting on.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

VETERANS OF LIVING

It is well known to military commanders that seasoned troops are worth more than green ones. The new soldiers may be fresh from training camp, with clean uniforms and bright equipment, and with no gaps in their ranks; but they are not as valuable in battle as the veteran troops, no longer fresh and clean and intact, who have seen action.

Life is like military service. We cannot become really expert at it without first-hand experience of its trials, dangers, and suffering. The man who passes through life without ever feeling hardship and pain is not to be envied. He may be escaping temporary sorrow, but he is not becoming a veteran of living, either. He is not developing into the tried and proved soul who can be depended on in the emergencies. Only by facing difficulties, suffering through them, and learning by them do we become that sort of person.

Ordinary pottery may go through the kiln only once, but fine bone china has to be burned in the intense heat several times. When it has done so, then the colors are there to stay, and we have something much more precious than pottery. When we have suffered and learned, we are more valuable soldiers for God.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"FAN" MAIL

When a new book comes out its author is far more interested in honest reviews of it than in the compensation that later accrues, for when a book is given to the public something of that author's life is presented, and it is the appreciation and encouragement he receives that gives him the greatest cheer.

It's the same with an actor or writer for the daily press or for magazines. If people do not express their appreciation, that actor's or writer's spirit is lowered. It's the so-called "fan" mail that gives the big boost to each. No matter how popular one's work may be, it's the letters of appreciation that keep arriving that keep that one doing his very best.

Naturally not all performers and writers can answer all the "fan" letters they receive. Many have no secretaries; nevertheless they appreciate these expressions of good will. As David Dunn, in his uplifting little book "Try Giving Yourself Away," says: "They may appear to be utterly self-sufficient—but they are not; deep down inside most of them love it! The publicity manufactured to build them up does not warm their heart. What they crave is the spontaneous human, affectionate appreciation of the people they are trying to please."

No sincere writer could long continue to express himself if no one ever wrote to encourage and appreciate his work. That encouragement is the very thing that keeps his work to its highest standard of helpfulness. I have learned that the bigger a man or woman is the more human and understanding each is, and his or her reaction to encouragement always genuine and highly appreciative.

A very great writer once said: "I like not only to be loved, but to be told that I am loved. The realm of silence is large enough beyond the grave." So if we have praise to give to anyone, we ought to give it today. Tomorrow may never come!

ANOXIA HEADACHE

Anoxia is asphyxia. It means absence of oxygen, oxygen deficiency in the body cells, tissues and organs. If we refer especially to a deficiency of oxygen in the fluid tissue, the blood, the word is anoxemia.

Anoxia, deficiency of oxygen, is all that ails one who is overcome by carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide is colorless and odorless and deadly, but it is not poisonous. It overcomes or kills by crowding out oxygen—CO has a greater affinity for the hemoglobin, the coloring matter in the red blood corpuscles, than oxygen has, so that the hemoglobin, saturated with carbon monoxide, can't carry oxygen from the lungs to the cells, tissues and organs, as it does normally.

Approximately one-fifth of the air everywhere and under all natural circumstances is oxygen (20.73%), four - fifths nitrogen (79.04%) and a wee bit (three parts in 10,000 or 0.03%) carbon dioxide. The difference in composition of the expired air is that it contains only 17% of oxygen, nearly if not quite the same amount of nitrogen and a greatly increased amount of carbon dioxide (400 parts in 10,000 or 4%).

The amount of oxygen taken up by the blood from the lungs depends upon the needs of the body and not upon the amount inhaled.

Even in a close, crowded enclosure the unpleasant effects of foul air or poor ventilation are not due to lack of oxygen in the air or excess of carbon dioxide, for automatic variations in the depth and rate of breathing maintain the supply of oxygen to the blood at a constant level in such circumstances.

The ill effects of "bad" air are due mainly to stagnation of the air—lack of draft, breeze or constant movement or circulation—of the same old air even though no outside or "fresh" air is admitted. Of course prolonged confinement in a hermetically sealed enclosure would ultimately lead to suffocation, asphyxia, anoxia, but in all ordinary circumstances the amount of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the air has nothing to do with the comfort or health of occupants of the room. A gas jet burning produces about 3 cubic feet of carbon dioxide an hour; a person breathing produces a cubic foot or less of carbon dioxide an hour.

One of the most familiar symptoms of anoxia is headache. In acute anoxia, as from accidental pollution of the air or a room by carbon monoxide the headache is usually throbbing headache with a sensation as of pressure across the forehead and perhaps noticeable flushing. In chronic anoxia, as from breathing air only slightly polluted with carbon monoxide for hours every day or night over a period of weeks or months, the headache is more likely to be dull and accompanied by pallor. The pallor may be mistaken for "anemia," but a blood count will show the number of red corpuscles up to the normal or even above normal.

Well, then, what to do about it?

That's simple. First, don't use medicine which purports to be "good" for headache or other ache or pain. Second, search for the source of the CO and stop the pollution of the air where you live or work, or else change jobs. If you have headache more than once in a week quit fooling and consult a physician.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Mrs. Sumsey

I am 52, drink coffee at breakfast only. For lunch, and in between (about 3 p.m.) and dinner I drink milk. Now people tell me I will get hardening of the arteries from drinking milk. Is this true? (Mrs. G. C.)

Answer—A lady never lies—if you say people tell you the moon is made of green cheese I believe you. But I don't believe Mrs. Sumsey's notion about milk is worthy of serious consideration. The basic health diet—pattern on which to build your everyday diet, includes not less than 1½ pints (three glasses) of milk daily—the diet is given in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sugar in Blood

Recently the health department offered a free test for diabetes. I was surprised to know I have a trace of sugar in my blood, for I enjoy good health and am 63 years old... (B. E.)

Answer — The blood of a healthy person always contains sugar, from 0.08 per cent fasting to 0.16 per cent after a meal. Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet Training for Diabetes—it will tell you how to prevent diabetes developing if you have inherited the potentiality. I'm afraid you were not properly advised by the health department. You should consult your own physician.

Cold Weather And Heavy Fog Muffle Action

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Freezing weather and heavy fog muffled the drums of war along the Korean battlefront today.

Scattered small arms and artillery fire were heard in Panmunjom by true teams seeking agreement on a Korean armistice

There were no reports of any major action across the 145-mile front. Soldiers on both sides concentrated on keeping warm.

Allied air forces and navy guns struck the heaviest blows Wednesday.

Daylight air operations were reduced. Ten B-29 Superforts pounded rail yards at Chongju in northwest Korea in a night attack. Far East Air Forces said it was one of the heaviest B-29 raids of the war against a single target.

Allied warships hammered communist shore targets on both Korean coasts.

Eighth Army said South Korean soldiers Wednesday killed 33 red guerrillas and bandits in the southern provinces.

HEAVY AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Dec. 20 (CP)—While the Windsor area continued to dig itself out of an 11-inch snow fall that blanketed the area in two storms, King Winter came through with another punch today.

Weather forecasters said that today's snow fall will continue through Friday.

Claims Script Cut

Writer of Voice of America scripts, Mrs. Alice Widener, of New York, charges that her "too-hard-hitting" criticism of the reds was blue-penciled by the local "Voice" office. Some of the documents, she said, are being studied by the U.S. Senate subcommittee on internal security. The copy, she added, appeared to lack "the subtle and indirect approach required of state department writers." — Central Press Canadian.

See Little Hope of Averting Toronto Transportation Strike

H. C. PATTEN
General Manager, TTC

JAMES ROBERTSON
Union Business Agent

HON. CHARLES DALEY
Hopes to Break Deadlock

Only hope for averting the first winter transportation strike in Toronto's history lay in "last ditch" mediation talk between Toronto Transportation commission management, officials of Street Railway Union (AFL) and Hon. Charles Daley, Ontario minister of labor. The 11th hour attempt to avert complete shutdown of T.T.C. was held while a strike vote of 4,700 T.T.C. employees was in progress. Deadlock resulted when each party refused to back down from their original stands, the union calling for a basic hourly rate of $1.55, the T.T.C. offering $1.45. — Central Press Canadian.

Staff Officers Will Try to Break Deadlock on Truce Supervision

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 20 (AP) —Truce negotiators turned the problem of how to supervise a Korean armistice over to staff officers today in a "one-shot effort" to break the long deadlock."

The staff officers met for two hours at Panmunjom. Then they adjourned until 10 a.m. Friday (8 p.m. EST Thursday). There was no report of what happened.

An official Allied spokesman said U.N. sub-committee delegates suggested calling in the staff officers because there had been no progress for days.

Earlier in the day the communists suggested their version of a compromise.

They asked the Allies to (1) permit construction of north Korean airfields, (2) accept the red proposal for inspection by neutral teams at specified points and (3) drop a demand for aerial observation over all Korea.

In return, the communists said they "might consider" the U.N. demand for unlimited rotation of troops and replenishment of equipment and supplies.

The U.N. is represented at the staff officers' session by air force Col. Don O. Darrow, Tacoma, Wash., and air force Col. Andrew Kinney.

Will Meet Friday

The regular sub-committee will meet Friday at 1 p.m. (11 p.m. EST Thursday) regardless of the outcome of the staff officers' session.

There has been no announcement as to whether the sub-committee on prisoner exchange will meet Friday. There was no session Thursday. Allied negotiators said they needed more time to check the list of 11,559 Allied prisoners supplied by the communists Wednesday.

The actual method of exchanging prisoners remains to be worked out.

But the eighth army announced everything is set to fly all U.N. personnel to Japan after they are freed. Plans also are being made for moving 132,472 Chinese and north Korean prisoners northward from Allied prison camps.

Accept Red Plan to Start

In the truce town of Panmunjon staff officers took as a basis for discussion the latest communist proposal for policing an armistice, with some U.N. modifications.

Allied negotiators said they would accept the red plan as a starting point. But they specified there would be no modification of the U.N. demand for a ban on the repair of construction of north Korean airfields and a freeze on the military strength of both sides, with full rotation.

The Allied suggestion to call in staff officers raised immediate speculation that the U.N. might take a different approach to the deadlocked issue.

Women of Moose Enjoy Festive Time

On Thursday evening the Women of the Moose, Belleville, Chapter 435, held their regular meeting in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent Ruth Mintz presiding.

A short business meeting was held followed by a Christmas supper.

"Thank you" cards were received from John Helm, of the Salvation Army, Port Hope, for a donation from proceeds of the tag day held in Port Hope, last month.

The regular Christmas donation was sent to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, to promote their worthy cause.

The annual Christmas Tree for the children will be held when Santa Claus will be present, with games and favors for all. It is hoped the children will have a most enjoyable time.

Three candidates were balloted on Sylvia Calbury, sponsored by co-workers Michaeline Calbury, Dorothy Jones, sponsored by Graduate Regent, Emily Jeffery; Barbara Bird, sponsored by Senior Regent, Ruth Mintz.

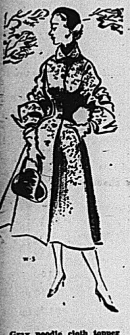
Guide Margaret presented the Senior Regent Ruth Mintz at the altar and Recorder Gladys Ritch presented to the Senior Regent, a charming gift on behalf of Belleville Chapter 435. The Senior Regent graciously thanked the co-workers for her Christmas gift which was a complete surprise.

The co-workers of the chapter then retired to the main hall where a turkey supper was served. Conveners for the evening were, Recorder Gladys Ritch and co-worker Florence Carufel. The plates were served by co-worker Luella Downes.

The tables were gaily decorated with Christmas tablecloths and serviettes dotted with seasonable colored candles, white streamers and bells decorated the main hall. The delicious supper was greatly enjoyed by all.

Santa Claus, much to the surprise of all, presented himself with traditional white whiskers and jingling bells. Santa distributed gifts beautifully wrapped with gay ribbons, to each guest present. As Santa gave out the gifts he asked each co-worker what she wanted for Christmas. A sing-song was held with everyone joining in the Christmas carols. Graduate Regent Kathleen Donovan presided at the piano.

Town Coat



Gray poodle cloth topper

By VERA WINSTON

CHARCOAL gray poodle cloth with a wiry texture is used for an attractive town coat, brightly lined with vivid red taffeta. The dropped shoulder line extends into sleeves that end in a wide flare cuff. The coat lines are fitted yet have a curvy softness that is most becoming. The bodice is snugly buttoned below a simple collar and the skirt is generously flared.

Rev. Keith Daniel Addresses Queen Victoria H-S. Association

"Keep Christ in Christmas in the Home", was the theme of the talk the Rev. Keith Daniel, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist church gave to the Home and School Association of Queen Victoria School at the regular meeting on Monday evening. Mr. Daniel stressed the necessity for some definite Christmas celebration to fulfill a spiritual need in family life and illustrated his talk with reminiscences of his own childhood. He delighted his audience with a Negro spiritual on the nativity, "Rise up Shepherd and Follow the Star of Bethlehem".

During the evening, a choir under the direction of Mr. Alan Boate, sang four carols: 'Away in a Manger", "Silent Night", "Angels We Have Heard on High", and "Deck the Halls". The Glee Club composed of some pupils from grades 5, 6 and 7 was well received by a large audience of parents.

After a brief business meeting with the president, Mrs. G. A. Bradford in the chair, a play, "A Soldier of Bethlehem", was ably presented by the pupils of grade 6. The following were the characters in order of appearance:

Cast of Characters

An executive meeting was arranged to be held on January 3, at the church parlors.

Impressive Worship Service

Mrs. Ashley conducted a timely and impressive worship service, incorporating the hymn "As With Gladness Men of Old", the Christmas story from the Scripture and a meditation, "Born in a Manger" which emphasized the humility of Jesus Christ, who though He might have claimed titles, lived and worked among the poorest people.

Mrs. May, assisted by Mrs. G. Brickman, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Isard introduced the new study book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights."

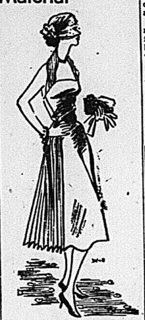
Fashionable Material



Taffeta afternoon dress

By VERA WINSTON

THE music that accompanies the afternoon and evening scene is the rustle of taffeta. This lovely fabric is a big favorite everywhere, at all price levels. Pure silk taffeta in a dull shade of red is used for a pretty cocktail dress. It has a pleated halter neckline, and is of street length. There is an overskirt with pleated sides that sets like an apron in back, and it is worn over a slim underskirt.

Women's Institute

CHAPMAN W.I.

The regular meeting of the Chapman W.I., was held recently at the home of Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, R.R. 1, Tweed, in the form of a pot-luck supper, to which members, their husbands and families were invited. Over 80 persons sat down to tables well-laden with a grand array of tasty foods. After the supper the men played cards while the women conducted their meeting.

The program, under the leadership of Mrs. Wilbur Bateman, was much enjoyed by all. All joined together in singing Christmas carols. Martha Elliott played a piano solo, the celebrated "Largo". Jimmy and Linda Gunning each gave a recitation and Eva and Elsie Martin sang "Merry Christmas Polka", with Eva playing the accompaniment on the guitar. Mrs. Stanley Webb gave an amusing reading, "The Downfall of Santa Claus". Freda Elliott and Doreen Lynn sang "Deck the Halls", with Mardelle Wheeler as their accompanist. Mrs. Charles Jeffrey gave an amusing reading "George's Soliloquy". Vera Martin and Phyllis Kleinsteuber sang "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas", with Martha Elliott playing the accompaniment.

Mrs. Elgutis, a new-comer to Canada from Germany, was welcomed into the group and presented with a bath towel set, on behalf of the Women's Institute.

It was announced that Mrs. S. R. Dafoe's name was one of those drawn to attend the Folk School at Moorecroft's, in January.

The roll call "Ideas for Christmas Baking", brought many helpful ideas, the most popular one being,—bake early and hide it well.

Gifts were distributed among the children presented, after which the members exchanged gifts.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. R. Dafoe, on January 15th. Visitors are always welcome.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Pleasing voice an attribute of Charm

The radio has caused many women to consider the question of voices, pleasing and otherwise. It has inspired some of them to think about their own. Almost any observer will come to the conclusion that many of us talk too fast. The words trip on each other's heels. The human ear must be on the alert to know what is going on conversationally. Some women seem to make gabbing an occupation. You can't get in a word edgewise. The babbling brook has nothing on them. These chatty sisters can get on the nerves of listeners, make them weary, even though what they have to say may be fairly interesting.

OH OH OH
AH AH AH
EEEE
M-M-M
12-19

College girls can take up voice training.

It isn't altogether what we say, but the way we say it. Inflections, pauses and timing all play a part. The tone with which one says "Hello" may have different meanings. It can express pleasure and welcome or the opposite. A surly "hello" is unpardonable. One might as well say "Why are you here and what do you want?" It would mean the same thing.

If a college girl is doubtful about her voice being all that it should, she can enter a class in voice training or public speaking. Many women who are prominent in business and public affairs have had private instructions.

A girl will be taught to regiment her ideas, to express herself clearly and briefly. She will learn about voice placing.

One thing to avoid is the flat tone. Put life in your words. That does not mean excitement or over-emphasis. It is tiresome to hear a girl exclaim "Wonderful" or "Darling" every few minutes, even if Tallulah does it. There is only one Tallulah, and she can get away with it. Yet she has many imitators these days.

The main trouble with most unpleasant voices is that they are pitched too high, and so become sharp and shrill. There should be softness and friendliness as well as clearness. The direct opposite is the woman who speaks so softly that she drones and you can scarcely catch her meaning. The shouters, of course, are pretty terrible.

Nervousness and tension are expressed in one's manner of speaking and that is why the calm, poised woman usually has a nice voice. Her words are never hurried; they don't run into each other. Listening to her is a pleasure.

SECOND MARRIAGE FOR BOTH

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 — (AP)— The one in the middle of the singing Andrews Sisters, Patti Andrews, will wed their accompanist, pianist Walter Weschler, Christmas day. It will be the second marriage for both.

HANGED SELF

New York, Dec. 20 — (AP)—A 39-year-old woman, who had been held by immigration authorities at Ellis Island, hanged herself last night shortly after she was removed to a hospital, police said. She was identified as Evelin Esteves, an immigrant from Cuba. A detective said he understood she was to be deported.

Can You Hold a Yule Supper Too

By Mary Moore

This is just under the wire for you cannot leave it very much later than tomorrow to make your plans for your Christmas supper — if you have the strength to serve a Christmas supper after preparing and eating Christmas dinner at about one or two in the afternoon.

But I have plenty of correspondence to indicate that you intend to still be going strong after Christmas dinner is over.

For instance Dorothy B says: ". . .I would appreciate some Christmas menu help. I have no trouble with the traditional dinner, which we serve about 2 p.m., but what about supper? Appetites are definitely dulled, but still we must go through the motions! And frankly, I can never think of anything interesting, that won't take too much time to prepare. . . .we serve about twelve persons—all ages, from toddlers to grandparents. . .". And Mrs. Joseph C. tells me ". . .usually Christmas night I always give a big supper for all our friends in the neighborhood which amount to about twenty-five guests. .I try to keep on the lighter side after their big dinners at home. (Last year) I served cold sliced turkey with cranberries, meat pies, potatoes, then a salad and I finish off with a light dessert. Now this year I would like something different. . . .could you send me a menu for this meal?"

I can't do better than to tell these two ladies and other readers what we do. We do it because it is popular and because guests may consume as much or as little as their will power or hunger permit. We serve an oyster supper. That is, oysters three or four ways and a huge salad for the gourmets and reducers. French Bread and hot rolls for those who have unlimited capacity—like Pete and Brian my nephew, and Christmas cake, shortbread and coffee with fruit Punch for the teeners.

Place about four (or six if they are small) oysters on a lettuce lined sherbet glass. Cover with about 2 tablespoons

COCKTAIL SAUCE:

2-3 cup catsup, 3 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons bottled horseradish, 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Serve all very cold.

OYSTER STEW
(Or Bisque)

For 12 generous servings put into top of double boiler 1 quart whole milk and 1 cup cream, cover and heat over boiling water. Just before serving time melt 1-2 cup butter in large saucepan but do not let it brown. Add 1 quart oysters and their liquor and let heart gently until edges just begin to curl. Add the scalded cream and milk to these with 2 teaspoons salt and 1-8 teaspoon white pepper. Add anywhere from 3-4 to 1 1-2 cups fine sifted cracker crumbs, stir until stew thickens and is heated through.

BREADED OYSTERS

Dip oysters in fine sifted, salted cracker crumbs, then in beaten egg diluted with 1 or 2 tablespoons cold water, then in sifted cracker crumbs again. Fry in deep fat until gold or saute in frying pan in butter. Do not overcook. Serve with lemon.

Our Gourmet Salad has slender crescents of ripe avocado, eighths of small choice tomatoes, generous chunks of cut head lettuce, a few wafer thin slices of Spanish onion, quite a bit of chopped parsley, and as much or as little shredded green pepper as we like. This is tossed with garlic French Dressing at the last minute.

I think I have told you a good trick to do with French Bread before. Do you remember? Spread it with garlic butter or grated cheese and bake it? You cut through nearly to the bottom—making the slices about 1 inch thick. For garlic bread you chop and mash 1 clove of garlic to a pulp and add it to 1-4 lb. butter and soften this slowly over warm water. Mix well. Spread on the slices, prying them open a little to get your spreading knife nearly to the bottom crust. Now place on pan or on sheet of foil and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 20 or 30 minutes. Or if you want Cheese Bread spread the slices with softened butter, and pry them apart to drop in grated cheese, being sure some of the cheese is sprinkled over top of loaf before baking. Both of these variations are popular. Bake the cheese loaf the same as you do the first one.

The Fruit Punch should be pink with cranberry juice. Use cans of orange or orange and grapefruit juice, lemon juice, pineapple juice, cranberry juice, some extra sugar to sweeten the lemon and gingerale to give it sparkle. This drink can stand about one-quarter the volume of ice.

Happy Party!

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It's an inspiring and inspiriting idea to make an extra contribution to the spirit of good will these days. For example, say "Thank you" at least twice as often as it is your habit to say it. Or even three times or four times or five times as often. See what a good tonic it will be to your spirit. Open your eyes and your ears. . . open your heart, too . . . and become thrillingly aware of the thousand-and-one courtesies and kindnesses that come your way to be pleasantly responded to. Then open your lips and give with your "Thank you", "Thank you, so much," "Thank you, very much." Even in these busy, busy days there's always time for courtesy; Try it. . . and see.

Christmas gestures to those who serve

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. As a Christmas present, I'd like to give a little something to several people to whom I give a tip for service during the year . . . .my manicurist, for example, and the girl who shampous and sets my hair, the waitress in the restaurant where I have lunch very often, and so forth. I don't want to give them money, and I can't afford to give them real presents, but I would like to give them something Christmasy, for perhaps 50 or 75 cents. Any suggestions?

2. What would be a right tip for me to give to the mailman?—Janet R.

1. Yes. . ..perfect for these Christmas-bows are the brightly-colorful flower nosegays. . .or the radiant clusters of small Christmas-tree balls or other tree-decorations. . . or a group of tiny bells. . . or a sprig of holly and or mistletoe fastened to a clip or pin. Or a small leather frame for a snapshot, convenient to carry in the purse. Or a Christmas-red or green pencil for the purse.

2. One dollar is quite customary tip to the mailman.

Easy step for introductions. . . "How do you do" always correct acknowledgment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) What does one say to acknowledge an introduction? That is, is there one reply that can be used for all types of introductions?

(2) When a girl is introduced to a man should she offer to shake hands?—Sara.

(1) It's a wonderful social reassurance to know that "How do you do" always is the correct form to use when you acknowledge an introduction. This means that instead of spending your effort to think of something else to say you can give all your effort to saying your "How do you do" with grace and graciousness. And it's always the charming idea to add the person's name to your "How do you do"—and this habit keeps you on the alert to try to "catch" the name correctly.

(2) Whether a girl offers to shake hands with a man when he is introduced to her depends on her own preference. Usually she doesn't . . .unless there is some special reason why she wishes to (for example, if a mutual friend has spoken much about wishing to bring about the introduction). (Incidentally, say "when a man is introduced to a girl" . .the girl isn't introduced to a man.)

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Too many quarrels mean trouble's ahead

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The young man I have been going with and I have a good many arguments, and since we had the last one, he hasn't called me up.

What happened was this. While we have not made very definite plans yet, we have had an understanding that we would eventually be married, and each week we have been putting money in the bank. Last week, I bought some silverware and spent quite a bit of money on it. I also bought myself a coat. I told him that I don't tell him what to do with his money, so I will do what I want with mine. That was what caused this last trouble between us.

Everytime we fight, I get sick and can't eat. I can't keep my mind on my work, and I am afraid I am going to lose my job. The whole thing is making a nervous wreck of me.—J. A. M.

Dear J.A.M.:

If you and your young man are having such difficulty at this point, I would say the future does not look too bright. While it is perfectly natural for young people who are engaged to have spats now and then, they should certainly agree on general plans. If they're going to try and save together for their future, they ought to come to an agreement on how this shall be done, and do it systematically. If money matters precipitate quarrels before marriage, they are likely to become a constant source of friction afterward.

However, no matter what the subject of your quarrels may be, if you continue to have frequent disagreements, you had better reconsider your plans.

Daydreams are not the real thing

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently I met a girl in school who is a year younger than I am. We became class room acquaintances, and now we make a point of always walking to our next class together, even if it means going out of our way.

During our conversations, she has never spoken of going out with boys, and that makes me feel she has no regular boy friend. I have no regular girl friend either, as I have to work nights and weekends.

I realize I am in love with her and that some day I would like to ask her to be my wife, but I have no way of knowing if she feels the same toward me. How can I find out, in a casual sort of way and without making a point of it, if she actually cares for me?—A. H. P.

Dear A.H.P.:

Speaking of "casual", don't you think you are taking a very casual boy and girl acquaintance a little too seriously? It takes more than walking to and from classes with a girl to know just what she is like.

What are you doing, of course, is indulging in some rosy daydreams about a girl who is friendly toward you. That is perfectly natural in school days, but don't try to build it up into something big. It's too bad you have to work so much outside school hours, as the best thing you could do at this point would be to take her out now and then, so you can get to know her better.

What you should do is not to try and devise ways of figuring out how much she likes you, but instead to find some opportunity to make a date with her now and then, when you can get the time.

Canadian Women Achieve Progress in Public Life; Many Distinguishing Selves

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canada's capital had its first woman mayor in 1951 and the year also saw housewives from coast to coast dig in for a thrift war against high prices.

On the lighter side — Marjory Alma Kelly, 23-year-old tobacco farmer's daughter of Courtland, Ont., was named Miss Canada of the year; a couple of prominent bachelors were blamed for the lack of women in the country's political life.

Mrs. Evelyn Tufts, Halifax reporter in the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa, said the late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and the late Viscount Bennett were responsible for the lack.

"They never had a chance to get acquainted with women and they didn't appreciate them," she said while visiting in Calgary. "But we may do a lot better from now on."

Six months later, in October, her prediction appeared to be coming true. Mayor Grenville Goodwin of Ottawa died and Controller Charlotte Whitton was chosen to fill his unexpired term of office, the first woman mayor in the city's history. By the end of the year she was sharing the same limelight with three others, all from Ontario.

Mrs. Marjorie Hamilton was re-elected mayor of Barrie, and Mrs. Bernadette Smith became the first woman mayor of Woodstock. Mrs. Grace Burk McFarland was elected first woman mayor of Leamington.

To complete the picture — Mrs. Ann Shipley, the perennial reeve of Ontario's Teck township which includes Kirkland Lake, was re-elected for yet another term.

Fight Inflation

Housewives in the thousands took a hand in the battle against the high cost of living through the National Council of Women which in the autumn launched a "thrift campaign".

Women were told to pinch pennies and hence beat the cost of living. The plan was endorsed by the 13,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers which subsequently urged the government to call a national conference of industry, trade, labor, agriculture and consumer representatives. Object of the conference: to clarify each group's responsibility in the country's battle against inflation.

Another organization, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, took Queen Mary's carpet on a Canada-wide tour, collecting $120,000 for dollar-hungry Britain. The carpet was turned over to the people of Canada, Princess Elizabeth making the formal presentation in the capital during the royal tour.

Individually, several women received recognition in and outside Canada, and, in February, the dean of women politicians, Mrs. George Black, celebrated her 85th birthday.

The robust veteran of the Klondike gold rush of 1898 said in an interview at her home in Whitehorse, Y.T., that her election to the House of Commons in 1935 was one of the things which stood out in her 53 years in the Yukon.

She represented the northern constituency for the Conservatives, retiring before the 1940 election.

At Paris Meeting

The only woman in the Canadian delegation at the U.N. General Assembly in Paris was Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Agincourt, Ont. Past president of the National Council of Women, Mrs. Marshall spoke for Canada in the U.N. Social Committee which studies such problems as human rights.

Mrs. Adelaide Sinclair, executive assistant to Canada's deputy welfare minister at Ottawa, was re-elected chairman of the U.N. children's fund of which she has been a member for the last five years.

The one to roam farthest afield, Dr. Margaret Hocken, a Canadian economist, headed for Iraq where she has been appointed by the U.N. education, scientific and cultural organization to work on a land-settlement program.

In the sports world Canada proudly hailed Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., as the golfing wonder of the year. Seventeen-year-old Marlene won the Canadian open championship in August, and a few days later she took the Canadian closed title.

In the literary field Germaine Guevremont, gifted Montreal writer, won the governor-general's award for the best fiction of 1950 with her novel of French-Canadian farm life, "The Outlander".

A Toronto woman, Marjorie Wilkins Campbell, author of "The Saskatchewan," a book in the "Rivers of America" series, won in the creative non-fiction class.

Virginia Sale One of Actresses Who Preserves Wide Versatility

By MARK BARRON

New York, (AP)— Versatility in the entertainment world has been declining in recent seasons as stage, screen and television have had to go in for type casting to produce the many programs needed for the divergent mediums. There remain only a few exponents of the craft of acting in its truest, individual form.

One such is Virginia Sale, a good looking woman far different from the homely features of her humorist brother, Chic Sale.

Virginia looks like a teen-age debutante off stage when she isn't playing character parts but she isn't a teen-ager. She is the mother of two 15-year-old twins, a girl and a boy, who are named Ginny and Christopher Wren. Their father is Sam Wren, movie director.

During her college studies at the University of Illinois, Virginia said she went on a one-woman theatre tour because she needed money, "like most college students" to finish her education. She finished that tour by returning to her alma mater "for the first thousand and one 'farewell appearances'." The auditorium seating 2,500 was sold out within an hour after tickets were placed on sale.

Chatting with Miss Sale after one of her performances at New York's fashionable Town Hall, I asked why she had given up a lucrative career in motion pictures and radio to play one-night stands.

Wasn't Own Choice

"Actually it wasn't my own choice," she said. "When I was in Hollywood playing character roles in films, I used to do parlor sketches to entertain my friends. Professional bookings stemmed from these impromptu shows, and I soon found myself unable to meet my film demands and still accept offers for stage shows. I became convinced that the real American theatre is still in the grass roots."

Miss Sale's "Americana" sketches, all of which she writes and stages herself, range from the voluble "School Ma'am" that we knew in our childhood, to the tired hostess with a fixed smile who is bidding her guests a "cheerful" goodnight at three o'clock in the morning.

A pair of glasses, a few hats and wigs, and a couple of wrap-around costumes are all Miss Sale needs in the way of props. Her greatest assets are her chameleon-like changes of expression, and an incredible variety of voices. Occasionally she emerges as the good looking girl she really is.

Plays Seven Parts

In her longest scene, a poignant dramatic sketch titled "Dakota Fever", she plays seven different characters in a story dramatized from letters written by Miss Sale's 85-year-old aunt, Anna M. Robins, relating how she gained a deep religious faith in her early pioneer hardships.

Miss Sale says she has succeeded in keeping her husband and two children and their professional careers separate.

"Our family pattern is a sort of four-way partnership," Miss Sale said. "Each member makes his own contribution to our mutual family life, but when it comes to show business, each goes along independent of the others.

"During the last two years, Sam has directed summer stock productions as well as his movie work. I've played leads and character roles. The children have done all sorts of jobs around the theatre, including acting, scene painting and hunting for props."

Women's Institute

WOOLER W.I.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. W. H. Morrow entertained the Women's Institute at her home. Mrs. A. G. Austin, vice-president, presided. After a short business session, Mrs. P. Gooding gave an interesting talk on her recent trip to England.

The Christmas program opened with a carol "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear", sung by Mrs. H. Ewing. Mrs. O. J. Anderson gave a paper on "Christmas Customs", and Mrs. Mac Anderson told how "Silent Night", came to be written. Mrs. Karl Austin played a piano solo.

A short memorial service in memory of two former presidents who had passed away recently, was held. Mrs. W. H. Morrow placed flowers in a vase in memory of Mrs. M. E. Maybee while Mrs. J. Way did the same in memory of Mrs. W. W. McColl.

At the close of the meeting, the articles brought for sale were auctioned off by Mrs. Charlie McColl who proved to be an efficient auctioneer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Angus Gunter, Mrs. Morrow and the hostess and a social time

CAMPBELLFORD

Bigger, Better Santa Claus Parade Highlighted by Floats

Campbellford. —"Bigger and better than ever", was the way observers described this year's Santa Claus parade in Campbellford. Although the crowd was not as large as usual, due to the zero temperatures, the enthusiasm of the children and adults watching the parade was warm.

About 100 costumes were imported from Toronto for the affair, and a number of other costumes were made locally. Almost 200 persons on 31 decorated floats, took part in the parade, which took close to a half hour to pass.

Extra police were on hand to help direct traffic. District Sergeant Stanley Palmateer and P.C. McKenzie of the O.P.P., in Peterborough as well as Chief Wesley Hall, of Havelock; Chief George H. Hardy and Constable W. E. Cargin, of Campbellford and O.P.P. Constables Donald Erskine and George Rose, of Campbellford.

Walkie-Talkies

Chairman of the parade committee, Fred M. Rutherford, rode in a police cruiser at the head of the procession. He was kept informed of the progress of the parade through a short wave radio hook-up, consisting of walkie-talkies at the front and rear of the procession.

The parade was sponsored by the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce and local service clubs and church organizations, as well as businessmen of the town.

Santa and his assistants rode on a float at the rear of the procession, laughing and waving to children, and apparently enjoying the spectacle as much as the kiddies to whom he tossed hundreds of bags of candies. At times the youngsters crowded around the float in such numbers that the driver had no choice but to stop, for fear of running over several of them.

The Havelock Kiltie Band was in attendance and played throughout the route of march. In the evening, several of the floats that had been in the Campbellford parade journeyed to Havelock to participate in a similar parade there. This was a sort of good will appearance, in return for the services of the Havelock band in the Campbellford parade.

Christmas Party

Campbellford— The members of the U.R. Welcome Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church were warmly welcomed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn for a Christmas party on Monday night. The group motored to the farm a short distance from town for the enjoyable occasion.

President Eva Fraser took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Fred Rabethge accompanied at the piano for the singing of several carols. Ruth Fraser rendered two piano selections in keeping with the Yuletide theme.

A highlight of the evening was a gift exchange among those in attendance.

Bounteous refreshments topped off the evening's activities and prior to departing to their homes, the thanks of the U.R. Welcome Club members to Mr. and Mrs. Meiklejohn for opening their home for the occasion was voiced by Don Sharp.

ELECTED ON RECOUNT

Wellesley Dec. 20 —(CP) — Charles Kraemer was elected to council after a recount of ballots Wednesday gave him a four-vote majority. He lost by one vote to Seimon Friedman in the Dec. 3 election.

United States Denies Report In Moscow Note

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP) — The United States in a note to Moscow has denied it is trying to promote subversion against Russia.

Furthermore, the note said, such "false charges" of American interference in Soviet affairs "come with singular ill-grace" from a regime which has for many years "supported subversive activities" against the U.S.

The state department released the note today. It was delivered to the Soviet foreign ministry yesterday.

Specifically, the U.S. rejected as baseless, Russian charges, made Nov. 21, that a $100,000,000 appropriation in the Mutual Security Act of last October to help victims of communists rule constitutes subversion against the Soviet government.

"Assistance of this nature is in keeping with the traditional U.S. policy of helping victims of oppression, in this instance those eastern Europeans who have escaped or may escape to the free world," the note said.

Death Toll Now 17

Vereeniging, South Africa, Dec. 20—(Reuters)—The death toll in yesterday's gas explosion at Cornelia colliery was brought to 17 today. Three more workers died and another body was found.

All the dead were Africans. Five European miners and 13 Africans were injured.

Nine Europeans and 300 Africans were down the shaft when the explosion occurred. Cause of the disaster was not known.

MARSH HILL

Baby Band Holds Christmas Meeting

Marsh Hill.—The Marsh Hill Baby Band held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. E. B. Finkle on Saturday afternoon. There were eight children present and five W.M.S. workers with Mrs. Bartondale, the leader, present.

A number of mite boxes were sent and brought in and amounted to $15.

A worship service conducted by Mrs. Bartondale, in which Aileen Lindenfield took the leading part, was well done and interesting.

A number of White Gift parcels, some sent in, and others brought in by the children, made a nice array around a decorated Christmas tree prepared by the hostess for that purpose. Prayer was offered in dedication of the gifts, by Mrs. E. B. Finkle.

Refreshments were served, consisting of sandwiches, cookies and tea.

A treat of homemade candy and popcorn balls made the children happy. They were also pleased that the White Gifts would make some other children happy.

Old Man Winter Throws Heavy Punch at Maritimes

Halifax, Dec. 20— (CP) — A glowering old man winter threw a solar-plexus punch at the Maritimes yesterday—his final swipe in a spree that saw him swing round-house wallops at the best part of the continent.

There were at least three deaths as indirect results of the storm.

Leaving a turmoil of damage in many parts of the Atlantic provinces, a premature winter storm with winds of 97 miles an hour drove flood waters through a Newfoundland village and threw a British freighter on a Newfoundland reef.

The east coast earlier had escaped wintry weather that plagued the rest of the country. But the sudden gale, which increased to hurricane force in some sections, made up for that.

For the second time in 12 hours, some 600 people huddled in two buildings at Stephenville crossing on Newfoundland's west coast early today as gale-lashed seas heaved into their little settlement.

High tides which flooded out three-quarters of the houses at noon yesterday, surged forward again at the second tidal peak around midnight Wednesday. Winds which had hit more than 90 miles an hour have subsided somewhat but were still registering up to 50.

No deaths or injuries were reported by Red Cross workers as they aided stricken villagers seeking refuge in the Roman Catholic school and a hospital on high, dry ground.

No Shortages Foreseen

Blankets and portable heaters were being sent from the Harmon Field U.S. Air Force base near Stephenville. The government has authorized the R.C.M.P. to take any emergency steps necessary to insure sufficient supplies but no immediate shortages are foreseen.

The 1,500-ton freighter Balkton hit the rocks on Green Island, off Newfoundland's east coast, last night.

Early today she reported she had managed to fight her way free and was slowly beating her way to sea. She was taking water in the engine room and the tug Arthur Cross was churning to her side.

These were the more spectacular happenings in the storm that brought howling winds, snow, rain and sharply-changing temperatures to the Maritimes.

At Sydney, boiling seas heaved a small vessel into the side of a wharf building. The roof of a tavern, under construction, became airborne.

Trains were running many hours late on C.N.R. and C.P.R. lines. Telegraphic and telephone communications were interrupted or overstrained — especially in Newfoundland.

In New Brunswick, there were two serious fires. A blaze that threatened the entire village of Rogersville caused damage of $40,000, destroying a hotel, bank, store and three homes. The Ten Eych Hotel in Saint John was damaged to the extent of $30,000 by fire. No one was injured.

Torontonians Look Forward To Another Storm

Toronto, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Torontonians today looked forward to a repeat of the "white horror" of Tuesday night.

Even though the second blizzard in two days — expected here at midnight Wednesday night — failed to arrive on time, by mid-morning snow falling on the city had all the appearances of another Tuesday.

Toronto had a few hours grace when the body of the storm passed north of the city. Most of the rest of Ontario had snow falling today with northern Ontario receiving the lightest fall.

Winds were expected to cause considerable drifting, especially in the Lake Huron region and possibly in the Niagara Peninsula, the weather bureau reported.

In Toronto, three inches of snow were predicted by 5 p. m., the peak of the home-bound rush hour. And there were warnings that the snow might change to rain or freezing rain by late afternoon.

Many workers in Toronto took as long as three hours to get home Tuesday night. The nearly-24-hour storm crippled transportation. Veteran police officers called it the "worst" they had ever seen.

Russell's three-hour operation, televised on a closed circuit, was observed by delegates to the American Medical Association here and was also shown in New York.

Minister Asks All Motorists To Drive Safely

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett today appealed from his hospital bed here to all motorists to drive safely during the Christmas season.

Mr. Doucett, injured severely in a traffic accident Nov. 8, said: "I cannot emphasize too much the importance of safe driving and walking rules at this time of the year."

He said conditions combine to make the Christmas shopping period one of the year's most dangerous times for traffic accidents. Children are out of school, more people of all ages are shopping, visiting and travelling.

On the last shopping day before Christmas last year, Dec. 23, 1950, 18 persons were killed and about 400 injured in Ontario by traffic accidents.

TTC Employees Will Not Strike During Holidays

Toronto, Dec. 20—(CP)—Citizens were cheered today by the news that Toronto's publicly-owned street-car and bus system, threatened by a strike, will remain in operation during the Christmas holidays.

The assurance came last night from Labor Minister Daley, who conferred with representatives of the Toronto Transportation Commission and the Toronto Street Railway Employees' Union (A. F. L.). Further talks will be held a week from today.

The employees, seeking a 15-cent increase over their present $1.40 an hour, yesterday took a strike vote. The result was not announced but it was reported that the union members voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action if necessary.

The T. T. C. has ordered an increase to $1.45 an hour which like the $1.40, includes a 16-cent-an-hour cost-of-living bonus.

Union officials have agreed not to call a strike unless negotiations are broken off. Neither the company nor the union, which represents 4,768 employees of the T. T. C. and of the subsidiary Gray Coach Lines, revealed any details of yesterday's talks.

Nor did Labor Minister Daley give any clue to what was discussed. He said "some progress" had been made.

An emergency advisory committee on traffic was set up yesterday to act in the event of a tram strike. It said it expected 10,000 extra automobiles would enter the downtown area in the event of a walkout.

Two Men Die

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 20—(AP)—Two men died yesterday when they leaped from a burning B-50 and their parachutes failed to open.

Biggs air force base reported an engine on the giant bomber caught fire shortly after the ship took off on a routine mission. Three men jumped at a low altitude. One landed unharmed. The others crashed to their deaths in the desert east of El Paso.

The pilot managed to put out the flames and returned safely to the base.

Officials Doubtful Steel Strike Can Be Avoided

Washington, Dec. 20—(AP)—High-level government talks in the ominous steel dispute started today but officials were suddenly doubtful that a New Year's day strike of workers can be avoided.

The change in attitude became apparent as representatives of major steel firms gathered for negotiations with C.I.O. president Philip Murray. The talks were arranged by Cyrus S. Ching, the government's ace labor trouble-shooter.

Murray has called the walkout for midnight Dec. 31, when present contracts expire. He is demanding a 15-cent hourly pay increase and other concessions for his 1,000,000-member United Steelworkers of America. The workers now average just less than $2 an hour, including overtime.

Until the last few days, government experts and steel industry spokesmen felt the threatened walkout could be avoided somehow, by a settlement or at least a strike postponement.

Now they say privately, as Murray said publicly last Monday, that a strike in the vital metal-producing industry seems inevitable.

Murray has said his men won't work without contracts after the present agreements expire.

John L. Lewis, the coal miners' union chief who was once Murray's closest crony, has publicly cheered Murray on. Lewis offered help to the steelworkers, without saying exactly what sort of help.

Ten steel companies on hand for the conferences produce about 70 per cent of the steel output of the U.S.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was thinking to herself, saying to pop, William, did you ever hear me speek of Helen Garretson?

I've heard you mention Eleanor Roosevelt, pop said, and ma said, Helen Garretson plays quite a good bridge game.

Oh, I see, pop said, Eleanor Roosevelt's game is pollliticks, I beleeve, he said, and ma said, I happened to run into Helen down town, and she was quite cordial.

That's nice, I hope you weren't cool to her pop said, and ma said, She invited me to join her weekly bridge game, and I felt quite tempted, because she knows some very nice women, and they all play more than they talk, which is quite unusual. The only problem is, I have my reguler game, and it's my ferm principal to only play bridge one afternoon a week, because that's all I can manage comfortably without neglecting my household duties. Oh dear, I dont know. I suppose I really awt to make a point of seeing some new faces for a change. I could resign from my present game, of course, she said.

That awt to solve it, pop said. Then you'll not only be seeing new faces, but you'll be giving the remaining members of your old game a break by letting them see at least one new face. Nuthing personal, naturelly, he said, and ma said, But William, that's just the stumbling block. I mean if I resign from my reguler game, the other ladies will find out I've joined a new game, and they actually will take it personaly. Oh dear, I'm afraid there's only one solution. I'll have to abandon my principals and play bridge 2 afternoons a week, she said.

It's a woman's world, pop said. Being the end of the subject.

Adrift 38 Freezing Hours, Lighthouse Keepers Saved

A horrifying tale of extreme cold and hunger was unfolded by three lighthouse keepers who were on the verge of collapse when they were cast ashore at Erie Beach after drifting on Lake Erie for 38 hours in an open boat in 10-below-zero weather. The trio were trapped in the ice after their motorboat stalled five minutes after they pushed off from their lighthouse. Ladder and rope the men used to reach shore is seen above. — Central Press Canadian.

Five heavy blankets which trio were bringing ashore for dry-cleaning saved men from sure death from exposure, as 20-foot waves of freezing water battered their small craft throughout their 38-hour siege. Rescued men are seen, left to right: Peter Soroka of Toronto; Cole Main of Dunnville, Ont., and Alfred Wigle of Leamington, Ont. — Central Press Canadian

Fresh Snowstorm Hits Midwest, Mercury Tumbles

Chicago, Dec. 20 — (AP) — Blustery, wintry weather landed another knockout blow today from the Rocky Mountains to northern New England.

A fresh snowstorm whistled out of the Pacific northwest, pelted the Rocky Moutain region and spread over the plains states, the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes region.

Temperatures tumbled, dipping far below zero in many areas. The colder weather headed into the storm-buffeted midwest as it moved eastward in the wake of the snow.

It was sub-zero, also, in northern New England and north parts of New York state.

The storm-battered areas have reported a total of 226 deaths attributed to the severe weather of the last week.

There was considerable drifting and blowing in the fresh snow belt, adding further danger to already-hazardous driving conditions.

The United States Weather Bureau here said the sub-zero belt extended as far south as northeastern Colorado and northwestern Kansas.

It was chilly in parts of the south and no immediate relief was in sight in the midwest.

Between five and 10 inches of new snow was in prospect for most of the midwest storm belt. It was generally fair over most of the eastern states but the fresh fall of snow which put record amounts on the ground in many areas was expected to reach the northeastern region by Friday.

General Assembly Elects Greece To Council

Paris, Dec. 20 — (Reuters) — The United Nations' General Assembly today elected Greece to the Security Council, after 19 ballots against Russia's candidate Byelo-Russia. Greece was sponsored by the United States.

The vote was 39 for Greece, 16 for Byelo (White)-Russia.

A two-thirds majority of U. N. members present and voting in the General Assembly test was required for election.

Greece thus will replace Yugoslavia on the security council Jan. 1. Chile and Pakistan were elected two weeks ago to fill vacancies caused by the expiration of terms of India and Ecuador.

White Russia, one of the constitutent republics of the U. S. S. R., was made a member of the U. N. along with the Ukraine, under the Yalta agreement which guaranteed Russia three memberships.

Britain and others had backed White Russia for the security council under a "gentlemen's agreement" of 1946 which gave one seat to the eastern European bloc of countries under Russia's wing. The U. S. contended the agreement was for only a year.

The security council is made up of the Big Five permanent members — Britain, China, France, Russia and the U. S. — and six elected members who serve two-year terms.

When the balloting began, Britain and France supported the Soviet choice. But informed sources said these countries switched during the afternoon's balloting.

STEADY ADVERTISER

London (CP)—W. A. Slow, publicity director for a big Oxford Street store (Marshall and Snelgrove) said in a speech the store has run a front-page advertisement in a British weekly newspaper every Sunday for more than 20 years without missing an edition. He believed it might be a world record.

South Korean General Bak Lim Hang, commander of the First ROK Division, is shown as he read the lengthy historical record of his division's exploits at the fourth anniversary of its founding in Korea. During celebration of the anniversary ceremony, six silver stars and six bronze stars were awarded to men of the division. — Central Press Canadian.

Pope's Message May Include Meeting Notice

Vatican City, Dec. 20 (AP) — The Pope's annual Christmas eve message to the College of Cardinals Monday may indicate whether a consistory will be held soon to fill 21 vacancies in the Sacred College. Vatican sources say one may be held in early spring.

The Pope will receive the Cardinals' traditional Christmas greetings at 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EST). His reply will be broadcast to the world.

In 1945, with the College down to 38 members, the Vatican announced Dec. 23 the names of 32 new Princes of the Church to bring the membership to full strength of 70.

Today there are only 49 Cardinals. Death has claimed 21. One, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, is behind the bars of a communist prison in Hungary. With the deaths of Konrad Cardinal Von Preysing in East Berlin a year ago and of Adam Stefan Cardinal Sapieha in Poland, Cardinal Mindszenty remains the only living Cardinal in the vast area dominated by the Soviet Union.

The Roman Catholic hierarchy in Switzerland said more than 13,000 priests and members of religious orders have been killed, jailed or exiled in iron curtain countries. Some 1,240 missionaries were reported expelled from communist China.

If a consistory is held, it is believed the Pope will fill all the vacancies, since many dioceses traditionally headed by a Cardinal now have none. These include Boston and St. Louis in the U.S., Prague, Czechoslovakia, whose primate, Archbishop Josef Beran, has been exiled by the communists; Paris, Warsaw and others.

The new Cardinals also may include the first negro member in church history. Since 1900 the number of Catholics in Africa has increased from little more than a million to 14,000,000. Among the candidates for the red hat are Msgr. Joseph Kiwanuka, Apostolic Vicar of Mauaka, Uganda, and Msgr. Ignatius Ramarosandratana, Apostolic Vicar of Miarinarivo, Madagascar.

Egyptian Houses Flattened by Tanks

British sappers, guarded by men of a parachute brigade, are shown as they bulldozed a path through the north end of the village of Kafr Abu Amr, on the outskirts of Suez. They demolished about 30 mud houses standing in the way of the road they are building to the water filtration plant which was isolated from the rest of the British garrison. Egypt responded to this with protests, mass demonstrations and isolated acts of violence. — Central Press Canadian.

ALLAN'S MILLS

William Luery Celebrates 90th Milestone

Allan's Mills — Congratulations are extended Mr. William Luery of Bonarlaw, who celebrated the 90th anniversary of his natal day on Friday, December 7th.

Despite his years, Mr. Luery who resides with his son, Mr. Ward Luery, is remarkable active. He takes a daily walk of approximately a mile to W. J. Barlow's store at Bonarlaw for his mail, and occasionally makes a second trip. He is a great reader, although he doesn't use glasses and is keenly interested in current events.

He takes an active part in all discussions on the various topics of the day with his friends and cronies who gather at the local store, and is held in the highest regard by the entire community.

Messrs. George, Nelson and David of Sterling are brothers.

Bemersyde I. O. D. E. Holds Theatre Concert

Campbellford — The Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E., held a theatre concert in the Aron Theatre here on Sunday evening with a good crowd in attendance. The Campbellford Citizen's Band played at the beginning and end of the program and the patrons enjoyed a good deal of local talent throughout.

Mrs. F. Free sang two selections, Marion Smith and Muriel Heagle gave two vocal duets. The Campbellford High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Irene Stephens, sang a Scottish number and a Christmas carol. A community sing-song, led by George Nicholls, was enjoyed. Mrs. George Nicholls and daughter, Anne, also played two piano duets.

Mrs. A. K. Loucks gave a short address on the functions of the I.O.D.E. and their financial contribution in community and world wide service throughout the past year. This revealed that the organization had sent several food parcels to Britain; they have sponsored a Polish war orphan fund; contributed to the support of the local Citizen's Band and the Memorial Hospital as well as contributing to the I.O.D.E. educational program. This program's main function to aid the families of veterans.

The Rev. A. E. Toombs spoke briefly on the world-wide application of the Biblical text, "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but shall have everlasting life."

Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol was chairman for the evening. The I.O.D.E. hopes to continue these theatre concerts every three or four weeks throughout the winter months.

India and Pakistan Headed For Another Impasse In Dispute Over Kashmir State

Paris, Dec. 20. (CP)—The dispute betwee.. India and Pakistan over the princely State of Kashmir appears headed for another impasse.

United Nations mediator Dr. Frank P. Graham is expected to report failure to arrange agreement on demilitarization when he appears before the U.N. Security Council Dec. 22. Six weeks ago the Council told him to make another attempt to solve the problem he had already been working on for nine months.

The time-limit is up Dec. 22 and he is expected to tell the Council that a proposed plebiscite to decide the fate of the disputed area is still far from being in sight. The U.N. first took over the problem in January, 1948. The previous October Moslem tribesmen had invaded the state which had just acceded to Hindu India following partition of the sub-continent.

Since January, 1949, Pakiston and Indian forces have been drawn up on either side of a cease-fire line kept intact under supervision of U.N. observers including a series of Canadian Army officers.

Violence Not Ruled Out

Possibility of renewed violence is not ruled out but both India and Pakistan promised they would not resort to force to decide which country finally gets Kashmir—a lush mountainous area with a population of some 4,000,000 and about one-quarter the size of British Columbia.

About three-quarters of Kashmir's population are Moslems as are most inhabitants of Pakistan.

Several internationally-known figures including Admiral Chester W. Nimitz of the United States and Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada have attempted to solve the problem since one year of fighting ended with the cease-fire in January, 1949. That event was described by McNaughton at the time as a "most encouraging event in the history of the United Nations."

But now the disputants are deadlocked over how demilitarization should be carried out to make way for a plebiscite. India insists that Pakistan forces would be withdrawn before Indian forces are reduced. Pakistan rejects this proposal.

Some observers believe the only solution can come through political changes in India where Prime Minister Nehru has held out strongly against any modification of India's stand on the question.

250 to Check On Red-Supplied List of P-O-W

Washington, Dec. 20—(AP)—The defence department still had about 250 names to check today on the communist-supplied list of American prisoners-of-war in Korea.

The Pentagon finished the first phase of the huge job last night. At that time, about 2,940 names on the full list of 3,198 had been identified.

Telegrams making it a joyous Christmas season for hundreds of American families went out last night to nearly all the next of kin of the 2,940 men. Six were listed as having next of kin in Canada. But the sorrow deepened for the many more whose sons were not listtd.

The approximately 250 remaining to be identified presented special problems. The Pentagon decided to tackle these today.

When they stoppe work last night, the staff working on the list had been on duty 26½ hours, ever since the names began pouring in from Tokyo Tuesday night.

They had been handed to United Nations officers several hours earlier at Panmunjom, Korea, the site of the truce negotiations.

There are 11,051 Americans officially listed as missing in action in Korea, so the release of the names meant tragedy in at least two homes for every onewhere it brought happiness.

President Truman joined high military officials yesterday in emphasizing that the list is completely "unverified."

A Pentagon spokesman gave some hope that the communist list might be an honest one.

He said that nearly all of the names checked in the first phase of the operation—and this phase included more than 90 per cent of the total—were found in the defence department's own official list of missing.

"The number of discrepancies has been negligible both in number and in type," the spokesman said.

Affection for Royal Family Came Strongly to Surface At Time of King's Illness

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) —The affection felt by the British people for members of the Royal Family came strongly to the surface in 1951 when a threat of tragedy touched Buckingham Palace.

The announcement in September that the King was to be operated on for a serious but undisclosed lung ailment provoked a heart felt emotion. Before and after the operation Sept. 23, crowds of ordinary people, some of them hardly knowing why they were there, waited quietly outside the palace.

Surgeons removed all or part of the King's lung. After tense days of waiting, it was announced the danger period was over. Some weeks later the King's recovery was described in court circles as a "miracle."

Tour Big Event

The illness shadowed a year of intense activity and high prestige for the Royal Family. For Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, the crowning event was the six-week tour of Canada, which drew cheering crowds and had the incidental effect of arousing a greater British interest in Canada than any single event in recent years.

In a speech, Nov. 19, two days after her return from Canada, the Princess said in a speech at London's Guildhall:

"I would like them (Canadians) to know that they have placed in our hearts a love for their country and its people which will never grow cold, and which will always draw us back again to their shores."

It seems reasonable to suppose that Elizabeth came back from far-off Canada a slightly-changed person, conscious for the first time of the vast distances and genuine feelings of a country she one day will rule as Queen.

Home For Christmas

During 1951 the Princess saw more of her sailor-husband, Prince Philip, than she had since their marriage in 1947. She started the year with him at Malton, before he gave up command of the frigate Magpie, and at year's end the couple will spend their first Christmas home with Prince Charles, 3, and Princess Anne, 16 months.

Philip came home from Malta for the opening of the Festival of Britain May 4 and has been on indefinite leave since July 21.

All members of the Royal Family attended the opening ceremonies of the festival, the King hailing it as a "symbol of Britain's abiding courage and vitality."

In the same month, the King and Queen welcomed King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark on a state visit. But the King was confined to the palace with a lung inflammation in June when King Haakon of Norway made history by arriving in the Thames River in the 1,600-ton Royal barge Norge. King Haakon was greeted by the Queen and Princess Margaret at Westminster Bridge.

Elizabeth Slimmer

On a more personal level, 1951 saw the blossoming of a slimmer, more style conscious Princess Elizabeth, ready to give her younger sister Margaret a run for her money in the Fashion-Plate Stakes. Buckingham Palace made known that Elizabeth had gone on a diet and gossips whispered that husband Philip had had a hand in influencing her choice of clothes.

Margaret was less in the limelight than usual. She celebrated her 21st birthday at Balmoral Castle Aug. 18, made the rounds of theatres and night clubs less frequently and had so many different escorts that columnists scenting a romance had to scatter their shots. In November, she visited Paris and once kept Supreme Commander Gen. Eisenhower waiting when her chauffeur took the wrong turn.

U.N. Told Whole Soviet-Led World In Grip of Mania

Paris, Dec. 20 (AP)— An American delegate told the United Nations today the whole Soviet-led world seems to be in the grip of a "spy mania."

Four American airmen, whose cargo plane was forced down by Russian fighters in Hungary, are victims of the mania, Rep. Mike Mansfield (Dem. Mont.) told the U.N. political committee.

Mansfield's description of communist fears followed a Polish accusation the United States is operating a vast spy ring and financing "killings, assassinations and outrages" behind the Iron Curtain.

Mansfield denounced yesterday's table-pounding attack on the four fliers by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, who called them "spies and saboteurs."

Vishinsky said he hoped the men would receive "due attention" from "our military and justice authorities."

Mansfield and Poland's Stefan Wierblowski traded verbal punches in a committee debate on a Russian resolution charging the United States with waging "aggression" against Russia and its satellites under the Manual Security Act.

Mansfield said the United States has not even been able to learn whether Hungarian or Russian auothorities are holding the four airmen.

"Our diplomatic representatives have been denied all access to these men and have been unable to receive satisfactory answers to our inquiries," he said.

The C-47 cargo plane was on a mission from the U.S. airbase at Erding, Germany, to carry supplies to the U.S. embassy at Belgrade, Yugoslavia. It strayed from the air route and was forced down by Russian fighters based in Hungary.

STRUCK BY CAR

Peterborough, Dec. 20 (CP)—Ralph Shaw, eight-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Shaw, suffered a fractured skull and possible internal injuries when he was struck Wednesday by a car. His condition today was only fair.

Ralph with two school chums was hitching a ride behind a car when he lost his balance and fell in front of another auto.

Canada Said In Forefront Of United Nations

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, (CP)—Canada was in the forefront of United Nations efforts during the year to build up the world organization's anti-aggression elements.

This work, most obvious in Canadian fighting forces in Korea, went ahead parallel with the country's efforts towards strengthening defence forces in Europe under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, for which another Canadian brigade is in Germany.

Throughout the year however the Canadian delegation to the U.N. worked both in public and behind the scenes in efforts to end the Korean war and to calm east-west tensions.

Leading Member

As one of the first contributors to anti-aggression forces in Korea, Canada was a leading member of the U.N. collective measures committee which has labored through the year to work out a system whereby the U.N. will not be caught napping in the event of future aggression. Under committee proposals, the U.N. will be able to go into action without any of the fumbling which marked the early days of north Korea's attack on south Korea.

At the current U.N. assembly, Canada took her place beside the big powers on the proposed new U.N. commission to seek world disarmament. The new commission would replace the old U.N. atomic energy and conventional arms commissions where Canada was a member because of her contributions toward development of atomic energy. The Dominion was a member of the committee which worked out proposals of merging the two old commissions in the light of developments.

Canadians Popular

Canadian personalities were as popular as ever when it came to choosing able men for top U.N. posts. T. A. (Tommy) Stone, Canada's minister to Sweden, was unanimously elected chairman of the budgetary committee at the 1951 U.N. assembly. Hon. L. B. Pearson had been sought as assembly president but declined to stand for the post since it would keep him away from pressing duties at Ottawa for too long a period. However, he was being sought as a candidate for the next assembly session to be held in New York, where he would be able to keep in close touch with Ottawa. And George Davidson, Canada's representative to the economic and social council, was being mentioned as possible president of the council at its next session.

The Canadian delegation suffered a great loss in March with the death of R. G. Riddell, head of the permanent Canadian delegation at U.N. headquarters in New York. Herbert Norman became acting head of the delegation and D. H. Johnson, formerly Canada's minister to Pakistan, was appointed to head the permanent delegation.

Canada's recognition of responsibilities far afield was shown in a number of aid contributions. For Korean reconstruction work, the Canadian government set aside $7,250,000; for the International children's fund, $500,000. These were among material grants to ease suffering in various countries around the world.

British Columbia, Maritimes Prefer Drinking Hard Liquor; Inland Folk Beer Drinkers

Ottawa, Dec. 20 (CP)—When a Maritimer or a British Columbian orders up the drinking liquor, it's a better-than-even chance he's calling for hard stuff.

Inlanders, on the other hand, show a marked taste for beer.

The varying sectional preferences are indicated in a report from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, just out, giving consumption figures for the 1950-51 fiscal year.

The stastics from the different provinces aren't complete, but they indicate that everywhere except the Maritimes, the big hard beverage is rye whisky. The east coast's long-established stand-by is rum, perhaps stemming from the area's nearness to the rum-producing Caribbean colonies and the pre-war generations of smuggling.

Rye Gets Preference

But in the other provinces it's mostly domestic rye that gets the big play. This is particularly true in Ontario and Saskatchewan, where Canadian whisky outsells its nearest competitor about eight to one.

In the comparison between beer and the hard types, the province showing the greatest disdain for the weaker brew is Newfoundland, whose sturdy fishermen go for hard liquor about four to one. The report doesn't break the spirits down between various types, but it can be safely assumed rum is well ahead. The Newfoundlander's leaning towards "screech" — a notably potent rum—is well known.

They Like Rum

Prince Edward Island, which has had legal beverage-liquor sales only three years, favors rum two to one over whisky. Rum has made a big post-war comeback in Nova Scotia, too, after a wartime influx from other provinces during the war temporarily tipped the balance in favor of whisky. It's normal again now at three to one for rum.

On the opposite coast, the British Columbia statistics don't show what type of hard liquor is favored there. As between spirits and beer, the ratio is three to two for the former.

For Ontario, Quebec and the prairies, gin and rum vie sectionally for the second spot to whisky. Gin is ahead in Ontario and Quebec, while rum displaces it in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Manitoba does not have a breakdown.

STATELY CHAMBER

GOOD FARMERS

It has been estimated that 95 per cent of the 100,000 population of Prince Edward Island was born on the island.

New Zealand Plans to Make Own Newsprint

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—Plans to launch a newsprint industry in New Zealand which will be producing large supplies by the middle of 1954 have been submitted to the government by one New Zealand and two United States companies. The industry would be able to supply all the dominion's newsprint needs and provide large quantities of newsprint, pulp and timber for export to south Pacific countries.

The proposal has been made in response to an invitation from the government to private industry to submit plans for the utilization of the huge state forest in the centre of the north island. This is the largest man-made forest in the world. The government had proposed that a town be built at Murupara, in the forest zone, for establishment of the industry.

Plan Submitted

The plan submitted by the three firms, however, provides for the industry to be centred at the existing town of Te Puke, which lies nearer the east coast and nearer the port which is to be built at Mt. Maunganui for handling the plant's products.

The three firms are Fletcher Construction Company, biggest construction organization in New Zealand, Merritt, Chapman and Scott Corporation, which has built many pulp and paper mills in America, and the Raymond Concrete Pile Company, of the United States. They propose forming a company to develop and exploit the forest in association with the government, which will supply the timber, build a railway, and take part in port and other development work.

Proposal Examined

The proposal is now being examined in detail by government experts and leading businessmen called in as advisers. Committees are working at high pressure in order to reach a decision as soon as possible, as the firms concerned have priorities on certain scarce construction materials.

Experts of the companies submitting the plan are confident that a great new industrial centre can be established and put into operation in the area within two and a half years. They see its output as providing a challenge to dairy produce, meat and wool, which have for many years been the basis of New Zealand's export wealth. They estimate that the annual output from the industry will be 60,000 tons of newsprint, 35,000 tons of bleached kraft pulp, and 40,000,000 board feet of timber.

Yule Tree Sale Big Business Around Orono

Orono, Ont. (CP)—Come early winter — and often as early as mid-summer — Durham county's five-mile strip of wasteland becomes Christmas-tree territory to Orono residents and thousands of Americans.

Summer visitors from the United States order early. They buy the trees in lots of 1,000, more often 10,000. Frequently they order by the car-load.

Durham Christmas trees are popular with U.S. buyers who are willing to pay from $8 to $10 for one of the big green beauties. They say they're the only type of evergreen that doesn't shed its needles or turn yellow after two or three weeks of standing in a corner of the living-room.

Actually these trees became big business around here only seven years ago. About that time veteran Orono merchants such as John and Bill Armstrong began to realize there was money in selling the reforestation thinnings from Pine Ridge, the county badlands.

In 1946 the Armstrongs obtained 100,000 Scotch pine seedlings from the nursery of Ontario's lands and forests department. They planted them, by hand, on a 100-acre abandoned farm. Since then, each year they have acquired more waste land and more seedlings. Their present holdings total 800 acres.

The six-foot trees being removed this year are merely thinnings to make room for mature growth. However, by the time the cutting season ends this week the Armstrongs will have shipped 45,000 trees.

Overall shipment to the U.S. from this area is expected to total 1,000,000 trees. That doesn't mean all the money realized is profit.

The wasteland costs money, particularly now when its value is beginning to be recognized. There is the cost of hand planting, harvesting, loading and trucking when the first crop is taken off at the end of five years. Disease, fire or drought may wipe the venture out at any time.

So far, however, this business is a worthwhile venture for most of the 900 residents of this eastern Ontario village, 20 miles southwest of Peterborough.

Hon. T.C. Davis Adds Typing To Activities

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bonn, Germany (CP)—To the known and numerous talents of Hon. T. C. (Tommy) Davis, Canadian ambassador to Germany, you can add one more.

The affable gentleman from Saskatchewan who has been a lawyer, judge, legislator, provincial cabinet minister and diplomat is a typist too.

He's been provig it here in Bonn, capital of west Germany. He's had to.

He says he learned to type in those distant days when he was a young lawyer in Prince Albert, Sask., and recent circumstances have revived the talent and put it to work.

The ambassador has been pressed into duty as a makeshift stenographer for two reasons.

One is that the embassy, with only himself and two other Canadians of diplomatic rank on its staff, has had its work sharply increased due to the negotiations and discussions arising from the arrival of the 27th brigade in Germany.

Staff Shortage

The other is a temporary shortage of stenographers. Because of holidays, sickness and other reasons, the number of Canadian stenographers available at one time before Christmas was nil and since only Canadian typists are allowed to handle classified or secret documents and correspondence someone had to do the typing.

In a number of cases, it was Hon. T. C. Davis.

The other Canadian diplomats on his staff are Jean Chapdelaine of Montreal and Arthur Andrew of Halifax. There are also a number of other Canadians without diplomatic status.

Before the brigade came to Germany, the embassy was largely occupied in observing and reporting. The brigade has turned it into an operational embassy in a fairly big way and the biggest of all its files, even after only relatively few weeks ,is the one—or several—on the negotiations and talks about the brigade's legal status and other complex matters involving its presence.

Inflation Curbs Working--Howe

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP) Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons Wednesday that the government's measures to curb inflation "seem to be working in the right direction."

He said total private and public investment in capital expansion is expected to climb by seven per cent this year over 1950, with the emphasis on essential production.

Spending on expansion of businesses not subject to the four-year depreciation hoist for tax purposes — mostly defence and defence-supporting industries— is expected to increase 83 per cent in volume over 1950.

Spending on industries not eligible for current depreciation — the non-essential industries — is expected to drop eight per cent from last year.

Canada Not Asked For More Military Or Economic Aid

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP)—Canada has not been asked to provide more military or economic aid to Europe through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and there is no suggestion that she will be, Defence Minister Claxton said Wednesday.

He was commenting on reports that Canada has been asked for more economic aid and to boost her European brigade to a division.

Canada has completed her military commitments to Europe with the dispatch of the 27th Brigade to Germany and the promise of an 11-squadron fighter air force, the minister said.

"We will be giving better than $200,000,000 in economic aid to Europe in the fiscal year 1952-53", he added. "And in addition there will be vast sums spent to maintain our forces there."

Certificates Not Accepted As Passports

Ottawa, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said Wednesday identification certificates issued to members of the 27th Brigade are not accepted as passports when the men go on leave in Europe.

In a statement Tuesday, Mr. Claxton said he understood the certificates were accepted.

The certificates are accepted by European countries when the men move in formation or on duty, but "so far we have not succeeded in making arrangements for them to accept the identification cards when they are on leave.

"We are continuing to make efforts to secure that acceptance. They have agreed in principle but have not put it into effect."

World Issues Settled in This Bleak Setting

Turkish Version of Blarney Stone

With a name like his, U.S. Congressman Sylvester O'Toole should be casting his wishes at Ireland's famed Blarney Stone. Legend has it that a snake came out of this hole in 470 A.D. and bit Bysantine Emperor Constantine's son and heir, causing his death. People have been wishing here for centuries. — Central Press Canadian.

Churchill Myths Get Debunking

Winston Churchill frequently gratified his fondness for travel, particularly to climates more clement than that of England in winter. Not since the traditional "English milords" went on the Grand Tour has such an impressive entourage ventured abroad. Mr. Churchill travels nowhere without his valet. The latter gets a good deal of assistance from the two detectives who everywhere watch over his master, Alistair Forbes writes in The New York Times Magazine.

Two secretaries complete what Mr. Churchill requires as the minimum attendance upon him, even for the shortest journeys.

Likes Comfort

The truth is that he sees no reason to be uncomfortable now that he is wealthy enough to be without discomfort. He has earned every penny of his fortune and he spends it in such a way as to make his life more agreeable so that it will tax his energy as little as possible.

These are neither as extravagant nor as eccentric as some people pretend. Mr. Churchill breakfasts in bed but not on porridge or coffee laced with brandy, as some American papers have suggested.

In or out of office he reads every paper he can get. In or out of office his correspondence comes to him in the iron "boxes" which are a part of the ministerial furniture in England. His secretaries must decide what matters are sufficiently important to rate "top of the box".

Mr. Churchill does a great deal of his work in bed. Contrary to report, he does not "cat nap" but when he rests, as he does at least once a day, he undresses fully and gets into bed. He takes a hot bath twice a day; never more than twice, though he likes to brush his teeth more often than that.

Built Own Pool

He finds the English climate a bit cold for swimming nowadays and does not often use the beautiful pool which he himself built at Chartwell and into which he once, for a bet, jumped in full evening dress, saying that he had often wondered what it would feel like. He uses the telephone when it is convenient, but is far from being an addict and he has never mastered the automatic dialing system.

Legend relates that he is a glutton, as malice repeats that he drinks overmuch. Nothing could be further from the truth. He eats with a good appetite and keeps a good table, nothing more.

He has very little palate for wine. The joys of claret and burgundy are a closed book to him. Champagne, however, has been his staple beverage for many years. He once asked his statistician friend, Lord Cherwell, to work out how many carloads of it he had drunk in his lifetime and was quite disappointed to learn that it could all be drawn behind one locomotive.

After a meal, Mr. Churchill, like most Europeans and many Americans, likes to drink brandy. But he never drinks "brandy and soda", as I have so often seen it put about. Scotch and soda, yes; but that is something he always has beside him sometimes well before midday. But they are the weakest Scotches ever poured off the stage, and Mr. Churchill sips them so slowly that he will often be nursing the same glass for two or three hours.

Myth Dies Hard

However, myth dies hard. And the teetotalers and other do-gooders always come away shocked to see whisky where they expect to find tea.

The fact is that Mr. Churchill is very fond of teasing such people and he takes a very poor view of those who parade a holier-than-thou abstemiousness in these matters. Sir Stafford Cripps' austerity was only made bearable for him because it was mitigated by a taste for cigars.

Cigars! Here is another topic for old wives' tales. Mr. Churchill's consumption of these expensive affairs, many of which are gifts from admirers, is anything up to 15 a day. But he scarcely inhales or enjoys their smoke at all. He may take half an hour to light one, using the often-struck matches and the cigar together to orchestrate the gestures of his conversation.

Mr. Churchill's consumption of cigars certainly rises steeply at election time or on any other occasions when his appearances in public are frequent.

He has a strong sense of what he conceives to be his duty toward his fans and whenever there is a sizable crowd he will take a cigar and light it, because, as he says, "they expect it."

Vincent Massey Mentioned As Probable Candidate For Big Cultural Position

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa—(CP)— The man who gave Canada its first measurement for cultural growth may be asked by the government to head a special organization in 1952 to guide Canada's cultural future.

Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, chancellor of the University of Toronto, is considered as a likely candidate for the chairmanship of a proposed Canadian council to help painters, musicians, writers, scientists and students create a more distinctive Canadian culture.

Creation of a 15-member council, with authority to use public funds to advance a host of projects, was one of the basic recommendations of the Massey commission on arts report, completed in 1951, after a soul-searching two-year cross-country study of national development.

The historical report, a massive and unique 150,000-word document, was the cultural achievement of the year urging Canada to thrust aside some of the less desirable influences from the United States and to create cultural fare which would strengthen national unity and give Canadianism character and meaning.

Had Four Helpers

With four other distinguished Canadians to assist him, Mr. Massey, former Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, brought forth a document which was quickly appreciated in parliament and by the Canadian public which purchased thousands of copies of the report, turning it into a government-document "best seller."

Thousands of Canadians, seeking outlets for their ideas, talents and ambitions, either wrote or appeared before the scores of public hearings held by the Royal Commission, first in Ottawa and then in major cities across the country.

Briefs piled up by the hundreds. Millions of words were poured out into the testimony given before the commission. For the student and the professor, the writer and artist, the commission became a cultural spectacle—a bright light beamed on a largely deserted field.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, with whom the cultural study originated, was quick to implement a few of the 146 Massey recommendations— to implement them all would take millions of dollars and years of development.

For the Massey commission spared no pains in covering every inch of the cultural ground — broadcasting and television, National Film Board, federal aid to universities, scholarships, information aboard—and the Canadian council.

The Massey commission recommended federal aid to universities and the government immediately came through with a $7,000,000 grant to be distributed among the universities on the basis of provincial population.

Money Given C.B.C.

It urged that the CBC be given a public grant to make up its deficit and this also was approved. The commission suggested that television development be placed in the hands of the CBC and there appeared no doubt that this would be done.

The government took steps, as recommended by the commission, to give the National Gallery, housed in the National Museum, a greater measure of independence and ability to expand its work. Eventually it would have a new building, a home of its own, somewhere in the central part of the capital.

But many of the other recommendations, steps to create a system of national scholarships, to expand Canadian publicity and scholarships in other countries, to provide public funds for national artistic projects will have to await the creation of the council before they are tackled.

Consideration is being given to the creation of the council in 1952, with a money grant from parliament. This will lead to encouragement of Canadian music drama, ballet and help the score of voluntary organizations in Canada which are expected to give the council active support.

2,000 Christians Living in Israel Can Cross Line

Bethlehem, Dec. 20 (AP) — The barbed-wire of no-man's land will be opened to let 2,000 Christians living in Israel worship at Christmas day services in this Arab occupied village where Christ was born.

The announcement came today from the foreign ministry of Moslem Jordan, whose troops occupy Bethlehem and the old city of Jerusalem as a result of the Palestine war of 1948 between Jews and Arabs. They are still technically at war under armistice.

The 2,000 pilgrims will be in addition to diplomatic and consular corps personnel who can cross the line at any time.

Foreigners in Israeli-controlled territory also are allowed in the Arab occupied part of Jerusalem and Bethlehem with Jordan visas but are not allowed to return through Israel. No figure was available on the number of foreign visitors expected to pass through.

The foreign ministry said Israel will submit a list of 2,000 pilgrims for the aporoval of Jordan authorities, who will greet them at Mandelbaum gate into Jerusalem Christmas eve.

Each visitor from Israel will be permitted to bring three Jordan dinars ($8.40) as pocket money. The foreign ministry said most of the Christians in Israel who are being let in have relatives in Jordan.

The towering orange flames and dense smoke from the fire, only a block away from the business district, attracted most of Brockville's 13,000 residents as well as many residents of the surrounding farming district who saw the glare from miles away.

The fire could be clearly seen from Morristown, N.Y., two miles away on the opposite shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Firemen were reinforced by a pumper and a firefighting crew from the town of Prescott, 12 miles to the east, and by the [illegible] military camp fire department.

Goods in the warehouse section of the L-shaped building included furniture, shoes, canvas, paints leather, paper, novelties and chemicals.

Firemen saved nearby houses by soaking roofs and walls with water.

Brockville's last major fire gutted a business block Nov. 26, 1949, and caused damage of almost $500,000.

P-C OPPOSITION

He suggested that the government might be pressing the legislation at this time in the hopes that the public will give it some credit for the price reductions that customarily develop each year in the annual January sales.

Want Restrictions Lifted

If the government wanted to cut living costs, it should ease credit restrictions, curtail expenditures and reduce the sales tax and special excise taxes levied in the last budget.

He charged that the measure would hurt the small business man and benefit big business establishments.

J. O. Gour (L—Russell), who runs a country general store in Eastern Ontario, said resale price maintenance—which allows manufacturers to set the retail prices of their goods—does not benefit 95 per cent of the people.

The Progressive Conservatives wanted to protect big business and make dictators out of the few who could force small merchants to charge set prices for their goods.

Arthur Laing (L—Vancouver South), a business man, said his experience of 25 years in business led him to believe it would be a better day for business generally when it was able to return to a free and competitive market.

Act Called 'Hoax'

J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), a construction man, felt the legislation was "nothing but a hoax" to lead the people to believe the government was doing something about living costs. It should remove taxes.

The way to curb the high cost of living, Mr. Murphy said, is for the government to remove "excissive" taxes burdening the country.

He said the prices committee that brought in the recommendation for the bill before the House had been "engineered". Its members were not allowed to investigate the problem fully. He hoped that never again would the Commons see one of its committees so "bridled".

A. E. Catherwood (PC—Haldimand) said he could not possibly support the bill without hearing more evidence on the issue. Despite the natural desire of members to get home for Christmas, the Commons would be "very derelict" in its duty if it did not give the bill very careful study.

Mr. Catherwood said he could not see how the measure would help the situation.

Senior Hawks Crush Peterborough Petes 9-4 To Share Group Top Spot

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHAT A COMEBACK!

Just what "Red" Doran fed those Hawks after the first period remains a mystery. It could be something like that "elixir" that sparked the New York Rangers to a victory spurt or it could have been his own fine effort in rallying what appeared to be a beaten team after the first ten minutes of play. Whatever it was, it worked, and 892 fans went home happy after seeing one of the most sensational comebacks ever staged by a Belleville hockey team.

It was one of those things you had to see to believe. The dashing Petes after scoring the opening goal took quick advantage of a disorganized Hawk squad and rammed home goals so quickly the official scorer never looked up from his records. They came one-two-three in exactly 77 seconds, and to rub it in a fourth one sizzled past Lefort before the surprised Hawks came back to earth.

When they did they landed with a thud. The Doran-Jones-Wardhaugh line launched a sudden attack and "Red" tobled the rubber to his fellow sorrel-top who made no mistake and the "egg" was broken. Sparked by the goal, the Hawks started to resemble a hockey team and they cut the margin to two by the period end.

After that, they started to click as a unit and fired home seven more goals in a row while the desperate Petes were held scoreless. The Hawks sped both ways at top speed and gave one of their best checking displays of the season. They thoroughly deserved to win on the night's play and as far as we can figure it out the Petes were at full strength. Their passing plays were clicking but too much Hawk checking in the final two periods stymied their effectiveness.

The Hawks now share the group top spot with the Petes while Kingston who also upheld the honor of the east last night by plucking the Eagles 8-6, are two points behind in second place. The Eagles are on the ground floor.

Jackie Wardhaugh's injury was not as serious as first expected. The fleet-footed winger emerged with a badly bruised knee after crashing into a goal-post late in the third period. It was thought at first he had a broken leg, but from where we sat it looked as thought a few ribs had parted company. He will be ready for duty Friday night.

WITH THE MINORS

The minor divisions of the Belleville Hockey Association sweep into the third week of activities starting tonight when the juvenile league resumes play at the arena. Starting tonight's double header at 8.30 will be the Police Dept.-Cleaners game and following this the Glen Roys will take on the Belleville Lock team. In the midget loop Canadian Tire takes on the Moose Lodge team and the Big "A" tangles with the Quinte Battery squad.

Saturday morning sees both peewee and bantam loops in action with the peewees taking the ice at 7.30 when Leafs meet Red Wings in the first game of a triple header. Next comes Canadiens and Rangers with Bruins and Hawks following. In the bantam league the same schedule follows, with Wings and Leafs, Canadiens and Rangers and Bruins and Hawks playing in the order named.

DIDN'T LIKE KILTS!

Turk Broda Night coming up in Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday evening prompted Lorne Duguid, former NHL star, to recall the time when the Turk was a raw rookie in the Detroit Red Wings camp.

Broda arrived from Brandon with the loudest suit of clothes seen in years, a regular "Humphrey" guy. It was the talk of the pre-season training camp. While Broda was out, the practical-joking Duguid called a tailor, gave him Broda's fancy pants and told him to shorten then eight inches.

When Broda finished practice and climbed into his street clothes the dressing room was in an uproar. His shortened pants were up around his knees.

The Turk was a picture of distress. Brandon was a long way off and it was his only suit. Duguid and pals suddenly realized the gag had backfired. They chipped in and bought the Turk a new suit.

BANCROFT GETS READY!

Bill Hutton, up there in Bancroft, the village "of tin roofs and optimism" as it was dubbed by a former reeve, sticks his parka-hooded head far enough out of his igloo to say that hockey in the northern village and district will be as good if not better than former years.

Seems as though they're having little trouble these balmy days getting ice made in the arena up thataway and expect activities to get under way at the turn of the year.

Tops on the hockey calendar will be the Hastings and Addington loop which will again consist of the champion Bancroft Pontiacs, Madoc, Tweed and Tamworth. Then there will be Bancroft, Coe Hill and Apsley in the midget loop with other leagues operating in the North Hastings High School and the public school. The old "blood-and-thunder" loop of Bancroft, Coe Hill and Maynooth will likely be tossed into the discard this winter.

* * *

And up pops one of those rarities in any sport, a sponsor who turns thumbs down on advertising. The Martin Brothers Lumber Company, of Bancroft has taken over the sponsorship of a new village juvenile team which will be known as the "Bancroft Timbermen". Of course the boss man has a son and a nephew who play hockey and they will gather the juvenile-age youth of the village around them to form the squad. It is likely a new juvenile league will be formed in the village and district. More power to 'em.

Stage Spectacular Comeback After Spotting Foe 4 Goals To Grab Well-Deserved Win

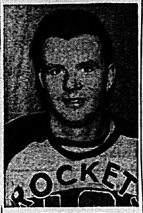
Spotting the league-leading Peterborough Petes four goals in the first 12 minutes, the Belleville Hawks blazed a thrilling fifty-minute sustained offensive that netted them nine goals to take a well-deserved 9-4 victory in a senior "B" game here last night.

The win hoists the Hawks into a two-way tie with the Petes for the group leadership. Kingston's 8-6 defeat of the Peterborough Eagles last night puts the eastern squad two points behind the leaders with the Eagles bringing up the rear.

The Hawks staged a spectacular comeback after the Petes scored three goals in exactly one minute and 17 seconds in the first period and added another three minutes later. It looked like a rout with the disorganized Hawks failing to stem the Petes effective passing attacks.

Stung by Sudden Reverse

Stung by the sudden onslaught, the Hawks roared back to cut the margin to 4-2 at the period end. They took over in the second period outplaying the visitors with a speedy hard-checking game that netted them four goals, and continued the fast pace in the third period with another trio while holding the Petes scoreless.



"RED" DORAN
. . . Sparked the Rally

PETER JONES
. . . Here, There, Everywhere

Jackie Wardhaugh, speedy Hawk winger was injured late in the third period when he crashed into a goal post, and was carried off the ice.

KEITH MacDONALD
. . . Slowed 'Em Up

The game after a cautious first six minutes, developed into a fast-hard-checking battle with Referee Art Casterton handing out ten penalties, six going to the Hawks. MacDonald and Horton staged a mild rhubarb in the third period that got them majors but the rest were minors.

Score Three in 77 Seconds

The Petes took quick advantage of a penalty to Peter Jones after seven minutes of play and E. Leonard drove home Dugans pass from a ganging attack to open the scoring. The Hawks defence failed to solve the speedy Petes passing plays and in less than a minute later Mortimer made it two and on the second play the same player beat Lefort for the third goal in 77 seconds. Garvey raced in two minutes later and scored to make the count 4-0 and it looked like a rout for the homesters.

The four-goal setback apparently stung the Hawks into action. They piled in to the attack and Jones and Moher scored two quick goals to cut the margin.

The crowd of 892 stood on its feet as the Hawks flew to the assault and Bastedo and Goyer scored to tie the count. Semark drove the puck from ten feet outside the Petes blueline to score behind a surprised Harding and give the Hawks the lead for the first time. They dominated the play and MacDonald scored the fourth Hawk marker with seconds to go.

Nine in a Row

Vern Goyer lead the Hawks to victory in the third period with the team's seventh goal in a row a minute after play started. The Petes drove in desperately and Lefort made some neat saves but the flying Hawks were not to be denied. They checked hard and swept back the offensive. Barrett teamed with Moher and Reeves for their eighth goal and Wardhaugh scored the final counter with a minute to go.

The entire Hawk team played heads-up hockey after the first ten minutes, with twelve of them adding to their point scores. Vern Goyer led the snipers with two goals with Jones, Moher, MacDonald, Bastedo, Semark, Barrett and Wardhaugh getting the rest.

Mortimer paced the Petes snipers with a pair with E. Leonard and Garvey getting the other two.

The teams:

Peterborough: Goal, Harding; defence, Wade, Horton; centre, Dugan; wings, Fryia, Mason; subs, G. Leonard, West, Mortimer, Jopling, E. Leonard, Collins, Garvey, Floyd.

Jackie Robinson Fielding Champ

(By The Canadian Press)

Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn and Willard Marshall of Boston fielded their way into the record books with brilliant 1951 performances at second base and in the outfield, according to official figures released yesterday.

Robinson shattered a National League fielding mark for second basemen when he posted a .992 percentage while playing 150 games. The 32-year-old defensive flash committed a record of only seven errors while accepting 832 chances. The old standard of .987 was set by Al (Red) Schoendienst of St. Louis. Oddly enough, the Cardinal second sacker last season also bettered that figure with a .990 mark.

Rangers Defeat Canadiens 4-2 To Create Fifth-Place Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

If the unpredictable New York Rangers can't get into the National Hockey League first division themselves they can at least spoil some of the other teams' chances of improving themselves.

Last night they were at it again, dropping Montreal Canadiens 4-2 in New York and pulling into a fifth-place deadlock with Chicago Black Hawks while holding the Habs in fourth spot, a point behind third-place Boston Bruins.

Tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, the Blueshirts took a 3-1 second session lead before going on to their 4-2 final.

Only one penalty was handed out in the exceptionally clean game. It went to the Rangers' Eddie Kullman in the first period.

Defenceman Allan Stanley celebrated his appointment as the Blues' captain with his team's first goal while Hi Buller, Wally Hergesheimer and Don Raleigh tallied the others. Bernie Geoffrion and Bert Olmstead scored the Montreal markers.

Rangers' beetle-browed goalie, Chuck Rayner, played a brilliant game in the New York nets despite an injured knee suffered in Saturday night's clash in Toronto. A goal-mouth scramble in that game twisted his leg and aggravated an old injury.

Rayner stopped 27 pucks while Montreal's Gerry McNeil batted aside 25 shots.

Two games are scheduled in the N. H. L. tonight. Second place Toronto goes to Montreal while Detroit will play in Chicago.

Seventeen-Year-Old Jockey to Join Saddle Greats With 300 Victories

Miami, Fla., Dec. 20 (AP) — At an age when most youngsters are worrying about their high school grades, 17-year-old Charlie Burr stands on the threshold of a spot reserved for notables of the saddle.

Charlie is about to become the seventh jockey in racing history to ride 300 or more winners in a single season. He booted home No. 299 at Tropical Park yesterday.

Charlie is slender, black-haired lad whose experience with horses dates back to the day his father and grandmother gave him a pony for his sixth birthday.

Won First Race

His first introduction to thoroughbred racing after four years on the quarter-horse circuits was at Fairmount Park near St. Louis Sept. 9, 1950. Sixteen hours after he arrived at the track he booted home his first mount. He won on his second mount, too, and finished second on the third.

After a turn at Beulah Park, he came to Florida for the season and was the leading apprentice rider at Hialeah last winter.

Charlie who now weighs 100 pounds—two pounds more than last year—has broad shoulders and big, powerful hands—a decided asset. He has no trouble keeping his weight around 100 pounds and eats anything he wants, preferably steaks.

Like all riders who started on quarter horses, Charlie knows that getting away from the gate is the first step to victory and most of his winners are front runners. Once up there, he exhibits a good judgment of pace, racing his mount along and always keeping him in contention—if the horse has it.

When Burr rides his 300th winner, which may come today or tomorrow at Tropical Park, he will join such jockeys as Joe Culmone and Willie Shoemaker, each of whom rode 388 last year; Walter Miller and Johnny Longden, the former coal [illegible] from Taber, Alta., who accomplished the 300-feat twice; Vincent Powers and Jack Westrope.

Sport in Brief

At Cranston, R.I., it cost Mrs. Dianne Bennett, wife of Harvey Bennett goalie on the Providence Reds hockey team, $1 and costs yesterday for having vented her feelings Oct. 23, 1949, by slapping a fan in the face.

Donald Kollett was given the $1 and costs verdict in court yesterday in his suit against Mrs. Bennett. Mrs. Bennett didn't deny slapping Kollett on the stairs at the Rhode Island auditorium but testified that he shoved her and had been making derogatory remarks about her husband and the team.

Sports writers voting in the 16th annual poll by the Turf and Sports Digest agreed with racing secretaries that Counterpoint was the best thoroughbred this year, but dissented when it came to the handicap leader. The sports writers favored Calumet Farm's Citation over Christopher Chenery's Hill Prince, choice of 19 secretaries, among horses four years and older. Citation got 239 points to Hill Prince's 157.

Results of the poll of 145 sports writers announced by the racing magazine yesterday at Baltimore resulted in another clear cut decision for C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint as tops for 1951. He got 121 of the 145 votes as best horse of the year. Citation's eight votes were next highest.

Peter A. Tyrell, president of the Philadelphia Arena, announced last night that Philadelphia Falcons of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League would be disbanded effective next Saturday night because of poor attendance. The Falcon's are in last place in the Eastern League's southern division.

Allan Stanley, 25-year-old defenceman, last night was named captain of the New York Rangers. Stanley, a native of Timmins, who has played four seasons in the National Hockey League with New York, succeeds Frank Eddolls, currently on loan from the Rangers to Saskatoon Quakers of the Pacific Coast League as playing coach.

At New York, Chico Vejar, 20-year-old college freshman from Stamford, Conn., survived an eight count knockdown in the second round last night to win a unanimous 10-round decision over Carmine Fiore of Brooklyn at St. Nicholas Arena. Each weighed 143 1-2.

It was the 36th win in 37 pro starts for Vejar.

In one of the preliminaries Bobby Barclay, 136 1-2, New York, and Benny Uhl, 136 of St. Catharines, fought a four round draw.

At Miami Beach, Fla., Armand Savoie, 135 1-2, Montreal, last night scored a unanimous decision over Sonny Luciano, 136, of Miami, in the main 10-round event at the auditorium. A crowd of 2,592 paid a gross gate of $7,010.

Johnny Riddle, 46, veteran of 24 years in baseball, has been signed as the second member of manager Eddie Stanky's coaching staff for 1952, Fred Saigh announced yesterday at St. Louis. The first coach to be signed up under Stanky was the veteran Terry Moore.

The remainder of the horse racing meeting at Charlestown W. Va., scheduled to end Saturday after a spill in the first race. None of the jockeys or horses was hurt badly. Snow and cold weather forced the cancellation after Tuesday's card was postponed. Nine inches of snow fell Friday and Tuesday and the temperature has dropped to three degrees below.

Montreal Canadiens, leaders of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, will play three exhibition games against teams of the Manitoba loop here Christmas week, officials announced yesterday at Winnipeg. The Habs will take on St. Boniface Canadians, Christmas Day and the league leading Winnipeg Monarchs Dec. 27. Date of a game against Winnipeg Black Hawks will be announced later.

At St. Louis, President Bill Veeck of the St. Louis Browns said Tuesday night he has turned down a $390,000 offer for his pitching ace, Ned Garver. He did not say who made the offer, but repeated that the star righthander would not be peddled for cash.

Two Montrealers, Mariette Laframboise and Jean Dussault, gained top 1951 ranking among women and men junior tennis players in Canada, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association announced last night at Montreal.

Marlies, Bilts Cling to Lead With Close Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association's four top junior A clubs clashed in a double header at Maple Leaf Gardens last night, but the 10-team standings remained unchanged when the shooting was over.

Toronto Marlboros edged fourth place Galt Black Hawks 3-1 in the second game to hold on to their league lead while Guelph Biltmores downed Toronto St. Michael's 5-4 in the opener. Guelph clung to second place while St. Mike's remain in third.

In the only other junior A game last night, Barrie Flyers moved into fifth place with a 9-3 win over the cellar-dwelling Windsor Spitfires.

Stratford Indians continued their winning ways atop the OHA Senior A League with a 5-1 victory over Brantford Redmen. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen dumped Owen Sound Mercurys 6-2 in Kitchener and Hamilton Tigers continued their jinx over last place Sarnia Sailors with a 4-1 win.

Up north, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds dropped Sudbury Miners 6-1 at the Sault to lengthen their Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A lead.

Ken Laufman fired three goals to pace Guelph to their win over St. Mike's while Dean Prentice and Harry Howell added the others. Bill Dineen, with two, and Paul Knox and Jim Logan tallied for the Toronto College squad.

Ron Ingram, Wally Maxwell and Danny Poland gave Marlies their three goals before Jim McBurney scored Galt's lone goal.

The resurgent Calgary club walloped Vancouver 15-9 with George Agar leading the way with four goals. In the only other league game, Saskatoon Quakers defeated Edmonton Flyers 4-2 to move within one point of the second place Seattle Ironmen.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—There hasn't been much talk about that new, 25,000 seat Madison Square Garden since attendance at the old one reached the stage where 7,000 looks like a good crowd...So in place of an expensive new building, this department offers a few mechanical devices for the old joint which might improve performances and bring the customers back...All we need is some bright lad to build the gadgets.

Inventors Wanted

First, a robot boxing matchmaker which would pair up the guys who ought to fight each other and at the same time slap gags on their managers...The self-winding clock watcher, so the lads wouldn't waste time peeking at the gallery clock to time their flurries..the radio-TV commentator blotter-out, to silence the guy who shouts "he lands a terrific right hook" when you see the boxer pawing futilely with his left...For hockey, the puck magnet, to be turned on at appropriate intervals to draw Ranger players and the puck toward the goal. Strong rubber bands should be attached to players to pull them away again in case they forget to back-check.

The electronic dump detector for basketball: it would spot actual and potential fixers and fixees at the doors and lower a pair of steel arms to throw the bums out...It might leave the joint empty...

Extended Coverage

The combined amateur detector and word record breaker would work at either indoor or outdoor track meets. This device would scan expense accounts and each time a runner who hadn't padded anything reached the finish line it would release a trip-hammer to break a record. Rust-proofing would be needed because the gadget wouldn't move often... Moving into other sports, the Paul Brown static creator for pro football to give the other coaches a chance by jamming Brown's communications with his quarterbacks...The combined Sam Snead stopper and money mine detector for golf. It would locate Sammy's fabled buried cans full of cash and distribute them among the other golfers...The bench escalator for Chuck Dressen to dump the Dodgers off the bench and convey them to the clubhouse. Also needed a two-way radio so Chuck could talk to his players.

Racing Revenue Hits Record Mark Of $99,927,432

New York, Dec. 20—(AP)—Attendance and betting at United States thoroughbred racing tracks boomed during the 1951 season, and revenue from the 24 states where pari-mutuel wagering is legal hit an all-time peak of $99,927,423.

The annual Associated Press survey of the sport of kings today showed the states had received 17.63 per cent more revenue than in 1950 when the total from running tracks was $84,909,382.

Betting was up 17.01 per cent from last year, while attendance gained 6.01 per cent, in unofficial reports from the racing commissions. Betting was up in every one of the 24 states, as compared with 1950.

How much the government crackdown on bookmaking affected the increased business at the tracks still was uncertain, but several states including New York,, Louisiana ,and New Jersey reported this definitely was a factor.

This year, 24,302,020 customers shoved $1,629,239,777 through the mutuel windows, compared with $1,392,032,740 a year ago. Attendance in 1950 was 22,924,517. This was racing's third best year. Tops was 1946, with $1,830,287,455. In 1947 it was $1,680,815,373.

New York, which reported a 12-per-cent increase in both betting and revenue to the state, again topped the list of states. A total of $345,292,092 was wagered at Belmont Park, Saratoga, Jamaica and Aqueduct. Attendance for the season was 4,836,315, and the state received $22,853,393.

Hornets Extend Top Slot Lead, Tie Mohawks 3-3

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets further increased their lead atop the western division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night, playing to a 3-3 deadlock, with Cincinnati Mohawks who rallied three times to gain the tie.

In the eastern division, Buffalo Bisons gained ground on the front-running Hershey Bears, downing St. Louis Flyers 8-5. In the only other game played, Syracuse Warriors shaded Cleveland Barons 3-2.

At Pittsburgh Andy Barbe, Phil Maloney and Johnny McLellan scored the Hornets goals. The Cincinnati marksmen were Gus Schwartz, Mickey Mackintosh and Jean-Paul Denis. It was the third tie of the season for the Hornets.

At Buffalo Eddie Mazur and Les Hickey paced the winners with two goals each. Don Ashbeen, Sid McNabney, Lorne Davis and Paul Masnick also tallied for Buffalo. Jackie Hamilton scored twice for Flyers with Max Quackenbush, Cliff Simpson and Eric Pogue scoring once.

At Syracuse, the Warriors ran their winning string to seven straight games with Sam Casanato scoring the winning goal with only 2:25 left to play.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If you live to be 100, it is probably because you never learned to play bridge. Or vice versa. But if you want to learn bridge, the easiest way is the Horse Sense method. Practise with this deal:—

NORTH
♠8 4
♥7 5 2
♦K J
♣A K 10 9 8 7

WEST
♠A Q 9 7
♥A Q 10 8 4
♦8 4
♣Q J

EAST
♠K J 10 3
♥J 9
♦10 7
♣6 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♠6 5 2
♥K 6 3
♦A Q 9 6 5 3 2
♣None

To make an opening bid of one you need five tricks (aces, kings, queens and short cards), four of which are high cards (aces, kings and queens), two of which are sure tricks, A, KQ, AK.)

If you held the south hand, you would not have an opening bid. You have more than five tricks. But you are lacking a high card and a sure trick. So you should pass.

If south passed and you held the west hand, you would have an opening bid of one heart. You have all you need in all items and a little more in some. With suits of different lengths, first bid the longer.

If west starts with an opening bid of one heart and you are north you are a defending bidder. A defensive bid in a new suit without a jump is known as a simple overcall.

To make a simple overcall of one in a suit you need five tricks, two high cards, one sure trick, and a biddable suit. You have exactly five tricks, three high cards, two sure tricks, a re-biddable club suit.

You have what it takes for a simple overcall of one club and a little extra in some items. But the suit you have to bid is clubs. To bid clubs after hearts, you must bid two clubs.

That would not be a simple overcall bid of one. It would be a bid of two. And to make a simple overcall of two needs six tricks instead of five. So you have not a true bid in that spot.

Why do you need six tricks to bid two? Because you do not expect more than two tricks in partner's hand. A contract of two calls for eight tricks. If partner has but two, you need the other six.

Oh, you would take a chance? Who's stopping you?

BANCROFT

Minor Hockey Organized In North Hastings

Bancroft—(Special)— Kenneth Foreacre of Coe Hill was elected president of the North Hastings Minor Hockey Association at the annual meeting of that body in Coe Hill on Monday night. Other officers elected were past president — Clarence McCormack of Apsley, vice president William Houle, Apsley and secretary-treas. John Bleecker of Bancroft. Executive members will be the managers of teams.

At the meeting Apsley and Coe Hill announced that they would have midget teams this year and that they would combine their outfits to enter the OMHA playdowns. The midget picture from Bancroft was not clarified as there were not any representatives from NHHS at the meeting. In 1950-51 midget hockey was scratched in this district and the cup has had a rest since it was won by the local high school in the spring of 1950.

Final arrangements could not be made regarding the bantam league as the annual question of the number of teams per place was not settled. Last season Bancroft, (pop. 1400) iced one team and Apsley, (pop. 300) and Coe Hill, (pop. 300) maintain that Bancroft should have more than one entry. When the next league meeting is held in Bancroft, on January 3rd, this hardy perennial will be settled.

Indians' Roth Leads Senior Scoring Race

Toronto, Dec. 20 (CP)—When Stratford Indians took to the warpath a few weeks ago and vaulted in front of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, much of their success stemmed from the work of Mickey Roth.

Roth, piercing netminders' armor with amazing regularity, has opened an 11-point lead at the top of the scoring race.

Top scorer in the O.H.A. major series last season, Roth leads in goals scored with 29. And he's second to linemate Dinny Flanagan in the assist department with 31, Flanagan has 34.

Flanagan and burly Ed Stankiewicz of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are tied for second place in total scoring, each with 49 points.

Statistics released yesterday show that Bruce Dale has been another factor in Indians' surge. Dale leads the regular netminders with an average of 3.24.

END OF CAREER

Dorothy Dix, known to millions of readers who followed her syndicated columns for half a century, died at her New Orleans home after an illness of many months. Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 20 — (AP) — "Say, George, that permanent looks simply grand on you. Where did you get it done?"

"Why, thank you, Herbert. I got it at Pierre's Salon for men. You should try him; he's grand for facials."

That's the sort of conversation you'd be hearing on the bus, if Patricia Stenz had her way. She's advocating beauty parlors for men.

"Why shouldn't men look their best?" inquired Miss Stenz. "Why should women have a monopoly on making an effort to improve their appearance? There are simple things that men could do to make themselves look better, and still not detract from their manliness.

"For instance, many men have eyebrows and eylashes that are too light to be seen. The application of a little eyebrow pencil would give their faces a great deal of character and handsomeness. I do it for many of them who come to my shop, and they don't mind it at all."

Get Out the Beauty Kit

She added that many men would be more attractive with a different shade of hair. In fact, some of them have been using the home-dye kits now on the market. On the sly, of course.

Miss Stenz said that a prime function of male beauty parlors would be to show men how to style their hair. She argued that improper styling was a major cause of baldness.

Miss Stenz sighed that male beauty parlors might be impractical, since men wouldn't want to be seen entering them. Then how about harking back to prohibition days? There could be 'Beauty-Easies.'

Just knock twice and ask for Francois.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Friday, December 21

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Indications today stress need for caution in all transactions, business deals, handing machinery, tools, etc. Cleverness, smartness in management and planning are favored.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Not too helpful now, especially for new and unfamiliar matters but as day advances, it becomes more auspicious. Very good rays tomorrow. Work, plan with this in mind. Don't fret.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Finish matters hanging fire and clear desk or bench of odds and ends and thus have a clear road on which to start new things, and for Monday. Prepare festivities for Christmas.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Moon says don't heed any tendency to moodiness; be on guard and snap out of any undue capriciousness. You are always capable, likeable when in a pleasant, hopeful state of mind.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—If not essential now, don't uncork a lot of new tasks or ideas—better they wait till later to be done properly. Complete unfinished business, urgent matters. Fairly good day.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)— A good day to tie up loose ends, check over past week's work and prepare for Christmas and the holiday season. Think of our men and women in other lands, send them cheer.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Don't try to force issues or undertake more than you can reasonably handle. Familiar matters should run smoothly and preparations for the holiday bring happiness.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Old Mars "on warpath" today suggests even pace and temper, self-control, that you may be your brightest, in most reasonable functioning form. Efficiency requires calmness, accuracy.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Extra care, please, dealing with lawyers, judges, bankers, speculators. Know what you are doing if investing money or other assets. Day okay if you manage it rightly. Be consistent.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Deal carefully with superiors, eders. Don't seek favors that could wait another time. Day urges quiet, calm, but pleasant active planning and execution of duties. P. M. rays improve.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Uranus aspect stresses mindful restraint, avoidance of restless changes, pointless moves. Day holds much good for you who are consistent but don't strain. Keep your good humor tops.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Neither all stimulating good nor unfavorable tendencies. Scan quickly and early day's program; tend to urgent tasks first. This will give time for earned relaxation later. Smile!

YOU BORN TODAY: Are a Sagittarius - Capricorn Cuspal, born when the Sun was leaving the first Sign, entering the latter. Usually this sector has unusual talent and some forceful characteristics from both signs. Sensibly curtail overwork, and, though inclined to be interested in many subjects, you should the more faithfully follow one or two as a life's work. You have great energy, diversified talents, can make a real success of your chosen field. Be amenable to suggestions, advice from authoritative sources. Pray daily.

Birthdate: Albert Payson Terhune, author; Benj. Disraeli, statesman, novelist.

Sergeant Brasseur Explains Terrain in Korea Creates Difficulties for Artillerymen

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 20 (CP) — The toughest part of being a gunner in Korea, said the sergeant, is the country.

His crew emphatically agreed.

It was a fine December afternoon, about 50 degrees in the sun but underfoot the ground was gummy mud. Doldrums of the "twilight war" had settled along the front and only the occasional harassing round boomed forth from the 25-pounders of the 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

Leon Brasseur of Penetanguishene, a 29-year-old jack-of-many-trades with itchy feet, was sergeant of the nearby gun. It was in a valley cupped between two 200-foot hills and they, he said, represented the greatest difficulty a gunner faces here.

Gun Sites Scarce

It's really hard to find a good place to site your gun," he said—"too many hills."

"You can't have too big a hill ahead of you or close to you, otherwise you can't shoot over them. And the other trouble is the roads. They're small, some of them, just tracks, and can't take traffic."

Apart from hills and roads, the sergeant said, "I figured it would be a helluva lot worse than it's been."

"I guess it's because the Chinese haven't been using their air power that we haven't been catching anything at all in the way of 'incoming mail.'

"They've got artillery, we know, but the infantry seems to be catching it all. The other night we had our first dose since coming to Korea—10 rounds."

Indicates Craters

The sergeant indicated a series of craters 75 yards from the gun position—"they're the first we've had near any of our gun positions since coming to Korea."

Gunner Robert Marshall of Charlottetown P.E.I., one of Brasseur's detachment, said "it was much worse than this in Italy," where he was an artillery signaller in the Second World War.

Also in agreement was Bdr. Bill Masson of Montreal and Toronto, former manager of the "Skipper Restaurant" on Toronto's Queen's Quay.

Masson, who went to Canada from Scotland in 1948 after long service in the British army added: "I much preferred the Middle East to Korea—you could get away to civilization once in a while."

Brasseur, who even in Canada liked to roam around, echoed, "perhaps Korea wouldn't be so bad if occasionally you could get away from it."

Would Pull Out

The sergeant, who has risen from gunner to his present rank in the theatre, has decided ideas about Korea.

A gunner during the Second World War, he worked after his discharge in a Penetanguishene shoe factory, as a fireman on a Great Lakes steamer, a logger at Heron Bay, Ont., and on a railway extra gang.

"If I had my way about it I wouldn't stay here a day longer. It's just the country and its people that get me.

"Not tha we have much association wit hthe people—"

Johnnie, the Korean houseboy batting for the detachment, interrupted with a rousing "aw, shut up!"

"He picks up English pretty well," nodded Brasseur, ignoring Johnnie's obvious disagreement with the tenor of his remarks.

"I really feel they don't want us here at all. I've no particular reason for saying that. It's just the way I feel."

Heaviest Shoots

He figured that his gun's heaviest shoots were in recent weeks when the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment blocked massed Chinese assaults on their positions, supported by RCHA gunfire.

"One night when the Vandoos were attacked we fired 400 rounds, it was really cold, and I remember slipping and sliding on the hard ground. Every time we had a break we'd dash back and drag more ammunition out of the pits."

That was just hard work, he summed up. "In terms of campaigning, it's not such a tough go."

Others besides Masson and Marshall on Brasseur's crew are gunners James Ferris of Wolfville, N.S., Roy Spencer of Glace Bay, N.S., Alfred Coe of Montreal, Ted Lane of Regina, and hes Nalewajek of Montreal, who was on leave in Tokyo that afternoon.

Four Indicted For Perjury Following Probe

Washington, Dec. 20— (AP) — E. Merl Young, husband of the former White House stenographer with a $9,450 mink coat, was indicted for perjury yesterday in the aftermath of a sensational investigation of influence peddling at the reconstruction finance corporation.

Three others who figured prominently in the Senate probe were also indicted for perjury.

Young, a one-time $25 a week messenger who rose swifty to affluence and enjoyed an entree to the White House was accused of lying under oath twice to the Senate investigators and once to the grand jury.

Herschel Young, his brother, was charged with five counts of perjury, all involving his grand jury testimony.

Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a Washington lawyer with a successful record of obtaining R.F.C. loans for his clients, was indicted on six counts. The charges involved statements he made at the Senate hearing.

Robert W. Dudley was charged with one count of lying under oath before the grand jury. Dudley has been associated with Rosenbaum's law firm.

When it was disclosed that Merl Young's wife, Lauretta, had received the mink, Rosenbaum testified that he paid for the luxurious garment in a transaction which both he and Young described as a loan. The Senators' interest in the coat turned on the question of whether it was a payment to Young for his influence on R.F.C. lending. Young and Rosenbaum denied it was.

Set up Fund

Campbellford, Ont., Dec. 20 — (CP)—Citizens of Campbellford have set up an emergency fund to aid seven families who lost all their possessions in yesterday's $150,000 fire which destroyed a downtown business block.

Earlier the damage was estimated at 200,000.

Representatives of churches, service clubs and women's organizations last night gathered at a meeting called by the town council. They formed the fund which will accept donations up until Christmas eve. More than $700 has already been pledged.

The 16 persons made homeless have been housed with friends and relatives.

Cardiff, Wales (CP) — James Wynne drove his car 200 miles to appear in court here, pleading guilty to a charge of causing an obstruction in a local street. He was then fined four shillings.

Maryland, England (CP) — Charles Crane, a real estate agent visiting one of his houses in this Essex county town, found thieves had taken all the fittings. Crape decided to tear the house down.

Be Proud of Your Headache

(From Business Week)

It takes brains to have a headache. And the more you use the brain, the worse it aches.

Businessmen have long suspected this fact. Headaches rank just after the common cold as a cause of lost time and slowed motion in offices. Now medicine has caught up to the conclusion. Its findings have just been published in the "Annals of Allergy," by Dr. Henry D. Ogden, who bossed a three year research program at Louisiana State University's medical college.

According to Dr. Ogden's statistics, education shapes up as a dangerous factor in the splitting head division. Among college trained people 77.2 per cent reported that they had headaches. Among people with minimal education, the figure plummeted to 38.8 per cent. Among the suffering classes, medical school student heads ached at a rate of 85 per cent, executives at 77.3 per cent, professional groups at 70.8 per cent. Housewives outheadached clerical workers by 69.8 per cent to 68.2 per cent.

Farmers, the research indicated, do little thinking, for their heads ached to the modest tune of 50 per cent. Laborers had practically no headaches at all.

If you have a brain and it hurts, here's a crumb of consolation: The older you get, the less it will ache. And you might try getting married. Unwed heads hurt at a 70.8 per cent clip; for the married, it is only 61.1 per cent.

Causes of headaches proved hard to isolate, apart from the possession and use of brains Generally, though, headaches and nasal conditions due to allergies tend to be coupled in the running. Thus headaches have a high incidence among cold sufferers and among people with a family history of allergy.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

While I waited, I examined the knife. Peering closely at the shoulder of the blade I made out the flowing Spanish inscription, M. Villalobos, Toledo, MCDLIV. Mangus Colorado indeed! Cortez himself may have sheathed this slender cuchillo.

My fingers tightened on the aged haft. A strong warmth flooded up my knife arm, seeming to come in pulsing waves from the strange, foreign blade lying so lightly in my right hand

"Cetan Mani!"

Hearing my name called, I glanced up. Star was seated upon a raised dais across the ring, behind the row of lancers. Around her squatted and stood the medicine men of the tribe. As my eyes found her she raised a slender arm toward me, calling out softly, "Courage!"

Smiling in return, I noticed she was carrying something in her other arm. I perceived it was the sacred buffalo-hide doll owned by every holy woman.

But now I had a figure more compelling than a rawhide doll to examine. Slatemeyer was entering the ring.

All the man promised by the way his buckskins drew over the curve of thigh and bicep now stood revealed, for he was naked as I, save for a loose doeskin breech-clout and bare-bladed knife.

There is no use describing that physique. It was faultless. A big, powerful, highly-trained fighting man with shoulder, arm, belly, back and leg muscling to shame the best imitation. Looking across at his easy slouching stance I met his pale gaze and knew he in his turn was "looking across the ring."

I had been with the Sioux seven months, the last two spent in loincloth moccasins, even though light snow still lay on the ground. The spring sun, glaring off the light snows, had burned me a dirty mahogany. I was no pygmy in structure.

Slatemeyer may well have been totting up some of these points as he watched me, but if he was, his expression gave no indication he found the sum total impressive.

Crazy Horse entered the ring and with no delay issued his brief statement. Any fighter stepping out of the ring would be lanced. The fight could end only with the death of one or both fighters. The survivor held full right to all the status of the vanquished. If Cetan Mani won he had his life. If the white dog won he had his life and his freedom.

He looked at both of us carefully, stepped quickly to the edge of the circle, called out sharply.

"Hopo! Let's go!" The feral voice of the Sioux leader released Slatemeyer almost before I heard it. He struck across the ring at me with a speed I could not follow.

I could see the sweeping arc of the broad bowie knife coming from the ground up. There was no time to go forward or to either side. I leaped and fell backward, expecting to feel the bite of the steel in my vitals as I went over. Instead I felt a searing through my right buttock.

A soldier can go into any action knowing before he may get killed, even that he probably shall. Yet not until the enemy wounds him personally does he seem actually to get the idea that death is involved.

Well, Slatemeyer had blooded me and I was beginning to fight.

It may seem peculiar that one who claims the combat record I do could be so unstrung as was I in the opening of the duel.

The full answer lay in the knives. A knife is not the white man's weapon. He fears it, hating those who use it. The white who will brace any man with a gun grows weak at the sight of bare steel.

I remembered a cute little thing Yellow Bird had taught me. Dropping both hands to my sides I moved straight in. My opponent stopped, crouching. As I came up to him he struck at me, his right arm throwing the knife at my left side. I moved to my right, shifting the blade to my left hand in the movement, whipping it at him in a backstroke as his body rushed by me.

Classically, this manoeuvre is designed to make your enemy miss, his miss carrying him past you, his left side grazing your right. Without the shift of knife hands you would also be out of position, but with it you are ready as his body passes yours to strike to the rear into the kidneys. The danger lies in making the shift of hands too soon, allowing him to twist away from it.

I made the shift beautifully but was so jarred by the impact of his body brushing past mine that the backstroke was deflected. The blade found not the soft kidney fat but the hard fibre of the great back muscle.

Slatemeyer turned in mid-air as the steel entered his back, freeing himself of the blade. But I felt it go deep.

Arm-locked, we struggled, his weight and strength driving me backward. I felt a sudden weakening of his left hand.

The severed back muscle was giving away.

Exerting my whole force I threw my knife arm up and forward. The thin blade found his left side, low down, just above the hip joint and again I knew it had gone deep..

In staggering back and away he nearly tore the knife from my numbed grasp.

I could not follow Slatemeyer, for neither of my hands had survived the pressures of his strength with enough force left to grip the blade properly. I could not risk losing the knife by striking at him, even though his left arm dangled uselessly.

Then as I watched him approaching I saw something. A little thing, the kind upon which battles turn. Just before he began to move in, the fingers on his left hand, the "useless" one, flexed, unflexed, then flexed again.

My mind jumped. Either that dangling arm had been a ruse all along or he had just gotten back use of it. At any rate he was playing it as a ruse now, not knowing I was on to the game.

When we were six feet apart Slatemeyer erupted into motion. I saw his jaw muscles twitch a hair for an instant before he leaped and I released my whole power toward one objective, his "uesless" left arm.

The knife came sliding from his good right hand into his bad left hand a light-flash before my teeth buried themselves in the bones of his left wrist. The heavy bowie knife thudded into the dust beneath us. The guess had paid off. He had tried the Sioux hand-shift. Had I not seen the fingers of that left hand flex themselves before his leap, the broad blade would have been resting in my vitals, not dust.

We went rolling over and over, he snarling and grunting as he sought crazily for my knife arm.

Surging upward I managed to bridge my body enough to free my left arm. Flinging this upward I seized the knife from my pinioned right just before Slatemeyer's groping paw closed over it.

My head was buried on his right shoulder, so that I looked over it and down his back. Looping the left arm clear, around behind his head, I struck, burying the blade hilt-deep in the muscles of his right shoulder, ripping downward and deeply from shoulder point to elbow.

The white bone showed sickeningly as I felt the arm go limp, allowing me to roll free.

I think he was in shock those last moments, for he was not a man but a white-faced, slavering staring-eyed brute. Giant that he was, he had taken three gaping wounds, of which either of the first two would have killed an ordinary man. He had been suffering intense pain and heavy blood loss for 10 minutes.

I stepped inside his blind groping then, whipping the lean length of the Toledo blade into him as I came in. A shudder ran over the big body and, as I stepped quickly away from it, it slid slowly to its knees in the dust.

I stood over him, motionless, while a thousand Oglala joined me in the payment of a respect of silence to this strange, fearless man. Not a Sioux there but knew he had seen a warrior die.

Then I did what I had to do, working quickly with Yellow Bird's thin knife.

Coming to my feet I faced the Sioux. A slow swelling "T'gun! H'kun!" swept their ranks, dying away into the night as I stepped across the circle toward Star.

STORY GAL TWO

"Receive my offering," I intoned harshly, and snapping the upraised knife blade downward and forward, I flung Slatemeyer's heart into the centre of the fire before her.

Coming to her feet, Star held me with her eyes. In a voice hardly loud enough to carry above the crackling flames she replied, "and receive you, my offering."

With the words she raised the sacred buffalo-hide doll high above her head and flung it after the heart of the whiskey runner into the fire. The little doll burned brightly for a moment and was gone. There was a long gasp from the watching Sioux, then silence.

Star stood defiantly, her eyes sweeping the ranks of her tribespeople. A shadow fell between her and me. Crazy Horse stood before us.

Allies Demand Reds Account for 1,000 Missing Prisoners

Offer to Give up Islands To Hasten an Armistice

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 21 (AP) —The Allies today demanded the reds account for more than 1,000 American and other missing United Nations soldiers and "an unbelievable number" of South Koreans not listed as prisoners-of-war.

The demand was made in a stiffly worded note. It was handed to a red liaison officer in Panmonjom shortly after Gen. Mathew B. Ridgway appealed to communist chieftains to open the gates of North Korean prison camps to the International Red Cross.

These developments came as the Allies offered to give up all islands off the North Korean coast in a move to hasten agreement on an armistice.

Wide Discrepancies

The Allied note demanded a complete explanation of "wide discrepancies" between the number of Allied prisoners listed by the communists and the number the Allies assert the reds may hold.

The note did not reject the red list of 11,559 prisoners.

The U.N. note today said "more than 1,000 of the U.N. personnel named as prisoners" in earlier broadcasts by communist radios "are missing from the roster submitted" Tuesday.

Other new names have been used since then on red China's official Peiping radio. They were broadcast with Christmas greetings from Allied prisoners to the folks at home.

Battle With Ice In Detroit River Over for Tankers

Windsor, Dec. 21 (CP) —The last chapter of a three-day battle with Lake Erie ice was written during the night. This morning the fight was over.

Early today the tug Atomic tied up at Amherstburg, 13 miles south of Windsor near the mouth of the Detroit River. The 7,500 ton steel carrier James Watt anchored nearby to wait for daylight and cleared visibility.

The Watt will steam up the Detroit River through the open Amherstburg channel and head for her berth at Detroit. She had been jammed for more than 36 hours in an ice-pack east of the Detroit River mouth before the Atomic appeared to break the floes.

Since Monday, eight tankers and a coal boat have been stalled for varying periods in floating packs of ice on Lake Erie. They were the tankers Meteor, Blue Comet, Panoil, L. S. Wescoat, Boston Socony, Imperial Midland, Imperial Leduc and Imperial Windsor and the coal boat Fred L. Hewitt.

All spent periods up to 48 hours while the floating ice groaned and gritted at their hulls before they were able to smash themselves free. Shipping officials said the ice—almost unprecedented at this time of year—may extend 25 feet below the surface of the lake.

This morning, the Canadian Amherstburg channel of the Detroit River was clear although the Livingstone channel on the United States side was plugged with ice. Ships were using the Canadian channel without difficulty.

Grunewald Will Not Testify Before Committee

Washington, Dec. 21—(AP) — Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald refused today to testify to a House of Representatives committee investigating U.S. government tax scandals. He said he was acting on his lawyer's advice.

A mysterious figure in Washington, Grunewald was called to tell whether he knows anything about an alleged $500,000 shakedown in a tax-fixing case.

His lawyer, William P. Maloney, insisted Grunewald should not give testimony except in a public hearing. Committee members wanted to talk with Grunewald behind closed doors first.

Today the doors were thrown open. Grunewald still wouldn't talk.

Maloney was threatened with removal from the committee room when he insisted on his right to make a statement which he said was intended to "lay the basis" for a Grunewald's refusal to testify.

Finally the committee permitted Grunewald to read the statement. It said Grunewald was just out of the hospital and "still is a very sick man."

"As his counsel I here and now publicly advise and direct him not to answer any questions which may be asked of him today by this committee or its counsel."

Grunewald's name popped up in earlier digging by a house ways and means committee into the "shakedown" story told by Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago lawyer.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP) —Synopsis: The storm and southern Ontario are just about finished. While snowflurries or occasional rain will occur in southern sections most of today, the contribution will be relatively small.

Temperatures range from the low 30s in the south to below zero in the north this morning and this northerly air will encompass the entire province Saturday, with temperatures in southern regions 15 to 20 degrees colder than today.

Air Crews Strike For Higher Wages

Paris, Dec. 21—(Reuters)— A strike of all Air France air crews grounded all the company's aircraft here today.

No far eastern flights were scheduled, but the strikers promised to take these flights out to avoid damaging the French effort against the Indo-China communists.

All 35 flights scheduled for today were cancelled.

The strike was called last night in support of air crew claims for a 66-per-cent wage increase and better working conditions.

Air France said it will try to find seats in other companies' planes for all passengers booked with them today.

The company was not negotiating with the union of mercantile aviation officers when the strike was called, company spokesman said.

A union official said the stoppage will last until midnight, Jan. 9 unless agreement is reached before then.

47 Survive Crash

A large non-scheduled airliner en route from California to Trenton, N.J., made a spectacular forced landing in a farmer's field near Cobourg, Ont., in a blinding snowstorm Thursday morning. With one engine dead and its radio out of commission, the big plane came down so gently not one of the 44 passengers or crew of three suffered even bruises. Here is the plane following the landing. —(CP Photo.)

SNOW TROUBLES HARASS MOST OF SOUTH ONT.

Up to Eight Inches Snow Fell Thursday

A mixture of wintry weather, most of it bad, continues to give snow shovellers and snow-plow operators plenty to do almost everywhere in Canada.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed wet snow sweeping southern Ontario, a risk of freezing rain in the Ottawa and Montreal areas, a new storm from the vicinity of New York expected to rake the Atlantic provinces and a cold spell continuing to grip northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Upwards of eight inches of fresh wet snow fell over the southern half of Ontario yesterday and last night. Mild air flowing northward from the Gulf of Mexico was expected to mix some rain with the snow in the extreme south of the province.

However, forecasters said the Toronto area and other sections of southern and southwestern Ontario would probably escape the freezing rain that had been predicted earlier for this afternoon.

In a mid-morning bulletin, forecasters said that the storm in Southern Ontario was on its way out. While snowflurries or occasional rain will occur in southern sections most of today, the amount will be relatively small.

The weekend in southern Ontario should be cold and clear, the weather bureau said.

GIVEN FIVE YEARS

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP)—Joseph Kelly, 31, who a week ago pleaded guilty to three charges of armed robbery today was sentenced to five years in penitentiary.

One of the holdups, last Dec. 4, resulted in the death of Kelly's partner, Thomas Danek, shot and killed by a police constable.

Canadians' Christmas in Korea Will Depend on Progress Of Truce Negotiations

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 21—(CP) — Christmas for Canadians in Korea will depend on progress at Panmunjom.

No armistice will mean business as usual.

An armistice would mean an all-out Christmas, with bang-up meals, unit parties and celebrations prompted by an end to hostilities.

For some soldiers in the front line there will be a special meal. For others in trickier positions that would be too dangerous and they will eat the same canned rations that go up to them every day.

No armistice means no Christmas for the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment and for parts of the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian regiment and the 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

For those men not even the turkey dinner, Christmas cake and plum pudding will go up into the hills.

Men of the 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, however, will spell one another off as usual for meals and have the big meal in their battery mess tents.

There will be no carol or hymn singing in the front line, although services are planned for the rear echelons. For the people back home a short service has been recorded, its attendance representative of most units in the Canadian brigade.

Unit commanding officers and chaplains are, however, planning to visit each of their companies if the "police action" is still on.

Had Midday Dinner

Brigade headquarters entertained 170 men Dec. 15 to a midday Christmas dinner, the men representing all units in the brigade, including British and United States army units under command.

However, even if the men along the front may not be celebrating, they are taking up a brigade-wide collection for gifts for an orphanage adopted in Seoul by the 25th Canadian Field Dressing Station, which is stationed there.

The orphanage has 350 children, and men in the rest of the Brigade are chipping in to buy them clothing, cloth from which to make garments and gifts.

Gifts sent from Canada by Women's Auxiliaries will be sent up to the units Christmas eve. Already in the theatre are shipments from the Auxiliaries of the R.C.R. and the R.C.H.A.

Tactics will govern the observance and unit quartermasters are holding themselves ready to jump in with all it takes if they do get a chance.

Said Lt. Col. Geof Brookes of Shilo Man.: "We don't even need 24 hours' notice to give our men a first-rate Christmas. We can do it in hours if the word comes through to stand down from our guns."

Crippling Weather in Form Of Snow, Rain, Sleet and Cold Hits Areas of United States

Chicago, Dec. 21 — (AP) More crippling weather in the form of snow, rain, sleet and cold hit wide areas of the United States today.

Transportation in hundreds of cities was disrupted after nearly a week of near record snowfalls.

Severe wintry weather has hit areas from the Pacific Northwest to the Atlantic seaboard for a week — and the winter season does not start officially until tomorrow.

The stormy, frigid weather of the last week has caused 249 deaths.

In South Dakota, hit by blizzards almost daily for more than two weeks, Governor Sigurd Anderson considered calling for federal aid.

Chicago, with more snow this season than for a normal winter of four months, was battling a serious transportation problem. Similar situations were reported in a number of midwestern cities.

In Washington, hit by heavy snow and ice, District of Columbia commissioners banned all cars without skid chains or snow tires from operating along 150 miles of heavily-travelled streets.

Two vigorous storm centres were reported by the U. S. Weather Bureau today, one in the vicinity of Chicago, the second near New York. The storms brought rain and snow over wide areas from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast.

Snow fell over much of the Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi valley and in Northern New England.

Rain pelted areas to the south and east, with heavy falls in the middle Atlantic states, and in some sections of the Atlantic seaboard. Southeast winds of nearly 40 miles an hour, with gusts of gale force, were reported in New York City.

Snow in northern New England turned to freezing rain during the early morning and rain was forecast for much of New England during the day.

Freezing rain fell on top of a four-inch fall of fresh snow in southern Maine. Snow continued in northern Maine, where driving conditions are hazardous.

Pilot, Co-Pilot Will Appear Before Board

Cobourg, Dec. 21 (CP) —The pilot and co-pilot of a United States non-scheduled airliner which made a crash-landing on a farmer's field near here Thursday were to appear today before transport department officials in Toronto.

Pilot Bruce Smeltser and co-pilot Edgar O'Leary will appear before a three-man board set up to investigate the crash. None of the 47 persons aboard the two-engined airliner was injured.

O'Leary said his company was charged $13 by a Canada Customs officer for having the passengers' baggage taken from the crash scene to the RCAF station at nearby Trenton.

"We didn't mind paying the $13," O'Leary said, "but it seemed odd we should have been charged anything."

Quebec Business Men Called 'Angels Of the Poor' Assist at Christmas Time

Quebec, Dec. 21 — (CP) —A group of Quebec business men are sometimes called "angels of the poor." They're "les guignoleux" and they collect at Christmas time more than $15,000 a year for the city's needy carrying out a tradition that's as old as French Canada.

Quebec city's commercial travellers have carried on the tradition of "la guignolee" for 50 years, putting aside private affairs and going out with long, mended woollen stockings in hand to beg money, or for what have you.

"La guignolee" is one of the many expressions which Quebeckers have preserved from ancient times. It apparently derives its name from the French verb "guigner" which means to pester someone for something or, to beg.

Wearing the long red tuque of the ancient coureurs des bois and a "ceinturon" (knitted belt) over their overcoats, the business men visit plants, offices and private homes.

The "guignoleux" costumes always make Quebeckers laugh and the old folksongs they sing while collecting reminds men and women of their childhood days. It makes them dig a little deeper in their pockets.

"La guignolee, la guignoloche
"Mettez du lard dedans nos poches."

Put a little pork in our pockets, says the song.

In old times, farmers gave whole hogs. Today, money is the usual gift and the commercial travellers like it that way.

J. H. Boulett, who has been secretary of "La Guignolee" for 30 years says he remembers when the "guignoleux" spent hours quartering meat.

This year costumed men invaded the Quebec legislature and legislative business waited while the members of the province house placed their offerings in the traditional stockings. The Guignoleux sang their little song.

Last year $16,500 was collected and distributed to every Roman Catholic parish in the city, to protestant charitable organizations and the Ladies Hebrew Aid.

In line with the Quebec tradition that presents come at New Year's, not at Christmas, the commercial travellers sent out the money Dec. 23 in time for "Le Jour de L'an"—New Year's Day.

CANADIAN CHIDES VISHINSKY FOR MAKING CHARGES

Assembly Reduces US Share of U.N. Costs

Paris, Dec. 21 — (CP) — R. M. MacDonell, Canadian delegate to the United Nations Political Committee, today told Andrei Vishinsky, Russian Foreign Minister, people who live in glass houses should not throw stones.

Vishinsky has accused the United States of promoting subversive activity in iron curtain countries. He introduced a resolution Tuesday for a U. N. call to the United States to repeal its Mutual Security Act which, among other things, provides aid for refugees from communist dominated countries.

MacDonnel said Canada knew all about subversive activities and recalled the Royal Commission investigation in 1946 which uncovered a communist - inspired spy ring in Ottawa. The ring was Moscow-directed, he said.

Ridicules Red Charges

"Does anyone seriously think that there has been any basic change in this practice in the past few years?" MacDonell asked.

He said Russian charges of American espionage were "too much for my delegation's sense of proportion." Canada will vote against the Russian resolution against the Mutual Security Act," he said.

Meanwhile, the General Assembly today slightly reduced the United States share of U.N. costs but turned down an American appeal for an even larger cut.

The U.S. delegation had energetically campaigned in committee sessions to get its share cut to one third of the U.N. total, but could attract the support of only tiny Nicaragua for this proposal. Instead, the budget committee recommended and the assembly approved today, a decrease from 38.92 percent to 36.90 percent.

$48 Million Budget

The assembly approved a budget of $48,096,780 for 1952. This leaves the United States assessment at $17,747,711, if the U.S. suggestion had been adopted, the sum would have been $16,032,260.

U.S. Department Says Rats Taking Feed Out of Mouths of Livestock

Washington, Dec. 21 — (AP)— The United States government is urging farmers to declare an aggressive war against rats.

The rural rodent, says the agriculture department, is eating enough grain to create a serious food production problem.

The agency estimates that rats alone eat about 250,000,000 bushels of grain annually in the U.S. that is nearly 10 per cent of the quantity farmers feed annually to produce the American supply of pork, beef, poultry and eggs.

The department also estimates that between 300,000,000 and 600,000,000 bushels of grain are lost each year to insects.

Complete prevention of losses by rodents and insects, the department says, "would save more than enough grain to eliminate the prospective grain deficits during the next few years and greatly reduce efforts needed otherwise to increase production."

While conceding that complete elimination of such losses is not possible, the department says farmers can utilize rat and insect control measures which would greatly reduce these losses.

The plea for a rat extermination campaign is made at a time when the U. S. is using grains—particularly livestock feed grains — at a greater rate than they are being produced.

Unless the situation is changed, farmers will have to cut down on livestock and poultry production. Such a development would mean less meat and eggs for city consumers — and possibly higher prices.

The department says feed losses caused by rodents, insects, wastage or poor handling are particularly damaging now that current production isn't sufficient to feed the ever increasing livestock population.

The department recommends use of poisons, such as the relatively new drug "warfarin," fumigants and traps to clean out rats.

Commons Defeats P-C Move to Kill Govt. Price Bill

Happier Mood Reigns After Thursday's Fiery Debates

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP) —The home-for-Christmas drive of the Commons gathered steam today as the Chamber quickly disposed of a Progressive Conservative move to kill the government's anti-price fixing legislation.

It received a second non-confidence motion tied to the legislation from M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, but he told the Chamber that he would not push it to a recorded, time-consuming vote.

In a conciliatory mood after yesterday's angry debates, the chamber met this morning to hear Prime Minister St. Laurent say he hopes it won't be necessary for him to carry out his threat to apply closure to the lingering debate on resale price maintenance legislation.

Put Up Two Speakers

The Progressive Conservatives fighting the bill on the ground it will harm small business, then put up only two speakers—Gordon Churchill (Winnipeg South Centre) and J. A. Charlton (Brant-Wentworth)— before allowing their motion to shelve the legislation to go to a vote.

The House striving to complete its work by tonight or possibly tomorrow defeated the Progressive Conservative motion by a count of 82 to 22. It was introduced four days ago by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

Liberal, C.C.F. and Social Credit members voted against it.

Asks Bill be Shelved

Mr. Coldwell then moved a motion that the bill be shelved and consideration be given to the regulation of price maintenance by a public board.

Mr. Coldwell suggested that at the next session the government consider legislation to outlaw "loss leaders"—the practice of selling goods below cost to attract trade and eliminate competition—to avert price wars.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that the government considers the criminal code gives the independent retailer protection. However it was the government's intention to watch developments and take any action necessary to protect the retailer.

The Chamber, thrown into turbulent scenes yesterday when the Prime Minister accepted a Progressive Conservative challenge to cut off the contentious prices debate, was in a lighter, more friendly mood when it assembled today.

House Moving Slowly

The Prime Minister said he hoped the House moving slowly towards a Christmas adjournment, would have had two more days of debate on the anti-price-fixing bill—yesterday and today. But yesterday was lost to a day-long debate on procedure.

The government, he said, did not want to be "arbitrary" and he also would not proceed immediately with a motion calling on it to return to work Thursday, Dec. 27, if its business is not completed by tonight.

He had hoped, in giving notice of that motion, that it would enable members to get away early for Christmas.

Setting the pace for the mood of the House, the Prime Minister cocked a figurative eye at the stormy elements both within the Chamber and outside yesterday, and commented with a grin that the "blustery weather" of yesterday seemed to have "subsided".

The Chamber chuckled.

There were some prospects of a wind-up of the government's legislative program and prorogation tonight after a day of angered and often uproarious debate in the Commons yesterday that closed without progress in the legislative program.

However, that depended on dedevelopments in tackling the remaining business before the Commons.

Meanwhile, the House had before it an announcement from Prime Minister St. Laurent that, unless business is not concluded today, he will apply the rarely-used closure rule that shuts off debate on a question by government decree.

Closure is applied so seldom that veteran members of the Commons and officials of the House have only dim memories of when it was applied last. There is also some conflict on how it would be applied.

In the current move of the government to get a vote on its resale-price bill, which has been under a three-day attack by the Progressive Conservatives, debate could be shut off under the closure motion by 2 a.m., Friday, Dec. 28.

Chief Alleges Child Forcibly Taken from Home

Parry Sound, Ont., Dec. 21 — (CP) — Police Chief George W. Doolittle said today he seeks a young father and four other men who allegedly entered a Parry Sound home and took away a three-year-old girl.

No charges yet have been laid but Crown Attorney A. G. Burbidge said the Crown will lay a charge when the men are found. He did not say what the charge would be.

Chief Doolittle identified the father as Ken Hillman of New Toronto, a Toronto suburb. He said the five men entered the home of Hillman's estranged wife Wednesday night and took the child, Victoria, one of two Hillman children, from her bed, clad in pyjamas.

The chief said the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McPherson, were held while the men ransacked the house.

Another New High

Washington, Dec. 21. (CP)—The cost of living in the United States rose to another new high during November, chiefly as the result of higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables and miscellaneous goods and services.

The cost-of-living index rose .8 per cent to the new peak of 188.6 per cent of the 1935-39 base level. As a result, approximately 1,250,000 railroad workers will get a pay boost of four cents an hour. Their wage scales are tied to the rise and fall of the index.

Traffic Throughout District Delayed by Heavy Snowfall; Many Belleville Cars Halted

For the second time within two days "Old Man Winter" showed his teeth in the Bay of Quinte district. Thursday afternoon and evening eight inches of snow was piled on the seven inches received earlier in the week.

Throughout the afternoon and all night, traffic on the main highway arteries was slowed down to a crawl as drifting snow blocked vision and made highway conditions treacherous. Highway plows had a hard time keeping ahead of the drifting snow.

In the immediate Belleville area, county roads were for the most part plowed out and school buses were able to get through to the city, although some of the drivers reported "tough going."

Deliveries on Schedule

Also all the main roads in Prince Edward were reported to have been plowed and milk deliveries to the city arrived nearly on schedule. The same was true for Sidney township, with milk deliveries arriving only a little late.

In the city the going was particularly tough off the main travelled streets and many motorists found their cars bogged down in the deep snow.

But the city public works department again did a fine job in clearing away snow. Plows kept the bus routes clear as well as could be expected and again last night a small army of workers descended on the business section and carted the heavy snow away.

Additional Trucks Used

The public works department reported a dozen or more additional trucks had been hired as well as 26 extra snow shovellers to augment the regular staff. All of the 50 regular employees of the department were directed to snow removal operations, either snowplowing of roads or walks, or shovelling.

Periodically heavy transports had difficulty in negotiating Murney Hill on Bridge Street as falling snow covered up sand and wheels lost traction. They remained stuck on the grade until sanding operations were resumed.

Today bus companies and transport firms reported highway conditions slippery as a light freezing rain covered the surface.

However, the big buses were getting through only a few minutes late, but highway transports from Toronto were reported up to four hours late. One heavily laden transport took eight hours on the Toronto-Belleville run which is usually done in 4½ hours.

"It is just that we are not pushing our equipment too hard" one operator said.

Senator Fraser arrived in Peterborough directly from his office in Ottawa.

Veteran Jess Baker, one of the town's permanent firemen who makes fishing and hunting his favorite pastime reported today that the fish did not bite last night.

Rev. K. Daniel Addresses Y's Men

"Anyone who would be flippantly happy at this Christmas season was a fool" was the opening thought of a message presented to the Y's Men's Club at the YMCA last night by Rev. Keith Daniel, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church He pointed out that it would be a black Christmas for many people especially those who had men in the armed service. The "Peace on Earth" of which we sing would only be an inner peace for there is no political peace, he continued, and stated that there is a general feeling that we are on the brink of a third world war.

The speaker reminded his audience that people in general are self centred and egotistical and each generation starts afresh with this status. The same feelings extended to nations the world over and were the roots of bitterness and hatred fomenting war.

He explained how there were those who were so devout and so-called religious as to have no part or interest in the social gospel of Christ. Many there were who would not even vote because of religious leanings. On the other hand there were those who were interested and concerned about the social gospel but had no thought or feeling for the spiritual values.

In conclusion referring to service clubs, Mr. Daniels remarked that the church needed the service clubs and that the service clubs needed the church. A united spiritual and social approach was the solution to world problems.

The speaker was introduced by Oscar Wagar and received the thanks of the club through Tom Hutchinson. Linton Read was chairman of the meeting. Club members were accepting the holiday atmosphere, contributing handsomely in fines for service work. Willis Hutchinson reported that the Christmas tree sale was almost complete. The co-operation of citizens who had purchased at the lot was greatly appreciated. It was likely that all trees would be gone by Saturday.

32nd Battery RCA Holds Enjoyable Annual Dinner

Members of the 32nd Battery of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (ALI) may have come second to a sister unit in military perfection, but they doff their hats to none when it comes to a turkey-eating competition.

Major William Burgoyne and his officers and men enjoyed to the full the annual unit dinner held in the main lecture room of the Bridge Street Armouries. The tables were tastefully decorated with holiday attire and the dinner served by Harry Allen left nothing to be desired.

Major Burgoyne formally welcomed his men and special guests among whom were Major Everett Fairman, second-in-command of the regiment who spoke for the commanding officer Lieut. Col. G. C. MacGregor MC., ED who was unable to attend through weather conditions, Major Joe Black, officer commanding the 34th Battery, Major Owen Atkins, Lieut. Mac Smith, 34th and other officers of the regiment.

Good Entertainment

Speeches were brief and to the point. George Fountain, had the "troops" in stitches with his inimitable entertainment while the showing of the film "Trooping the Colour" won a well-deserved ovation. The film is worthy of mention. It shows His Majesty the King, resplendent in the scarlet and gold of a Guards Colonel, inspecting the Brigade of Guards, the Coldstreams, Irish, Welsh and Scots arrayed in their colorful uniforms. The presentation of the colour, the march-past in slow time to the music of the famous Coldstream Guards Band added to the pageantry an impressiveness of the film.

Warrant Officer 2 Scott offered the toast to the battery predicting a victory in the competition for the Wills Progress Cup next year. The cup is at present held by the 34th Sergt. T. Harper added to the general fun with humorous stories, while the troops in a sing-song get-together recalled many army favorite melodies.

Captain Harold Vaughan, second-in-command of the battery, was the busiest man of the evening looking after the needs of the troops and deserves special mention for his efforts in making the dinner the success it was.

Hydro Chairman Appeals For Public Co-operation During Peak Periods

Hydro Electric Power Commissioner of Ontario, Robert H. Saunders, appealed today for more help in saving electricity. Continued winter storm conditions and adverse winds have caused a further reduction in the capacity of hydro's plants.

Cold, dull, stormy days place a sudden additional strain on hydro's power supply. The conditions are particularly bad during the peak period from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., said Mr. Saunders. It is vital that everyone save electricity wherever possible for the next two days.

Hydro Chairman Saunders personally urges everyone to co-operate to the fullest extent by turning out lights, turning off electric ranges and other electrical equipment where possible.

Cutting down on the use of electricity is particulary essential during the peak period from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The tables will be decorated with favors and place cards with the main dining room where the majority will dine, as well as other smaller rooms will be fittingly decorated with holiday trim.

Gaily decorated Christmas trees will give the holiday touch to every sitting room. Each lady and gentleman will receive a gift.

In the afternoon and evening outside entertainment will make the first Christmas in the new county home a memorable one.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP)—Early afternoon stock market prices today showed little change in slow trading.

Papers and constructions led the market with a scattered list of fractional advances. Textiles were firm, while banks, retail stores and miscellaneous industrials held gains and losses in balance. Liquors and refining oils weakened as utilities, steels and foods dipped sharply.

A few lower-priced base metals and western oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 676,000 shares.

In Base Metals, Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay and Quemont slipped in the senior list while Cobalt Lode Normetal, Silver Standard and Steep Rock eased pennies.

Western Oils moved irregularly. Consolidated Cordasun, Devon-Leduc, Kroy Oil, Security Free and Petrol Gas strengthened. Admiral Oil, Calvan Consolidated and Home Oil weakened.

In senior golds Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Lake Shore added fractions. Secondary issues weakened.

Unauthorized Salesmen Active in City

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has had several inquiries during the past week with regard to a telephone solicitor whose statement prompts the solicited to believe that the former is a member of a certain national charitable institution. The Chamber wishes to clarify this thought.

A telephone conversation with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind at Kingston reveals that they have no representative soliciting business in this area and anyone representing himself as being such, is creating a false impression. The Institute also stated that they are the only official organization for the blind in the province of Ontario.

The Chamber of Commerce also advises of a salesman, representing himself as an upholsterer, who demands an advance payment to procure the necessary goods for his work. However, to date, this money has not been used to buy goods to complete the work nor was the money returned upon request.

Young Couple Presented With Purses of Money

Moira.—A large number of neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson on Monday evening in honor of the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Thompson, (nee Jean Reid), and Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong, (nee Dorothy Thompson).

The meeting was called to order with Rev. Morley Clarke as chairman and Mrs. Lorne Mumby at the piano. The singing of several Christmas carols was enjoyed. A reading was given by Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, "Highlights of Married Life".

Mr. Beverly Foster spoke briefly to the couples and they were asked to take seats of honor. Mrs. Wallace McInroy read an address to both couples, then Beverley Foster and Donald McInroy presented each with a purse of money for which each made a suitable reply and invited all to come to visit them in their new homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith spoke a few words of thanks for the gift the friends gave them a few weeks ago as they were not able to be present on account of the storm.

Provincial Police Inspector Appeals for Co-operation Of Motorists Over Holiday

An appeal for the co-operation of all motorists in the Belleville district driving safely and sanely during the Christmas holiday period was made today by Ontario Provincial Police Inspector A. McDougall at Belleville headquarters.

The Provincial Police would greatly appreciate the co-operation of all motorists during the holiday period, Inspector McDougall said, "as in many cases the police cannot do their duty properly without assistance by the public."

Warning against the dangers of drinking while driving, the Inspector assured that being forced to place someone in jail and make it impossible for them to be with their families on Christmas, was the last thing which police wished to do.

Must Use Utmost Care

He pointed out that driving conditions on No. 2 Highway are such that the utmost care and precaution is required at all times without a driver being under the influence of liquor.

"If a motorist wants to drink he would be strongly advised to take either a taxi or a bus", the Inspector urged.

In a twenty-four hour period on December 23rd last year during the last minute rush before the holiday, 18 persons lost their lives in motor accidents in Ontario, while 400 persons were injured.

However, the Belleville district was fortunate in that no serious accident occurred and there were no drunk driving cases during the holiday.

"We appreciated the co-operation of the motoring public last year and hope that this year we can have the same good record in the Belleville area. But the police are helpless without the co-operation of the drivers."

400 Children Entertained By ANAF Veterans

Over 400 children between the ages of one and twelve years were entertained at a Christmas party in the Moose Hall on Thursday afternoon by the city branch of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

The hall was seasonably decorated throughout with appropriate red and green streamers with evergreen boughs and branches adding additional color to the surroundings.

A large, gaily colored Christmas tree adorned the stage at the front of the hall, heavily weighted with gifts, toys and candy from St. Nicholas.

The party lasted from four o'clock until seven and proved to be a huge success with all the boys and girls having a thoroughly enjoyable time. Each child was presented with a gift, according to his age and a large bag of candy and nuts.

Santa Claus made an appearance and thrilled his large entourage throughout his stay. He departed about six o'clock to continue his many visits before Christmas day.

Musical Program

Don Foster emceed a musical program for the kiddies which included piano selections by Mrs. Vera Ryan, cornet solo by twelve-year-old Billy Foster and a musical treat by the Winstanley brothers who played the piano and violin.

Ray Deknight was the chairman of the entertainment committee of Veterans organization and he was assisted by Elmer Scott, Don Foster, Henry Drury and Arthur Galbraith.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada convened at the party and were commended by the entertainment committee for their very capable handling of all the children.

After the singing of "They are Jolly Good Fellows", refreshments were served by the hostess and a social half hour was spent.

Damages Car Sliding Into Rear of Truck

Unable to stop his car in time when the wheels skidded on the slippery roadway, Flying Officer Wilton, of Trenton, damaged his car extensively this morning when he rammed into the rear of a highway sanding truck. The accident took place near the No. 6 R.D. road just east of Trenton. No one was injured.

Two women members of the RCAF at Trenton were bowled off the road into the ditch during the height of last night's storm as they were walking to Trenton. The truck driver blinded by approaching headlights and the falling snow apparently failed to see the two girls at the side of the road until the last moment. Outside of being "ditched" in the snow the girls were said to have suffered little injury.

ONLY VICTIM

Montreal — (CP) — A verdict of accidental death was returned at an inquest in Rigaud on a baby who choked to death while in her mother's arms. The parents and three other children all escaped injury in a highway collision but the mother apparently hugged the baby close to protect it from injury.

POLICE BLOTTER

Slippery street conditions were responsible for several minor motor accidents in the city during the night and today.

Damage amounting to nearly $175 was caused when a car driven by Elmer Rankin, Pinnacle Street, bumped into the rear of a Rawson bus. The bus had stopped at the intersection of William and Dundas to take on passengers and the truck, driven by Rankin skidded into the rear. Damage of about $150 was caused to the front of the truck.

A Foster Ward resident complained that his Christmas tree had disappeared from his verandah. Tracks in the snow leading from the house indicated a boy apparently had been responsible and had taken this method of securing a cheap tree.

REMEMBER YOUR CARRIER

More than once in recent years it has been pointed out that the circulation managers of newspapers are finding it increasingly difficult to find and keep sufficient competent and reliable carrier boys.

This is not merely a headache, temporary or otherwise, for the newspapers and their circulation managers. It suggests that a day may be approaching when there will not only be a scarcity of carrier boys, but a scarcity of former carrier boys.

What will our cities do for good mayors if there is an insufficient supply of former carrier boys among the candidates? Where will the big corporations find suitable presidents and directors?

It is well known that former newspaper carrier boys make the best of mayors, especially for larger communities. It is equally well known that the former newspaper carrier is eminently qualified as the president of a big corporation or as the manager of a large factory.

Christmas is not far away, and there could be no more suitable time than Christmas for the householder to recognize in a tangible way the value of the service that is performed for him by the lad who trudges through the snow to bring the newspaper every evening.

IMMIGRANTS UNEMPLOYED

Mayor Hiram McCallum told the Toronto board of control on Wednesday that he had spoken personally to the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, concerning unemployed immigrants in the Toronto area.

The subject was brought before the Toronto board of control by Controller Leslie Saunders, who said that there were nearly 1,000 unemployed immigrants living in a barracks at Ajax. Mr. Saunders was quoted as saying that, while he did not think Toronto should allow the unemployed immigrants to go hungry, he did not believe that Toronto should be expected to provide for them, either.

Few people would immigrate to any other country if they knew in advance there was to be no employment for them after their arrival. Hence, these unemployed immigrants must have been told, or at least encouraged to assume, that there was plenty of work for them in Canada.

Are these unfortunate people being shipped in large numbers from Europe to Canada without consideration for their own welfare, largely if not entirely for the purpose of glutting the labor market?

Some spokesmen for labor unions, and some people who are in no way connected with labor unions, are likely to suspect that such is the case.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING?

There has been a great deal of noise and confusion lately about the new legislation which is likely to become effective soon banning resale price maintenance. Some people have even been so unkind as to suggest that it may all be a sort of smoke screen to divert the public's attention from other matters.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, (Progressive Conservative, Hamilton West), strikes a note of sanity in the midst of the hullabaloo. Mrs. Fairclough, who is a chartered accountant as well as the only woman member of the House of Commons, says that only 6.3 per cent of the items on the cost-of-living index are price-maintained, that a possible price war in these commodities would be unlikely to reduce their prices by more than five per cent, and that this would mean a reduction of only .31 per cent in the cost-of-living index.

So far as we have been able to learn from the daily reading of half a dozen newspapers, no one has undertaken to dispute the accuracy of Mrs. Fairclough's figures.

CANADA'S ECONOMY CHANGING

During the last thirty years, the number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits in Canada has declined from 37 per cent to 20 per cent of the labor force.

During the same period, the percentage of the working force engaged in manufacturing has increased from 19 per cent to 26 per cent. The percentage engaged in commercial pursuits has increased from 17 per cent to 20 per cent.

These figures indicate clearly the changes that have taken place in Canada's economy within the last two or three decades. The increase in the relative number engaged in manufacturing means that Canada is no longer chiefly engaged in the production of foodstuffs and raw materials.

It is well known that the decline in the volume of manpower required on the farms does not mean that production has declined. On the contrary, it has risen greatly. Increased mechanization and the employment of the latest and most scientific methods have made the Canadian farmer one of the world's most efficient, in terms of production per man-hour.

MORE BANKRUPTCIES

During the first nine months of the current year, 312 Canadian business firms went bankrupt, as compared with 248 during the corresponding nine-month period during the preceding year. Estimated liabilities of the bankrupt companies were estimated at $6,341,000.

CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

We're told the wise men's presents were
Gold and frankincense and myrrh.
Now, should the wise men visit me,
These I'd ask their gifts to be:

Faith and courage, strength to bear
What I must of hurt and care
That, as He so long ago,
In God's favor I might grow.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the sleeping car last night, two neighboring passengers retired at about the same time I did, and I was able to observe a phenomenon.

One of the two was a small man, the other a very big man. The small man created more eruption, bulge, bunch, punch, shake and disturbance, during the process of retiring, than I have ever noticed in a Pullman before. The large man, a good six footer, and built wide and deep, retired behind his green curtain. For a moment or so, the tips of his boots were to be seen protruding out from the bottom hem of the curtain.

The curtain itself remained motionless. It hung stiff and still. Then the boot toes quietly vanished. Not another sign of movement occurred. The big man was in bed.

But the rumpus and disturbance within the small man's berth continued. The curtain billowed out, so that other passengers, moving quietly in the aisle, had to wait until the bulge withdrew.

In the smoking compartment, shortly after, I discussed this matter with the porter.

"Oh, yes. It's natural," explained the porter. "Big men do not struggle when it comes to going to bed in a Pullman. They just cram themselves in and undress the best way they can on the bed. But a little man isn't so cramped. He can move around inside. He can stand down, back of the curtain, and take his pants off. That accounts for all that bulging and fighting you noticed. A small man can sort of half stand up behind the curtain. Then, when he is sitting on the berth, he feels like a boy does in a cave. He moves around, taking off his shirt and his underwear. A small man is like a groundhog in his den. He kind of likes to play around in there.

"But a big man is just penned in. He feels more like Houdini getting out of a straight jacket. Or like a guy playing a trombone in a telephone booth. He works careful and quiet."

MacArthur's Dismissal, Royal Tour Headline Stories

(By The Canadian Press)

Gen. Douglass MacArthur's removal from his Asian command and the royal tour of Princess Elizabeth and her sailor husband were headline-builders that appealed to Canadian editors as the top stories of 1951.

The story of MacArthur's dismissal last April topped a list of six outstanding world newsbreaks picked by telegraph editors across the country in a Canadian Press poll. Among stories of chiefly Canadian interest, the royal visit led. Close to the tour in impact among Canadian stories was this country's decision to build the St. Lawrence seaway alone.

The top selections:

World news: 1. MacArthur dismissal; 2, British election; 3 and 4, the King's operation and the Iranian crisis (tied); 5, Korean truce negotiations; 6, Trouble in Egypt.

Canadian news: 1. Royal tour; 2, All-Canada seaway decision; 3, Canada's fighting record in Korea; 4, Three Rivers Bridge collapse; 5, Massey Report; 6, Ste. Cunegonde fire.

Editors had less trouble picking their outstanding world stories then in choosing tops from the Canadian scene.

Stories, like the MacArthur dismissal, Churchill's return to power, the Iranian and Egyptian crisis, the hope of truce in Korea, and the great human interest of the King's ordeal were unmistakeable in their appeal. Many lists were made up of those six stories, and while many others picked by individual editors, only three came close to the big six. These were the Kansas floods in July, the New Jersey train derailment of last Feb. 6, when 85 were killed, and the Kefauver crime hearings.

In Canada, competition was closer. Tightening of consumer credit in the battle against inflation, Red Hill's death plunge over Niagara Falls, the country's enlarged military program, Kurt Meyer's transfer to Germany, the Ontario election, all were well up. Others mentioned by several editors included the western-grain-growers' battle with weather and storage, the Ford strike this month at Windsor, and the Regina-Ottawa battle for the Grey Cup.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ONE OF GOD'S NOBLEMEN

Someone once asked George Washington Carver, the famous Negro scientist, how he had succeeded in finding so many commercial uses for the peanut. Carver, who was a deeply religious man, replied: "I put a peanut in the palm of my hand and said, 'Mr. Creator, show me what's in this peanut.'" The result was that he discovered several hundred interesting things about the peanut, many of which have had great industrial significance.

Dr. Carver kept a copy of the Bible on his desk and continually referred to it, believing it to be the divinely inspired Word of God. If the old fallacy that scientists are always atheists still needs to be refuted, Dr. Carver was an outstanding refutation of such a statement. He did not believe just in "a higher power"; he believed that this higher power is personal, righteous, loving, and purposeful. To him God works through natural law. He was sure these natural laws constitute God's habitual policy in dealing with the material world.

How humanity needs today the quiet faith of this learned, venerable, beautiful-living man. The lure of great salaries never affected him in the least. He counted it sufficient reward that he serve his generation and his race in deep humility of spirit and by so doing serve his God.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PERSONALITY

How fortunate that each one of us has a separate personality and it is this personality that labels us, no matter where we go or whom we meet. I was reading an interesting article recently about the late Joe Connolly, who for years was head man for the Hearst newspapers. Connolly had a quiet, lovable personality. People around his office brightened up when they came in contact with him. Though he held a position of great responsibility, he was loved and not feared.

I went into an office one day to see a friend. I noted that there seemed a coldness about the entire office, and I asked my friend. I noted that there seemed a coldness about the entire office, and I asked my friend later why this was. He said that everyone hated the man at the head of the concern but nearly everyone loved the work. An unpleasant personality in time can disrupt an entire organization.

In my long business career I have come in contact with thousands of men and women in important positions and I have noted that those who were biggest and most successful were always those with a personality that made you like them instantly. It's something that is born within one. You feel comfortable with a person whose personality vibrates good cheer, hope, and sincerity.

The late Dr. William (Billy) Lyon Phelps, the famous Yale English teacher, had one of the most wonderful personalities of any man I have ever known. For years he did a feature for my concern and he would come into the office like a ray of light. He knew all among us by our first names, and would never leave without giving a word of greeting to everyone, from my office to Jerry in the shipping room.

It is so easy to be pleasant. A pleasant person can wrap up an entire day for any one of us, and tie it with ribbons! There are personalities on the stage so genuine and lovable that each added year only endears them to their admirers. They grow rich rather than old. The kindly, understanding personality inspires every one who comes in contact with it.

Three Indicted By Grand Jury For Smuggling

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 21—(AP)—Three men were indicted by a federal grand jury on smuggling charges yesterday in connection with what authorities called a scheme to bring gold-bearing ore into the United States from Canada.

They were Paul La Motha, 25, of (1139 Valley Way) Niagara Falls, Ont.; Manuel Lester, 30, and David M. Brown, 42, both of New York.

They were arrested between Buffalo and Niagara Falls Dec. 3. Edwin Manning, agent in charge of the U.S. secret service office here, said $30,000 worth of gold ore and raw silver was found in an automobile the men were driving.

Manning said the trio had been under observation for about 18 months. He said they had been bringing the ore in from the Timmins mining area for shipment abroad.

EXERCISE FOR HEART DISEASE

Probably most of the thousands of persons with "weak heart" or a "bad heart" have nothing wrong with the heart that an optimal intake of vitamin B complex won't cure. I'm serious about this, or as serious as I can be about any ailment other than my own bellyache —and, boy, the loafers on the bowling green can tell you I looked and behaved as though I was not long for this world when I had a nagging bellyache several times in the week, before I discovered the magic of ant-acid adsorbent described in booklet So You Have Indigestion?, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A good many people who believe they have heart trouble were frightened long ago, not by the bogey man but by some half—some bumbling doctor who muttered in his beard about a "murmur," and dismissed the victim of the wretched trick without committing himself as to what, if anything, the "murmur" meant. This is one kind of iatrogenic heart disease—the strange word means doctor-produced.

Then there are too many misguided souls who imagine they have heart disease because their pulse misses a beat a few times in the minute. Here, wait a moment, let me see—by jingo, mine misses the 6th, nineteenth and 31st beats. But I still run upstairs two stairs at a time and indulge in other activities which perhaps are not quite dignified for a quack of my pretensions, but I'll know old age has overtaken me when I can no longer roll somersaults and run upstairs.

I do hope you fatheads will not deduce from these remarks that I'm nutty and my teachings are too. However, if that's the way you take it I won't blame you. After all, it's your heart, not mine, that is at stake. If you'd rather play it safe, as you think, and walk on eggs for the next five or ten years, than get back in the game and lead a reasonably active life for twenty or thirty years, why, this is still a free country.

I wish every patient who has had one or more bouts of coronary thrombosis could visit the bowling green one of these sunny afternoons, along with his or her doctor, and watch a number of men at play, men who have had one or two bouts of thrombosis. They have learned by experience the great value of moderate physical activity, enjoyable exercise, as a restorative.

The best remedies for heart disease, in my opinion, are (1) rest, (2) graduated exercise, (3) freedom from groundless fear and (4) an optimal daily intake of vitamin B complex.

Graduated exercise means gradually increasing doses of exercise, beginning with just sitting up in chair for a few minutes a day. Of course the dose of exercise must be carefully prescribed by your doctor, and the effects noted by regular examinations by your doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Relief for Allergy

My 11 year old son has allergy to ragweed and goldenrod and suffers blocked up nose, coughing, sneezing and wheezing throughout the summer and autumn. I am unable to provide for a long series of injections or moving to an area where these plants do not grow. . . (Mrs. T. C.)

Answer—Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet Relief for Allergy.

Well, We Must All Go

One morning about six weeks ago I got out of bed and walked a few feet and fainted without apparent reason. Have had thorough physical examination but doctor could find nothing wrong. But a cardiograph showed I have a murmur . . . (H. W. L.)

Answer—If you really have a murmur the doctor would have heard it—a "cardiograph" does not reveal or show that there is a murmur. Anyway a murmur in itself is insignificant. If the doctor tells you no more than that you had better give him the air and forget the whole thing, or, if you insist on fretting about fainting—something we do all occasionally without apparent reason—consult a doctor who will at least give you an opinion.

Pte. Jacques Morin's Ability At Understanding Chinese Big Asset in Korean War

By Bill BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With The Canadians in Korea, Dec. 21. (CP)—War is so much more fun when you know the enemy's plans.

It's become almost sport —except that the stakes are "for keeps"—in that part of the United Nations front manned by the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment.

For the Vandoos, it turns out, were pretty well informed on what the Chinese in their sector were out to do, how they were getting along—and on ways to frustrate them.

Source of the Vandoos' private information is Pte. Jacques Morin of Montreal and Malbaie, Quebec. He understands Chinese.

Morin doesn't talk. He just listens.

Until Morin began listening in earnest at a Vandoo forward position recently, the noises heard occasionally on the company's radio frequency were so much gibberish.

As batman to Lieut. Pierre Archambault of Montreal, Morin one day was near the set when the Chinese came close.

"Let me hear that," he shouted, "I can understand Chinese."

Preparations Made

The words, he translated, were orders to attack the position ahead (presumably the Vandoos') at 11 o'clock that night. The information was passed back, spread throughout the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, and developments were awaited with skepticism.

That night the enemy attacked the Vandoos in company strength, found them ready and was mercilessly cut up in artillery fire from the 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

Morin, listening on a radio set, heard the attack ordered off. That information had barely reached brigade headquarters before it was followed up by news that the Chinese had shot up two green flares and one red one—the customary signal to fall back.

And that night a new factor entered into the Royal 22nd's fighting. 24-year-old Morin got himself a new job.

Although he had reported on enlisting that he spoke Chinese, and the fact was entered on his documents, no one had done anything about it.

He learned it in Montreal, where he grew up with the children of Foon Lee, owner of the Nanking grill. From the age of five, when he first began playing with the Lee children, he has spoken the language.

He is fast becoming a legend in the battalion.

Typical of the work he is enabling the Vandoos to do is their handling of a recent enemy thrust which wound up with the loss of two Chinese mortars and 18 known casualties.

Intentions Known

Morin reported overhearing the Chinese say their mortars "now were in position at (giving the map reference) and ready to support the patrol." Then he reported hearing the patrol's intentions.

Lt.-Col. Jacques (Jimmie) Dextraze said ,"That gave us a good idea of where they were going and we made our own plans."

When the enemy said they were at a certain point and were sending two men ahead to reconnoitre. Dextraze ordered the Vandoos' mortars under Capt. Charles Forbes of Matane, Que., to fire a salvo. The Chinese reported mortar bombs passing overhead.

Dextraze lowered the range, ordered up another salvo. The Chinese then asked for stretcher-bearers—they'd had four casualties.

"Repeat," ordered Dextraze. "More mortar bombs."

The Chinese: "Don't send the bearers, it's too hot here."

"Repeat", again said Dextraze.

The Chinese: "The patrol leader has just been hit, we would like permission to withdraw." They got it.

Prison Inmates Boast Victory Over U.K. Team

Norfolk, Mass., Dec. 21—(AP) —Two inmates of the Massachusetts state penal colony—one of whom has only a grammar school education—today boasted a victory over a debating team from England's Oxford University.

"Bill" and "Murt"—prison officials decline to reveal their names —were adjudged winners of a debate last night by three judges, former Governor William S. Flynn of Rhode Island, Dean Erwin N. Griswold of the Harvard Law School and Massachusetts Supreme Court Judge Harold P. Williams.

The debate was on the question of free national health service. The Britons took the affirmative and the inmates the negative.

Some 400 inmates listened in the prison auditorium as "Bill" and "Murt" jousted words with Richard Taverne and William Rees-Mogg, the British pair.

He will begin speaking at 4:30 a.m. EST and will talk for about half an hour. His address will be broadcast by the Vatican radio on shortwave metres 50.26, 31.10 and 25.55.

At 5:20 a.m. EST., the first translation of the message — in English—will be broadcast.

Left Money To Pay Fiddlers For Hoe-Down

Villagers, young and old, shook the Grange Hall in a final "Haymakers Jig" last night in memory of the music-loving cheesemaker who died 26 years ago.

The dances are no more because Jairus Hilborn would have been 100 years old yesterday.

Old Jerry left a will when he died at the age of 74, setting aside $30 to pay the fiddlers for an annual hoe-down until his 100th birthday anniversary.

Old-timers say the first dance was held in a blizzard, and last night over 100 townspeople bucked a snowstorm to pay him final honors.

His widow still spry at 78, twirled with her partner, then bowed her head with the rest of the townspeople for a moment of silent remembrance — the only favor Jerry asked in return for his annual party.

Kiwanians Entertain Elderly Folk of Hastings County Home

Thanks to the foresight and generosity, not to mention the Yuletide spirit of President Everett S. Fairman and members of the Kiwanis Club, 36 male residents of the Hastings County Home thoroughly enjoyed a pre-Christmas dinner and entertainment last night.

Stormy weather and treacherous driving hazards prevented Kiwanians from using their cars to transport their guests from the home to the Kiwanis Centre but Kiwanian Fred Rawson stepped into the breach and offered the use of one of his buses for the purpose.

The elderly guests, thoroughly appreciative of the fine hospitality of the service club were back home shortly after ten o'clock.

Served a piping hot dinner prepared by the Kiwanis Queens under the supervision of Mrs. Allen Een Murray, the elderly folk enjoyed, as one put it, "one of the jolliest parties of their lives."

Len Fozard, well-known city magician delighted the guests with a fine performance. Two motion picture films, one the "Trooping of the Color" a military epic in color were shown by Taylor Franklin. Carolyn and Bobbie Franklin, talented children of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin showed clever histrionic ability in a delightful sketch augmented by recitations and other numbers.

Major Herb Honeychurch and the Salvation Army Band played Christmas carols and other music Cola Company for donations of that was thoroughly appreciated by host and guests alike.

President Fairman formally welcomed the club's guests in a brief address. Tributes of appreciation were paid to the Borden and Neilson companies for donations of ice cream; the Coca soft drinks through Aubrey Coe and to the performing artists. Tribute was also paid to Kiwanian Jack Wood, who was in charge of all arrangements for the entertainment.

No Increase In Take-Home Pay Is Recommended

Toronto, Dec. 21 (CP) — A conciliation board yesterday recomended no increase in the take home pay of some 650 consumer gas company employees.

The report signed by Judge D. E. Lewis of Brockville, chairman, and E. Macauley Dillon, Company representative, was handed down yesterday by Deputy Labor Minister J. B. Metzler.

It recommended that 'not less' than 13 cents of the present 25 1-2-cent cost-of-living bonus be incorporated in the basic wage.

Wages currently paid by the company range from a hiring rate of $1.28 1-2, including the cost-of-living bonus, to $1.63 1-2 for a tradesman. The employees work a 42-hour week.

The company said it will accept the report. Officials of Local 161, International Chemical Workers, (AFL-TLC) said their attitude would be determined at a membership meeting.

Dead was Clyde Harrison, 47. His fellow officer, Richard J. Staab, was grazed by a bullet.

The two officers, riding in a patrol car, were fired on as they pulled alongside a car that had made a prohibited left turn.

Women's Institute

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

The recent meeting of Wallbridge Women's Institute was held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Nicols with 15 members and children in attendance. The meeting opened in the usual manner with the president presiding.

Appeals were read for the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and the Christmas seal drive for funds. A generous donation was granted to each.

It was decided to send $10 for a community tractor for the people of Greece to till their soil.

Discussions regarding a contest, and the making of a quilt, resulted in the branch taking part in these projects.

A committee was appointed, the president and the secretary, Vera Lough, to choose a pattern and buy and distribute material for working.

It was decided to cater once at Scott's Sales Barn in the new year.

Mrs. Morley Phillips was appointed to buy material and make a Santa Claus costume for Wallbridge Sunday School, and the proceeds used to buy Christmas decorations for the Stone Church Sunday School.

A humorous story was read by Mrs. E. Phillips "When Pa Puts up the Parlor Stove".

Current Events were given by Mrs. Albert Seeley.

A vote of thanks was expressed to the hostess for opening her home.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and conveners for this month.

The January and February meetings will be held at night.

Baptist Church M.C. Elects New Officers

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Walter Neal, 35 Cedar Street. Twenty-six members were present. In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. Neal, presided and conducted the worship service with which the meeting began. Choosing the Christmas theme, she read a poem, "Follow The Star", which was followed by a Christmas carol, prayer and the reading of the Christmas story from St. Luke's Gospel.

During the brief business period the officers for 1952 were elected as follows: honorary president, Mrs. L. K. Daniel; president, Mrs. W. Neal; vice-president, Miss Ethel Nurse; treasurer, Mrs. A. Wells; secretary, Mrs. C. Campbell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Thompson; link representative, Mrs. A. Berry, White Cross representative, Mrs. J. Madill; reading course representative, Miss A. Lounsberry; "Watch Tower", Mrs. L. K. Daniel; pianist, Mrs. A. Fox; program committee, Mrs. M. Robson, Mrs. C. Hay, Mrs. G. Post, Mrs. H. Hales and Mrs. W. Neal; social committee, Mrs. W. Fayers, Mrs. Pace and Mrs. W. Parker; press reporter, Mrs. R. Orr.

The remainder of the evening was under the direction of the program committee with its chairman, Miss Ethel Nurse, in charge. Several Christmas carols were sung after which Miss Nurse told the story, "Why the Chimes Rang". Some Christmas games were played; then the Circle members gathered round the gaily decorated tree for an exchange of gifts. These gifts were of special interest because the name of each giver revealed, a year long secret, the secret of who had been the missionary sister, the unknown friend and helper all through 1951. "Missionary Sisters" were chosen for 1952.

A happy activity of the evening was the packing of a Christmas gift box for the president, Mrs. C. Campbell, who has been ill in the hospital. The retiring president has capably held her office for five years during which time she has been present at all meetings. Even at this Christmas party her greeting came to the Circle members when she telephoned the Neal home from the hospital.

The serving of refreshments brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

The Very Reverend Dean Garvin gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "Parent-Teacher-Child Relationship". He spoke of the art of being a father, mother or teacher; stressing kindness rather than force and saying that teachers share responsibility with parents as educators of children and children should be ready to accept guidance of all three.

Mrs. Hudon moved a sincere vote of thanks to Dean Garvin for his instructive paper and this was seconded by Mrs. Lally. Dr. Ross also spoke a few words of appreciation for Dean Garvin's kindly interest in the society and his attendance at the meetings.

At this point, Mrs. John Dunlop read an address on behalf of those present and Mr. and Mrs. Reid were presented with many lovely gifts in keeping with the occasion. Both Mr. and Mrs. Reid thanked everyone for their kindness recalling many happenings of the past 50 years.

Impromptu speeches were given by several of those present. Community singing by all brought a happy evening to a close and everyone wished Mr. and Mrs. Reid many more years of married life together.

During the day, Mr. and Mrs. Reid received several callers, a large array of cards and flowers, a telephone call from friends in Montreal, and a wire from Tillsonburg.

Fashion Flashes

INTERESTING indeed was a recent show of blouses designed by leading Parisian houses for adaptation here. An especially new-looking model was in gun-metal blue silk taffeta with crescent sleeves, an asymmetrical front closing and a separate boned and pleated cummerbund to make it look like an overblouse if desired.

A BIT OF CHANGE from the glitter-trimmed hats is indicated by the increasing popularity of the flower-trimmed hat—usually roses on fine felt. A favorite model is a snug profile cap, the profile line pointed up with three lush roses and the eyes covered with a narrow veil.

Christmas Concerts

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints

On Wednesday evening the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints held an enjoyable Christmas party at the IOOF Hall Front Street.

The hall was artistically decorated with red and green streamers and featured a brightly lighted Christmas tree and a Nativity scene. With this cheerful background, an enjoyable program was presented as follows:

A welcome recitation by Terry Willis "Not Too Small"; carol singing by the whole group; a duet "Away in a Manger," by Carol Plunkett and Margaret Rose Lee; a radio play was presented by members of the church, "Christmas Day in the Morning," a second group of carols by all present, a reading by Miss Marion Nevery, "Just 'fore Christmas."

Two sound films were then shown "Merry Christmas," and "Three Little Bruins Make Mischief."

Miss Marion Nevery again delighted the audience with a second reading "Sister's Wedding."

At this time, bells were heard and Santa Claus came bounding in. All joined in singing "Jingle Bells."

The children chatted with old Santa who gave each one a bag of Christmas candies.

Delicious refreshments were served bringing to a close a happy evening.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A silly girl, if there ever was one!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I got married when I was 18 years old, and six months later I got a divorce. After my divorce I had a baby boy, now two years old. When this baby was eight months old I got married again to a very wonderful husband and we have a daughter nine months old. My husband is 31, and we are very happy.

What I want to know is this. My present husband was married before but had no children by his first wife. His mother has some pictures of this first wife and my husband together. She has them packed away in a trunk. Do you think I should tell her I don't want her to have those pictures around the house and to burn them. I told my husband to tell her to burn them but he said no, that his mother would think I was jealous.

My mother tells me to forget the past and just to be happy, that not every girl gets a husband as nice as mine. He never drinks or goes out alone and he's crazy about the children and never asks me about my past. He tells me that his past is dead to him and that he doesn't want me to remind him of it, but I can't forget about those pictures.—H. P.

Dear H.P.:

I never heard of such a silly girl as you. It seems to me you have just everything to be thankful for, and yet here you are it seems, just looking for trouble.

Your mother couldn't be more right when she says that you are a very lucky girl. If you keep harping on such a foolish thing as a picture or two out of a past that your husband wants to forget, the first thing you know you may ruin your own happiness.

Your husband is showing you in every way he can that you are the one he loves. Do you have to go and deliberately make yourself unhappy about someone he once loved but doesn't love anymore?

Let those pictures stay where they are and stop either talking or thinking about them!

She's trying to compete with an older woman

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What on earth does a young fellow in his early twenties see in a much older woman?

There is a fellow I am in love with, but my main problem is that I must compete with a much older female than myself. I know there is no interest for him on her side, for she has as much as said that he is very childish.

What can I do to win him?—Phyllis.

Dear Phyllis:

One sure way that you will alienate instead of win him, will be for you to let him know that you think his interest in this older woman in inappropriate or silly. Young fellows who develop an infatuation for older women usually believe themselves to be very mature for their age, and take any kindliness toward them by the woman in question, as evidence that she thinks so, too. Experts in human relations, however, tell us—what these young men never suspect and would deeply resent if anyone told them—that any such feeling on the part of a young man toward an older woman is motivated by a desire for maternal love and protection.

Sooner or later, no doubt this boy will lose his interest in the woman, or she will give him an unmistakable brush-off, and if you have been sensible and kept out of the thing entirely, he may turn to you then. In any event, you'll be very foolish if you try to talk him out of it now, or do anything but wait patiently and be available when the right moment comes.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I enjoy your column and have used many of your recipes. I would appreciate any help you may be able to give in respect to the following problem: A member of our family is on a salt-free diet, and manages very well with the exception of bread. She finds saltless bread too unpalateable, so I have been making bread using the salt substitute neo-curtasal. The bread seems to be dry and coarse and when baking there seems to be an acid fume rising from the oven which stings the eyes. I use Fleischman's fast-rising yeast. I follow the standard recipe for bread with the exception of the salt substitute. Would the salt substitute have an adverse effect on the yeast?—V.S.

ANSWER:

I am not in a position to comment on the salt substitute you mention. But I do have a recipe for salt free bread. The chemical which gives the illusion of salt flavor is monosodium glutamate. I mention it sometimes under the name of MSG. Its commercial name is Ac-Cent by one company. It is the pure protein of wheat and has a flavor reminiscent of chicken-salt.

SALT FREE BREAD

One-half cake of yeast (1-2 oz.), 1-2 tablespoon sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon vegetable shortening, 3 1-2 cups bread flour, 1 tablespoon butter (if any butter is allowed—if not use 2 tablespoons vegetable shortening for the whole shortening content), 1-2 cup water. Crumble the yeast and add the sugar. Heat the water, milk and shortening together in saucepan and when cooled to lukewarm add yeast and sugar to them and mix well.

Add half of the flour and 1 teaspoon MSG — (see notes above) — and mix well. Add remainder of flour to make a stiff dough. Knead dough until smooth and elastic and squeaky. Place in greased bowl, then spread with melted shortening, cover with towel and let rise in warm place until doubled in size. Knead again until dough squeaks, then shape into loaf. Place in well-greased loaf pan and spread with melted shortening. Let rise again until doubled. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 to 400 deg. Fahr.) 1 hour.

QUESTION:

May we have a good recipe for an ordinary carrot pudding.—Mrs. M. R., Sydenham.

ANSWER:

This was an excellent time to ask for a carrot pudding.

EMEM'S CARROT PUDDING

One-half cup each shortening, brown sugar, cleaned and dried currants, seedless raisins, 1 cup grated raw carrots, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon water, 2 teaspoons shredded or grated lemon rind, 1 1-4 cup sifted cake flour, 1-2 teaspoon each baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, 3-4 teaspoon baking powder. Cream the shortening very well, then cream the sugar into it gradually; next beat in the egg and the water. Add carrot, currants, raisins and lemon rind. Sift together all the remaining dry ingredients and sift over the first mixture and stir in. Turn into a greased large mould or two medium ones, cover and steam 1 hour, then uncover and bake 10 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. This could be steamed in individual custard cups. Only fill large or small moulds 2-3 full.

QUESTION:

Would you please repeat your recipe for making whipped cream from powdered milk? Can skim or whole milk be used equally well.—(No name.)

ANSWER:

Use skim milk powder, adding 1 cup to 1 cup cold water, sprinkling it on top. Beat until thick as marshmallow cream. Only spray-process powdered skim milk will whip. The roller process skim milk will not.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A special holiday courtesy

When you receive an invitation to a party to be given during the holidays, reply at once. Make this your rule-of-courtesy. This prompt reply is particularly important when the number of guests is a consideration. . . .a dinner or luncheon, for example, or a bridge party, or a buffet party.

Hosts of the new home invite friends to "Come-on-a-my-House"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're confused about who gives the housewarming.

When a housewarming is given, should it be given by those who own the new house or do a group of friends get together and plan the housewarming as a surprise to the couple? I believe that we are supposed to give the housewarming, if one is given. However, this does seem to me as if we were asking for gifts. Which is correct?—A.

Generally it is the hosts of the new home who give the housewarming. . . they decide when all is in readiness for relatives and friends to be invited to "Come-on-a-my-house"! However, it is just as correct for a group of friends of the hosts to plan a surprise housewarming. There's no reason to think that guests will feel an obligation to bring a gift to the housewarming. . .there's no obligation, and they do as they wish.

Super-package plan for benefit supper-dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Between the middle and last of January our club would like to give a buffet supper and dance for the benefit of a local charity in which we are deeply interested. Our idea is to give every possible cent we can to the charity . . . and as a starter for this plan the husband of one of our members is giving us the use of a hall which he owns, and we are also being given the services of a four-piece orchestra, for the dancing. The main problem now is the serving of the supper, since there are no cooking facilities in the hall, only an electric plate for making or heating coffee. Have you a suggestion about how we could provide and serve the supper in some novelty way, perhaps with the partner-idea (there will be an approximately equal number of men and women)?—Patricia W.

I went to a party a little while ago where a similar problem was charmingly. . . and financially! . . .solved by having each woman member of the club giving the benefit-dance show her skill in planning and attractively wrapping two suppers (putting her name inside the double-package). To add to the "party-income" there was an auctioning-off of the supper-packages to the men. . . then each man had supper with the woman whose supper-package he won. (If thermos bottles of coffee are not included in the supper-packages, you might appoint several members and their escorts to "perc" the coffee on the electric plate.)

Special problem for widow's name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband was a patient in a mental institution for over a year, and he died there in late November. Should I continue to use "Mrs. Arthur Smith", as I have done during his illness, or should I now use "Mrs. Dorothy Smith"?—Widow.

You should continue to use "Mrs. Arthur Smith". . .this is the correct form of name for a widow.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Every day some hair will fall

Those silky shafts upon your head are not permanent residents. They stay by you from two to six years. If your scalp is in a healthy condition, each one will be replaced by a soft, downy understudy that will develop into a strong structure. It is a natural process, so don't fret yourself if there are a few ravelings in your comb or brush.

The loss of dead hair should be balanced by new growth. There are factors that may interfere with this equilibrium; they include sleeplessness, extreme nervousness, malnutrition, faulty methods of shampooing, strong shampoo mediums that dry out the natural oil and irritate the scalp. Health and vitality contribute to many beauty qualities, especially the complexion, the hair and the fingernails.

In keeping your tresses lustrous and beautiful, your best friend is the hairbrush. It is the opinion of many beauticians, as well as your reporter, that many women haven't a hairbrush to their names and wouldn't use one if they had, fearing it would weaken the precious permanent. This, of course, is nonsense. If a permanent can't survive brushing it wasn't any good in the first place.

When the hair is shedding in excess of normal, it is especially necessary to wield the brush. The bristles cannot dislodge a live hair. Only the dead ones are removed and the sooner they are out the better, so nature can replace them.

It is advisable at such times to stimulate the blood streams of the scalp by means of brisk massage. Every shaft rests in a little cup-like formation called the papilla. In the papilla is the blood supply from which the shaft is nourished.

Hair specialists have faith in massage. It is possible to do this oneself. Spread out fingers and thumbs on the scalp. Keep the fingers stationary. Do circles with the thumbs. Lift and pinch the flesh. If tissues are thin and tight, you are in need of these treatments.

Dry hair that often breaks at the touch of the comb is benefited by applications of oil. Hot mineral oil is best for this purpose, though some specialists use olive oil, thinned with alcohol. It should be applied before the massage, trickled along partings with a medicine dropper or rubbed in with pledgets of cotton. Much time is spent on hair arrangement, not enough on scalp care.

Britain Issues Veiled Threat Of Legal Action

London, Dec. 21—(AP)— Britain issued a veiled threat of legal action today against any firm which may seek to buy oil from the nationalized, Iranian fields.

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, in which the British government has a majority holding, issued its warning in a series of paid advertisments in many of the world's leading newspapers.

They said the Iranian government, "in disregard of its solemn obligations," is attempting to sell crude oil and oil products obtained from the Anglo-Iranian's concessions which the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh took over last summer.

The company's advertisement warned that Anglo-Iranian would take "all such action as may be necessary" against anyone dealing with the nationalized Iranian Oil Company now running Iran's oil industry.

$1,608,000 for Canada

Paris, Dec. 21 (Reuters) — Canada will contribute $1,608,000 to the cost of running the United Nations in 1952.

The amount is contained in the list of member contributions fixed today by the General Assembly.

Canada's share of the $48,000,000 budget is 3.35 percent. Only six other countries will pay more.

The United States' share is the largest—36.9 percent—a figure that was set despite U.S. objections. Britain's share is 10.56 percent, Russia 9.85, France 5.75, Nationalist China 5.75 and India 3.53.

Blizzard Lashes Quebec City

Quebec, Dec. 21 (CP) — A blizzard lashed at Quebec City today, paralyzing transportation, commerce, and the mails.

Seven inches of snow had fallen by morning. Driven by gusts of wind estimated at 40 miles an hour, the snow was still coming down heavily.

Department stores, counting on the last few days of shopping left before Christmas for a buying rush, said the stores were nearly empty of customers.

Thousands of Quebec workers who live in the city's suburbs stayed home. The more daring came into the city riding in trucks, or atop snowplows.

Hundreds walked from the snowed-under suburbs of Ste. Foy, Giffard, Beaport, Quebec-Ouest.

ALL CLEAR

Craik, Sask. — (CP) — Housewives gave a sigh of relief when construction of a new highway stretch was completed. While work was in progress they had to adjust their washdays according to the wind and the amount of dust raised.

SNOW TROUBLES

In northern Ontario, the overnight temperatures were well below zero. There was only a thin covering of snow on the ground.

A weather observer at Malton, near Toronto, asked if he considered this week's pre-Christmas weather out of the ordinary for southern Ontario, said: "It's annual for southern Ontario to have the 25 inches or so of snow we've got recently while many parts of Northern Ontario have two inches or less. The storm track appears to be farther south than usual."

Colder air was forecast for southern Ontario for tonight.

A Chinook wind sent temperatures climbing in Lethbridge in southern Alberta last night. From 31 below early Thursday, the mercury rose to 11 above by nightfall.

Snow troubles continued to harass most eastern cities. In Toronto, where many streets still were piled with snow from Tuesday's storm while last night's fresh snowfall came down, snow removal crews carted off 60,000 tons a night and officials said they were running out of space in which to dump it.

COMMONS

The Prime Minister had given notice earlier that, if business is not cleaned up by this evening, the House will be adjourned then and called back Dec. 27.

Not Close Debate Completely

His closure step would not shut off debate completely on the resale-price bill, cutting it only at the current stage of second reading. After the first application, it would need successive closures—a day between each—to end debate on Commons committee-of-the-whole and third reading processes.

The unexpected closure idea—thrown into the Commons by the Prime Minister at the start of the debate yesterday—did not bulk largely in the day's proceedings. It was, though, in the background of an intricate evolution of strategy and tactics that went on all through the day.

The first move was one of the C.C.F. and Social Credit parties for continuous sessions from the 11 a.m. meetings. The Prime Minister told the House he was allowing his group a free vote on the issue.

They voted in a body—with the Prime Minister abstaining from voting—against two subsequent Progressive Conservative amendments put to the House on the issue of hours.

The three Progressive Conservative amendments, obviously designed to knock down the all-night sitting proposal, brought on two votes of the House. The Liberals, C.C.F. and Social Credit members voted against the Progressive Conservatives. At the end of the day, the proposal for all-night sittings—at least on Thursday—had been manoeuvred out of existence for the time being.

Invoked in 1932

The closure rule last was invoked in 1932 when the former Conservative prime minister, R. B. Bennett, used it to ensure passage of the contentious unemployment legislation.

If it is applied this time—and Mr. St. Laurent has asserted that it will be—it means that the debate on the prices legislation must end by 2 a.m. Friday, Dec. 28.

The rule operates this way:

Once closure is in effect it limits speakers to one speech of 20 minutes each. Then, if the discussion has not ended by 2 a.m. the following day all debate automatically ends and the issue is immediately put to the house.

Last night, as the House rose for dinner with the procedural motions still undecided, Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) crossed the floor to engage in a 25-minute discussion with Mr. St. Laurent, presumably to talk over the wrangle the chamber had worked itself into.

Liberal members who lingered nearby during the talk said no agreement had been reached.

It was reported that Mr. Fleming, a leading Progressive Conservative member, had asked Mr. St. Laurent to get his members to support the proposal to sit only until midnight.

The prime minister was reprted to have countered with a suggestion the official opposition agree to a deadline for completion of the government's legislation.

Many Charges Hurled

In the debate as the wearying hours rolled by, the Progressive Conservatives hurled charges of 'conspiracy', 'collusion,' 'squeeze play', 'suppression' and 'double-talk' at the Liberal party and the minor opposition parties and on more than one occasion found they themselves required by the speaker to withdraw.

Dr. Pierre F. Gauthier (L—Portneuf), reading a book, shouted at one point that G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterborough West) was out of order.

"If the honorable member," Mr. Fraser suggested, "would raise his nose from his book we could see who he was."

His book, Dr. Gauthier reported, is "far more interesting than your speech."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said that the question is whether parliament still is the "supreme authority or whether we are going to have the whip cracked over our heads by the prime minister of Canada."

He said that if the government had used the right procedure the debate never would have developed.

L. E. Cardiff (PC—Huron North), a farmer and secretary-treasurer of the Huron Plowmen's Association for the last 28 years, said he never had belonged to an organization that had "so little regard for time."

Fate of Five Canadians Still Unknown

Astoria, Ore., Dec. 21—(AP)—The fate of 11 persons, including five Canadians missing in a fire which swept a ship anchored in the mouth of the Columbia River, still was not determined today.

One hundred and three others, including 23 passengers and 80 crew members were rescued by the United States coast guard shortly after flames whipped through the mid section of the Danish vessel, Erria, early yesterday.

Crew members said the fire started from sparks from a shorted electric cable, a few minutes later a hold was on fire.

Survivors said crew members ran from cabin to cabin pounding on doors and ordering passengers to lifeboat stations.

Four of the eight lifeboats were lowered, the first with women and children and the others with men. Three boats burned and one was not launched.

The coast guard station, only a mile away, rushed tugs to the scene to pick up the lifeboats.

No Panic Aboard

One survivor, E. L. Blythe of Portland, said "there was no panic, but most of the passengers left their luggage behind. Some of them were in night clothing and overcoats."

The 462-foot boat, bound for Liverpool via New York was towed out of the channel late yesterday. It was listing at a 25-degree angle. Coast guards officials who boarded the Fantail briefly yesterday said there was no sign of life in the smoking red-hot midship section.

The missing were believed trapped there or drowned.

John Ray, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Ray of Vancouver, said he and a number of others were trapped in the ship's lounge by the flames.

The adults shoved him through a porthole but were unable to climb through themselves. He said he saw two of the men's hair catch fire.

The boy was one of two persons injured. He suffered a heel injury. A crew member was knocked unconscious in a fall. Both were released from the hospital after treatment.

The remaining survivors were housed temporarily at a hotel. The Red Cross provided clothing and food.

The replacement value of the ship was set at $3,000,000 by George J. Gmelch, traffic manager for the East Asiatic line, who said that there would be some salvage.

Cave for Kilowatts

Power will flow to Alcan's future aluminum smelter at Kitimat, B.C., from a power plant built inside a man-made cave which stretches a quarter of a mile inside a mountain! What's more, a tunnel will be driven ten miles through the mountain, to carry water to drive the turbines.

The resourcefulness of engineers, the know-how of skilled construction workers, plus a quarter of a billion dollars — all are put to work in both East and West to further increase the supply of aluminum for Canada's own needs, and the demands of other countries. Joseph Stalin Celebrates 72nd Birthday

Moscow, Dec. 21—(AP)—Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili — better known as Generalissimo Joseph Stalin, prime minister of the Soviet Union — became 72 years old today.

Little fanfare marked the day. But the press observed it with announcements of the award of Stalin prizes for "strengthening peace among the peoples."

The six winners announced are Mrs. Monica Felton, housewifely British novelist; Anna Seghers a German novelist; Pietro Nenni, leader of the pro-communist faction of the Italian Socialist party; George Amadu, a Brazilian author; Kuo Mo-Jo, president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, and Ikuo Oyama, Japanese professor.

Prizes to each are a gold medal, 1000,000 rubles (equal to $25,000 at the Russian official exchange rate); and world recognition as favored stalwarts of communism.

No great fuss has been made over Stalin's birthday since he was 70, when there were great celebrations throughout the red world.

Stalin was presumed to be spending his birthday at his desk, in the Kremlin.

(Observers outside the Soviet Union have noted his recent public appearances have been fleeting, and that the Soviet press has been publishing old photos showing him in glowing health instead of newer ones which might show him to be failing. Scraps of information indicate his health is poor. Medical circles indicate he may have some kind of heart disease.)

Since the war he has taken an annual autumn holiday in the warmth of Southern Russia, usually returning by his birthday. No public announcement of a holiday has been made this year, but he is presumed to have taken his annual rest as usual.

WOMAN DIES

Eyes and Ears Of RCAF Begin To Take Shape

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP) — A ground observer corps of 150,000 civilians to supplement the RCAF's early warning radar chain by reporting aircraft seen or heard is beginning to take shape, the air force announced today.

The corps, which is taking as its motto "the eyes and ears of the RCAF" is to become operational in 1952. The first call for civilian volunteers is to be made early in the year.

Decision to form the corps was announced last March. Since then detachments of regular force RCAF personnel have been formed at Halifax, Montreal, North Bay, Ont., and Vancouver. Other detachments are being formed at St. John's, Nfld., Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton.

These detachments will be responsible for running the corps in their areas and also for fitting the smaller groups into the overall national system.

Civilian observers will submit reports on aircraft sighted or heard to filter centres which also are being established across Canada.

When recruiting of civilian observers or filter centre plotters starts, preference will be given men and women not normally qualified for regular military service in wartime.

Forms, pamphlets and manuals will be distributed to all prospective members of the corps. They will provide a detailed description of the organization and of the job of individual members.

RCAF planes will be used in training exercises.

Besides supplementing the RCAF's early warning radar system, the corps is expected to be of some help in reporting "friendly."

Immigrants Say 'Not Getting Enough to Eat'

Ajax, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Four dozen immigrants of the more than 700 encamped at the federal government's buildings here complained today that they are not getting enough to eat.

E. W. Johnson, camp supervisor, said he thought the complaints were merely psychological in origin.

"Anyone with time on his hands is hungry all the time," he said.

"That's the way it is with these folks. It's harder to get jobs for them now than it was a few months ago and they have to wait around the camp all day, sometimes for several weeks."

He said Europeans have different eating habits than Canadians. They eat four meals a day to Canadians' three. By Canadian standards, the meals at the camp are adequate, he said.

Passenger Tells Of 'Miraculous' Feat at Cobourg

Cobourg, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP) —The "miraculous" feat of crash-landing a fully-loaded airliner without shaking up even one of the 47 persons aboard, was just "a crash before breakfast," to Mrs. Eva Childs.

When pilot Bruce L. Smelser landed the Major Air Coach Inc. Commando aircraft in deep snow with both motors dead early Thursday, it was another item in a list of delays that Mrs. Childs had experienced since Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Childs and her husband were booked to leave Burbank, Calif., 3.30 p.m. Monday. After several delays they took off late Tuesday afternoon, landed shortly and left again at midnight. After three more stops the aircraft left Chicago at 3 a.m. Thursday on the last lap for Newark, N.J.

The plane was driven off its course by gale velocity winds, both its motors failed and the ship landed in the 50-acre pasture of farmer Charles Wilson near this town 70 miles east of Toronto.

"Today we had a crash before breakfast," said Mrs. Childs. "I got out of the plane and asked the woman at the farmhouse what state we were in. She told me Canada.

"I didn't think that was possible but on this trip anything is."

Mrs. Ethel L. Kloeber, 75, a passenger in the plane, had to be persuaded to leave. Said she: "I paid my $101.20 for this trip and I wasn't going to end it somewhere in somebody's back field."

The Wilson family took in the unexpected arrivals and fed them coffee until transportation arrived from the RCAF base at Trenton. The passengers rode to Trenton to await the arrival of a chartered bus to carry them on to Newark.

The aircraft, slightly damaged but structurally sound after the landing, may be towed by highway to Trenton, the nearest airfield, for repairs.

HAWKS-LINKS TONIGHT!

All four squads of the junior "B" group swing into action tonight with the Kingston Vics guests of the Hawks here and Peterborough Links trekking to Lindsay where they take on the loop-leading Kinsmen of that town. The Links are out in front by three points over our Hawks who have a game in hand. Kingston is in third slot with six points while the Peterborough squad which suddenly struck its stride to vanquish the Kingston crew 11-4 on Wednesday night are trailing just one point behind the Limestone laddies.

While the Hawks and Kinsmen are well out in front of the rest of the pack, it is no reason to sell them short. Peterborough which lost eight of its ten starts before grabbing a second win, amazed the hometown crowd with its speed and ability on Wednesday and that spells danger for the top-flight crews. Kingston, too, can get some fast hockey off its collective chest and spoil anybody's victory aspirations.

The Hawks should be at full strength tonight and rested after the long haul to Lindsay. They'll need a win tonight to keep pace with the powerful Kinsmen who should, on past performances take care of the Peterborough crew. Coach Doran will have his youngsters primed and set for the game which, incidentally starts at nine o'clock instead of 8.30.

* * *

DOING THEIR BEST!

While it is probably true that the defence of the senior Hawk squad is the weakest in the group, some verbal criticism directed at it of late has not been warranted nor deserved. Without beating around the bush it can frankly be said that the blueline force of the Hawks is not exactly on a par with the more experienced harder-hitting defence corps of the remaining teams, but that does not mean they are weaklings in any sense of the word. As a matter of fact the last two games, Jud Semark and Dougie Bastedo, who in our opinion is the most improved senior player of the season, have been doing yeoman service carrying the brunt of the defence work since Tommy Schreider was incapacitated.

None of the Hawks defence platoon has the finish or tricks of the veteran blueline defenders of the Petes or Eagles, but that does not deteriorate from their aggressiveness, spirit and willingness to battle with all and sundry who come within range. Huck Reeves, rushed into action, has also turned in very creditable performances as has Leo Goyer.

It's all very well for rinkside referees and armchair coaches to sit back and tear the team apart when it loses a tilt, or thrust the blame on the defence when a goal or two is scored. The best defencemen in the world are vulnerable, and if you don't believe that look at some of the scores in the National Hockey League where are gathered the best back-of-the-blueline players the world can produce.

In the last two games against Eagles and Petes the Hawk defence gave its best exhibition of the season. True, it lapsed Wednesday night for a few minutes when the Petes rammed home four goals but don't forget the rest of the squad lapsed with it. There may be better defencemen around than Semark and Bastedo and company, but we doubt if they have any more fighting spirit and willingness to battle for the club than these lads who are carrying a tough load on their shoulders.

And in case the question arises why did the senior Hawks not get defencemen imports, the answer lies in the financial setup between the players and the association. If the Hawks were operating on the same basis as some other teams we know, there would have been imports here. But in these days of financial madness in organized hockey circles, the player demands the cash on the line, and to hell with any co-operative system. And some teams who are operating on a per game basis, if attendance figures are a criterion, will find themselves so far in the financial hole that it will take them a year to dig themselves out.

As is or should be known the Belleville Hockey Association "adopted" the senior club a few days before actual group operation began. Financial cards were laid on the table and with the exception of one or two players, the agreement was satisfactory. As a result, there has been complete harmony within the club all season. The players know the financial score and their performance to date is, or should be plenty of indication that they are out there to win every game within their realm of ability.

The BHA had no "Fort Knox" with which to get out and hire capable but expensive players. It has no sugar daddy it can call upon in a financial emergency. And to forestall the possibility of any financial emergency the player cooperative system was adopted. And they're getting along very nicely, thank you.

A friend of Dan (New York Mirror) Parker who was in Columbus getting the low-down on Bill Veeck's Browns for next year wrote him as follows:— "Veeck is going to play six-foot three, crippled Marty Marion at short, but as Marty's sore back prevents him from reaching for ground balls, Veeck will play the midget between slats' legs. After the first ten-game losing streak, Hornsby will play second base; he is no older than any second baseman he can get from the White or Red Sox. For third he will bring in Whitey Kurowski from Allentown, Penn. By doing this, he will confuse the public as to which is the Cardinal team and both clubs will do good business. If things go wrong and Veeck is in the hole a quarter of million bucks by July 4th, I am sure he can sell the entire outfit to Ted Collins. Kate Smith is singing better than ever and can carry another loser. This stuff is all top secret. Oh yes, Veeck also has six pitchers who can find the plate only at dinner time."

New Rules Affect Claiming Races

Toronto, Dec. 21—(CP) —The Ontario Racing Commission yesterday announced two changes in clauses governing claiming races run on the provinces eight tracks.

First change governed horses which won for $1,250 and were later raised to a higher claiming price with defeats counting against them. By the new regulation, starts will not be registered against the horse until it has dropped back to the original claiming tag of $1,250.

The other change eliminates the rule which barred horses from starting if they did not win before Sept. 15, 1950 for $2,000 and $3,000. So long as a horse won a race for that price during 1951 it will be permitted to start next year.

Toronto Slip Starts Showing; Unable to Fire Single Shot At McNeil in Third Period

(By The Canadian Press)

Mid-season has a bad habit of catching up on the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs. Every year about this time Toronto sports scribes threaten to begin screaming, "What's wrong with the Leafs."

After the 1951 Stanley Cup winners' showing in their last two games, it may not be long before the hue and cry flares forth once again.

The Leafs appear to be running out of gas. But then they could be saving it all for Saturday night's home appearance against Boston Bruins. That's Young Canada Night when goalkeeper Turk Broda will be honored for his 13 years of service with the club.

Sunday night in Chicago Toronto blew a 3-0 lead and bowed 4-3 to the Black Hawks. Last night they let Montreal Canadiens tally three times in the final session for a 4-1 victory.

Wilted in Third

The Leafs were outplayed to such an extent in the final period they failed to get a single shot at Gerry McNeil in the Montreal nets. Leaf goalie Al Rollins handled 12 shots.

In the only other N. H. L. game last night, Detroit Red Wings downed the Black Hawks 6-4 in Chicago to tie an 11-year league record for road competition. The first-place club has played 15 games away from home without a defeat.

The achievement tied Boston Bruins' 15-straight set during the 1940-41 season.

Toronto's Tod Sloan started things off for the Canadiens in the rather dull game at Montreal. The score was tied 1-1 when he received a penalty for holding and grabbed Referee George Gravel for a 10-minute misconduct.

Kelly Gets a Pair

With Sloan off Bernie Geoffrion and Maurice Richard counted for the Habs and a minute later Dick Gamble slapped in the final Montreal goal. Doug Harvey scored the Canadiens' first-period goal. Sloan potted the Leafs' lone marker.

At Chicago, the score was tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and the Detroiters led only 4-3 by the finish of the second session before going on for their 6-4 final.

Red Kelly scored two goals for the winners while Gordie Howe, Tony Leswick, Vic Stasiuk and Alex Delvecchio tallied singletons. Bill Mosienko scored twice for Chicago. Georgie Gee and Jimmy Peters added the others.

The Montreal win placed the Canadiens into third spot one point up on idle Boston while the Leafs remain in second slot, five points in front of the Habs and 11 points behind Detroit.

No games are scheduled for tonight, but two are on the boards tomorrow. Boston plays at Toronto while Chicago goes to Montreal.

Yanks, Aussie Tennis Creates Keen Interest

Sydney, Aus., Dec. 21 (AP)—The average North American, who takes his tennis more or less calmly, could have no comprehension of the fever heat with which the Australians are awaiting next week's Davis Cup challenge round.

It's little if any exaggeration to say the atmosphere is as charged as on the eve of baseball's world series. The fact the tennis classic between the challenging United States team and the Aussies comes smack in the middle of the Christmas season doesn't daunt the Australian fans who for days have been piling into Sydney from cities thousands of miles away. Hotels have been booked solid for months.

The fortunate ones who have seats for all three days of play starting Dec. 26 display them as pridefully as any Grey Cup football tickets.

The scalping price for choice seats promises to be high before play begins Wednesday.

An 11-month job of erecting tiers of temporary stands on three sides of the White City Stadium courts is just completed. The 8,400 extra seats provided bring the stadium capacity to around 15,000.

Estimated cost of the temporary structures is placed at more than $40,000.

Top Footballers Smart in School

New York, Dec. 21 (AP) —An Associated Press survey of all-America football players and leading teams showed today that many gridiron stars are better than average students—contrary to the general idea.

Notable among the headliners who also shine in the classroom are Dick Kazmaier of Princeton, Hank Lauricella of Tennessee, Bill McColl of Stanford, Jim Weatherall of Oklahoma, Joe Palumbo, of Virginia, Dewey McConnell of Wyoming and Bob Ward of Maryland—all first team all-America.

The fact is that the modern collegiate game has become so fast that the slow, dumb type of athlete can't make the grade.

Tennessee's team, top-ranked nationally, averaged 2.52 against a perfect academic score of 4.00 which would be all "A". The university average for all male students was 2.10.

USA., British Golf Brass Deletes Stymie

New York, Dec. 21—(AP) —Golfers with a yen to travel may go anywhere after Jan. 1 without fear of running afoul rules with which they are not familiar.

On that date the uniform code, worked out last May by representatives of the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, go into effect.

The change which undoubtedly will be of major interest to most golfers is the abolition of the stymie. Henceforth when a player believes an opponent's ball to be in line of his putt he may request that it be marked and lifted, no matter what the distance between the two balls.

The new code also will permit use of the smaller British ball in international competitions in the United States, and it standardizes the penalty for out-of-bounds, lost balls and unplayable balls. The penalty will be stroke and distance in all countries, instead of only distance, as provided in Britain the last two years.

Inventive Americans with their trick putters get a break in the new code. The royal and ancient rules insisted that the shaft of a putter must enter at the heel, or end, of the blade, and that the angle of the shaft must point to that spot. The new rule permits the shaft to be fixed at any point on the blade.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Jockey Charlie Burr failed to ride his 300th winner yesterday in six attempts at Miami's Tropical Park, leaving the 17-year-old booter one short of the charmed circle.

The soft-spoken dark-haired lad from Arkansas City, Kans., could finish no better than third aboard Grand Egyptian in the eighth, after his other mounts finished fourth, fifth or sixth in other races on the card.

Burr still has nine racing days left in the year and is almost certain to become the seventh jockey in American turf history to ride 300 or more winners in a year.

At Lethbridge, Alta., secretary-manager J. Harper Parry of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League said yesterday the loop will not revert to the old icing-the-puck rule as voted by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association executive.

The CAHA executive voted 13 to 10 in favor of returning to the old rule which allows the puck to be fired into the end zone from just across the centre line. The new rule put into effect this year in an attempt to eliminate ganging in corners, calls for the puck to be carried or passed over the blue line without reaching the goal line.

Reports are continuing at Saint John, N.B., goalie Phil Hughes of Saint John Beavers may be taken by his owners Chicago Black Hawks of the N.H.L. either for use with the Hawks or their No. 1 farm team, St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League. In this event, according to the reports, Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs might replace Hughes in goal for the Maritime major hockey league club.

Future of Moncton Hawks as an entry in the Maritime major hockey league was still undecided last night after a four-hour session between the team management and members of the city council. The club appealed for civic aid after plans to form a citizens committee to re-finance the team fell through.

The club's players refused to go to Halifax for a scheduled game Thursday because they had not been paid.

Ice hockey in Philadelphia came to an end yesterday when the Philadelphia Falcons announced cancellations of its games last night with the Springfield Indians and Saturday night with the New York Rovers. Earlier, the team announced it is withdrawing from the Eastern Hockey League because of poor attendance. It had planned earlier to go until Saturday night.

Blythe Spartans and Tranmere Rovers will replay their second round football association cup tie on Carlisle United Ground Jan. 3, it was announced yesterday at London. The place was set by the football association after the clubs failed to agree whether the replay should be staged on the Blythe Spartans ground or at a neutral venue.

At San Juan, Puerto Rico, Earl Harrist, veteran righthander recently acquired in the draft by St. Louis Browns, pitched a no-hit, no-run game Wednesday night to give Caguas a 9-0 victory over Mayaguez in the Puerto Rican winter baseball league. It was the first no-hitter in the winter circuit in three years. Harrist pitched two no-hit, no-run games while with Syracuse Chiefs in 1946. His first was April 29 against Buffalo and the second July 29 against Toronto, which equalled a league record.

Ray Robinson To Defend Title For One Dollar

The 15-round bout, for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, was approved yesterday by the California State Athletic Commission.

Both Robinson and promoter William P. Kyne will contribute all earnings except $1 each to the fund.

The fight is expected to gross about $75,000. Kyne said he would sell television rights.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Remember when one of Jack Dempsey's camp followers argued that Gene Tunney couldn't be much of a fighter because "the bum was readin' a book."...There are several parallels between the careers of Tunney and heavyweight Roland Lastarza, who fights Dan Bucceroni in the Garden tonight, and one of them is that both can—and presumably do—read books...Maybe it's an indication of the chances that have taken place in boxing in the last 25 years..The disclosure of Tunney's literary tastes created something of a sensation and incidentally helped transform Gene from a colorless nobody into a celebrated boxing figure ...This week's fight cards in Manhattan includes two collegians—Chico Vejar, New York University freshman who whipped Carmine Fiore Wednesday, and La Starza, who interrupted his studies at City College of New York to go after the heavyweight title...Nobody is startled by their educational attainments.

More Parallels

This isn't an attempt to set up Lastarza as another Tunney, but there are enough similarities to make you think a little...Gene, a shipping clerk, had few advantages as a kid...That probably explains why he came out of the marines with a fierce desire to improve himself mentally and financially...Even after he won the light-heavyweight title he was tabbed as a "colorless" fighter, a fine boxer who was content to protect his chin and win on points..after two bloody battles with Harry Greb he was recognized as a heavyweight who could hit as well as box and his two triumphs over Dempsey proved the point.

Lastarza, son of a Bronx butcher, probably had an easier time as a boy.. but after serving an army hitch in Italy, he decided to take up boxing to finance his studies for a physical education degree....the fans promptly tabbed him as a great prospect if he'd only fight instead of just defending himself. .. Roland showed flashes of "tiger" when he was hurt, but he wasn't hurt often enough to please the cash customers... Lately Lastarza has been noticing that, so he says he's going to be a changed fighter...Maybe we'll see tonight, when he faces Bucceroni, a dangerous puncher but a good target for a sharpshooter.. Maybe there'll be a lot more action in the heavyweight class.

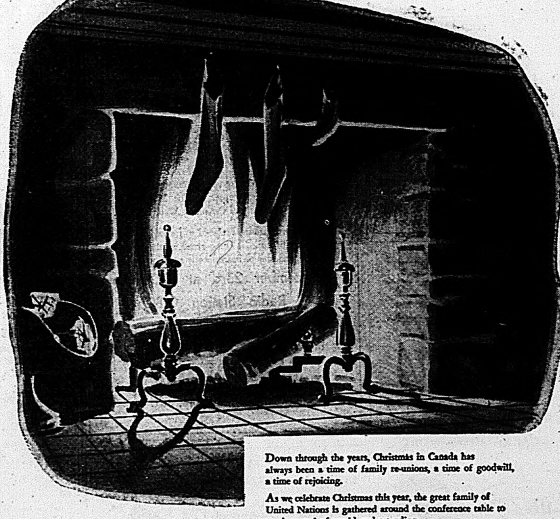
"MAY THE TRUE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS ALWAYS DWELL IN THE HEARTS OF MEN OF ALL NATIONS".



Down through the years, Christmas in Canada has always been a time of family re-unions, a time of goodwill, a time of rejoicing.

As we celebrate Christmas this year, the great family of United Nations is gathered around the conference table to reach a goal of world understanding.

It is our fervent hope that the spirit of our Canadian Christmas — the spirit of peace and goodwill, will prevail. With this in their hearts, nations and peoples will resolve their differences and, once again, rejoice in "peace on earth, goodwill toward men".

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 21. (AP)—Undismayed by the flop of her recent play, Ginger Rogers says she is willing to tackle Broadway again. But next time it'll be different.

Back from New York after the failure of her first play in many years, "Love and Let Love", she isn't bitter about the experience, but she is about the play's author, Louis Verneuil.

"I can't understand how any author would refuse to alter his work until a week before the New York opening, when it was too late," she declared. "It was apparent from the reviews that it needed revisions. But he absolutely refused to touch it . . .

"After all, every playwright is expected to work on the play during the out-of-town openings. That's what the try-out period is for."

Miss Rogers said she wouldn't beadverse to doing another Broadway show. "But next time," she added, "I would have some legal assurance that the author would do whatever rewriting was necessary.

Get Her Money Back

She got back her original investment of $23,000 before the producer decided to close the play. Although hooted by the critics, the show might have turned a profit. It had a healthy advance sale, largely because of the star's personal draw.

"But we lost the advance by coming into New York three weeks late", she explained. "We stayed longer on the road in hopes of getting the show in shape."

Miss Rogers' return to the movies (in "We're Not Married") will be a brief one. As she said:

"Before, I never could settle down to one career and devote all my time to it because I didn't know whether I was going to stick to the movies or try the stage. Now I know where I'm going—to television!"

She soon will start a contract with CBS.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, December 22

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Some unfriendly instances, especi[illegible] that have a speculative angle, or are little known. Concentrate on the real essentials, duties that should be finished soon.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Use your finer talents, intuitive and persistent nature and you can achieve today. Heart interests have important place on agenda, may be means of some new success, or failure.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Have a dash of newness about your work, it may help you put over things against odds that prevail. Magic or bewitchery have no place in solid activities, plan improved effort.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Fine influences for worthy tries. Keep highly confidential matters intrusted to you, and with honesty and dependability your deeds will move before you to pave way for su[illegible]s.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Rough going? This does not mean abdication from your share of gains, it means extra effort, more will to win. Be worthy of the trust all put in you, you'll find a way out of dilemmas.

August 23 to September 23—Virgo—Irritating for some things. Resign self to tolerant calm and immediate home and business affairs. May find others discouraging, but Virgo can survive much practically.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Not too involving that you cannot get some fine results from the usual good effort. May be unexpected credits bestowed deed. Be thankful.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Extra generous vibrations especially favorable to your characteristics and Zodiacal position. Don't misuse by putting effort on unessentials. Get after the facts, too.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Auspicious for all genuine home, business and professional endeavors. Matters pertaining to Church and civic issues freshly favored; also personal affairs, romance, family.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Tabu risky schemes, haphazard gregariousness, useless speculation. Observe the trend of what's successful, what is being favored by sound thinkers, don't buck it.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Takes work, courage and time to pioneer. Be sure you are on a worth while trail. Narrow down demands and concentrate on your ability. You can do things properly and that pays.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) —Excellent aspects for you who are ready and willing to push forward, but also take time to do things right. Heart interests have their place. Be inwardly happy, content.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately buoyant, hopeful; open-minded and self-reliant, with a flair for business, banking, writing and politics, and can make noteworthy success too, when you try hard. Naturally honorable and expect same from others; will express yourself so. May hurt by frankness and brusqueness but usually place a point through your sincerity. You seldom use unnecessary words or miss your mark; could become fine economist, statesman, lawyer. Develop moderation, avoid arguments.

Dear Chief:—
This is my first chance to explain why I am protecting a certain purple-lipped Bum.
He is loaded with plutonium!!
If anything jars him, even slightly, he will blow up, destroying everything around him.
That's why he is called the Atom Bum, and that's why I had to protect him from even my beloved fellow-officers—
I-DIDN'T REALIZE!!—GULP!!—WE UNJUSTLY DISMISSED FOSDICK FROM THE FORCE!!
WE'LL HIRE HIM BACK, OF COURSE. SIMPLY DEDUCTING HIS PAY FOR THE TIME HE WAS DISMISSED!!

GOOD OLD FOSDICK!! HE'LL TAKE THAT WITH A SMILE!!

WHY WE SAY
PEACH

. . . Same as an apple

The Romans didn't think that there was much difference between apples and peaches. They called peaches Persian apples when they first saw them imported from Persia. Gradually this name turned into our word peach.

Mother Mary

By ROY L. SMITH

It is a rather interesting fact hat, aside from the Psalms, most g the songs in the Bible have een left to us by the women of e Bible.

cholars are agreed that some the most beautiful poetry in all e scriptures must be credited to igh minded women who, under he holy spell of the Spirit of od, sang of eternal things out f their hearts.

he Magnificat

It is known to Bible scholars hat Luke, the Gentile friend of he Apostle Paul, had an excellent opportunity to visit with ary, the mother of Jesus, while aul lay imprisoned in Palestine. he presentation of her great ongs in the Gospel of Luke suggests that the young physician ay have had them directly from er own lips.

The name "Magnificat," taken rom the first Latin word in the oem, is suggestive of the lofty eme and content. Sublime reverence, humility, pure worship, ocial conscience, and exquisite ympathy characterize it from eginning to end.

A little examination, however, eveals the fact that many of the ost musical phrases of Mary's ongs were borrowed from Old estament sources, which in turn akes it plain that the mother-o-be of the world's redeemer was steeped in the religious literature of her people. No harum-scarum, she!

As Tradition Has It

There is an old tradition, never proved but widely credited, that Mary was the oldest of a little orphan brood, and that she had carried heavy responsibilities from her childhood. Whether that be true (and it makes little difference), it is quite evident that the mother of our Lord had the picture of the poor before her eyes as she sang. It could easily have been that her own struggle with poverty, and her own intimate knowledge of want, made her unusually sensitive in her great hour to the sufferings of the underprivileged.

We Agree On This

Concerning many theological matters, referring to Mary, there may be wide differences of opinion—differences which may never be healed.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 23: (Christmas) The Promise Fulfilled in Christ. Luke 1...2.

In one regard, however, there can never be any difference of opinion. The young woman whom God chose to be the mother of our Lord could have been no other than the finest type of godly character.

As such we stand reverently beside that Bethlehem manger and look down into the face of the infant Jesus, and we are thankful that in all that blessed little land there was one to whom God could trust a task so delicate, a responsibility so vast, and a privilege so holy.

Jesus and Economics

Let any who would forbid the Christian clergyman from expressing godly convictions concerning economic sins be reminded that Jesus' first contact with the earth was in connection with an economic outrage.

Caesar Augustus had ordered that all the world should be enrolled in a census. This was something more than a numbering of all the people. It was an economic inventory of the world taken for the purpose of discovering just how much could be collected in taxes. Each individual, reporting to the proper officials, was expected to furnish a complete invoice of all his holdings, a statement concerning his annual income, an estimate of the worth of his property.

When Joseph arrived in Bethlehem he had to list every hammer, axe, and saw in the Nazareth carpenter shop. Upon the basis of that statement his taxes for years to come were to be levied.

It was ugly business, and they were dark days. But Mary could sing her Magnificat and rejoice in the God who had found favor in her.

Members Call Each Other Names In Parliament

Ottawa, Dec. 21 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was described in the Commons last night—in a nice way—as a "pompous jackass" after he referred to Justice Minister Garson as the "minister of make believe."

The ter m wasapplied to Mr. Garson last Monday by Roland Beaudry (L — Montreal St. James). Since then Mr. Drew has used it several times. Last night Mr. Garson objected for the first time and asked for a withdrawal. Mr. Drew did not withdraw.

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said that reference to Mr. Garson as the "minister of make believe" was almost as bad as if "I referred to the leader of the opposition as a pompous jackass for leading a filibuster."

Mr. Drew laughed and said that he might have taken offence if the remarks had come from some one other than Mr. Sinclair who had "completely discredited himself" during the debate on anti-price-fixing legislation.

In declining to withdraw his reference to Mr. Garson, Mr. Drew said the term first had been used by a Liberal member. He had taken it as a term of "affection" that was much more generous than the term which could be applied to a minister who had broken the law in not making public a combines report on the flour milling industry.

Deputy speaker J. . Dion said Mr. Drew's reference to the minister was not very courteous and should not be used.

Teachers to Get Pay

Timmins, Dec. 21 — (CP) — Public school teachers here will get their pay cheques in time for Christmas after all.

A $10,000 loan was passed Wednesday night at a special meeting of town council to permit 75 teachers to receive their pay. The public school board made application for the loan Tuesday when it was found there was not enough money to pay the teachers.

General Dean Very Despondent When Last Seen

Chicago, Dec. 21 — (AP)— The Chicago Daily News Thursday published a censored Tokyo dispatch saying Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean was reported ill and despondent in a prison camp when seen late in the summer of 1950.

The News says its correspondent, Keyes Beech, had sent on Oct. 3 a carbon copy of the dispatch which Beech said Tokyo censors would not clear on the ground it would cause Dean's family "great personal anguish" and might endanger the general's life.

The dispatch was released yesterday by the Chicago Daily News foreign service.

Beech reported that Maj. Roy E. Appleman, official army historian, relayed an account given Appleman by a North Korean agent who allegedly befriended Dean.

In brief, the account was:

After the fall of Taejon, Dean wandered into the hills. He was taken prisoner while seeking food in a village.

Dean wore no insignia to identify him as a general officer. His identity was not discovered until taken to Pyongyang. The communists questioned him "almost without let-up for eight days, but he refused to give the enemy the information they wanted despite his weakened condition."

"He apparently never recovered from the effects of his wanderings. He suffered an attack of diarrhoea that almost killed him then recovered to be struck by another illness that wasn't identified."

Appleman quoted the North Korean agent as saying Dean was "very despondent" when he last saw him, the News says.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Here was another of those unpredictable Indian instants. I had brought the heart of her violator to their holy woman and this was right. But she in turn had cast from her the symbol of her holiness, renouncing, in the passion of the act, her holy status. This might prove very much wrong.

Judging from the shocked mutterings among the medicine men, this latter seemed very likely.

"I respect them," called out Crazy Horse, unexpectedly. "It is our way of doing things."

An angry, sullen growl sprang up among the medicine men.

The war chief continued, facing them challengingly. "That which was holy within her she has flung after the heart of him who destroyed it in her. She has already told me this on the sun of her capture. Now that which is woman, remaining in her, she would bestow upon him who avenged her. I say this is right. Let them walk in peace."

The scowls and bitter denunciations of the medicine men were lost in the thundering shout which went up from the warriors.

"Hun-hun-he! Let them walk in peace."

I leaped over the fire to Star's dais, and she rose to meet me, casting as she did from her shoulders, the white elk robe of the Wiyan Wakan.

I swept her into my arms and together we made our way to my tipi through the milling, howling mass of warriors already beginning the celebration dance of our nuptials.

The nine years I spent with the Oglala Sioux I rode and hunted with the Indians, sharing with them their feasts and famines. I became a full chief in the highest war councils. A ranking brave in the Fox Lodge society. A son and constant associate of the No. 1 Sioux bad man, Crazy Horse. A known hostile to the U.S. government, my name on three treaties, my face familiar to every commander on the frontier. Married to a famous Sioux medicine woman. And carrying, among white settlers, army personnel and reservation redmen alike, the reputation of being a bad Indian.

The "bad" part had been unwarranted. It was, in fact, due to my heated arguments on the Sioux side in the various councils with the army. I cut through many of the thin dodges they sought to perpetrate on the Sioux.

Late in the afternoon of June 20, 1876, I arrived in a war camp on the Little Big Horn. For the next three days scouts came in with information almost hourly.

Terry's column, moving from Fort Abraham Lincoln, was very close, only a few suns away. Crook was still on Goose Creek. Gibbon's troops, coming from Ft. Ellis, were closest of all. Terry and Gibbon had made contact at the confluence of the Yellowstone and the Rosebud. Terry and Gibbon were waiting for Crook. Now Terry was coming and Yellow Hair Custer was with him.

With the approach of troops my moral position became intolerable. The most obvious thought as to desert, fleeing to a previously arranged rendezvous with Star. Next thought was to throw myself on Crazy Horse's mercy, explaining I would not lead my red people into certain defeat by overwhelming army forces. This wouldn't wash.

Then on the afternoon of June 23 came Yellow Bird lathering into camp with news which lifted every hair off the nape of my neck. "Yellow Hair is coming!" he shouted as he fanned his pony up the village street. I was with Crazy Horse as he slid his pony to his haunches in front of the war chief's tipi. Present were Gall, American Horse and Sitting Bull.

Crazy Horse looked at Yellow Bird coldly. "Next you will tell us that Red Nose Gibbon is on his way too. Or that the fire-boat-that-walk-on-water is waiting on the Yellowstone. You fool. We know Custer is coming."

Yellow Bird would have his little joke. Turning away as though utterly crestfallen, he muttered voice low, but not so low that Crazy Horse wouldn't hear, "but I thought the war chief would be interested to know that he is coming straight across the hills, for this very tipi—"

Crazy Horse leaped at him like a tiger. Seizing the tall Sioux by the arm he spun him around. The Oglala's eyes were blazing. "Did you say he was coming straight over the hills? Not going up the river to come on us from above?"

"Aye." Yellow Bird's voice was weary with simulated self-pity. "But you knew it all the time."

"Enough!" Sitting Bull's thin voice knifed into the conversation. "If you want to chatter like a magpie we'll slit your tongue for you. But if you don't talk like a Sioux, and suddenly, we'll cut it out of your empty head, entirely."

A war council would be held tonight, as soon as all had fed. All the chiefs would attend. Crazy Horse would lead in the field. Two Moons, Hump, Little Wolf and Dull Knife would head the Cheyenne.

I had purposely come to the council unarmed; I wore only breech-clout and moccasins. The silence deepened around the ring of intent listeners as I began.

"I am Cetan Mani, son of Tashunka Witko. When I have spoken the lodge of my father will be dark with shame."

A murmur of interest spread through the crowd. I could see Crazy Horse out of the tail of my eye where he sat on my left. His lean frame stiffened at my words but his face remained immobile.

"Nine snows ago I came among the Oglala, a captive, my life spared by the war chief. He sponsored me, gave me back my weapons. He was my father." I watched Sitting Bull but he would not look at me.

"As is known to all, I am a white man." Actually some of them did not know this. Others had seemingly forgotten it, for as I said it another sound sprang up among them. They sensed now what was coming.

"Five suns ago when we counted a big coup on Three Stars (General Crook) I rode by my father's side." Here I presented my hands in a dramatic, upflung gesture.

"Suddenly there came to me a dream. Even there among our enemies the dream came. It was big medicine, for as I dreamed there the little guns were silent. Many enemies shot at me. Many long knives sought my throat. But my medicine was strong. Nothing could harm me."

This was "vision talk" and it impressed them. I could feel the lessening of the hard tension, a return of a gentler spell of pure interest. I took a little heart, but catching the eye of Sitting Bull upon me, I lost it. His stare was as flinty as an arrowhead. Visions were his business. I was encroaching on a closed field.

"In my dream appeared the face of Yellow Hair—"

There was no doubt of the interest of the chiefs now. Custer's was a name they knew. I continued:

"Yellow Hair spoke and his voice was deep as thunder.

"Cetan Mani, you are not a Sioux. You are a white man. Once you saved my life—" Here I paused interpolating. "This is true, my brothers. In the Great War, Yellow Hair and I were enemies. I spared his life when I could have taken it." I quickly went on with Custer's peroration.

"'Leave this fight. Fire no more shots against your own people. Go to the Sioux and tell them Yellow Hair has warned them against you. Say I will kill them all and I do not want them saying it was because of you. Tell them to cast you out. I want their medicine to be strong, for I can kill them anyway. I seek no advantage.'

"If I ride away from here I may make Yellow Hair go back. If I do not ride away he will come on. If you kill me I cannot go to him and he will come on.

"If I go, I go as a white man. If they will not stop I will come back with them. I shall be at Yellow Hair's side. But if I can stop him, all will be saved for the Sioux. Peace will be in this land of the Spotted Eagle.

"I am a traitor, yet who among you will say I have lied? Who among you will stop me and so lead all his people to their deaths I have spoken. I go."

I did just that, turning slowly to walk, head-high, among them, my course laid straight through the thronging crowd of warrior onlookers.

But a voice now fell across the circle of firelight, a guttural, vibrant voice. "Cetan, my son."

I stopped, turning with my answer to face him. "Aye, my father."

"You are not going. I think we will kill you."

About three that morning June 24, Yellow Bird came for me, a detachment of 10 heavily armed Sioux with him. They untied the bonds which held me to the post, leaving my hands bound. Yellow Bird led me away like a captive animal, a heavy leather lead-thong around my neck, five ugly-eyed Sioux on either side.

Sub-Zero Weather Settling Down on Most of Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Gripping, sub-zero cold settled down over most of Canada today, first day of winter, and expectations were it would continue cold—with lots of snow—for Christmas.

Winter officially arrived at 11:01 A.M. EST. It found most of Eastern Canada still digging out from the third snowfall in less than two weeks—the total fall in the three storms ranged up to more than 20 inches, in places. Below-zero temperatures were general on the prairies with just-below-freezing weather up and down the Pacific coast.

Coldest spot on the weather map overnight was Yellowknife, N.W.T., which reported 36 below. Saskatoon with 27 below and Prince Albert with minus 25 were not far behind.

Fresh snow fell today in southwestern Ontario, but the weather bureau said this was not a general storm.

The outlook, generally, for the Christmas weekend was for continued sub-zero cold weather on the prairies, cold with snow for much of Ontario and freezing temperatures in the Atlantic provinces.

A cold snap in southern Ontario has turned deep slush on many roads and streets into ice, making driving and walking hazardous. A low of 15 degrees above zero and a high today of 20 were forecast for Toronto.

Snow whipped by high winds last night drifted roads in some sections of southwestern Ontario. Gusts of wind were clocked at 60 miles an hour in the Chatham area. Snowplow crews fought to keep drifting snow from blocking Kent county roads.

Vancouver streets turned into quagmires last night as pounding rain soaked six inches of fresh snow. Thousands of automobiles were bogged down and buses and street-cars ran far behind schedule.

Halifax also got a brief taste of mild weather last night after a storm which had brought rain and gales to the Maritimes and snow to eastern Quebec moved into Labrador, leaving cloudy skies and some fog in its wake. However, colder air from the central states is expected to surge into the Atlantic provinces by tonight.

Mild air which swept over southern British Columbia last nigh is expected to move too far south of the prairies to provide much moderation of the plain's cold, 15 degrees below normal.

Cold Hits Midwest

Chicago—The first day of the winter season howled into the snow-covered and frigid midwestern United States today on a new fall of snow and biting cold.

There appeared no immediate relief in the central part of the country. But some higher temperatures appeared in prospect in the eastern states.

The fresh onslaught followed a week of snow and ice and subzero temperatures over wide areas east of the Rockies. Deaths attributed to the series of storms and cold which struck a week ago mounted to 260.

The winter season's official opening today is 11:01 a.m. EST.

Transportation in many midwest cities was tied up. Thousands of motorists were forced to abandon automobiles in the snow-clogged roads.

More than 250 persons were rescued last night from snow-stalled automobiles on highways about 45 miles southwest of Chicago.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 22 (CP)—Snow is falling and drifting heavily in the areas adjacent to Lake Huron and near the eastern ends of Lakes Erie and Ontario. This is not a general storm which will move through the province but is caused by the westerly wind off the water.

Temperatures in the James Bay and White River areas fell to 10 below zero last night but extensive [illegible] temperatures in southeastern regions to the 10 to [illegible] range.

Budgetary Surplus Now 634,700,000 Report Shows

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—Corporation and personal-income-tax collections jumped in November, boosting the government's budgetary surplus by $30,000,000 for the month and bringing the eight-month total for the 1951-52 fiscal year to $634,700,000, a monthly treasury statement disclosed yesterday.

The eight-month surplus was 21 times higher than the $30,000,000 forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31 next. Recently, Mr. Abbott, noting the sharp increase in the surplus, revised his forecast and said it may be about $250,000,000 or $300,000,000.

During November, revenues totalled $308,100,000, an increase of more than $50,000,000 for the $251,900,000 in November, last year, and bringing total revenues for the eight-month period to $2,468,000,000 — a $691,000,000-gain from $1,787,000,000 in the first eight months of the last fiscal year.

Government spending during the month increased to $278,000,000, sharply higher than the $209,200,000 in November, 1950, pushing the eight-month total to $1,833,251,000—a half-billion-dollar increase over the $1,381,036,000 in the corresponding period last year.

Most of the increase in spending was stimulated by an expanded rearmament effort.

The big boost in revenues, said the treasury statement, was mainly due to higher corporation and personal-income-tax collection.

New Lady-in-Waiting

London, Dec. 22 — (Reuters) — Princess Margaret is to have a new lady-in-waiting, Buckingham Palace announced last night.

A lady-in-waiting is a combination of chaperone, companion, private secretary and general guide, philosopher and friend.

She performs such duties as carrying about any cash the princess may need — the Royal Family never touches money.

Miss Iris Peake, 28, is to succeed Miss Jennifer Bevan as the lady-in-waiting. Miss Bevan is leaving to be married next month.

'Mickey Mouse' Boot Issued Marines Ends Epidemic of Frostbitten Feet

By MILO FARNETI

On the Eastern Front, Korea, Dec. 22 (AP)—American Marines have been issued a "Mickey Mouse" boot which they believe eliminates any chance of another winter's epidemic of frost-bitten feet.

The new rubber boots are so novel that one of the directions for taking care of them is, "use ordinary tire patching materials to repair punctures. This is a must."

Col. Chester R. Allen, 1st marine division supply officer, said the "vapor barrier" boots have proved "100-per-cent effective."

One complaint has been noted. That is that they are hot and heavy.

Marines have dubbed them "Mickey Mouse" because of their clod-hopper shape, like the cartoon character's feet.

The vapor-barrier principle assumes that the combat man's feet will get wet through sweating or stepping in water. The vapor barrier locks in body-generated heat, and will warm to body temperature any ice water getting in the boot.

Army experimenters say they proved this in tests at temperatures ranging as low as 20 degrees below zero.

Both the army and the marines suffered heavy losses to frostbite last winter.

The vapor barrier boot consists of a middle layer of "synthetic wool" between outer and inner waterproof rubber surfaces. A half-inch-thick felt insole is sealed airtight into the sole. And one-half inch of wool fleece is sealed into the upper part of the boot. This forms a vapor and heat lock around the foot.

The vapor barrier prevents the insulation from absorbing moisture from sweating or other causes. Otherwise, absorption would eventually ruin the boot's ability to lock in body heat. This is why the boot must be patched if punctured.

"The only chance a marine has of getting frostbite is if he's immobilized for more than three hours at temperatures below zero," Allen said.

5 NAVAL RATINGS INSTANTLY KILLED IN ROAD CRASH

Homeward Bound For Christmas Holiday

Shubenacadie, N.S., Dec. 22—Five naval ratings, homeward bound for Christmas, were killed last night in a highway accident near here.

The navy identified the victims as:

OS. Gordon David Ryan, whose mother lives at (6433 Dumfries Ave.) Vancouver.

OS. Jack Michaely, whose mother lives at 2223 Washington St.) Rossland, B.C.

AB. Fred Allan Peters, whose mother lives at Grand Falls, N.B.

AB. Brock Willett MacLaren whose widow is stationed with 3650th W.A.F. squadron at Samson air base, Geneva, N.Y.

OS. Sanborne Smith, whose mother lives at (28 Prospect St.) Lennoxville, Que.

Witnesses said the car carrying the sailors was proceeding from Halifax to Truro, about 20 miles north of here, when it attempted to overtake another car and crashed head-on into a truck.

The two occupants of the truck escaped with bruises and minor cuts.

Four of the navy men were stationed at the Shearwater Naval Air Base near Dartmouth, N.S. One was a crew member of the destroyer Iroquois.

It took nearly an hour of cutting and prying the car's twisted wreckage to free two of the bodies. The 18-foot-long car was telescoped to a length of 12 feet.

Londoners Pour Out of City For Holiday

London, Dec. 22 — (Reuters)—Londoners poured out of the capital in their thousands today to spend Christmas in the country, by the sea or on the continent.

Extra trains to all parts of England, Scotland and Wales were packed to overflowing, and heavy traffic was reported on arterial roads from London.

Six extra boat trains took hundreds bound to France and Switzerland for Christmas.

Airlines brought in more aircraft to supplement scheduled flights on both internal services and routes to the continent.

Big department stores reported a rush of last-minute shoppers.

Air ministry weather experts forecast a chance of an almost white Christmas, with ground frost instead of snow.

Govt. Policy of Sending Canadian Troops to Europe Unwarranted Says Pearkes

Paris, Dec. 22 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, Canadian delegate to the United Nations, said today the Canadian government policy of sending infantry troops to Europe is "unwarranted".

The 63-year-old Victoria Cross winner, who acts as military spokesman for the Progressive Conservatives in the Canadian House of Commons, said in an interview he believes it would be better to send technicians instead of fighting men.

Pearkes, who travelled in western Europe for two months, said he found Canada's 27th Brigade is composed of fine Canadians and is well-housed and well-treated.

"But I do not believe that the money which is being spent by Canadian tax-payers is getting anything like the return in defence assistance to the North Atlantic treaty organization that the Canadian people have a right to expect."

Canada, by sending men, was exporting her most valuable asset. He implied they were being wasted by being sent to countries where manpower was the least of problems.

"I feel that the Canadian government had not fully informed itself or the Canadian people as to actual conditions in Europe before sending the 27th Brigade and committing Canada to a long term policy which to my mind is unwarranted and extremely expensive."

The member of parliament for Nanaimo (B.C.) is scheduled to leave today with his wife for London to spend Christmas there before sailing for Canada Dec. 29.

Pearkes, who arrived in Paris Nov. 1 as parliamentary adviser to the Canadian delegation at the U.N. and has since made a side trip as an observer at the Council of Europe, said he believes the possibility of a third world war has receded.

While Russia wants a breakdown of the western system, he said, she is more interested now in rebuilding herself from the Second World War than in starting a third.

Pearkes said Canadians were convinced nine months ago that they should get ready for war in 1952. "The people of Canada were misinformed," he contended.

Immediate Exchange of Sick, Wounded POW Asked by U.N.

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 22—(AP)—United Nations negotiators today suggested an immediate exchange of sick and wounded war prisoners. The U.N. disclosed that 37,500 South Koreans they have held in prison have been reclassified and will be released.

The communists said they would think over the exchange proposal, but a U.N. spokesman said he believed there was less than a 50-50 chance they would agree.

The announcement that 37,500 South Korean civilians are to be freed from Allied prison camps came only a few hours after red negotiators at Panmunjom demanded an explanation of why 44,529 names reported by the Red Cross were not included on the prisoner list turned over by the U.N. Tuesday.

Rear Admiral R. E. Libby said the discrepancy between the U.N. list and that submitted by the Red Cross was due to a time lag on information reaching the communists from Geneva. The Allies have notified the Red Cross that 37,500 names should be removed from the list of prisoners. There was no immediate explanation of the difference between the U.N. and red figures.

Staff officers abandoned their attempt to reach agreement on how to supervise an armistice after a brief session Saturday. They turned the problem back to the official sub-committee. The negotiators made "absolutely no headway," said Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, official U.N. spokesman.

Hopes dwindled for an armistice before the provisional cease-fire line agreement expires next Thursday.

Libby asked the communists to answer his proposal for a prompt exchange of sick and wounded prisoners Sunday if possible.

He also asked for an answer to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's appeal to communist military commanders to open North Korean prison camps to representatives of the International Red Cross.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Jo said Ridgway's request was under study.

U. N. command headquarters in Tokyo said the 37,500 South Korean civilians were inadvertently picked up in the confusion of war. They are being held in separate camps, away from the prisoners of war.

They will be released gradually after a thorough screening to make certain no one possibly dangerous is among the group.

The communist demand for an explanation of why "44,259 prisoners have disappeared" followed by one day a United Nations demand for an accounting of more than 1,000 Americans and U. B. prisoners and "many thousands" of South Koreans.

In proposing an immediate exchange of sick and wounded prisoners, the U. N. laid down one condition— that those who did not want to go home would not be forced to do so.

Many red prisoners have said they do not want to return to their homeland.

Royal Family Is Assembling At Sandringham

London, Dec. 22 (AP) — The royal family is assembling at the king's great Sandringham estate for its biggest Christmas get-together since the second world war.

The king and five members of his family left yesterday for Sandringham—his personal estate and favorite residence—which is in the fens of Norfolk county close by the North Sea.

Accompanying the king, whose recent grave illness still is a cause for concern, were the queen, Queen Mother Mary, Princess Elizabeth and her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Londoners cheered the royal party as they boarded the train at King's Cross station.

A dozen near relatives will join them at Sandringham before Christmas day.

All the princes and princesses, dukes and duchesses of royal blood will be there—with two exceptions. The Duke of Windsor and Princess Mary, the king's sister.

It will be an old-fashioned Christmas party in the best British tradition. Carol-singing, a yule log blazing in the fireplace, the exchange of gifts around a brightly-decorated tree—all will contribute to the spirit of the occasion.

Ford Dismisses Six More Men For Misconduct

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 22 (CP)—The Ford Motor Company of Canada last night dismissed six men it accused of "serious misconduct" in a 12-day wildcat strike by members of Local 200, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.). The strike ended Dec. 14.

George Burt, U.A.W. Canadian director, accused the company of a breach of faith and said the union now is legally entitled to strike. The previous illegal strike started over dismissal of 26 men.

Ford President Rhys Sale, announcing the new dismissals, said the men were discharged for "serious misconduct which led to the shutting down of the company's power house in the early stages" of the strike which began Dec. 3.

Mr. Sale said it cost more than $100,000 to repair damage caused by the power cutoff blamed on the six men. The "possibility of legal action in addition to the discharges is under study by our lawyers."

HOUSE ADJOURNS TO MEET AGAIN DECEMBER 27

Yule Season Session Said First in History

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP)—A weary, debate-fagged House of Commons adjourned last night for the Christmas holidays.

It returns to work again Thursday next under the shadow of a government threat to cut off any prolonged debate on a bill to outlaw the fixing of retail prices.

This probably will be the first time in Canadian parliamentary history that the chamber has met in regular session in Christmas holiday season.

Hopelessly bogged down over contentious prices legislation, the chamber finally called it quits at 10 p.m. last night, long after it had become apparent that the issue could not reach an early decision.

But still on the record was a warning by Prime Minister St. Laurent that he would invoke the infrequently-used rule of closure—the arbitrary limiting of debate—if the Progressive Conservative party extends its five-day blocking drive against second reading—approval in principle—of the legislation.

The prime minister gave that warning Thursday when, in response to a Progressive Conservative challenge to invoke closure, he said he would apply the rule when the house meets Dec. 27 if the legislation had not come to a vote.

W. W. Lamont, United Mine Workers hospital superintendent, made an urgent plea for oxygen tents. Blood plasma was rushed in from nearby cities and blood donors were called for.

City officials prepared to handle as many as 100 bodies at the junior high school here.

That declaration came in the first flush of a heated, day-long debate on procedure.

New Aggression Charges Laid Against Britain

Cairo, Dec. 22 (AP) — Egypt raised charges of "new aggression" against Britain today, attacking a new British order to troops to consider hostile any Egyptian found carrying arms or explosives.

The order to troops in the disputed Canal Zone was issued on Thursday by Gen. George Erskine. The directive said all Egyptians caught bearing arms would be dealt with by the British military authorities instead of being turned back to Egyptian civilian authorities.

Acting foreign minister Ibrahim Farag Pasha termed the order a "new aggression against this country's sovereignty".

The Egyptian cabinet recently decided to change the laws on carrying arms so that most civilians now can legally possess weapons. The measure has not yet received parliamentary approval.

Pat Raccoon Ousted from Chimney To Make Way for Santa Claus

Albuquerque, N.M., Dec. 22—(AP)—Pat, a raccoon who thought he was Santa Claus had one midnight snack too many.

The wily coon who had lived the last two weeks in the chimney of the Richard Wager-Smith fireplace was trapped by an apple. The Wager-Smiths have Pat safely in a chicken wire cage, where he won't obstruct Santa's yearly visit.

The young racoon was caught in Arkansas four months ago by Bob Wager-Smith, 14, and his father. They kept him in a cage in the back yard.

But the cold wave which swept New Mexico last week was too much. Pat escaped from the pen and dived down the chimney.

He would creep into the house for food each night.

Something, decided the Wager-Smiths, had to be done. They baited a chickenwire trap with an apple. The object was for the coon to go in after the apple, and have the door spring shut.

But Pat was too good a coon for that. He reached inside the cage, broke the apple into pieces, and pulled it through the holes in the chicken wire. After his feast, he scrambled back up the chimney.

Last night the Wager-Smiths put cardboard around the apple to make Pat enter the cage. Pat did, and was banished to the back yard.

Santa is expected to have clear sailing.

Rescuers Toiling To Reach Victims Of Mine Disaster

About 60 Missing; Four Bodies Recovered

West Frankford, Ill., Dec. 22—(AP) —Rescue workers labored feverishly against time today as fear grew for the lives of 60 or more miners trapped in the world's largest coal-shaft mine by a mysterious explosion which already has claimed a death toll of "about 14".

Hours after the blast rescuers still had not reached the trapped miners—on their last workshift before the Christmas holiday. They were caught some 500 feet below the surface and nearly four miles back from the elevator shaft.

The mine superintendent, John R. Foster, placed the number of dead at "about 14" as dawn broke. He estimated 60 or more miners were unaccounted for.

As the death toll rose, the first of the bodies were brought to the frozen surface of the mine. They were taken to an improvised morgue in the junior high school here.

Other Bodies Seen

While only four bodies had been recovered, Foster reported that several other bodies had been seen in the mine.

Walter Eadie, director of the state department of mines and minerals, took charge of the rescue operations. He, like Foster, estimated the missing at "about 60 and possibly more".

He held out some hope for the trapped miners by saying there "had been no extensive fire" in the mine although some coal may have been set off by the blast.

The four bodies recovered were identified by Red Cross disaster workers as Joab Walton, West Frankfort; H. Summers, Benton; J. L. Black, Carterville, and Howard Wall, West Frankfort.

Foster refused to abandon hope for the entombed miners but a state mine bureau examiner did.

"I'll tell you one thing. The men down there won't get out."

Deneen Taylor, 34, a safety man for the state bureau of mines, said there was smoke and fire in the tunnel leading toward the miners. No one had heard any signal from them for more than eight hours at 5 a.m. EST.

Foster, superintendent of the mine for 22 years, only shook his head as he paused between direction of rescue workers.

"We just don't know. We just don't know," he said, "and until we know there is always hope."

The explosion, which shook the surrounding country with a deadening thud, came only an hour after the night shift had begun.

Report Smoldering Fires

No one was able to explain what caused it. Rescue teams reported smoldering fires and fear was expressed that carbon monoxide gas might have snuffed out the lives of the entombed miners.

Only six injured were reported to have been brought up from the shaft during the night.

Eight hours after the blaze Foster said rescue workers, sweating even in the sub-freezing temperature as they worked, were still 1,000 feet away from the spot where the miners were reported to be.

Five of the injured were in a serious condition and one was not expected to live.

220 In Mine

Foster estimated that 220 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion. The power supply went off shortly after the blast at 8:45 p.m. E.S.T. Mine authorities tried to telephone back into the web of tunnels to warn miners of the explosion, but there was no answer.

Foster said he didn't know whether telephone communications had been knocked out or whether no one was alive in that tunnel to answer the call.

Rumors spread among the miners, mouth to mouth, at the top of the shaft. Some said as many as 80 to 120 were trapped. There were unconfirmed reports of a heavy death toll.

The blast knocked out several concrete stoppings in air shaft passages which cut off ventilation into the tunnel where the miners were trapped. As rescue workers wormed their way toward the men they had to replace concrete as they went.

14,000 Civil Servants Get Pay Increase

Ottawa, Dec. 22 (CP) — The civil service commission Friday announced salary increases for some 14,000 civil servants across Canada, covering 400 classes of employees.

They are in addition to increases announced last Friday which affected some 90,000 civil servants.

Today's increases range between $200 and $350 a year, and cover lower grades in the professional groups, translators, draftsmen, technical officers and technicians, income tax assessors, accounting and auditing classes, and the first two grades of administrative and treasury officers.

Still undealt with are about 1,200 classes of civil servants, involving some 10,000 persons, of whom 5,000 are employed in Ottawa. Commission officials said today the cases still under review should be completed by the end of the year, although the announcement may be delayed until later.

The increases are retroactive to last Dec. 1.

Governor-General Has Adopted Young Daughter

Ottawa, Dec. 22. (CP) —The Governor-General and Viscountess Alexander have adopted a young daughter, it became known today.

Fair-haired Susan, now 3 1-2 years old, was adopted three years ago in England, but the new addition to the vice-regal family remained a well-kept secret until today.

Aides at Government House said they know little about the circumstances of the adoption, except that the blue-eyed youngster became a member of the governor-general's family on a trip he made to Britain three years ago.

Since then, she has been living at Government House—the official vice-regal residence—but apparently her presence was known to only a few close associates of Viscount and Viscountess Alexander.

City and District News

DO NOT FORGET FEATHERED FRIENDS

It's Christmas for human beings, but to the birds outside it is just the ordinary time of the year, garnished with weather that is anything but conducive to the happiness and well-being of the feathered populace.

The heavy snowfall of the last few days has made the procuring of food difficult for the birds, and in some cases the situation is desperate.

How about tossing a few scraps of food to them the next time you see them hopping about the yard. It may save a bird's life and you won't miss a thing.

DISTRICT NURSES RECEIVE CAPS

Included in the list of forty members of the preliminary class at St. Joseph's School of Nursing Kingston who received their caps are; Mary Murray, Picton; Jeanne McGaughey, Trenton; Mary McCambridge, Marysville and Lucille Bourgoin, Trenton.

CITY SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Schools of the city closed for the Christmas holiday period yesterday with the annual exchange of present among pupils. The various parties were held in the morning in a number of instances due to the stormy weather.

NO MATINEES ON CHRISTMAS DAY

The three Belleville theatres, the Belle, McCarthy and Capitol, will be running only evening performances on Christmas day in order to give their staffs a full day at home.

Box offices will open at 6.30 p.m. with showings beginning at seven o'clock.

BEAVER TRAPPERS DELAY OPERATIONS

No indication of a better market is causing beaver trappers to delay operations, according to Lands and Forests officials. Wild mink offer the best inducement at present but unfortunately the animals are scarce. Otter, though offered at a good price, are fairly numerous but difficult to catch.

GILLNET FISHERMEN STORING GEAR

Reporting the poorest catch of whitefish and herring in some years Bay of Quinte gillnet fishermen have placed their nets and other gear in storage. A few are still in use in the Adolphustown Reach where fairly good catches of pickerel are reported.

KINGSTON WOMAN INJURED IN COLLISION

Mrs. Christine Sedgeworth, 39, of Kingston, suffered a multiple leg fracture Friday afternoon when the car which she was driving was in collision with another vehicle east of Milltown, ten miles east of Belleville. She was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

The car which Mrs Sedgeworth was driving was in collision with a McFarland Construction Company owned vehicle driven by Jack Walsh. Walsh was also injured and was taken to hospital in another car for emergency treatment. Two passengers in the McFarland car escaped injury.

R.C.A.F. ASSOCIATION DRAW WINNERS

Winners of the Christmas draw sponsored by the RCAF Association Belleville Wing 418 were C. S. Martin, 26 Burton Street, a Christmas basket and J. C. Rankin, 20 Forin Street, a turkey.

The draw was made at a general meeting of the association last Thursday by association president, John Godwin.

Tables Literally Groaning With Weight of Fowl

Christmas fowl was king on the local pre-Christmas market Saturday with all tables on the inside mart literally groaning with the weight of turkeys, geese, ducks and chicken.

There was a heavy offering of turkey with fully-drawn birds quoted at 75c per lb. and ranging down to 65c for undrawn birds.

Geese were quoted generally at 64c per lb. as were ducks, while spring chicken ranged from a top of 60c down to 55c per lb.

Egg prices were the same as last week with farmers quoting 50c for firsts; 48c for mediums and 45c for pullets.

Only a few scattered vendors were seen on the outside market. Delicious and Talman Sweets brought $2.50 for top quality, while Snows and cookers were quoted at $1.50 per hamper.

Potatoes still maintained their high price of $4.50 per 75-lb. bag with 50-lb. bags quoted at $3. Winter vegetables sold at their customary price of 30c the half peck.

One vendor offered pork by the quarter with front selling at 35c and hinds 40c per lb.

A number of Christmas tree vendors were in evidence quoting trees from $1.50 and down to 50c each.

Christmas Party Held by Members Of Laboratory

A Christmas tree party was held at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, Dundas Street, on Friday afternoon. More than fifty youngsters, children of the staff members and several adopted for the occasion, were treated to a very pleasant program.

The youthful guests and their folks were welcomed by Dr. A. Wilkes, officer-in-charge. The guests, young and not so young, then gave their undivided attention to a movie cartoon, "Good-bye, Mr. Moth." It should be noted that there was no direct connection between this "Moth" and others kept at the laboratory for strictly research purposes. The group then joined in singing Christmas carols.

The appearance of Santa Claus was the highlight of the afternoon for the youngest members. The old gentleman handed out gifts and candy, further endearing himself in the hearts of the little people. Then, to the accompaniment of breaking candy canes, other film shorts were shown.

A Punch and Judy show entitled, "Too Much Turkey", was capably presented by two staff members. The nightmarish antics of Punch who had over-indulged, had the kids bouncing in their seats as the luckless fellow fought off flies nearly as big as himself. This activity seemed to cause considerable hunger and the party was brought to a close with ample refreshments.

Staff Guests Of Management At Corbyville

The well-appointed recreation room of the H. Corby Distillery at Corbyville was the scene of an enjoyable party last night, when the office personnel and department heads were the guests of the management at the annual Christmas get-together.

Some thirty members of the staff forgot taxes, threats of war and other problems in a jolly atmosphere of fine camaraderie.

Mr. Wilfred Laporte, distillery manager, extended a cordial welcome to his staff on behalf of the management and the head offices in Montreal. He personally dispensed special gifts from the company in tangible expression of the co-operation afforded it by the distillery personnel during the past year.

Mr. R. Edmondson representing the staff, expressed their appreciation of the generosity of the company and later the room rang to the lustily-sung strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Then surprise number two came up. From a table laden with packages, Mr. George MacDonald, assistant manager, assuming a Santa Claus role minus toque and beard, presented everybody present with another handsome gift. Mr. MacDonald received special appreciation from a number of the fair sex members of the staff.

Dancing, darts and social amenities rounded out a highly successful and enjoyable party.

A buffet luncheon was served midway through the party which took place at five o'clock and ended shortly after seven.

Belleville Gets Good Publicity In 'Hydro News'

Belleville, the "Quinte City" has received some welcome publicity this month in the December issue of Hydro News which deals thoroughly with the city's many industries, welfare and educational institutions.

Over five pages of the monthly magazine published by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission are devoted to Belleville while the city's scenic beauties, its many industries, and institutions have been given full picture coverage. Considerable space in the article is given to the growth of Belleville's hydro system.

The city's history, dating back to 1790 when United Empire Loyalists immigrated to Upper Canada with one of their number, Captain John Walden Meyers founding the village of Meyers Creek, later to become Belleville, is given. The article notes that Belleville became a police village in 1863 and a town in 1877, attaining the status of a city in 1877.

Beside being a closely associated with the dairy and fruit industries, the article notes the city has seen expansion as an industrial centre. The payroll of its 1,200 railway employees is estimated at $4,000,000 annually, while the gross value of its manufactured products rose to over $11,280,000 by 1950.

The city's first electrical system was built by a private company and in 1916 this was taken over by the Ontario government, the hydro operating the system in trust until 1929. The city took over the operation of the system and formed its first commission in 1930.

Since then the commission had seen rapid expansion. In 1929 the total load was 2,600 kilowatts, while today the load is in excess of 10,000 kilowatts.

Electricity is one of the few commodities cheaper today than back in 1929. Then the domestic and commercial rate was eight cents per kilowatt hour, compared with the prevailing rates of 0.793 and 1.183 cents respectively. In the last ten years domestic consumers in the city have increased by approximately 2,000.

Growth of Belleville's hydro system is also reflected by its financial record, which shows assets have almost doubled in the past decade. In 1940 this figure was $442,017 with liabilities of $14,100. By 1950 assets of the commission were $845,354 with liabilities of $18,872.

Probert Warns New Law Enables Police to Net Driver Even Slightly Intoxicated

Drinking drivers will get short shrift from the Belleville police department during the Christmas holidays, it was stated today by Police Chief Walter Probert.

"Under new regulations a motorist does not have to be drunk before police can take action," the police chief warned. "But if an officer considers the ability of a motorist has been impaired by drinking, the motorist can be taken off the road."

"I would ask for the utmost co-operation of all motorists during the coming holiday season and also would ask that pedestrians be on the alert", the chief continued.

Also the chief pointed out that schools would be out for Christmas holidays during the next week and he urged parents to impress on their children the importance of being on the alert and not to run out on the streets without first looking for traffic.

And as a parting not Chief Probert called upon householders to refrain from offering deliverymen something to drink as they make deliveries prior to the holiday.

"I know it is done innocently enough but one drink on top of another soon spells trouble," he said.

Staff Dinner, Children's Party Much Enjoyed

A staff turkey dinner on Thursday evening, featured by an employee profit-sharing announcement, and a children's party on Friday afternoon, highlighted the Christmas entertainment of the J. & J. Cash Company, Inc., of Belleville.

A letter from Mr. A. Lole, company president, to Mr. J. M. Porritt, general manager of the Canadian company, was read at the Social Club's annual Christmas party, held at Club Cedars on Thursday evening, informing the employees that the directors of the Canadian Company had voted to award the employees a percentage of estimated profits from operations in 1951. The estimate was placed at $2,500 and cheques totalling that amount were handed to the employees prior to the entertainment.

Close to 65 employees and their friends were present and enjoyed a variable program of entertainment emceed by Tom Hood. Entertainers included Gail and Garry Tremaine and Miss L. Lennox, under the supervision of Barbara Diment, and Arthur Dube who rendered several vocal selections. The Stirling orchestra provided the music for the dance which followed.

Don Lee, president of the Social Club, thanked the management for their generous gesture and also thanked the executive of the club for their fine co-operation during the past year.

Friday afternoon at 5.30 p.m. the Social Club entertained the employee's children at a Christmas party. Santa Claus presented gifts to approximately 40 children who ranged in age from six months to 12 years.

Christmas candies, apples, oranges and soft drinks were all part of the festivities which were presented as appropriate Christmas music was played in the background.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

Story of The Vision at Fatima

(Article 49)

Lisbon, Portugal — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — The year 1951 was proclaimed by the Pope as a foreign Holy Year. To bring this year to a close a large ceremony was held at the Basilica of Fatima in central Portugal. It was attended by almost one million people, among whom were Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Ireland, and also a special envoy from the Pope. People came long distances to be able to witness the ceremony. I met one Irish lady on the train who had travelled three days without stop, although she looked hardly fit for any travel at all. A majority of the people came in cars, which resulted in the largest collection of autos in one place that I have ever seen. Bad weather did not seem to hinder them in the least.

Just why was the closing ceremony held at Fatima, and why is this place held in such high esteem by so many people that they would flock there in such numbers? To find the answer to this, we have to look back to the thirteenth of May, 1917.

Children See Vision

On that day three small Portuguese children were watching sheep in a field. Francisco, the boy, was accompanied by his sister Jacinta, and his cousin Lucia. A thunderstorm came up so the three children decided to return as quickly as possible to the village. They had only taken a few steps, however, when they were enveloped by a bright light. Lucia, who at that time was only 10 years old, looked up and saw a very beautiful young woman, dressed in white and gold, standing on a cloud over one of the nearby trees. She said she would tell them who she was and what she wanted if they would return there the thirteenth of every month until October. One significant fact is that although Lucia heard and saw all this, Francisco saw only a vision and heard nothing while Jacinta only heard the words. Lucia then spoke to the vision and was told to say the rosary every day.

Of course, when the children returned to the village and told their story, it created a sensation throughout the whole country. They were questioned thoroughly not only by the village priest, but also by higher church authorities and by many others, most of whom were extremely doubtful of the whole thing, and put it down as a product of childhood fancy. This was helped along by the fact that at this time a wave of anti-clericalism was sweeping the country. The children were even threatened with punishment or death if they returned, but these threats were never carried out.

Vision Re-appears

In spite of these threats and warnings the children returned the thirteenth of every month and were accompanied by an ever-increasing number of people, most of whom were curious as to what would happen. It is estimated that in September there were more than 25,000 people gathered at the spot, while in October, the month set as the final appearance, more than 75,000 found their way to the village, in spite of the heavy rain which prevailed most of the day.

Sure enough the vision appeared as promised, and said to Lucia, "I am the Lady of the Rosary. I want a chapel built here in my honor. You are all to say your rosary, pray for sinners and for peace." She told them also that the war would soon be over, so that the soldiers could return to their homes. Then she told the children of the three secrets that she had promised them.

Suddenly Lucia cried, "Look at the sun!" It had appeared through a rift in the clouds. The three children looked up and saw St. Joseph and the Holy Child dressed in Scarlet. Also present were Our Lady of Sorrows and Our Lady of Carmel. In the background appeared the upper part of the Lord blessing the people. At the same time there was a shower of white objects like rose petals.

Sun's Antics Awe Crowd

While this was going on the spectators saw the sun quiver, revolve, emit colored rays, approach and then retire. This went on for about ten minutes and made an immense impression on all those present.

Of the three secrets which the apparition granted the three children, two were revealed to them. The third is in a sealed envelope in the Cathedral of Leiria, and is to be opened either when Lucia dies or in 1960. The first secret was a vision of hell which the children witnessed, and which they described as a sea of fire. The second was that the world, and especially Russia was to be consecrated and converted. Unless this happened another terrible war would follow during the time of Pope Pius XI. The fact that the new Pope took office several months before the outbreak of war has been got around by stating that the war began with the Spanish Civil War. Other people state that the beginning was actually on January 25-26, 1938 when exceptionally bright northern lights were witnessed.

Two years after the vision both Francisco and Jacinta died. Ten years later Lucia wrote down her impressions, later enlarging them. At the same time she became a Carmelite Nun and is still living today.

This then, is the story of Fatima. The chapel was built in her honor and takes the place of the tree which has long since disappeared. It is this event which is considered by the church as the greatest happening of the twentieth century, and accounts for its being chosen as the meeting place for the many Catholics who closed out this Holy Year.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(Article 13)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Just to the west of the Jerusalem Corridor lies the settlement of Nachson. From the hill on which the settlement is located one may get an excellent view of the fertile valley of Ajalon. This valley is mentioned in the tenth chapter of Joshua and the valley has historic importance because it was the site of Judah Macabee's heroic struggle against the Greeks.

For many years the Arabs in the valley did not cultivate the land but in the past few years the Israeli pioneers have reclaimed the land of the valley and today there are many acres of cultivated fields.

Situated in the valley of Ajalon is the town of Latrun, now held by the Trans Jordan Arab Legion. From the distance I can see a beautiful Trapist monastery standing in the centre of the town. Just behind the monastery I could also see the ruins of a fortress which was used during the time of the Crusaders.

Before the Arab-Israeli war, Latrun held one of the main pumping stations used to pump water to the city of Jerusalem. One of the worst battles of the war was fought at Latrun.

Israel is rapidly becoming famous for the excellent brands of wine which she exports. During our hike through part of Israel's coastal valley, we had the opportunity of visiting the largest Israeli wine plant, located in the city of Rishon Letzion.

This factory was built in 1890 by Baron de Rothchild, a French banker, and it looks like a fortress. The building is made of stone and has huge underground store rooms where the wine is aged. We were taken on a tour of the place and allowed to sample all of the various types of wine.

This wine plant was the first beginning of Jewish industry in Palestine and provided work for many of the first pioneers who came to this country. With a good deal of pride, the guide who showed us through the factory, told us that David Ben Gurion, now prime minister of Israel, had worked there when he first came to Palestine more than forty years ago.

Another of Israel's important industries is the citrus industry. At the present time Israel supplies some of the leading countries in Europe with oranges, lemons and grapefruit. I visited the settlement of Givat Brenner, an important bottling centre for citrus juices and jams. The factory at Givat Brenner utilizes 240 tons of citrus fruit per day during the season. It is a modern factory and most of its machinery is made in Givat Brenner.

There are two main working seasons at the factory, citrus and vegetable. Vegetables are processed and juiced as well as olives. Citrus fruits are canned, as well as jams and lemons. Other products are lemon oil, fruit juices, and concentrated juices for babies. It is interesting to note that 17 tons of fruit juice are required to make one ton of concentrated juice.

The citrus industry is rapidly expanding in Israel. With the improvement of irrigation and the continuous reclaiming of land in this country, there is no doubt that Israel, in the next few years, will become one of the leading exporters of citrus fruit products.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

DRIED FRUITS ARE GOOD

We Canadians find it difficult to understand how fruit-eating birds are able to spend the cold months with us, and survive. Yet when fresh fruit is not available, we ourselves are often very glad to use dried prunes, apples, or apricots as substitutes. And so we should not be surprised to learn that certain species are wise enough to do the same thing.

Our parks and cemeteries are likely places for us to find fruit eaters in winter, because there have been planted mountain ash, hawthorn, snowberry, bitter sweet, and various other trees and bushes for decorative purposes. But it is the fruit which has been left hanging from the branches that is so attractive to several kinds of birds. Here the occasional robin is seen in snowy surroundings and zero temperatures, feating on the dogwood berries. Supplied with wild fruits and berries, even a hermit thrush has been known to forget that migration time is long past, and its relations are miles away. The gray-cheeked will hardly spend the winter in Canada, but may postpone departure from early October to late November.

Quite rightly, we think of purple finches as seed eaters. They are. But no seed delights them more than mountain ash berries. Whole flocks of these birds winter in a vicinity where an abundance of waste left-over fruit can be had, but it is the mountain ash trees that receive most attention.

Those gypsies, the evening grosbeaks, prefer the seeds of Manitoba maples to anything else, yet they also are fond of dried, winter fruit, and have one rather odd habit: that of taking the seeds out of old, rotten apples that they find hanging from branches in mid-winter. Their first cousins, the pine grosbeaks, remain in Canadian territory the year round if they are able to discover wild, waste fruit. Crossbills, too, of both types, spend their time travelling from place to place in search of dried fruit, and having found sufficient for their wants in Canada, are often tempted to stay here nearly the entire year.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Away In A Manger"

Away in a manger,
No crib for His bed,
The little Lord Jesus
Laid down His sweet head.
The stars in the sky
Looked down where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus,
Asleep on the hay.

The cattle are lowing,
The poor Baby awakes,
But little Lord Jesus
No crying He makes.
I love Thee, Lord Jesus,
Look down from the sky,
And stay by my side
Until morning is nigh.

When Dr. Martin Luther's name is mentioned, most people think at once of his great Reformation hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

Few, however, are aware of the fact that he also wrote the beautiful Christmas lullaby, "Away in a Manger," so familiar to children of the church throughout the world.

He wrote another less-familiar Christmas hymn for his little son, Hans, when the lad was five years old. Composed in 1535, the latter hymn was sung through the centuries each Christmas morning at daybreak by singers standing in the dome of the "Kreuz Kirchel" in Dresden, Germany. Here is its opening stanza:

"Good news from Heaven the angels bring,
Glad tidings to the earth they sing;
To us this day a child is given,
To crown us with the joy of Heaven."

USING WRONG METHODS

According to the best authorities, Santa Claus forces his team of eight reindeer to travel at top speed by flourishing and cracking a large whip, also by continually shouting at them "Up Donner, up Blitzen," and so on.

But it seems that Santa Claus, for all the experience he has had in driving reindeer, still doesn't understand these animals very well.

According to John Teal of McGill University's Arctic Institute, reindeer do not need to be shouted at; they invariably and voluntarily start at a gallop when pulling a sled.

Also, Mr. Teal says, shouting at them or cracking a whip over their heads is likely to frighten them, because "they are among the least manageable and most easily frightened of all domesticated animals."

If frightened, Mr. Teal warns, they are liable to turn around and trample the passengers in the sled behind them.

If Mr. Teal knows what he is talking about, the fact that Santa Claus has driven reindeer for so long without serious mishaps is due to good luck rather than to good management.

THEY WASTE NO TIME

The prime minister of Canada, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, announced last Friday that all members of the civil service, the armed forces, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police would get pay increases.

On Saturday, twenty-four hours later, according to the Ottawa Journal, the executive of the Civil Service Association announced it would hold a meeting "at the earliest opportunity" to protest that these pay boosts were not big enough.

Members of the Civil Service Association, it must be conceded, do not believe in letting grass grow under their feet. Or should we, in view of the season, change the metaphor, and say they do not believe in letting snow drift around their ankles?

In any event, it is evident that "strike while the iron is hot" is their motto.

GOOD RIDDANCE

People who are old enough to remember when Canada was really a free country will receive with approval the announcement, made in Ottawa a few days ago, that foreign exchange control regulations have been ended.

Canadians are once again permitted to possess as much American or other foreign currency as they can come by honestly. They may take their American money across the border with them if they wish. They may employ this American or other foreign currency as they wish.

We have no hesitation whatever in predicting that Canada will be able to get along splendidly without these foreign exchange control regulations. However, the Foreign Exchange Board served its purpose well during the past several years.

WATER COCKTAIL

Toronto's M.O.H. plans the introduction of fluorine into Toronto's water supply in the hope that it will prevent tooth decay, especially in children. Not as a reflection upon the proposal, but as an interesting comment upon the complexity of modern water treatment, it may be pointed out that Toronto tap water will then at times contain:

Chlorine, sulphadioxide, alumina sulphate, flourine.

The chlorine is habitually used, but in varying quantities, according to the state of the water. The sulphadioxide is used to neutralize the chlorine when the dosage is heavy. The alum is added when there is much suspended matter in the water.

Fluorine, if added, will require care as to dosage, for in excess of one part in a million, it is a toxic poison. It has been used in Brantford and other cities without any ill results and with claims of benefit as a preventer of tooth decay. —(Toronto Star.)

TOURISTS SHUN EGYPT

Egypt has found that its quarrel with Britain over the Suez Canal zone has had an unforeseen bad effect.

The warm winter sun of the Nile Valley has in the past made Cairo a seasonal haven for free spenders from all over the world, including an increasing number of Americans.

This year the travel offices in Cairo report tourist cancellations of 70 to 80 percent. The luxury hotels are half empty. Merchants in the bazaar section are moaning.

Egypt is losing millions of dollars in foreign exchange because of the rift with Britain. — (New York Herald Tribune.)

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

HOMECOMING

I watch them at the depot —
the mothers at the gate—
Who asks the age old question;
"Is the train on time or late?"
The annual tears of gladness;
the same sweet laughter gay;
The loved ones home
returning to spend the Christmas Day.

I watch them staring, peering along the railroad track
And think how glad the season that brings the loved ones back!
How long and bleak the absence of those obliged to roam!
But, oh, the joy of Christmas which brings the children home!

Oh, glorious, happy moment when love flings wide the door!
The family united; the table filled once more.
The mother and the father,
the grandfolks all content.
Oh, little Child of Bethlehem,
all this your coming meant.

Burma Girls Still Unchanged But Modern Burma Scene Of Much Strife, Confusion

By FRED HAMPSON

Rangoon (AP) — Burma girls still smoke the same "whackin' white cheroots" and waste a certain number of "Christian kisses on 'eathen idols' feet."

But otherwise the road to Mandalay is much different from the Burma that Rudyard Kipling wrote about.

Elephants aren't piling much teak. Production is hardly one-tenth of prewar. The temple bells are not calling any British soldiers back to Mandalay.

Burma's independence, gained in 1948, has not brought all the hoped-for blessings, and has certainly not brought peace.

The temple bells seem to carry more of an undertone of worry than of invitation. For Burma, free of British ties, is so riven and torn by factions she seems constantly in danger of being seized by the new master, communism.

Just now this lush and sunny land is not quite red but it is certainly playing footie with the reds, domestic and foreign.

The reasons are myriad. The biggest seems to be that Burma, horribly battered and still not much rebuilt from the last war, is scared stiff of another war and doesn't intend to risk one just to stand on principle.

This national disposition to make a deal rather than risk a fight with the reds is a hard thing to measure. Most of the people aren't communists, nor are most of the responsible men in the government.

Red-Tinged Speech

Yet on Nov. 7 Dr. Ba Maw, the old puppet premier under the Japanese, made a straight Moscow party line speech to public meeting of pro-communist groups. The main theme was the familiar charge that the United States is planning the third world war. Every newspaper in Rangoon — Burmese, English, Chinese — banner-lined the story on page one.

Second, Burma's border is exposed to the Chinese red threat and very few people here take the Chinese nationalist guerrillas under General Li Mi seriously. These remnants of Chiang's armies, which fled into Burma in 1949, this year under Li Mi made an excursion back into Yunnan province of China, scoring some victories. The latest reports in Rangoon are that Li's forces were recently beaten by the Chinese reds and are now hiding out in the border hills.

Third, Burma's freedom has been followed by a period of almost unbelievable factionalizing. One gets dizzy trying to remember all the political factions, some of which are the results of three or four splits. Some stayed peaceful and fought the government and one another in the political arena, but a grim number went underground and became armed insurgents. These include the two main factions of the original Burma communists.

However, there now are other factions above ground which in the splintering and regrouping process have become quite communistic.

The strongest single group now is the Burma Workers and Peasants Party. In it are grouped the strongest opposition to the government party, which is called the Anti-Fascist People's Freedom League.

This government party, which was once far over on the left itself has, through the splintering off of minorities and through the responsibilities of government, veered over to the right until now it is considered pretty well in the centre. Elections are now being held — the first nationwide elections in the new nation's free history—and Premier Thankin Nu's government party is winning substantially so far.

The communists, who make use of all government opposition, are benefitted by the tribes which also oppose the government for various ethic and historic causes too involved to analyze here. The largest is the Karens, who can be said generally to want a better deal in the new Burma. So they fight the government alongside the communists and some other warring tribes, all of which helps the reds, hurts the government and brings no visible benefits to the tribes.

After four years of self-government, political splits and violent civil strifee, the Burma man on the street appears to be bewildered and as worried as his naturally happy and easy-going disposition permits.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE A FINISHER!

It would be interesting to know the proportion of finishers to those who only start and never finish—anything. This world is full of unfinished men and women—those who did not have the vision, the dream or the courage to follow the idea or task clear through to the finish.

Just imagine if Edison, after several hundreds trials to find a new way to light the homes and offices of the world, had said: "Well, I guess I have tried enough ways. I guess there is nothing to it. Maybe we better stay by the oil lights!" But that wasn't Edison's way. He believed in finished jobs. He wanted to see a thing completed to the end. He courted no failure.

Every day there are those who drop out of the contest and fail to finish what they attempted. And so they walk around in ragged clothes, inspiring no one. But note that one whose spirit is never defeated, that one who looks upon his objective as a part of his character and life enterprise. Day by day he notes progress within himself. Repeated failures do not trouble him. He has the will. He has the heart. On and on he goes. He finishes the thing at hand today, and goes forward on the morrow for new discoveries and new advancement.

Be a finisher! Allow no circumstance or discouragement to divert your interest and your objective. Go through to the very end. Do so and you will experience a spiritual triumph that will give you far greater satisfaction than any material gain from all your efforts. The finishers are the builders of this world. They finish one job and then go on to another. They leave nothing unfinished.

In any job or task is worth starting it is worth finishing. For several years I looked upon an unfinished building in a great city. For some reason it was left standing during these years. It was an eye-sore, I am sure, to all those who looked upon it and wondered why it was not finished after being started. It's men and women of iron who go through to the finish—and they are the inspirers of us all! Be a finisher.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Britain has it all over Canada and the United States in the literature of wild nature. Not only have they a far greater classic literature on the subject, but contemporary publication is much larger and a lot better. So-called outdoors books in America are rather hearty masterpieces devoted to the adventure of fishing and hunting, rather than to the study of wild creatures. The suspicion grows in your mind, as you read most American outdoors books, that the authors are subsidized by the wealthy gunpowder and fishing tackle industry.

This is not to say that the British are not lusty shooters and anglers. But in books such as "Wild Life of the Highlands," by Dugald Macintyre, published back in 1936, and to be found in most Canadian public libraries, you have a tremendously exciting and amusing masterpiece written by a Scottish farmer, countryman and sportsman, And while written about the wild life to be found in the Highlands, every line of it sharpens up our appreciation of what we can find right around us in our Canadian countryside.

There must be a hundred new outdoors books published in Britain every year, the great majority of them inspired by an interest in some aspect of the wild life of the country. A recent one is "The Poacher's Handbook," by Ian Niall. Instead of it being, as most buying it hope, a detailed guide to the arts of poaching, it is a warm and sentimental account of the poachers Niall has met in his life as a wanderer in the countryside of England. Some of the tricks of the trade are revealed, but only in the process of converting the reader into a champion of creatures poached.

It may be that the British are more aware of their wild life than we are but the rather surprising impression rises in your mind, as you read the British writers, that they have more wild life in those compact little islands than we have in this great "new" country.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will Be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

WHAT! SYMPATHY FROM DOC BRADY?

So many paying customers have chided me for it in the earlier days this health service, and so few in the past few years, that I'm beginning to wonder whether I'm going tender-hearted or downright mushy. I refer to my signal lack of sympathy.

In earlier talks I tried to show the less somber if not the brighter side of heart trouble, but I'm pretty sure two large classes of readers dismissed my notions as promptly as possible; they are the Yankee Wiseacres, who think they know as much or a little more than an "ordinary" doctor knows about their complaints, and the malingerers, who use their "weak heart" act to escape work, military service, responsibility.

In all of these talks about heart trouble I am presenting the concensus (I love that word)—of course I might say the general agreement—of medical opinion and not just "strange notions" of my own. However, this is still the freest country in the whole wide world, no matter what the politicians tell you in the next ten months, so you may reject any of my teachings forthwith or ask your own physician about it.

Dr. L. N. Katz, director of Cardiovascular Research at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, writing about the coronary circulation, which means the supply of blood to the heart itself, said we have passed from the stage in which we diagnosed coronary disease too little to one in which we diagnose it too often. By gum, that makes sense.

It is as true of coronary or other heart trouble as it is of dental treatment, having an operation or having a baby: The less you know about it the greater your fear and vice versa. I have learned by experience, subjective or vicarious, enough about these things to know whereof—and the testimony of many happy mothers who have experienced natural childbirth confirms this teaching.

In another talk we'll mention some factors that may cause coronary artery constriction or narrowing and so impair heart function and several remedies that relax, dilate or increase the calibre of the coronary arteries and so tend to prevent such distress. Meanwhile if you want something good for your heart take a stroll along the back road or around the neighborhood or through the park, and post me 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for the booklet C V D, about the heart and arteries.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sees Ring Around Light

Greatly annoyed by street and traffic lights when driving at night. There appears to be a ring around the lights with all the colors of the rainbow. . . (W. A.)

Answer—Don't delay general examination by your doctor and eye examination by the oculist your doctor recommends.

Booze is Booze

Man was heavy drinker for 20 years. Doctor warned him it would kill him if he kept on. Then by sheer will power he quit drinking for 11 years—beer and whiskey, that is. But he switched to wine—drinks four quarts a day and says he doesn't get enough alcohol to hurt him. . . . . (C. H. R.)

Answer—That is absurd. In four quarts of wine there is a full pint of alcohol.

Pruritus

Owe you gratitude for the relief I obtained from the use of carbon tetrachloride for intolerable itching—the suggestion in your fine pamphlet. This ought to be made known to the many who suffer from pruritus. . .(H. R. E.)

Answer—Well, the pamphlet on Pruritus (itching without apparent cause) is available to any reader who asks for it in writing (clipping will not suffice) and provides stamped, self-addressed envelope. Carbon tetrachloride is non-inflammable (commonly used as cleaning fluid, sometimes as fire extinguisher) but in using it take pains to avoid breathing the vapor—use it out of doors or in a good draft to carry away the vapor.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THEY GROW FAST

Two children were playing near a little body of water in Florida some time ago when an alligator suddenly rose to the surface, seized one of the children, and drew her under. She was finally rescued by her little boy companion who showed himself, in spite of his years—or rather the lack of them—to be every inch a man.

The amazing thing was that nobody made any comment on the fact that a pet alligator had been allowed to grow to a dangerous size in that pond. The newspaper account said that someone had had the alligator as a pet when it was a few inches long and then when it got too big to be a comfortable pet, had put it into this little body of water. It grew at last to be a monster, endangering the welfare and life of children.

There are many people who have pets in their homes which are liable to assume similarly dangerous proportions in years to come. The drinking custom is one of these. Actually social drinking has grown into about 7,000,000 cases of alcoholism and excessive drinking. This dire malady has become the fourth health problem in the country.

Watch out about harboring in your home a pet that may grow into a monster.

Escapes Alive

This jumbled mass of steel, rubber and upholstery was once a small delivery truck. Its driver, Burritt Bell of Peterborough, escaped with bruises and a small cut when the truck was caught between a moving Canadian National Railways caboose on a siding and a cement wall. Police and railway employees worked for an hour before Bell was cut out of the debris. — (CP Photo.)

FRANKFORD

Mrs. H. Terry Reviews Year's Work of Women's Association

Frankford—The annual report of Frankford United Church Woman's Association was given by the secretary, Mrs. Helen Terry, who stated that as the books were about to be closed for the year 1951, the association felt that many blessings had been bestowed upon it, and in spite of mistakes and failures, asked that the prayer, praise and thanksgiving of the members be accepted by the heavenly Father for the privilege of working for His church and for the building up of the kingdom of God.

Association Membership

The membership of the Association was 37 with an average attendance of 18, and having two honorary members, Mrs. Windover and Mrs. Bell. During the year, 53 adults and 34 children had been welcomed to the ten meetings as guests, with the addition of four new members, Mrs. A. E. Johns, Mrs. D. Mallory, Mrs. Osterhout and Mrs. Pollard.

A number of 'sympathy' and 'get well' cards had been sent to friends and members in the community. There was also a 'flower fund' from which flowers had been bought to send to sick members, by the flower convener, Mrs. Terry. Invitations to several teas and bazaars, held by neighboring associations, had been accepted, with contributions to the programs. The social time thus spent with other workers: reminiscing of the past, and talking over the things of the present, assisted in great spiritual gain.

Year's Work Outlined

Briefly, the work of the year may be outlined as follows: In February the W.A. sponsored a play presented by the Rawdon folk; the sum of $10 was sent to the Canadian March of Dimes to help a worthy cause; the W.A. also catered to the Masonic banquet for 'ladies' night' as well as for the district 'Deputy night' in November.

In May there was a banquet for the official board of the church; in June several pieces of furniture were presented and some redecorating done in the parsonage, and the association's share of the taxes paid. In September a large number of Christmas cards were bought and sold, with a good profit realized. In October, a canvass was made of the community in place of preparing for a fowl supper and to date $271 has been received.

In November, the tea and bazaar, in which nine other organizations had been invited to join, netted the association $179. In December $400 was voted to the choir for supplies. Ten dollars given to the misisonary and maintenance fund of the church. ltogether, over $1,300 had been raised by the Women's Association in 1951.

New Year's Admonitions

"At the start of the New Year and a new day, God is asking for the gift of time and talent for the work in His church. 'Buried seeds grow, buried talents, never', today is a new day, 1952 will be a new year. The present age is a new age, and by God's blessings and our own high resolves, we may yet build a better tomorrow. Because of the lessons of yesterday God has granted to His faithful people many yesterdays of blessings.

"In this spirit, let us dedicate ourselves afresh to the tasks of 1952, for they are the unfinished tasks of 1951. Little is much when God is in it. Work with God and nothing is lost," were Mrs. Terry's closing admonitions to a fine report.

WILL APPEAL

Kitchener, Dec. 22 — (CP) — William Azzoardi, Brantford butcher, yesterday was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Reformatory for receiving stolen cattle. His lawyer announced he would appeal the sentence.

HOUSE ADJOURNS

Won't Be Arbitrary

Yesterday, with the air cleared and a false calm indicating possible progress, Mr. St. Laurent said the government did not want to be "arbitrary" and he therefore would "not give any such notice (of closure) today."

Still leaving the way open for possible closure, he said he hoped enough progress would be made "under the ordinary rules. . . that it will not be appropriate to give that notice at any time."

With that said, the Chamber quickly turned to vote on a Progressive Conservative motion to kill the legislation, defeating the motion 82 to 22, only to receive two more motions—one C.C.F. and one Progressive Conservative—to make alterations in the legislation.

From there on, all hope of a quick decision on the bill went down the parliamentary drain.

Even as the House reluctantly aagreed to return to work Dec. 27, Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew served notice that a continued and probably prolonged Progressive Conservative attack awaits the legislation if the government does not agree to hold it back until next session.

Makes it Clear

Mr. St. Laurent snapped that he wanted to "make it quite clear" that the government intends to proceed with the bill.

Meantime, while the Commons was thus deadlocked on the prices issue, royal assent was given by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, acting for the Governor-General, to 33 bills which already have passed the Commons and the Senate.

They included three front-rank pieces of legislation—provision for universal $40-a-month old-age pensions beginning Jan. 1; establishment of an agency to build the St. Lawrence seaway, and implementation of recommendations of the Royal Commission on transportation.

Bitter Debates

The bitter Commons debates result from the government's decision to prohibit the long-time practice of manufacturers fixing the prices at which merchants may retail their goods.

Before coming to the House, the legislation underwent three weeks of intensive study by a parliamentary committee, whose proceedings have been described by the Progressive Conservatives as "gagged", "suppressed" and "guillotined."

The Progressive Conservative attack has been based on the premise that the legislation, by setting prices free on goods now controlled, will touch off predatory price wars and drive small merchants out of business. In other words, it would leave them "at the mercy" of their big competitors.

Commisison Urged

If the legislation must go through, their latest proposal is that the government establish a "fair-trade commission" to curb unrestricted price cutting.

The C.C.F. and Social Credit parties endorse the legislation, but would like to see protection for the small dealer against "loss leaders"—the practice of selling prices below cost to attract business and destroy competition. The C.C.F. suggest specifically that a "consumer's board" set the prices.

The Liberals argue that the Criminal Code already contains protection against loss-leader selling; that the government will take any further steps necessary to ensure that protection.

Above all, the Liberals say, the legislation will benefit the consumer. The C.C.F. and Social Credit groups accept the argument. The Progressive Conservatives don't.

All four parties are pretty well agreed on one point—that the legislation won't have much effect, one way or another, on the high cost of living.

MYSTERY BLAST

The mine employees 1,100 workers altogether, 800 of them miners. It runs too shifts. After last night's shift the miners were to have taken off until Wednesday.

Hundreds of persons, many of them relatives, gathered around the mine shaft for word. They shivered in the sub-freezing weather.

State police said the dead were not immediately identified.

Since the mine, the largest coal shaft mine in the world from the standpoint of daily output, stretches far underground there was a strong chance the entrapped miners had retreated into the mine's recesses for protection. There was a possibility that their fresh air might be cut off.

BECOMING A RACKET

Toronto, Dec. 22. (CP)—Police Chief Robert Weatherup of suburban New Toronto likes Christmas carols but. . . .

He said yesterday that unorganized groups of children are turning the carol singing tradition into a racket. They go from door to door operating a sort of shell-out system.

"If they don't get paid, they sauce the people," he said. "Their services would be much more appreciated if they would shovel sidewalks."

The chief said he offered a boy $1 to shovel his sidewalk and was told:

"I could make more singing carols."

Houston's Wish All
A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

The happy Christmas comes once more,
The heavenly guest is at the door;
The blessed words the shepherds thrill,
The joyous tidings; Peace, good-will!

To David's city let us fly,
Where angels sing beneath the sky;
Through plain and village pressing near,
And news from God with shepherds hear.

O wake our hearts in gladness sing!
And keep our Christmas with our King,
Till living song, from loving souls,
Like sound of mighty water rolls.

O holy Child! Thy manger streams
Till earth and heaven glow with its beams.
Till midnight noon's broad light has won,
And Jacob's star outshines the sun.

Mrs. Mary Quinn Presents Fine European Travelogue

The December dinner meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville, took place in Lattimer's Town Room, with the president, Miss Gladys MacDonald, presiding. After the toast to The King, the new members were welcomed.

The speaker of the evening, introduced by Frances Bennett, was Mary Quinn, who told of her two months' travel in Europe during this past summer.

Arriving in London, she set out a willing and eager traveller upon a tour of the south of England taking the club members again into the glorious and romantic past, as exemplified by the twelfth century cathedrals of Exeter, Glastonbury, Wells, Canterbury, the birthplace of Wolfe, where the traveller received a jolt, as underneath the plaque commemorating this pact, was another plaque announcing "School for the Deaf". Also visited were the burial place of King Arthur; "Ships Inn", of Drake fame; "Land's End", that is truly land's end; Clovelly, and Plymouth Rock, from whence sailed a little band of people over three hundred years ago. After viewing the bed and courtyard, both of George III, Mrs. Quinn stated she had tried the one but not the other.

Seventh Century Castle

In Scotland, even the most blase traveller would be over-awed with the seventh century castle dominating the city of Edinburgh; the movingly beautiful shrine and the glorious Trossacks.

Through the storied Lake district of England; Oxford; the Shakespeare country, where in the famous theatre the cheapest seats are as the best, Mrs. Quinn took her audience to the famous Warwick castle, where preparations for a party were in progress, but other lands were calling.

In London, the narrator had the pleasure of being entertained by Trevor Howard, famed British cinema actor and his mother, and at a London theatre the club shared with her the pleasure of seeing Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh in the audience.

The historical places all seemed to come alive to the listeners, and crossing the channel, were seen the native costumes of the Hollander; the clean houses with side mirrors at the windows, (as on motor cars); the many little shoes at the doors bespeaking of the new generations whom it is hoped may be spared the sufferings of their parents. Then on to the perilous mountain roads of Switzerland, where the life, costumes and native foods were enjoyed.

Italy with its art treasurers; old Roman architecture mixed with the new, presented another picture; and with the traveller listened to the symphonies and concerts in the old ruins, and being women, shopped with her in the glass market, the book shops, galleries, and the silk and straw mart.

At hotels such names appeared on the register, as, Margaret, Princess of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Chalespin, Edward and Wallis Windsor, while Elsa Maxwell was viewed at the Casino at Nice, but King Farouk was missed; shopped, went to the opera and ballet in Paris and felt all the lure and charm of that wonderful city.

Returning to London, Mrs. Quinn set sail for Canada where she had additional pleasure in welcoming a new granddaughter.

Theo Wheeler thanked the speaker and the club had to return the practical affairs, wrapping bed jackets, sweaters, stockings and candy for the County Rest Home.

Christmas Concerts

UNITED CHURCH

Thomasburg — On Tuesday evening the Sunday School of the Thomasburg United Church held its Christmas entertainment with a good representation of the community present.

The Tyro group of the church sponsored the decorations and arranging of the nativity scene which formed a background for the various items on the program. The manger scene enacted by Mrs. Thompson's class, fittingly portrayed the wondrous event of Christmas night.

The entire Sunday School staff is to be commended for an excellent program from the tiny tots up.

Arrival of Santa

Then apparently out of a snowdrift Santa Claus came with a bi; 'hello' and distributed presents from a well laden tree. He must be a versatile old fellow, too, for when handed, one item, a hockey stick, he demonstrated stick handling and falling, much to the amusement of the children.

There was a treat for all the children of the Sunday School, and their entertainment ended in a veritable hum of happy excitement.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Christmas Party

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. P. White's with 30 members being present and several children.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with Yuletide ornamenst and evergreens.

A carol service was put on under the leadership of Mrs. C. Holmes with Mrs. K. Bird presiding at the piano. Others assisting in the service were, Mrs. Daniels, Mrs. Denyes, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Wetlaufer, and Mrs. Chambers.

Games were played and prizes won, after which exchange of gifts took place.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the lunch committee, bringing the afternoon to a close.

Energetic Club Holds Annual Christmas Party

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street Church, held their annual family Christmas party recently in the church parlors. The Sunday school room and tables were attractively decorated with a large well-lit Christmas tree shining over all.

A turkey dinner was served to 130 which all enjoyed from the babes in high chairs to the minister, Rev. S. Larman.

Following the dinner, a concert put on by the children of the club members, was enjoyed, The program was as follows: Christmas carols, led by Ruth Ackerman; recitation, Bruce Poste; vocal duet, Linda and Brenda Grills; Merry Christmas exercise, 14 boys and girls; piano duet, Sandra Outingdyke and Barbara MacMillan; recitation, Douglas Stickle; vocal duet, Judy and Gloria Townson; "What the Boys Found Out", a skit by ten boys; solo, Gail Greatrix; piano solo, Maureen Wyatt; vocal duet, Roddy Grills and Ron Poste; guitar solo, Frances Wagar.

While all the children were singing, "Here Comes Santa Claus", sure enough he arrived with a gift and bag of candy for each youngster, which closed another enjoyable party and a successful year for the club.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

They tell us that the most pernicious problem of hospitals has nothing to do with medicine or nursing. Biggest hospital problem is always — visitors. It is the visitors who pay no attention to visiting hours, who drop in on patient-friends at meal hours, who inconvenience the patients, the staff and the doctors by popping in at any old time of the morning or night.

While patients in private rooms enjoy the privilege of open visiting hours because no other patients are disturbed by the caller (and they pay plenty), come-at-any-old-time visitors make things most awkward for everybody concerned in the wards.

Visitors are welcomed by the hospital authorities and the doctors at the stated hours because the experts know that friends are good medicine for the sick. Some visitors give their suffering friends a real mental tonic by coming to see them. Then, they spoil all the good they've done by staying too long.

Most hospital calls should not be longer than 15 minutes. Nothing is more tiring on any patient than long, loitering callers to whom he must do all the talking. Monday is generally recognized as the worst day for patients in hospitals simply because they are overtired from Sunday visitors.

Mannerisms

The other night at a supper party, we noticed one of the men guests strike a match in a strange way. He struck it away from his body, instead of toward it as is usual. This little mannerism sparked up conversation until the reason behind the gesture came out.

This man had just returned from the Far East. He explained that out there the native matches are made so poorly that often their heads fly off and burn your clothing. Only way to prevent this is to do as everybody else there does — strike the match with a sweep away from the body.

A mannerism which is peculiar to Englishmen is the custom of tucking his handkerchief up the cuff of his coat sleeve instead of in the hip pocket. While the sleeve may be a handier place to get your handkerchief when you need it, that's not the reason for parking it there.

This old English sleeve custom comes from the days when military uniforms had no pockets. Pockets were considered bulky and the figure of a soldier was supposed to be as trim and smooth and form fitting as possible. It is true that a man can't look neat when his pockets are bulging. But frankly, we're all for men carrying their handkerchiefs on the hip in the good heman fashion instead of the ladylike tuck of the sleeve.

Eating mannerisms are peculiar to nationalities. The North American eats his main course by first cutting a piece of meat with his knife, then laying the knife down and switching the fork from left to right hand in order to place the morsel of meat in his mouth with his right hand.

British people and those on the Continent, keep the knife in the right hand and the fork in the left. They eat without switching. They call us "fork-changers."

Mannerisms are small things. Yet they can disclose much. International spies often go more on mannerisms to spot a person than anything else. Individuals have their own peculiar mannerisms as well as the mannerisms of their nationality. It is interesting to watch a group of people of different nationality at an informal party where their mannerisms show to advantage. The study of human mannerisms is a science.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The lonely wife.

Sometimes I think that if more married couples would follow the excellent example set by Jack Spratt and his wife, there would be fewer unhappy marriages.

You remember about that famous pair of the nursery rhyme. He didn't like the fat meat, and his wife wouldn't eat the lean.

So what did they do? Did he quarrel with Mrs. Spratt and insist that she make the butcher chop off all the fat before delivering the meat? And did she get mad and tell him if he didn't like what she put on the table, he knew where he could go—right to a restaurant for his meals? And, as a result, was there an argument every time, or else, if they did eat, did both of them end up with a fine case of indigestion because their stomachs were so stirred up by their emotions?

Not at all.

What they did, of course, was to compromise. He ate what he liked and she ate what she liked, and on that basis they got along fine.

To leave the Spratts and move on to a more modern couple, consider this husband and wife. It's the wife talking through the following letter:

"My husband and I have different likes and dislikes.

"He likes to drink and I don't. So he goes to night clubs with his friends and leaves me home alone. Not only during the week, but on Sundays, holidays and week-ends. I enjoy church, music and movies, and when I refuse to go to these night clubs and taverns with him, our most serious arguments develop.

"Although I don't care for his friends particularly, I'm always hospitable to them. When my husband brings them to the house, I fix them something to eat, even though they are half drunk most of the time.

"We have been married for nine years, and things have gone steadily from bad to worse. I'm constantly alone, and terribly unhappy. Am I wrong in not going to night clubs and drinking with my husband? Sometimes on Sundays and holidays he leaves the house very early in the morning and tells me to get dressed up because he's going to take me out, and then he never shows up for the rest of the day and just leaves me waiting.

"I love my husband, even though he says I'm just not like other women. But I am so unhappy and lonely."

So here we have a present-day version of the Spratt story. The husband likes one thing, the wife likes another. Only, where they differ from the Spratts, they have not, apparently, made any attempt to adjust their differences.

There are two things I advise this wife to try. The first, and most important, is to make the attempt to get her husband to agree that each will meet the other half way. She will promise to accompany him on an occasional night club excursion, if, on his side he will promise to cut out the excessive drinking so that she can really enjoy the evening. In return, he should be willing to go with her at reasonable intervals to the sort of thing she enjoys—a concert, the theatre or just a quiet evening at the movies. If he sincerely wants peace and harmony between them, it wouldn't hurt him a bit if he would even go to church with her now and then, not grumblingly, but as part of their bargain.

If she cannot get her husband to work out a compromise on their activities, however, then she will have to try the other idea. That is, to build up her own life, filling it with activities and friends which will occupy the time her husband chooses to spend away from her. To achieve any happiness in this way, of course, she would have to do it without assuming an air of martyrdom calculated to keep her husband aware of the fact that she was driven to it by his selfish neglect of her. She would have to let him know that she was cheerfully accepting the fact that each of them would have to seek enjoyment in his or her own way and that she intended to make the best of it—and I mean the best.

Let her thus turn herself into a person of good cheer, from the resentful, reproachful one I suspect she now is, and she may have the happy surprise of finding that her husband gradually develops a whole new attitude toward her.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Cheery greetings dear firend. Although I don't know you personally but through reading your column one feels acquainted. I enjoy it immensely—your recipes are to our liking and always turn out grand. You have such a variety too—one is sure to please. One just can't go wrong trying your recipes as you explain them so well.

Thanks for getting some Christmas recipes in early too. I would like sponge candy recipe. Would you also have a recipe for peppermint patties and homemade chocolates? Would you have a recipe for homemade maple candy with nuts. . . they are round as if dropped—not cut. That recipe for Quick Macaroons was delightful and different. . . we are very fond of doughnuts. When it comes to school parties, etc., the one request I get is for doughnuts. For the Hallowe'en party our seven-year-old Ronnie was asked "Could your mother make doughnuts?" He replied "Well I really don't know what to say, she hasn't made any for so long". I proved to him I still could to the school children's delight. . . Last week I made my fruit cake and after the family sampled and gave their O.K. on it I said "Wait till it ripens—it will still be much better" Ronnie said "Why—is it still green?"

Could you tell me the proper method of shaping tea-ball doughnuts.—Mrs. M. A. M.

PORCUPINES

(Contributed by Mrs. M.A.M.)

One cup chopped dates, 1 cup walnuts chopped, 1 cup cocoanut, 1-2 cup white sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Mix together, Drop on greased cookie sheet. Bake 12 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. I advise making a double batch!

MAYONNAISE

Beat 3 eggs. Add 3-4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon mustard, 4 tablespoons flour, salt and 1-2 cup vinegar, and lastly add 1 1-2 cups boiling water. Boil stirring until thickened. Take off burner and add 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.

ANSWER:

Such a cheery helpful letter! Thank you for the recipes. Have neglected to mention that Marianne is home now and is a full-fledged nursery school teacher? The night she received her first pay cheque she had it cashed, then crashed into the house and threw ten dollar bills all over the kitchen floor shouting "Mom, we're rolling in dough!" A first pay cheque is a wonderful thrill. I hope nothing ever dampens her ardour for her work.

The Sponge Candy was in the column for Dec. 15. I hope you did not miss it. Fondant, Gloria Creams and Chocolate Dipping were in Dec. 6th. For peppermint patties flavor fondant with peppermint oil and shape in flat rounds and dip as directed in Dec. 6th column.

I have the recipe for that maple candy. It has 3 variations:

MAPLE NUT CREAMS

Use either of these variations for the sugar: 3 cups brown sugar or maple sugar grated or 2 cups brown sugar and 1 cup maple syrup; and 1 cup cream, 1 cup whole pecans or walnuts and if just brown sugar is used 1 teaspoon maple flavoring. Mix sugar and cream (and syrup if used) and cook until it forms a soft ball —exactly 236 deg. Fahr. is my recommendation. Cool to 110 deg. Fahr., then beat until creamy, add nuts and flavoring and drop from teaspoon onto buttered plate. If desired up to 2 tablespoons butter may be added when candy is left to cool before beating.

TEABALL DOUGHNUTS

Three eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons melted fat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups flour, freshly grated nutmeg is optional. Beat eggs, add sugar and milk. Sift dry ingredients together and add liquids to them. Beat well and add melted fat. Add enough flour to make this batter so stiff it will support a spoon in standing position. Drop by teaspoonfuls into deep fat at 365 deg. Fahr. Turn once and when brown skim out onto unglazed paper. Roll in powdered sugar.

Note: The same method of shaping and frying may be used for yeast doughnut dough.

Write whenever you need me.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S A WEALTH of design and beauty in the new resort fashions, plus ingenuity and imagination. Brilliant yellow terry cloth is used for novel one-piece sun suits. The top is double-breasted with huge buttons, and the rather high neckline and side edge are bordered with narrow self-pleating. The double-breasted opening continues in plastron form to below the waist, and the brief shorts are also ruffle-edged. There's a big matching beach bag—a draw-string job lined with plastic film.

A STUDY of the clothes worn in the latest plays gives a good indication of fashions that are of current inspiration yet designed to conform to the individuality of the wearer. Typical of stage costumes is a beige linen suit, the skirt slim, the jacket standing away at the hipline to show the yellow satin lining. The front edges are bound to match.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Pre-Christmas behavior for small fry!

Aside to Santa: James Whitcomb Riley, the children's poet, said it just right. . . . "But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother is to marry a very popular girl soon. As she has hosts of friends she has already been given a more than usual number of showers, of various kinds. Now my mother and sister think that we should give a shower for her in our home. I thought that it is improper for a member of the prospective groom's family to give a bridal shower. True?—Nina B.

It is not considered good form or good taste for a member of the bride's family, just can't help giving the impression of a "planned promotion" for the collection of articles for the new home.

Also, since she has had so many showers given for her, your family has a fine opportunity to give a more appropriate party in her honor. How about a tea-party or other late-afternoon party on either Saturday or Sunday? Or a buffet supper party?

No obligation to send wedding presents to mere acquaintances

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Lately my husband and I have been very much surprised to receive formal wedding invitations from people we do not consider friends, more in the classification of acquaintances. Could we be considered discourteous not to send a pleasant in "response" to these invitations?—Kate.

There is no obligation whatever to send a wedding present to a mere acquaintance. The only exception to this might be a business associate of your husband's Nowadays the reason why we may be receiving wedding invitations from acquaintances is due to the fact that now very often only invitations are sent, and not also the formal announcements which used to be sent only to acquaintances.

Both correct: reception in church vestibule and in bride's home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a very large formal church wedding to be followed by a very small reception in my home, for our attendants and our families only. For some years I have been a very active worker in my church, and I would like to plan to receive the guests in the vestibule of the church after the ceremony. Would this be a correct plan? Would it be correct to have our attendants stand with us? (The church vestibule is of fair size.)—Jane H.

Yes, since you are having so few guests at the reception, and those so near to you, this plan would be correct. As a matter of fact, as the vestibule is of such good size (church vestibules usually aren't), you may, I believe, be able to have all the reception guests take part in the vestibule-reception. You stand at your bridegroom's right; your maid of honor at your right; then the bridesmaids. Opposite your group, or in other convenient place, your mother and father and your bridegroom's mother and father might greet the guests; or the mothers only—the fathers, with the best man and ushers, mingling with the guests and seeing that they are escorted to the receiving-line.

Canadian Women Respond Well to Recruiting Appeals

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Women went back into uniform in 1951. And judging from the way they hustled to the recruiting offices, they didn't mind at all.

By year's end the R.C.A.F. had signed up 1,833 airwomen and the navy had filled its quota of 150 full-time reservists. Three times as many as were needed applied to the navy for the 500 part-time reservist openings.

The army reports recruiting satisfactory with 600 in uniform out of a quota of 1,500 part-time reserve women. Officials said the girls were "a bit piqued" because they couldn't go active.

Forty-eight thousand women served in the forces in Canada and outside during the Second World War. Defence Department officials regard the present peacetime response as encouraging.

Girls who five years ago packed away their uniforms and returned to industry, the home, or school, returned to the recruiting offices. Their younger sisters — the 18 and 20-year-olds — were equally anxious to wear uniforms.

Young recruits composed a good number of the airwomen, required to be between 18 and 29 years of age. Wartime W.D.S were accepted up to 40 years of age.

The first of the three services to begin recruiting women for its regular forces, the R.C.A.F. began its campaign June 1. By early December there were 124 nursing sisters and messing officers, 59 other officers and 1,650 other ranks. All were on active full-time service although the end of the year found most of them on courses either at the manning depot at St. Johns, Que., or at basic training centres such as Clinton, Ont., (radar), Aylmer, Ont., (technical ground trades), and other points from Gimli, Man., to Summerside, P.E.I.

The airwomen trained for 26 different trades, including aircraft control assistants, radar technicians, medical, dental and laboratory assistants, clerks and drivers.

Then there were the nursing sisters attached to the R.C.A.F. who found it takes courage to belong to the air force. Last July five of them were the first to undergo training in parachuting and wilderness rescue work.

Meanwhile the navy placed 53 of its feminine recruits at Coverdale, N.B. These had completed initial training at H.M.C.S Cornwallis. Twenty-five were scheduled to go to H.M.C.S. Cornwallis in January and another 25 in February.

The navy also got two or three times its quota of 500 part-time reservists who train one night a week in various trades and alongside men in the reserve.

Teach Tots Music Insight, Laidlaw Says

Regina. CP)—Growth of musical insight in children can be aided by the judicious use of recordings in music appreciation classes, says Max Laidlaw music supervisor for Regina public schools.

Mr. Laidlaw, who has set up a new system of teaching music in the schools here, said the music should be planned so that the children develop a "listening sense". This sense becomes discriminating in the higher grades as the child learns—through listening—to discriminate between good and poor music.

Mr. Laidlaw recommends the use of a piano for music appreciation—particularly in the lower grades. The fact that teacher is playing, even if only with two fingers, holds the interest of small children.

A better practice than having music periods in the lower grades was to make use of music throughout the day. When the children became restless five minutes of music put them back into a working mood.

The use of records should be sparing with no lengthy introductions, he said. Discussion of music in the senior grades was encouraged after records had been played or songs sung.

In the higher grades in Regina schools, Mr. Laidlaw said, instrumental skill is encouraged by an arrangement with the music supervisors of the two collegiates who conduct instrument classes each week for public school students.

"These classes are of mutual benefit to both the collegiates and public schools," Mr. Laidlaw said, "They give pupils with orchestral instrument ability greater scope for the activities and at the same time give the collegiates more opportunity to develop band activities and training."

This is no job for an amateur

No Sir! That lathe is as sensitive as a kitten — one slip and the whole job could be ruined, causing delay, loss of time and money. You wouldn't think of entrusting it to anyone without plenty of experience.

When you go to hospital your treatment is not left to amateurs — to chance. The very best of scientific skill and equipment is brought into play for your recovery . . . your life. The highly developed modern instruments in this "doctors' workshop" are only as good as the skill and knowledge of the medical men and technicians who use them.

The modern hospital is vastly different from the hospital of half, yes, quarter of a century ago. Today the hospital is a huge laboratory constantly searching for the ultimate in life-saving health care. True the cost of hospital care is higher for many reasons . . . but who would put a price on health!

Eagles Pluck Hawks By 10-5 Score; Juniors Turn Back Kingston 6-3

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

That was a jolly old beano the Hawklets and Vics offered the fans last night resulting in six major penalties and ejection from the game of Kingston's manager Maxie Jackson. Some fellows just won't learn. Maxie has been in hockey long enough to know that you can't push a referee or any other official around — and get away with it. And the new ruling states that any irate coach or manager who forgets himself to the extent of laying hands on an official must needs cool off in the dressing room and get his results by courier. Twas a fair brawl we're told and the Hawks did themselves right noble in the young Donnybrook.

After the game Bill (Santa Claus) Cook smiling benignly at his youthful charges presented them with boxes of chocolates also Dick Beare, Ken McNaught, Lum Carson and stickboys Hull and St. Louis not forgetting our man Friday, Maurice Reid.

George Jacklin, Henry Therrien, Hector Lalonde, Bob Wilson and Ted DeGray left today for their respective homes where they will spend the Christmas holidays.

Copy on the senior Hawks - Peterborough Eagles game was delayed this morning due to wire trouble so comment will have to be postponed. However we yearned via the grapevine that our lads did not do so well in the third chukker when the Eagles ripped home five goals with the Hawks getting a pair. The group standing was not affected as the Eagles win was their fourth of the season for eight points —two behind the second-place Kingston Essanays. Hawks and Petes still top the roost with an even dozen.

RECALLS OLD TIMES!

Unable to attend many broadcasted hockey game, I always listen to the aerial antics of the Hot Stove League. I must say there is one subject its members have avoided and that is the "Kitty-bar-the-door" defence system used years ago.

The two Jacks, Devine and McNab, have avoided the issue because at the time this system was used they were feeding milk to their family-kitties, but George Carver and Claude Tice should know better. People at advanced ages, while not being able to remember things they said a few weeks ago, as in the case of Ald. Tice during election time, should remember those things twenty to forty years ago. Claude was around and George was playing hockey in the Maritimes. There's no excuse for them.

The Ottawa Senators inaugurated the Kitty-bar-the-door system many years ago when they were winning titles and Stanley Cups. They had just one "kitty" and that was the great Frankie Nighbor, centre ice star, master of the poke check and winner of the Lady Byng Trophy in its first two years of competition. Press scribes of the day called Nighbor "a team in himself."

The nearest approach to Nighbor was Billy Burch, who started with Hamilton and went to the N.Y. Americans. He was the second player to win the Lady Byng Trophy. Another great defensive player was Hooley Smith, whose sweep-check, with the stick flat on the ice, made him famous. He played on same line with Nighbor for the Senators, and with this pair out there all the Senators needed was one goal to win a game. Their effectiveness was marked especially in the old narrow Day Arena. Along with this pair were such famous names as Clint Benedict, King Clancy, Eddie Gerard, George Boucher, Punch Broadbent, Cy Denennay and others.

When Nighbor and the Senators went out of hockey, their Kitty-bar-the-door tactics went with them. It crops up occasionally now under the heading "defensive hockey."

I heard the Hot Stove League, or should it be called the League of Noitons, discussing rough play the other night. Going back to the old rules, in my opinion, would eliminate a lot of this rough stuff. Give a player three feet along the boards. Do away with linesman and make him a referee and give him same authority and hockey would be much better from a spectator point of view. Stop players from checking with his stick above his waist. The puck isn't carried in your necktie. And above all see that players are properly trained and coached.

With regard to play being rougher today than it was years ago, I might say these days you don't see many players flat on their back listening to the birdies sing after stopping a stiff bodycheck, nor do you see sports writers making their exit from "foreign arenas" through the end of the rink opposite to that through which they entered.

(Ed. note: Now, who would that be, Bill?)

Thanks for the space, George, and may I wish hockey players and fans, past and present, a very Merry Christmas and Prosperous New Year.

Five-Goal Splurge in Third Clinches Game for Homesters; Group Standing Unchanged

Peterborough—Downing Belleville Hawks 10-5 here last night before a slim crowd the Eagles crashed their way right back into the thick of the hot Central Ontario Senior B group hockey race. They racked up a 3-1 lead in the first frame, played on even terms with Belleville in the 2-2 middle chukker and finished strong for a 5-2 margin in the third. It was very fast, rugged but fairly clean tilt, with the Eagles drawing five of the eight penalties.

Poor travelling conditions made the Quinte crowd a little late for the tilt but there weren't enough customers on hand to object loudly. Those present saw a swell scrap, speedy throughout, and with some good hockey dished up.

The losers fought right to the finish, but Eagles earned the win on hurry-up play and good checking. Both goalies had plenty to do and cam up with a flock of fine saves. Hawks lost Jerry Desjardins late in the first period when he suffered a sprained ankle after a collision.

Greenlaw Gets Four

Toodie Greenlaw proved the Eagles spark plug in this encounter and he lit the lamp four times in a nifty showing, and aided on another goal. Bill Crowley clicked for two goals and an assist. Bob Parnall also sinking the disc twice. Single goals were marked to Reg. Stewart, who also helped on three in another starry effort, and Freddy Mortimer, who had two assists. Bert Hill and Jim Munroe got a pair of assists each, with single ones going to Bergen Payne, George Brabin and Doug. Mortimer. Keith McDonald scored a pair for Hawks, Red Doran, Pete Jones and Don Barrett getting one each. Jones, and Vern Goyer aided on one apiece, and Jerry Moher was in on a pair.

Greenlaw scored early from the Mortimer brothers on a pass-up play shortly before Doug. Mortimer went off for slashing. Crowley just missed on a breakaway before Doug was back. Greenlaw later made it 2-0 on an in-close scramble.

Desjardins Hurt

Desjardins went off hurt and Jones got right in to give Hawks a tally by himself. Stewart got that one back near the period's close from Fred Mortimer and Crowley as he hit an empty net after Lefort sprawled to save on one shot.

McDonald was off in the second for holding when Greenlaw rapped in another from Stewart and Munroe as they ganged up hotly. Wootton got the nod next for tripping. Crowley took Hill's forward pass to tear in and score on a partial breakaway with the Hawks around Nicholls' doorstep. McDonald then dented the twine, aided by Moher and Goyer, as Belleville pressed hard. Crowley was chased for interference and Eagles were shy two briefly but no damage was done in their absence. They were back when Doug Mortimer got the finger for elbowing and he got back in time to see Day and Stewart climb the wall for high sticking as it roughened up somewhat. Doran got through neatly to score from Jones after checking and recovering the rubber. McDonald went over for tripping at the finish.

Early in the third, McDonald got in with Moher's pass to hit the net, but Greenlaw got it right back from Stewart on good passing. Parnall added another from Munroe on a pass-up with Barrett clicking on a solo seconds later. Crowley tore in fast with Hill's pass as play swept up and down hotly and Fred Mortimer threw in one more on a play out of the corner with Greenlaw and Stewart. The Eagles kept pounding right down to the finish and wound it up with a nice piece of combination by Brabin, Payne and Parnall, the latter being the payoff man.

Belleville: Goal, Lefort; defence, Semark and Bastedo; centre, Goyer; wings, McDonald and Moher; alternates, Barrett, Desjardins, Day, Doran, Jones, Wardhaugh and Reeves.

Referee: D. Calhoun; linesman, R. Ouimet.

Honor Turk Broda At Leafs-Bruins Game Tonight

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's fabulous fat man tonight in effect writes "finale" to a tremendous goalkeeping career.

It's to be quite an occasion, with thousands of dollars in gifts, including a new car, for Turk Broda, who gave way to Al Rollins in the goal crease of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The fans feel he's earned this tribute. To many, the dropping of the roly-poly goalie after 13 seasons with the Toronto club seemed almost like the loss of an institution.

Won Trophy Twice

Typical of the way the Turkey came through in the pinches were his standout efforts in Stanley Cup playoffs. The Leafs won only two N. H. L. championships during his tenure as netminder, yet fought through the playoffs to win the Stanley Cup five times. Twice he won the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the N. H. L. goalie who plays the most games with a team having the fewest goals scored against it.

Tonight's occasion, "Turk Broda Night" at Maple Leaf Gardens, will see him walk onto the ice between the second and third period of the Boston at Toronto contest.

There he'll accept the gifts and donations that have been piling up around the gardens for him, his wife, Betty, and their three blonde daughters.

One large department store has built a modern dining room to be wheeled right out on the ice. The centre piece is a dining room suite that includes a set of dishes, sterling silver, flatware, silver tea service and crystal ware.

The Leafs take on Boston again on Sunday. The other Saturday contest sees Chicago Black Hawks meeting Montreal Canadiens.

HOCKEY GREAT DIES

Toronto, Dec. 22 — (CP) — Ernie Collett, one of hockey's goal-tending greats of the 1920s, died last night. He was a member of the Toronto Granites team that won the world amateur hockey championship at the 1924 Olympics.

Six Major Penalties Follow Near-Battle Royal in Second; Vics' Manager Gets Heave-Ho

What the game lacked in hockey was certainly made up for in other actions. A total of eight major penalties were handed out, four to each team, as tempers flared on several occasions.

Beginning very innocently, a real battle-royal broke loose at the three-quarter mark in the second period when George Jacklin and Wilson Reid became tangled behind the blue line in the Kingston end of the ice. Players of both sides, thinking that these two were wrestling, rushed in to aid and everyone squared off in pairs.

Pete Green and Ed Birchall went at it in the corner with Green coming out much the better while Hec Lalonde was pounding away at Bob Vallier directly behind them. Maurice Chevrefils of Kingston was the coolest man on the ice as he separated Harry Brown and Gerry Gerow several times before the cessation of hostilities.

Bit of a Beane

After the smoke of battle had cleared away, three members of each squad were assessed with major penalties and as they filed into the penalty box, coach Max Jackson of the Vics became quite vehement in his protests and began shoving linesman Bill Holway which called for Jackson's immediate ejection from the game. As the latter crossed the ice, a roar broke from the crowd, and he threw his hat to the ice in anger. Play resumed with the teams playing four aside.

The Vics broke into the scoring column shortly before the eight-minute mark of the first period when Maracle deked Wilson out of position and fired a shot from about 12 feet out that beat Barclay all the way. The visitors had an edge in the play during the first period and but for some bad breaks and good goal tending by Barclay, could have quite easily had one or two more.

The Hawks broke for two fast scores late in the period, the first on a breakaway by DeGray and Carey with one defenceman back, and the second on a neat three-way play with Mason making the payoff.

Chevrefils knotted the count with time running out when he took the puck from a faceoff in his own end, carried the full length and picked the far corner with a blazing shot.

Belleville bounced back at the beginning of the second on goals by Jacklin and Houle and the same pair garnered one more each before the end of the period with only one answer by the visitors. Jacklin's second counter was fired while the Hawks were a man short.

Maurice Chevrefils bagged the only goal for Kingston, firing his own rebound after receiving a pass from Redmond and going in all alone. Houle's second goal was scored with both teams playing two men short with Mason and Wilson, the only other Belleville player on the ice aside from Barclay receiving assisty.

Change Goalies

Bob Senior replaced Gourdier in the Kingston nets at the beginning of the third period as the latter had been injured during the previous period. Belleville carried a wide edge in the play during the final frame.

Points came in pairs as Jacklin and Houle each tallied twice and Lalonde, Mason and Wilson assisted on two. Carey and Mason accounted for the other Hawk scores, Houle, Therrien, DeGray and Hull assisting on one each.

Chevrefils with two and Maracle accounted for the scoring of the limestone city lads.

George Jacklin was easily the best two way player on the ice as he stickhandled and checked well both going and coming. Others who played well were Mason, Houle and DeGray of the forwards and Munroe and Brown on the defence corps. The latter was particularly effective.

The teams:

Kingston Vics: Goal, Gourdier; defence, Gerow, Birchall; centre, D. Senior; wings, Vallier and Reid. Alternates: Mulholland, Roy, Chevrefils, Maracle, P. Hegarty, Redmond, Reynolds, B. Senior.

Bilts' Laufman Scores Four Against Oshawa

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers and Brantford Redmen took a crack at the top two teams on the Ontario Hockey Association senior A list last night and didn't budge either of them.

Brantford, in fact, dropped to fifth place in the list when it lost at home 5-3 to the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. At Stratford, Hamilton lost 5-1 to the first-place Stratford Indians.

Owen Sound Mercurys took sole possession of fourth place by beating Sarnia Sailors 5-3. The win put the Mercurys two points ahead of Sarnia and one up on Brantford.

In the junior O.H.A. series, Barrie fans saw St. Catharines Teepees come up from a deficit of 6-1 midway in the second period to whip the Flyers 7-6 in overtime.

Some 2,900 fans at Kitchener were disappointed to see the Galt Black Hawks beat the home-town Greenshirts 7-5. Guelph fans had better luck, watching Ken Laufman of the Biltmores — The league's leading scorer — put in four more goals to help his team to a 9-3 win over Oshawa Generals. The win put Guelph in a first-place tie with Toronto Marlboros, idle last night.

Sudbury Miners beat the North Bay Black Hawks 8-1 at Sudbury to break a six-game losing streak for the Miners in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A loop.

Browns Favored To Whip Rams For Grid Title

By BOB MYERS

Los Angeles, Dec. 22 — (AP)— Payoff time for the 1951 campaign in the National Football League comes with the final gun tomorrow ending the championship battle between Cleveland Browns and Los Angeles Rams.

As thousands of fans await the kickoff at 4 p. m. EST, these facts are apparent today on the eve of the clash:

Cleveland, favored to score a repeat triumph over the Rams by odds that seem to fluctuate between three and six points, must prove again that it is the champion.

The Rams are a dangerous, spectacular ballclub, and to their fans they are also the most unpredictable team in the league.

The Browns are loaded with seasoned talent, and such standout performers as quarterback Otto Graham, halfbacks Bud Jones and Ken Carpenter, fullback Marion Motley and two crack ends, Dante Lavelli and Mac Speedie.

The Rams are heavily decorated with rookies — an even dozen, and most of them in the line. And they are blessed with a gifted array of stars, including Capt. Bob Waterfield, ends Elroy Hirsch and Tom Fears, and such backs as Don Towler, Dick Hoerner, Tank Younger, Glenn Davis, alternate quarterback Norman Van Brocklin and others.

OVERCOME BY FUMES

Toronto, Dec. 22 — (CP) — William Johnson, his wife, Joyce, and their baby, were overcome by coal gas fumes yesterday when the furnace exploded in their suburban East York home. Firemen revived the family and their condition later was satisfactory.

Charlie Burr Rides Winner Number 300

Miami, Fla., Dec. 22 — (AP)— Jockey Charlie Burr, the 17-year-old lad from Kansas, was proud and happy today about riding 300 winning horses in a year, but he wasn't letting the achievement go to his head.

He was out at Tropical Park as usual, a smile on his face as he prepared for another day of racing.

There was little to indicate that the slender, dark-haired youth had just become the seventh jockey in American turf history to score 300 or more victories in 12 months.

Burr didn't say much about it himself. He felt he'd covered the subject when he stood in the winner's circle before the cheering crowd yesterday and received a silver plate from racing secretary Gerald Brady to commemorate the occasion.

"It's a wonderful feeling to join those six other riders," he said, his lean face breaking into a broad grin.

"I'm tickled to death. I thought I wouldn't make it after coming in second in the seventh. But Four No Trump ran a fine race. I saw the opening on the inside and we made it."

Suspend Four Boxing Officials

Toronto, Dec. 22—(CP)—Four officials of the Northlands Athletic Club of Sudbury, Ont., last night were suspended temporarily for allowing a United States fighter to appear on a recent boxing show. The suspensions were imposed by the Central Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

There is a ban on exchange of amateur boxers between Ontario and the United States.

Suspended were John Teale, president; Chuck Martin, vice-president; Bob Watson, secretary; and Ed Sophia, treasurer.

Edmonton Edges Saskatoon 5-4

(By The Canadian Press)

Saskatoon Quakers lost out last night in their chance to overtake second-place Seattle Ironmen in the Pacific Coast League. The Quakers went down 5-4 to Edmonton Flyers while Seattle battled to a 4-4 draw with Victoria Cougars.

Flyers scored two third period goals in their narrow victory. Frank Kubasek led Edmonton goal-getters with two, while Motto McLean, Johnny Raynak and Colin Kilburn added the others. Alex Kalet scored two for Saskatoon and assisted in the other two, scored by Neil Strain and Johnny Chad.

Bob Bowness scored twice for Victoria in the other game, the other goals going to Bernie Strongman and Roger Leger. Seattle scorers were Joe Bell, Walt Samanski, Stan Maxwell and Nick Tomiuk.

Sports Roundup

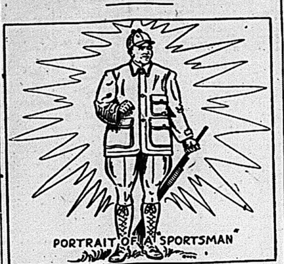
By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Dec. 22 —(AP)— Independent Minor-League baseball, long regarded as a thing of the past, may be a thing of the near future . . . a gent who keeps tabs on such things reports that big-league clubs have been disposing of their wholly-owned "farms" so rapidly that if the trend continues another year or two, the majors no longer will control the minors . . . that may bring a few changes in the baseball set-up, as the independent minors nearly passed a motion giving them territorial control of radio and television at the recent National Association Convention . . . all it proves apparently, is that there are people who like baseball enough to take a chance on operating a club after expenses have scared the chain operators out . . . maybe Atlanta's Earl Mann, one of the most successful independents, had the right idea when he suggested limiting each major club to the control of 40 players . . . then the Minor leaguers could sell players for some of that dough that goes into extravagant bonuses.

Who's Got the Button?

From Oscar Ruhl of Sporting News comes this one about Joe McCarthy, once tabbed by Jimmy Dykes as a "push-button manager." . . Joe was showing a Philadelphia writer about his farm near Buffalo and telling enthusiastically about all its modern gadgets . . . as they drove up to the garage, Joe said: "What this. I have a radar door. I touch this button in the car and, presto, it opens." . . McCarthy demonstrated, then added: "By the way, when you get back to Philadelphia tell Dykes that McCarthy is still pushing buttons."

What Is a Sportsman?



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

We have several words in the American language which are abused as time goes on. "Gentleman" is one of them; "lady" is another. These two are misapplied all to frequently.

Perhaps the most manhandled and misused word of all is the term "sportsman." After having seen what some followers of the outdoor sports can do while they are enjoying these recreations, I can bring myself only with difficulty to include that word in my writings.

Having been an "outdoor writer" since the days before that descriptive title was coined, it naturally follows that I have been an active member of a great many "sportsmen's associations." I have watched the members of these groups while they sat in meeting — sober, solid citizens, whose sole aim is to preserve the outdoors for posterity. Then I have seen them in action on lake or stream or in the gunning field If these men are sportsmen, then I'll thank you not to include me under that title.

Regulations Resented

One of the nice things about living in this country is that we have almost no regimentation. We pride ourselves on our freedom and we resent rules and regulations. Admittedly law is an essential part of organized society but we seem to resent laws, almost without realizing it.

Game laws are no exception to this general rule and I, for one, resent many of them even though, as a matter of policy, I never break any of them. My compliance, however, does not signify agreement, as I know full well that some of these restrictions are both unwise and unfair. However, such as they are, they should be obeyed if we are to have unity of purpose in matters of conservation. So I obey them.

It does not necessarily follow that a man is a thorough sportsman merely because he obeys the fish and game laws. There is far more to sportsmanship than mere meticulous obedience to what are all too often arbitrary rulings.

My friend Henry Davis of Remington Arms has this to say about sportsmanship. He feels that a man may never violate a game law or break a club rule and still not be a real sportsman. True sportsmanship cannot be rigidly defined or bound by rules. A man has it or he has not, an inherent, deeply seated sense of fair play, and unless this is possessed and its dictates followed, no person, man or woman, can truly have that desirable attribute — sportsmanship.

The True Sportsman

A true sportsman has his own rules. I don't think that he regards them as rules exactly if, indeed, he is conscious of them at all. He simply goes along under the dictates of his inner self and his actions soon set him apart from other men.

Suppose, for instance, his gun and that of a companion are discharged simultaneously at a bird. The thought of claiming that bird would not occur to him. Instead he instinctively compliments his companion on a fine shot and takes no credit to himself. Now and then I find myself hunting with a bird-claimer. I will hunt with him once and make the best of it but there will be no repeat performance.

When a true sportsman hunts on another man's land he needs no admonitions to insure that he protect that man's property and otherwise behave himself as a guest should. He does so automatically and he makes it a point to offer to divide the bag with the farmer before he leaves.

Should he wound instead of kill a bird or an animal, he will exert every effort to find that creature and end its sufferings. He is content to take only his fair share, regardless of the fact that the legal limit may allow him more.

Moreover, he will try to give his shooting and fishing companions the best of all opportunities even though it may curtail his own sport somewhat. You will never see him hurrying to the spot where most of the trout are rising or easing out to the choice wing position when the dog is on point.

Prefers Wing Shooting

Automatically he will give his companions the cream of the sport. Such a thing as shooting a game bird on the ground or in a tree does not occur to him. He is content to kill them on the wing or not all all.

There is no pretence in his behavior; no "showing off." He operates as he does simply because any other course is not in his lexicon.

Selfishness and sportsmanship do not go hand in hand. If a man thinks only of himself you will not find him a good gunning or fishing partner. Depend upon it, if he is self-centered you will find it out very quickly on the stream or in the field.

A few years ago I chanced upon a true sportsman if I ever saw one. This man was foreign-born. He spoke English haltingly, with what was probably a Polish inflection. I met him on the bank of one of my favorite trout pools.

After exchanging the usual amenities, he asked me if this was my favorite water and I admitted that it was. Thereupon he insisted that I fish there while he went further upstream. Of course I refused.

Released Small Trout

The man was an excellent angler and from my station upstream I saw him land and release six trout, all of them legal size but somewhat on the small side. The seventh fish was a big one. After a determined fight, in which he showed that he surely knew his business, he picked up the trout in his net — a beautiful three-pounder.

He waded ashore, placed the big trout in his creel amid wet ferns, and then went back to fishing. Before darkness fell he landed and released seven more trout, some of them quite respectable fish.

Back at the cars, preparatory to leaving for home, he showed me his big trout, justifiable pride shining from his eyes. Just to see what would happen, I said, "Is that the only one you kept? I saw you catch quite a few."

"Yes," he replied, "jus' this one. He plenty big enough for my wife an' me. I put the little ones back. Maybe they grow big like him."

Sportsmanship, like gold, is where you happen to find it, and like gold it is a rare and precious thing. It's too bad that there isn't more of it around. The world would be a happier place if that were the case.

Ezzard Charles 'Kaputs' Kahut In 8th Round

Portland, Ore., Dec. 22 — (AP) —Ezzard Charles, headed back for the east and a re-match with Joe Walcott in quest of his lost heavyweight title, punched durable Joe Kahut of Woodburn, Ore., into submission here last night, scoring a knockout in the eighth round. It was a scheduled 12-round fight.

The former champ, weighing 189 pounds, hardly worked up a good sweat as he battered the plodding Kahut with sharp, telling punches.

Kahut, at 186, attempted to connect with lethal overhand right-hand punches as he forced the fighting in the opening two rounds. But he got a taste of what was to come in the first when Charles retaliated with fierce counter-punches.

The Oregon slugger made his best showing late in the second round when he nailed Charles with three hard punches to the head without a return.

A crowd of 6,724 paid $31,310 to see the fight. It was the largest gate in Portland boxing history.

Connie Mack, Venerable Mr. Baseball Celebrates 89th Birthday at Park

Philadelphia, Dec. 22—(CP) — Connie Mack, almost as venerable as baseball itself, today marks his 89th birthday in the elephant room at Shibe Park.

Connie, whose tall, gaunt figure hasn't changed much in the last quarter century is no longer active manager of the team he guided for so long. He resigned as manager in 1950 after 50 years in that spot and now holds the title of president of Philadelphia Athletics.

He no longer handles any of the business end of the club's affairs either, depending entirely on general manager Art Ehlers and his successor, Jimmy Dykes.

Number One Fan

But Connie still goes to Shibe Park every day he is able, arriving at 9 a.m. and staying until 1 p.m.

Mr. Baseball strictly is baseball fan No. 1 now and he loves it.

"I'm as happy as I ever was," he said. "I thought at first I would miss being down in the dugout. I really enjoy watching the game as a spectator and I'm looking forward to watching games for many more seasons".

Mack is particularly pleased with the A's showing in the last month and a half of the 1951 season—when many experts considered the club the best in the American League, despite their lowly position in the standings.

After today's birthday party, Connie plans to leave next week for Fort Myers, Fla. His son, Connie, Jr., is in the shrimp business there. Connie is looking forward to his first trip in a shrimp boat.

And when the shrimp season is finished, the grand old man of baseball will turn his attention to the business closest to his heart—baseball and the 1952 season.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Official averages released yesterday proved what baseball fans knew all along—that Ralph Kiner and Stan Musial are the top two sluggers of the National League. Kiner, Pittsburgh's home-run king of the Majors, captured the loop's slugging title with a robust .627 percentage, beating out Musial by 13 points. The St. Louis Cardinals' star banged out .614 to become the only other player to top .600.

Musial's .614 in his 10th season, brought his lifetime slugging percentage to .584, a league record. The old mark of .578 was held by Johnny Mize, former Cardinal and Giants first baseman.

Dan Bucceroni, lanky 3-1 underdog from Philadelphia, last night scored a big upset by winning a unanimous decision over highly-ranked Roland La Starza of New York in a heavyweight 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden. La Starza weighed 186¾, Bucceroni 181½.

Keeping the short-armed La Starza at long range during the middle rounds, Bucceroni piled up a wide lead on points that stood up against a good closing surge by the Bronx butcher boy.

It was the second loss for the 24-year-old La Starza in 49 pro fights. Rocky Marciano unbeaten Brockton, Mass., contender, was the only one to beat him before tonight.

The Chicago Cubs yesterday unconditionally released catcher Mickey Owen. He was the first important Major League player to desert organized baseball to join the Mexican League. He was reinstated by A. B. Chandler, then commissioner, in 1949.

Mike Ryba will continue as a coach with the St. Louis Cardinals next season. The club announced yesterday that Ryba's contract was renewed at the request of Eddie Stanky, the club's new manager.

More than 1,500 cross country runners, including Curt Stone of Philadelphia, will compete here the night of Dec. 31 in the 27th annual "St. Sylvester Race," which will begin one minute before the start of 1952. Main contenders will be 21 foreign stars and two score of Brazil's best.

European baseball players hope to compete in the future against American teams, Luis Barrio, president of the Baseball Federation of Spain, told reporters at Paris yesterday. Barrio is winding up a trip through Europe with the aim of starting an international federation as a basis for a world federation. He plans a baseball congress at Madrid next spring.

Adelard Dufresne, 58, prominent Montreal sportsman and father-in-law of Bert Soulier sports writer for the Montreal French-language daily Le Canada, died here today after a brief illness.

We wish we could promise that every Long Distance call will go through this Christmas.

BUT WE KNOW from experience that it just isn't possible. Even with every switchboard manned and every operator working at top speed, as they will be, many calls are bound to meet with long delays — and some won't get through at all.

Long Distance calls will go through much faster BEFORE Christmas Eve or AFTER Christmas Day.

Radio Stations Told to Hoist Copyright Fees

Ottawa, Dec. 22—(CP)— Canadian radio stations would be asked to pay almost $300,000 more in copyright fees next year under a proposal outlined yesterday to the copyright appeal board.

H. E. Manning of Toronto, counsel for Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada, outlined the plan as the three-man appeal board continued hearings on copyright fees proposed for 1952. The board is headed by Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, president of the Exchequer Court.

Mr. Manning said it was proposed to charge radio stations $602,420 in 1952, compared with $304,802 this year, for use of works in the repertoire of C.A.P.A.C. However, if the stations took advantage of a discount they would pay $548,160.

The increase sought by C.A.P.A.C. is opposed by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, whose membership includes most of the privately-owned stations in Canada. The CBC has indicated that it will not offer any major objection to the proposed increase.

Mr. Manning said the CBC would pay $176,420, before discount, compared with $152,421 this year. The private stations as a group would pay $426,000, before discount, compared with $152,421. After discount, the CBC would pay $160,160 and private stations $388,000.

Peewee Hockey League Scores

Goals by R. Pointer, Jerry Ethier and Raymond Connors enabled the Red Wings to win a 3-1 victory over the Maple Leafs in the first game of a peewee tripleheader at the Memorial Arena this morning. Bob Franklin scored the only goal for the losers.

Rangers defeated the Canadiens 4-1 in the second fray as Frank Howard and Eric Dies each tallied a pair of goals in a winning cause as against the single goal of Ron Hull.

Jack Caddick, Melvin Alyea and Bob Garrison each fired a brace of goals in the third and final game as Bruins bested Black Hawks by a score of 5-2. M. Davidson scored the other counter for the Bruins.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, December 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Delightful aspects favor activities that are worthy useful and those that rest soul and body. Do give thanks to God for our blessings. Aid those less fortunate.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Fine influences. All of us should think well on the significance of this holy season especially in a world in need of the Divine Child's protection, guidance. Pray, rest.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Writers, all who must work this day have happy indications and favor. Offer your work as a prayer to God for those in troubled lands. Enter into the true joyous spirit of Christmas.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Most encouraging for all honest, worthy interests for religious services serious contemplation on the approaching birthday of our Saviour for happy pastime activities, too, and rest.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Happy outlook. Be of good cheer. Essential matters equally favored with study, healthy recreation, family gatherings and of course religious devotions. Think of our fighting forces!

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Smile, be happy. Forget disappointments and hurts of other days. This is a grand time to think of the many blessings we have. And earnestly to pray God for others for peace.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Your Venus and other planets in favorable positions this day. Let charity enter your soul. Aim to help those under tyrannical rule, pray for our fighting forces.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Adult or child worker, homemaker, religious, scientist, traveller share auspicious influences this promising Sunday. Do your plans for Christmas include sufficient charity?

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Money about the only thing not rated high today unless connected with matters carried over and needing attention for week ahead. The ill, those in need call us. Do right, be happy.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Can be fruitful, constructive, encouraging period for you, yours. No matter the anxiety (and we all have some), be mindful of your blessings. Look for, as you strive for, a good future.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—Benefic day but may have some changes in plans or in news. Wholesome intentions and actions will bring gain, inner content. Pray for continued strength of purpose, and in thanksgiving.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Strictly confidential maters need meticulous care. Day is generous in many ways, offers new advantages, happiness, but you must develop these by obedience to God's laws.

YOU BORN TODAY are the cheerful interesting often humorous friend, co-worker. Sagittarians are noted for truthfulness, straightforward attitude; and usually for industriousness. Could be a danger of wearing self down through zealousness to finish tasks to tackle more. When rightly educated and spiritually guided, can reach great heights in your chosen field. A quick temper perhaps, but it is dissipated soon through good humor, good sense. Keep usefully busy, study, improve always, have faith in God's abiding love and help.

W.M.S.

The Christmas meeting of the W.M.S. of the Frankford United Church was held Friday afternoon a tthe home of Mrs. C. D. Powell. The meeting opened with Mrs. Walter Morrow playing quiet prelude music, "Silent Night."

The president, Mrs. George Spencer, gave a brief talk "How can we approach Christmas once again with joyful hearts?" "This is possible only by putting Christ in Christmas. The good news was announced in Bethlehem 1900 years ago. The Shepherds heard the heavenly announcement "Fear Not, for behold, I bring You tidings of Great Joy." They heard, they were glad, and they worshiped Him. Herod heard also, but was filled with bitter wrath and set out to destroy Him.

"So today, we hear, how do we receive and act upon it? Does it enter our hearts to cleanse and purify? Does it fill us with high resolve and noble purpose? to go out and tell others who have not yet heard that message? Does the message mean all in all to us?"

Following Mrs. Spencer's talk, the hymn, "Joy To The World" was sung.

Mrs. Madill gave the treasurer's report, and the annual financial statement. Correspondence was read by Mrs. Badgley and Mrs. Scott. A brief business discussion ensued.

The Christmas program was handled by Mrs. Clayton Powell, Mrs. Ray Moran, Mrs. Holt Madill and Mrs. Walter Morrow. Mrs. Jim Johns, Mrs. Earl Bonisteel and Mrs. Cecil Reid assisted. Mrs. Morrow favored with a vocal solo, "I'll Go Where You Want Me To Go, Dear Lord." Mrs. Jack Dafoe gave the Christmas message. The scripture reading was taken from Isaiah. "What Shall I do With Christ? Who is the King?" This is a great decision for all.

The wise men and women seek and find Him, and know the joy and peace His presence will always bring.

There would be no Christmas without Christ.

W.A.

The Women's Association recently met in Rose-Lowery Hall. The president, Mrs. Arnold Stickle, opened the meeting by all repeating 121 Psalm in unison.

Bush, "There Will Always Be Christmas"; reaing by Mrs. Finnigan, "Christmas Gift Giving in Far Away Lands"; solo by Mrs. Morrow, "Glory to God in the Highest." No Survivors

By Will Henry

"Is your heart bad against me, my brother?" I had a real affection for this tall, clown-minded killer. If any among the Sioux would remain constant, it would be he. But his answer let me know where the wind lay before ever I heard my sentence.

"My heart is bad." There was not so much as a hint of regret in his tones. "If Crazy Horse fales any of his big talk to prevent the peeling off of your skin there'll be trouble."

We entered Sitting Bull's lodge which now had the side-skins down tight. Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse, Gall and White Bull were present. "You may go," Sitting Bull directed Yellow Bird. The latter gave me a hard shove forward into the tipi so that I would have fallen face into the fire, bound as I was, had not Crazy Horse sprung up. In one smooth move the war chief checked my fall and severed my bonds.

"It is not good for a chief to stand among his equals bound like an animal."

"A dog that will bite shall be muzzled," snapped Sitting Bull. The others nodded grunting assent.

"Cetan," Crazy Horse began, "here are no more pretty speeches. Every vote here but mine would have you given the Fox Lodge traitor trial, even as the Mouse had it. But I have argued for you, not because I love you and you are my son, though both of these are true things, but because you are a great warrior. You have lived among us with bravery always.

"Some among us"—here his gaze lingered speculatively on Sitting Bull—"do not have so long a memory as Crazy Horse.

"Though you are ready to betray us, you stand forth like a man, saying 'This I am going to do, and I am not afraid of any Sioux.' And in my visions, even as you have said, I have seen you are sick of heart and will be bad medicine for us.

"Because he honors my vision of this, Tatanka Yotanka who has the final word in all points of our law, has consented to place your fate on the knee of Wakan Tanka.

"When the sun tops the hills of the Greasy Grass, you will be made ready. You will be stipped naked, with no weapons. Behind you in a long line will stand 50 braves also naked, but each armed with a buffalo lance. At the signal you will take 10 paces forward and halt. Then will come another signal and you will begin to run. You will begin to run because behind you the 50 braves will begin to run And they will have lances. If your medicine is good you will reach Yellow Hair. If it is bad your blood will be on your own hands."

"A little on the prairie, too, maybe?" I interrupted, sarcastically. I was mad now, as I always got mad when it penetrated my rawhide skull that people were shooting at me.

"It is fair," concluded Crazy Horse. "You have lived a brave life. I give your life back to you."

I looked at him hard. His face was graven as granite. But in his eyes was something I had never seen there before.

"It is fair," I answered, adding softly, "my father."

Crazy Horse accepted my parole, allowing me to go unbound to spend the remaining hours with Star. What matter that snake-eyed old Tatanka Yotanka had a cordon of his hard-case Hunkpapa squatting around the scene of my farewell. It has always been the business of the medicine man to hedge the bets of the warlord.

Star was calm enough, largely I think, because of her monumental faith in me.

"Remember," she chided, "how you boasted of your speed the day you would race me back to the mesa in my valley? Surely no bull-footed Sioux may hope to head you."

I could see she either actually believed there was nothing to it or else was putting on for my benefit. She would not talk of any possible danger, assuming for fact or fiction. I would easily outdistance my pursuers, reach Custer, stop the battle, make a peace, be crowned King of the Sioux, and have myself skin-painted into tribal immortality.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I was on my stummick on the living room floor painting with my box of water colors, and I said, Hay, pop, do you know what I'm going to call this painting when I get it done?

No, pop said, and I said, I dont either.

Then we're both starting at scratch, pop said. I suggest that you call it Old Lady Searching for Her Specticles, he said, and I said, Well G, pop, you didn't even see what it looks like.

By gollies that's a fact, pop aid. You have a slite advantage over me, at that, he said, and I said, I'm thinking of either calling it The Train Reck, or The Forrest Fire, depending on how it keeps on terning out.

It may still tern out to be Tea for Two, who knows? pop said. Anyway, the craftsmanship is more important than the title. For instance, if you spill that glass of mucky water on the rug, you're going to have a very unpopuler pickture, he said, and I said, Well jimminies, pop, somebody around here didn't use very good craftmanship when they hid their Chrissmas presents.

Heh? Have you been snooping? pop said, and I said, No sir, G wizzickers. Two of them were in sutch plane site I just couldn't help noticing them. One of them was under some stuff in the linen closit, and one was behind some empty boxes under ma's bed, I said.

Yee gods, pop said, and I said, But dont worry, pop, I didn't open them.

I'm glad of that, pop said, and I said, I couldn't help kind of feeling their outsides, though. Do you want me to tell you some of the things I guessed mite of been in there, pop? I said.

I do not, pop said.

So I didn't.

RAWDON

Sunbeam M.B. Presents 'Christmas Pudding'

Rawdon—Last Sunday morning, despite the intense cold, the Sunbeam Mission Band held their Christmas meeting at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church at the close of Sunday School.

The leader, Mrs. Herbert Smith, presided and the children all repeated in unison, "Once in Royal David's City," and "The 23rd Psalm."

Mrs. Roy Thrasher gave a special talk to the children on the theme, "Christmas Thoughts." She especially emphasized the fact that the word "Christmas" should never be abbreviated.

Christmas Pudding

The children presented an interesting exercise written by Viola Whitney Pratt for November "World Friends", entitled, "The Christmas Pudding," which pointed out that folk from other lands help to make a Christmas in Canada. The raisin grew on a grapevine in sunny Spain; the currants come from the Ionian Islands in Greece; the dates from tall palm trees in Africa; almonds from the Jordan; pistachios from Peru; peanuts from China; nutmeg from Moluccas Islands; cloves from Borneo; sugar from Trinidad; even the hens that laid the eggs in Canada had ancestors in many lands as leghorns came from Italy; minorcas from Spain; buff cochins from China; while plymouth rocks and wyandottes all had Loyal United Empire Loyalists as their forbears.

The service closed with repeating the poem in unison, "Help Us to do the Things We Should."

FRANKFORD

Canadian Girls In Training Hold Vesper Service

Frankford — The Canadian Girls in Training conducted their annual Christmas Vesper Service in the Frankford United Church Sunday evening. This is one of the most beautiful and impressive services of the year, and the girls, under the leadership of Misses Shirley Fox and Joan McCrea presented it in a most capable manner.

The girls entered the church during the singing of the processional, "Joy to the World! The Lord is Come." Invocation was given by Miss Barbara Stickle. Miss Carol Martin read the first story, followed by the singing of "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing!" The Christmas Story from St. Luke was read by Miss Beverly Patrick. The responsive reading was taken from Isaiah. The choir favored with three anthems.

Following the second responsive reading, taken from St. Luke, another Christmas hymn was sung. The third responsive reading was taken from St. John.

Christmas Message

Rev. MacEachern brought a beautiful Christmas message, the story which is never old, in spite of 1900 years' duration.

The candlelighting was performed by three of the girls, symbolizing three great passages from the Bible, "God at the time of creation said, 'Let there be light'", how Jesus said, "I am the light of the world", and how later Jesus said to his disciples, as He invited them to follow, "Ye are the light of the world." On completion of the candlelighting, the C.G.I.T. confirmed their purpose to "cherish health, seek truth, know God and serve others, and thus become the girl God would have me be."

The girls left the church on the recessional hymn "The First Nowell."

The band concert scheduled for nomination night, has been cancelled due to the United Church Christmas concert being held in the hall on that night. The band will present a concert early in the new year.

Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Casement of Kingston, visited friends and relatives in the village Monday.

Mrs. John Casement has moved into the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clifford Smith.

'Twas the Night Before Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap
Had settled our brains for a long winter's nap—
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow,
Gave a lustre of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer.
With a little old driver so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick !
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name;
"Now Dasher ! now, Dancer ! now Prancer and Vixen !
On, Comet, on Cupid ! on Donder and Blitzen !
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall !
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all !"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew,
With a sleigh full of toys — and St. Nicholas, too.
And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head and was turning around
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes how they twinkled, his dimples how merry;
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe, he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly;
He was chubby and plump — a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed when I saw him in spite of myself.
A wink in his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle;
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night !"

119 FINAL DEATH [illegible]L IN MINE DISASTER

Subsidies for Gold Mines of Canada Will be Continued

Assistance Will be Given For Two Years Says Abbott

Ottawa, Dec. 24 — (CP) — The government has decided to continue its program of aid for Canada's gold mining industry for another two years at current rates of payment, Finance Minister Abbott announced today. The federal subsidy program was to have terminated Dec. 31.

Legislation to cover the extension to the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act, said Mr. Abbott in a statement, will be introduced at the next session of parliament. The aid program, aimed mainly at marginal mines producing low-grade ore and facing high production costs, was launched four years ago.

Complicated Formula

The rate of assistance is one-half of the amount by which the average cost of production for each ounce of gold exceeds $22, with the maximum rate being $11.50 an ounce.

This rate of assistance is applied to the number of ounces of gold by which the number of ounces produced and sold in 1951 exceeds one-half of the number of ounces produced in the base year.

Under an extension announced last June, mine operators can choose 1948, 1949 or 1950 as their base production year. Assistance formerly was based on production in 1949.

Where a mine has been unable to increase production in comparison with the base year, the rate of assistance will be applied to one-half of the number of ounces produced and sold in 1951.

$2.50 An Ounce

Under the formula, eligible mines get an average return of about $2.90 an ounce this year.

Mine operators who elect to sell gold on the so-called "free" or premium market are not eligible for subsidies, which this year may total about $11,500,000 — an increase of about $2,000,000 over 1950 — $12,500,000 in 1949 and $10,800,000 in 1948.

Talks Between Ford and Union Break Down

Windsor, Dec. 24—(CP)—Negotiations between local 200 U. A. W.-C. I. O. and the Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd., broke down today. The company refused to negotiate grievances in the presence of two committee men fired Friday for their part in closing the powerhouse Dec. 3.

The entire union negotiating committee turned up for the meeting at 10 a. m. which was scheduled to discuss the cases of 26 men fired Dec. 3 for instigating a walkout Nov. 29.

George Burt, Canadian director, said in a statement that "the union is prepared to negotiate a complete settlement of this entire dispute immediately, including a new contract."

The company bases its position on clause 13 of the present contract: "The local may appoint, and the company shall recognize, a negotiating committee not to exceed seven members, six of which shall be employees of the company and the seventh an international representative, provided all negotiating committee members shall reside in Canada."

Last Thoughts Were of Family

West Frankfort, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP) — A dying miner's last thoughts in the West Frankfort explosion were of his wife, and of God.

Scrawled on the inside of a cigaret package, a note said:

"I love you all way. I go tonight with Christ. I love Him too."

It was signed, "Bill Williams".

Morgue attendants found the note when they examined the still-warm body of B. R. Williams, 40, of West Frankfort.

Authorities said he had been dead only a few hours.

Two Men Die in Fires

Perth, Ont., Dec. 24. (CP)—Henry B. Shaw, 45, proprietor of Perth's largest department store, was burned to death in his home today. The fire was reported by Mrs. Ted Dupuis, a nurse on her way home from night duty. Mr. Shaw lived alone in the house.

Brantford. (CP)—Cecil William Scott, 39, was burned to death today when fire broke out in the workshop behind his home in Townsend township.

Roland Stone, 16, who was driving past, aroused the Scott family and turned in the alarm from a neighbor's home.

Robert and Henry Scott, brothers of the dead man, had left the workshop at 9 p.m., Sunday and returned to the house.

HUNGARY FINES FOUR U.S. AIRMEN FOR VIOLATION

Fliers Convicted Of Being Spies

Budapest, Dec. 24 (AP) — Hungary has ruled the four United States fliers forced down in their C-47 cargo plane by Soviet fighters Nov. 19 must pay fines of 360,000 forints (about $30,000) each or spend three months in jail.

The government, in announcing that yesterday, said the men confessed to violating the Hungarian border and acquiesced in the verdict against them in military court.

"(Their plane got lost while en route from Germany to Yugoslavia with cargo for the U.S. embassy in Belgrade, American authorities announced after they disappeared.

(Hungary and Russia later disclosed they were being held and their plane was impounded.

(The four were accused by the Russians at the United Nations Assembly last week of being "spies and saboteurs." The U.S. accused the Russians of "spy mania").

Officials of the American legation here were trying to contact the Hungarian foreign ministry today to find out who is supposed to pay the fines, where the money has to be paid, and how.

Awaiting Instructions

(Reports telephoned from the Budapest American legation to U.S. authorities in Vienna said it was doubtful whether the four could be bailed out before Christmas.

(George Abbott, U.S. Charge d'Affaires at Budapest, said efforts to reach communist officials to learn the conditions for their release were fruitless.

(The legation apparently did not have $120,000 or its equivalent in forints in its vault. Abbott said he was awaiting for instructions from Washington on whether the legation would pay the fines.)

The military court said the C-47 and all its equipment had been confiscated and that the equipment proved the fliers meant to help spies and divisionists in communist Hungary.

The government said the four admitted they violated the Hungarian border near Gyula Nov. 19. It said they failed to give a "satisfactory explanation" of why they had military maps of some parts of Russia and the democracies, why they had "superfluous numbers" of parachutes and a radio transmitter and bundles of blankets in the plane.

Christmas Eve Celebrated in Many Languages, Customs Around World

(By The Associated Press)

Christians the world over, who have failed for centuries to find the peace Christ preached, celebrated His birthday eve today in many languages, customs and traditions.

In Vatican City, the Pope again made an impassioned plea for peace. It was the pontiff's 13th Christmas message since his enthronement.

In Korea, in Europe, even behind the iron curtain, praises were sung for the Lord. Soldiers fighting in Korea and standing duty in western Europe organized parties for the children of the countries where they themselves are foreigners.

In the Holy Land, torn by the 1948 war between Arabs and Jews, Moslem Jordan relaxed its barriers on the holy shrines of Christianity to let pilgrims visit Bethlehem and the old city of Jerusalem. Jordan occupies both, but for the second straight year is letting 2,500 Christians in from Israel to worship.

The first of a series of Christmas services in the Holy Land was held yesterday in Nazareth of Galilee, where Jesus was reared.

In Europe, Canadian, British and United States servicemen played host to more than 250,000 needy children at hundreds of holiday parties.

Gen. and Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower planned an "old fashioned American Christmas at home"—home being their quarters at supreme headquarters, Atlantic Pact, Europe, just outside of Paris. A few close friends will help them put away the turkey.

The same fare goes to all American forces overseas—a hot turkey dinner for every soldier even on the front lines of Korea.

Moscow looked a bit festive in preparation for the celebration of New Year's.

Russians traditionally set up trees in their homes for New Year's like westerners' Christmas trees. Gifts are exchanged but the celebration is without religious significance officially.

The eight-day Jewish festival of Chanukkah started at sundown yesterday with ceremonies in synagogues and homes throughout the world.

Chanukkah, which usually falls about the same time as the Christmas-New Year holidays, commemorates the rededication of the temple of Jerusalem by the Maccabees about 2,000 years after they defeated the Syrian-Greek King Antiochus.

In Canada and the United States, shoppers made last-minute purchases for the Christmas holiday, and postmen were making final deliveries of a heavy Christmas mail.

g 4 Meeting
With Truman

about every town and city in Ca ains of snow, this whitecoated fell course: "This, my friends, is for m s out for a snooze on the snow b Canadian.

Canadian-Style

may not bring it up at all.

Officials said presumably two considerations figured in Churchill's reported decision:

1. Truman is dead set against taking part in any such session, believing that the time is not ripe and the west not yet strong enough to make it fruitful for peace.

2. In view of Russia's behavior on disarmament and other issues in the United Nations meeting in Paris, as well as Russia's continued general conduct in world affairs, it is difficult to figure out what issues might be taken up between the chiefs of state of east and west with some hope of trong desire and good will on oth sides for agreement.

eople Cautioned

Churchill cautioned the British eople Saturday night against ttaching "exaggerated importance and hope" to his meeting with Truman. He said the talks would include "the whole field," and that he hoped they would produce an atmosphere in which the two countries may "work together easily and intimately . . . as we used to."

Churchill said Britain will have to battle alone, without counting on American dollars, in which he called a three-year fight against national bankruptcy.

"I have nothing to propose to you that is easy," he said.

The British leader is due to sail for the United States Dec. 29 aboard the Queen Mary. He will be accompanied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden; Lord Ismay, secretary for commonwealth relations; and Lord Cherwell, paymaster general and chief of Britain's atomic energy program.

Churchill will address a joint session of congress about Jan. 17. He will interrupt his Washington visit at some point to visit Canada.

Look Toward Bethlehem Babe Rather Than to Force of Arms To Achieve Peace Says Pope

Vatican City, Dec. 24 (AP) — The Pope urged the world today to look toward the Babe of Bethlehem rather than to force of arms to achieve true peace.

It was his 13th Christmas message since he became Pope in 1939, and, as in all of them, his appeal was for peace.

From the heart-warming intimacy of the Christ child, he said, one steps into "a world that is far from Christ." It was like stepping into a "gust of freezing air."

The world more than ever was divided into two camps over which hangs the threat of war modernized with weapons of "monstrous cruelty."

Yet, he said, disarmament, "which we always have desired," would be an "unstable guarantee of lasting peace if it is not accompanied by abolition of weapons of hate and cupidity and of overweening lust for prestige."

He spoke in a strong voice. His message was given in reply to yuletide greetings of the College of Cardinals and was devoted almost entirely to peace and his belief in how it could be obtained.

Social Reform Needed

He addressed himself to the Roman Catholic faithful of all continents and also to "those who are one with us in faith in God." Again, as in all his Christmas messages, he spoke of the need of social reform that would provide for material needs of men as a basic measure for enduring peace.

The church's mission was beyond that of a temporal institution. The present state of affairs "demands from us frank and sincere judgment upon events."

These events, he declared, have reached such a critical stage "that we are forced to recognize that the world is split into two opposition camps and that all men are divided into two clearly-separated groups which subsequently are loath to concede to anyone any sort of liberty to maintain a position of political neutrality."

Those who consider the church as a "kind of earthly power," he said are easily induced to ask her, as from others, "the renunciation of her neutrality."

But, he said, there can be no question of the church's renouncing her political neutrality for the simple reason that she can not serve purely political interests."

Statesmen and at times even churchmen who would try to make a political ally of the church "would do injury to the very essence of the church. . and, in a word, would bring her down to the same level on which conflicting temporal interests are locked in struggle."

Not Political

The church's contribution to peace cannot be purely political, but her right to her mission of peace, he said, is nowhere "as

Eight Dead, Nine Injured In Tenement Fire

Cincinnati, Dec. 24 — (AP)—A tenement fire killed eight persons and injured seven other tenants and two firemen this morning, Marshal Alex Blackburn reported.

The blaze, in a three-storey building at 642 West Sixth Street, was reported under control two hours after the first alarm was turned in.

Five of the dead were believed members of the same family. One victim, Lillian Mae Williams, 35, died after leaping from the third floor. Two of those injured were reported in serious condition and another in critical condition.

Marshal Alex Blackburn estimated the damage tentatively at $7,000 and said the blaze "was possibly caused by a careless smoker."

$250,000 Loss In Mahood Block At Kingston

Kingston, Dec. 24 — (CP) — A six-hour fire yesterday gutted a business block on this city's main business street, causing an estimated $250,000 in damage.

The stone building, the Mahood Block, had been rebuilt after a 1944 fire destroyed all but the walls.

The entire city fire department fought the Sunday morning blaze that destroyed the Canadian National Telegraph, Express and Railway ticket offices, Tip Top Tailors' office and the Industrial Acceptance Corporation offices.

Three neighboring stores suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

Only one man was in the building—Marvin Lane, a C. N. telegraph operator. He was sleeping after completing his night duties and escaped after he awakened to smell smoke.

It was feared for a time that the stone front of the building would fall, and heavy store signs were removed after the roof caved in the rear of the express office. said he believed the fire started i nthe rear of the express office.
